The weekly band concert by the 57th regimental band in Victoria Park last evening was well patronized by the citizens. The program offered was of an exceptionally high order, and it was much appreciated and applauded by the music lovers, especially the rendition of Remnick's Hits, No. 7.

TWENTY-SIX LOSE LIVES

Heavy Toll of Death in Picture Show.

Senseless Panic Started by Boy Yelling "Fire."

Canonsburg, Penna., Aug. 28.—Twenty-six dead from suffocation, twenty-five seriously injured, thirty suffering from minor hurts. That is the human toll exacted Saturday night during an inexcusable panic at a moving-picture show in the Canonsburg Opera House. The moving picture machine developed a slight defect. There occurred a noise like a "click." A small boy shouted "Fire!" at the same time starting for the narrow exit. Bolus Dubrowski, a foreign miner, a giant in proportions, jumped from his seat and ran wildly for the same exit. In a moment there was a fighting, struggling mass after him. At the head of a narrow stairway, which led to the street, the foreigner tripped. As he rolled down the stairs he swept others from their feet, who were awaiting their turn to enter the theatre, and soon there was an indescribable pile of humanity at the foot of the steps, battling like mad.

It was all over within a short time. Volunteer firemen, several policemen and a few level-headed citizens untangled the human mass. The unhurt and those slightly injured were pulled from the top of the pile. As they gained the street they ran screaming like maniacs to all parts of the small town. Next came the more seriously hurt, and these were sent home or taken to nearby houses, while a few were rushed unconscious to hospitals. Then the rescuers came to the silent forms of those who had reached the fatal stairway first. One after another the victims, many of them women and small children, were carried to the sidewalk. All had been suffocated, and the faces showed terror.

Coroner James T. Hefran has begun a rigid investigation. He arrived at the scene early yesterday, and within a short time had secured a jury.

Measurements taken by members of the jury showed the stairway leading to the second floor of the building, the main floor of the opera house, to be only six and one-half feet wide, while the doorway at the bottom was not more than eight feet high.

It is customary to give two or three performances each evening, and Saturday the moving picture machine operator was about to complete the first when a film parted. Some of the audience had already commenced to leave the building and other persons were on the stairway coming up.

Dubrowski's wild flight through the theatre and his subsequent stumble down the stairs into those entering the building, was the beginning of the death-struggling jam at the foot of the stairs. The bodies clogged the doorway. Men walked over them and fought for positions of safety until, overwhelmed by the weight from the moving mass behind, they too were crushed down to death. When the doorway had been filled still other persons walked over the bodies of those who had gone down, and breaking the glass transom over the door crawled through and dropped into the street.

During this time Manager Ferguson had endeavored to stop the panic. Accompanied by his wife he started for the stairs when the first alarm was given, but seeing there was no escape there, he made his way to the stage. Calling loudly to the frightened people to follow him, he led the way to the rear of the stage, and fully three hundred escaped in this way.

Of the twenty-six dead, thirteen were children, seven of them pupils in the public schools. Yesterday it was decided by the school authorities to postpone for a week the opening of the schools.

GOOD POSITIONS GET IN LINE

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of seven Business Colleges located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk, students may enter any day. Many students study all at home and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada and have thirty years experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1300 students and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you. 13d

MISSING MAN IS HEARD FROM

President of Trades and Labor Council in the States

Special to The Review.

HOW AFRICANS CELEBRATED THE CORONATION.

BENIN NATIVES CELEBRATING THE CORONATION.

The coronation of King George has been celebrated with varying custom in every part of his dominions. None perhaps benefits more from British rule than the district of Benin. The peaceful sports of Coronation Day in West Africa marked the fact that no bloodthirsty Amurath had succeeded to the throne. Under the great umbrella of State sat the British official with his staff, and all went as happily as a May Day festival.

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL ON THE STUMP WITH MR. BORDEN

Napanee, Aug. 28.—R. L. Borden concluded the second week of his whirlwind campaign in Ontario with a large meeting here Saturday afternoon, which was attended by some fifteen hundred persons. It was like a home-coming for the Conservative leader, for he was welcomed into the Bay of Quinte district by Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who, notwithstanding his eighty-four years, declares it as his duty to warn the people of Canada against the evils of reciprocity. His energy would do credit to a much younger man. Mr. Borden motored from Campbellford and made a short stop at Belleville, where an informal reception was held. The meeting at Napanee was held in the Harvey Warner Park, and business was practically suspended while speaking was in progress. From all parts of the district farmers drove in to hear Mr. Borden and his associates.

The Conservative leader divided his time between reciprocity and a discussion of the acts of folly perpetrated by the Laurier Government. He pointed to the wanton extravagance of the administration, inveighed against the bribery of constituencies by useless public works, and declared in favor of liberal appropriations from the Dominion Treasury to foster agriculture and improve highways.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell called history to testify as to the intention of the United States in connection with the reciprocity agreement. He could see the spectre of continentalism concealed in the agreement. "Has not the policy of the United States been the absorption of every foot of this continent?" he asked amid cheers. "Did they not seize Texas and California? Did they not acquire, by purchase from Russia, Alaska, which should have belonged to Canada? Did they not take advantage of an opportunity to obtain control of the Hawaiian Islands? Did they not enter upon a most unjustifiable war with Spain to secure possession of the Phillipine Islands?"

British blood which coursed through the veins of Canadians would rise against any such attempt on the part of the United States towards the Dominion. He could not forget that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had predicted the separation of Canada from the Empire, "as the ripe fruit falls from the parent branch." "His idea," declared the ex-Prime Minister, "is either the independence of Canada or its absorption by the United States."

H. A. Baker, president of the Conservative Association of Lennox and Addington, was in the chair. Among those on the platform were: John Gallagher, M.P.P.; A. A. Richardson, M.P.P.; J. W. Johnston, M.P.P.; W. C. Mikel, Belleville; Rev. Alexander McDonald, T. G. Carscallen, M.P.P.; W. F. Nickle, K.C., M.P.P.; Charles Bowell, Belleville; Donald McIntyre, Kingston.

Borden In Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—R. L. Borden arrived in Ottawa yesterday morning after a two weeks' anti-reciprocity campaign in Ontario. The Conservative leader spent the day quietly at his home and left this morning for Brockville. Mr. Borden looks and feels none the worse for his strenuous campaign in Ontario.

Hon. George E. Foster was another arrival in the capital yesterday. Mr. Foster is on his way to the Maritime Provinces, and is billed to speak in a long list of meetings up to the day of polling.

GUELPH MAN WON THE BLUE RIBBON

Secures the Governor General's Prize at D.R.A.

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—Captain C. R. Crowe of Guelph won the Governor-General's Prize, the blue-ribbon event in Canadian rifle shooting, when he defeated Sergt. J. Battershill of the 90th Regiment, Winnipeg, in the shoot-off at the Dominion Rifle Association matches Saturday. Captain Crowe's score for the shoot was 23 and Sergt. Battershill's 21.

Captain Crowe had been a leader in the grand aggregate up to about the last day, when he dropped somewhat and Sergt. Battershill nosed out ahead, winning the first prize in the grand aggregate. In the first stage of the Governor-General's it was Captain Crowe's turn and he pulled out winner of this stage with a score of 98, while Sergt. Battershill was three points behind.

At the end of the two-stage match they were neck and neck, each with 191.

There was a large crowd from the city to watch the finish of the great match and Earl Grey arrived just in time to see the final.

It is indeed unusual that of this year's Bisley team, only one, Captain Mortimer, will be on next year's, and in this Bisley team of twenty, there are only seven who have been on a Bisley team before at any time.

GREAT BRITAIN TO ANNEX EGYPT

Is Said to be Certain—Germany to Block Move

Special to The Review.

London, Aug. 28—In diplomatic circles it is said that the formal annexation of Egypt by Great Britain is imminent and that Kitchener's appointment as Agent General, paves the way for the taking over of the country. Germany is already planning to block the move and her stand in the Moroccan situation is believed to be for the purpose of embarrassing England's plans on the Nile.

LAUNCH SUNK BY THE FERRY

Nurse Loses Her Life in Toronto Bay.

Ferry Engines Reversed, but no Use.

Toronto, Aug. 28.—Run down by a ferry boat on the bay at 9.30 Saturday night, a gasoline launch went to the bottom and Miss Hattie Gates, aged 36, a nurse, of 45 Rose avenue, was drowned. Two others, Miss Hill, another nurse, of 107 East Gerrard street, and Clayton Smith of 543 College street, owner of the boat, were rescued. Miss Hill, who went down three times, held her hand over her mouth in order to keep the water out of her lungs.

Smith tried to run his launch across the bow of the Toronto Ferry Co.'s boat, F. R. Clark. When half-way across the bow of the ferry crashed into the launch and ran right over it.

Both Miss Hill and Smith are confined to their home, suffering from shock. Both were bruised and shaken up pretty badly.

The launch did not try to pass the ferry at right angles, but raced up from a little to the rear on the port side, so the captain, who was looking ahead, did not see them coming up.

Smith apparently depended on the speed of the launch to carry him safely past the ferry. The speed of the launch was 18 miles per hour.

John McNab, the engineer of the "Clark," did a remarkably hazardous feat in an effort to save the launch. He was looking out of the port side of the boat and he saw the low-lying launch speed toward the bow of the ferry. Leaping to his engine McNab reversed the propellor without turning off the steam. The action shook the ferry so much that several people were thrown from their feet. Reversing the engines without shutting off the steam is very dangerous, for it is liable to blow everything up. Just as the engineer threw over his lever the bells ordering him to reverse were rang from the bridge.

Though the ferry stopped in a remarkably short distance, it went too far to save the launch.

FROST SEVERE IN WHEAT BELT

Damage Done in Some Parts of West.

Winnipeg, Aug. 28.—Severe frost has done considerable damage to standing crops in Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan and around Regina. Men arriving in Winnipeg say that it is the worst blow the prairies have had for many years. There was ice in shallow vessels left outside of houses. One man said he had only five acres cut and the rest of his crop was practically ruined. This was only the second time in twenty years that he has been touched. Cutting was so backward that a large percentage of the grain in the two more western provinces must have suffered more especially at it has been so wet within the last week.

In the towns it did not affect the plants much but struck the vegetables badly. The main streets and market centres are to-day lined with rigs from the country, and the farmers are talking of nothing but the frost. They say they do not remember ever having seen so severe a frost in August. Cucumbers, vines, melons and potatoes were cut down by the frost, and it is impossible to say what has been the damage to wheat.

There was ice in the water troughs, and the most of the farmers agree it came near to being a black frost. The sky was cloudy, but the wind changed to the southwest at daybreak. It was not as cold as at sunrise when frost was falling fast. The grass snapped when driving over it. The damage is undoubtedly heavy.

Gilbert Plains, Man., Aug. 28.—There were over six degrees of frost Friday night which must have done considerable damage. Very little wheat is cut in this district.

Frost In Saskatchewan.

Grenfell, Sask., Aug. 28.—Heavy frost occured here Friday night, the thermometer registering as low as 26 above zero, and most garden stuff suffered severely.

Wolsely, Sask., Aug. 28.—Farmers in this neighborhood report from three to six degrees of frost on Friday night. Cutting has commenced, but harvesting is not yet general. Sunday's hailstorm caused from 10 to 40 per cent. damage.

EQUIPMENT OF TURKISH ARMY

Germany's Discarded for That of the British

Special to The Review

Constantinople, Aug 28—It has been decided at the War Office, that the German equipment of the Turkish army be discarded, and that the British equipment be adopted.

Open Thursday Afternoon

The stores of the city that have been closed Thursday afternoons during July and August, will be open on Thursday afternoon of this week and afterwards.

TRY A REVIEW WANT AD.

AND NOW IT IS MUGS

Lest there be some horrible mistake, all the sports and "open-air" men of the city should realise now that they are to vote for Stratton on election day. Yea! that's right. Why? Oh, well, J. R. is a "good fellow and a good sport," the Examiner assures them, and has done so much for sports in the way of mugs and slaps on the back generally.

The sporting organizations of the city and district generally are reminded of the many Stratton mugs they have been harboring. Horrible thought! The Examiner has forgotten to mention one or two. Now some poor employe is in for a whaling. The neglect to produce for the public admiration every mug handed out is a heinous crime, and the sinner must be made an example of.

How the community has stood the good fortune, all in a few years, of receiving so many "gifts" is a remarkable instance of the natural hardiness of the sons of Adam and Eve. Surely the sports should return those innumerable mugs brimming and overflowing with ballots marked "Stratton" as a recompense for the donations of the "good fellow and good sport."

The high salaried buncombe-thrower imported for the election work by the great provider of mugs, says of Mr. Stratton: "His gifts have been so many that he couldn't remember if you asked him." Sure thing, Mike! What is the Examiner for but to keep track of these gifts, and remind the recipients when election time comes around? That is what the hired booster is for. Mr. Stratton himself doesn't proclaim from the house-tops, quite, that "I gave the bowlers a cup. And I gave the golf club a cup. And I gave the Stony Lake regatta a cup." That is part of the Examiner's circus.

There is likely to be a stringency in the mug market now, however. This election artist is taking quite a bit of the $2,500 a year Mr. Stratton receives from the people of Canada. But it may be that he will be able to finance a cup for Dr. Beattie Nesbitt for winning the fat man's race from the police. Or a loving cup to the memory of one Robert Gamey. Who can say?

Every boy who uses the swimming holes along the river will vote for the "big man" who, when a "little bare-footed boy out Ashburnham way, used to spend whole afternoons in the swimming hole, and run and jump and soak up all the sunshine and fresh air he could accommodate." The boys who find the water a good place in hot weather now, look with awe-struck reverence at the old spots, and they think of the "big man" who did such wonderful things as a boy. He must have been a politician even then.

Of course, the sports cannot help voting for such a "good sport," and sending him to join Sir Frederick Borden, and other "good sports" at Ottawa. Bob Edward's hero would feel lost if he were the only "good sport" left in Ottawa. Let Peterborough send him some company.

LAURIER ENDS QUEBEC TOUR

Says That Annexation is Arrant Rot.

Valleyfield, Aug. 28.—The closing meeting of the campaign of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Province of Quebec, held in Valleyfield on Saturday, proved to be one of the biggest of the week. Nearly 7,000 people listened to the Prime Minister, Mr. Lemieux and Hon. Sydney Fisher with appreciation, and much enthusiasm was displayed. Sir Wilfrid left Saturday evening for the Maritime Provinces. Valleyfield is one of the busiest manufacturing and industrial towns near Montreal. The immense plant of the Montreal Cotton Co., the water power developed by the Canadian Light & Power Co., and many other large enterprises make it a centre of considerable importance.

Sir Wilfrid was well received. In dealing with annexation he said: "It is simply arrant nonsense. Annexation could only come either by conquest or by voluntary agreement. No one hints of the intention of the United States to conquer us by war; and if ever the Canadian people are asked to vote in favor of annexation it will not be by the Laurier Government or by a Liberal Government." The Toronto Board of Trade manifesto he considered an insult to the intelligence of the people. "We want to remain Canadians, and Canadians we shall remain, whether the United States shall trade with us or not. I tell the United States that the great mistake they have made for the past fifty years was to treat Canada as a negligible quantity."

The speaker traced the history of reciprocity, covering familiar ground. "It is not the manufacturers who are against reciprocity," he said, "because it does not harm them. The farmers benefit by it, and when the agricultural classes are rich the country is rich. Reciprocity benefits the workingman of Valleyfield as much as any man in the country."

Killed In Race.

Elgin, Ill., Aug. 28.—Near the end of the road race Saturday Sam Jacobs, mechanician for Dave Buck, was killed and Buck himself was injured when the Pope-Hartford in which they were speeding left the track and turned completely over.

Buck was traveling at about 65 miles an hour when he threw a tire. His car jumped off the track, throwing the driver out and inflicting what may prove fatal injuries. His machinist was crushed to death instantly.

Mike Zima Released.

Hamilton, Aug. 28.—Mike Zima, the foreigner, who was held pending the inquest into the death of Pavel, the wealthy Roumanian, whose back was broken in a fall at his home, was released yesterday.

MAN WAS DEAD BEFORE THE TRAIN HIT HIM, IT IS SAID

New Hamburg, Ont., Aug. 28—Many theories are advanced to clear up the mystery surrounding the death of young Spahr, whose body was found mutilated upon the G.T.R. tracks a mile west of here on Friday morning. Saturday, Coroner Martin opened an inquest, which he adjourned until Thursday, Aug. 31, at 10 a.m., in order to subpoena more witnesses, who were with Spahr during the evening before his death.

It appears from the evidence sworn to that death must have occurred some time before the body was run over by the way freight.

The train was on a down grade, brakes were applied, but the train could not be stopped in time. The engineer and conductor returned to the body and found that it was cold and no blood spots of consequence along the track. Spahr being dead before the train ran over him, the mystery is how his head was lying on one rail and his feet across the opposite rail.

Evidence was produced that Spahr was severely injured in Berlin, where he attended the circus that day. While waiting at the station in Berlin he grabbed a companion from the back, the latter stooping down suddenly, threw Spahr over his back and he lit upon his head on the cement walk. Ariving at New Hamburg on the flyer about 10 p.m. they went to an hotel here. There were no witnesses present at the inquest who saw Spahr leave the hotel until he was found dead.

Killed In Race Riot.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 28.—In a race riot at Indian Springs Hotel, one deputy was killed, another fatally injured and other persons injured. The hotels may have to close for the season, as there is a general exodus of guests. The Jackson Rifles are being held in readiness to go there for duty.

One Way of Lowering Prices.

New York, Aug. 28.—The fourth attempt in three weeks to blow up a butcher shop occurred here on Saturday, and the police believe that the bomb-throwers are taking this means to protest against the high price of meat.

The bomb which exploded early on Saturday in front of a shop on Christie street smashed all the windows in that establishment and the one adjoining and blew a large hole in the sidewalk, but hurt nobody. The occupants of the neighboring tenements swarmed out into the streets and the police reserves were called to quiet the panic.

Showed Lack of Courtesy.

Port Colborne, Aug. 28.—The United States cruiser Hawk arrived Sunday afternoon and remained a few hours in this harbor. Attention was called to the pronounced discourtesy shown by the cruiser Hawk not displaying the Canadian flag when visiting a foreign country. When the cruiser Hawk sailed the private American yacht Labelle was entering the harbor flying the American ensign over its stern and the Canadian colors at his foremost head.

CAMPERS KILLED BY FALLING TREE

Special to The Review

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—Three men members of a camping party, were killed at East Templeton, five miles from Ottawa, during the night, by a huge tree being blown down and across their tent. They are Alphonse Schingh of Ottawa, Joseph LeBlanc, of Montreal and Lucien Marineau, of Three Rivers. Four other occupants of the tent escaped injury.

Horse Distemper

Prince Edward Farmer Solemnly Declares "Nerviline" Is a Specific.

"After fifty years' experience in raising horses I can safely testify that no remedy gives such good results for an all-round stable liniment as Nerviline." Thus opens the very earnest letter of J. J. Evanston, who lives near Wellington, P. E. "I had a very valuable horse that took distemper a month ago, and was afraid I was going to lose him. His throat swelled and hard lumps developed. His nostrils ran and he had a terrible cough. I tried different remedies, but was unable to relieve my horse of his pain and suffering till I started to use Nerviline. I mixed a bottle of Nerviline and sweet oil and rubbed the mixture on the throat and chest three times a day and you would scarcely believe the way that horse picked up. Nerviline cured him. I also have used Nerviline for colic in horses and cows, and earnestly recommend it to every man that is raising stock."

Nerviline CURES QUICKLY

For strains, sprains, swellings, colic, distemper, coughs, and colds, no liniment will prove so efficacious in the stable as "Nerviline"—it's good for man or beast, for internal or external use. Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse substitutes. Large bottles 50c, trial size 25c, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

It never burns, leaves no scar, contains no acids; is harmless, because composed only of healing gums and balms. Fifty years in use. Cure guaranteed. Sold by all druggists, 25c bottles. Refuse substitutes.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

BRIGHT PROSPECTS

As the days of campaigning go by, the prospects look brighter for the defeat of Laurier every day. Nowhere has there been such hopefulness as right here in Peterborough, where it is admitted on all sides that the defeat of the would-be senator is almost surely coming. The fact that Mr. Stratton feels that he is up against it, is shown by the sending out of personal letters to all the electors in the constituency—a personal appeal such as he has never had to issue to get elected.

The reports indicate that Mr. Stratton in discussing reciprocity quietly with the electors, is making the astonishing statement that he is not in favor of it. This might be true since he had to swallow the policy along with thousands of other government supporters who had no say in the matter, but he has undertaken to support reciprocity, and if elected would vote for it. Let no one be deceived by such desperate attempts to stay the tide of sentiment in this riding.

Mr. Burnham is a candidate for whom the electors can vote unitedly, knowing that he stands for principles that are dear to the British heart. He is the standard bearer against the trade agreement that threatens to sever Canada from the empire in the course of time, against the will of her people. He is the representative of the forces which would give Canada an honest administration, guiding matters along true British and Canadian lines, while developing our national trade with other countries as much as possible without endangering our freedom, and inviting a foreign country to help itself to our natural resources.

Some people vote for the personality of a candidate. That is all right, but more important is it that the electors vote for or against the principles which that candidate advocates. The personal equation should not be allowed to stand in the way of a vote for the principles which an elector believes to be right, and for the good of the country.

The fact that Mr. Stratton humbly acknowledges, with suitable blushes, that he is a "good citizen, a good fellow, and a good sport" should not blind anyone to the fact that a vote for Stratton is a vote for Reciprocity and for Laurierism. His donations of cups cannot equal the importance of a policy he supports that will invite the industrial depression now sweeping over the United States. In three years of parliament, Mr. Stratton has received $7,500 from the Dominion treasury for representing Peterborough, and during his provincial career he received many, many thousands. In such a situation, he could well afford to hand out a few mugs—to make gifts for the sake of flaunting them afterwards in the face of his beneficiaries. What do the modest men think about that sort of work?

This is neither here nor there, however. Leave out the personal question, if you like, when you go to the polls. A vote for Burnham is a vote for an end to Laurierism, of which surely the people of this country have had enough, and a vote for Borden, who promises a clean government, and the maintenance of Canada's present prosperity.

Stratton and Laurier and the United States.

Burnham and Borden and the British connection.

CAN IT BE IGNORED?

How many evidences do Canadians want as to the sentiment in the United States regarding annexation. The Americans believe that reciprocity is the first step toward the amalgamation of Canada and the United States, and a favorable vote will be construed by them as an indication that Canada is willing to accept advances along that line. This is made clear, both in the speeches of President Taft the members of his cabinet, and the big newspapers of Canada.

The Chicago Democrat, a newspaper of some standing in the windy city, says that it can see no reason for the "hypocrisy and dissimulation" which form the keynote of the "expressed" opinions of many American newspapers. These newspapers have been saying that the United States has no thought of annexation — that the agreement is one merely facilitating trade. The Democrat says, in full:

RECIPROCITY, A STEPPING STONE

"It is to be hoped that reciprocity will not be defeated in the coming elections in Canada, where it is now the main political issue. That this large-minded measure may be vetoed by the popular vote of the Canadian people it is impossible to believe. The result of the elections will be watched for as eagerly in this country as they will be in Canada.

"So far seeing and statesmanlike a measure has seldom been conceived by American statesmen or invested with the sanction of law by the American Congress. The mere commercial aspect of reciprocity should be, and is, a minor consideration. Higher than this is the drawing closer together politically of the two countries which will be the result of triumph for reciprocity.

"Most of our contemporaries in the press are publishing editorials in which it is repeated again and again that a political union of Canada and the United States is not the ulterior object of reciprocity. These editorials are written no doubt for Canadian consumption, but we do not believe the thinking portion of the Canadian public can have such a deep-rooted objection to the annexation of Canada to the United States, an object the accomplishment of which must be the governing motive of this country in its attitude towards its northern neighbor.

"We see no reason for the hypocrisy and dissimulation which form the keynote of the expressed opinions of many of our newspapers on the reciprocity issue. Reciprocity is desirable mainly because it will be a splendid landmark in the progress of the American continent.

"The sooner Canada becomes a part of the United States, the better off its people will be. The natural progress of this country points plainly to our destiny—One continent, one country, one flag.

At the present time, the great plains of western Canada are very thinly inhabited. Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Assiniboia, all have millions of acres of rich and fertile land, which in the course of time will be densely populated. While this territory remains a part of the Dominion the progress of western Canada must be slow and laborious. Were it part of the United States its growth would be the marvel of the world. Lordly commonwealths, part of the great American Union, would rise and flourish. Magnificent cities would spring up, where now are nothing but isolated hamlets.

"Every thoughtful and patriotic American hopes for a favorable verdict on reciprocity by the Canadian electorate."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Borden, Burnham and British connection are good enough for Peterborough.

Mr. Stratton says, "These cups therefore have I given unto you, that ye may know who I am, and return praise therefore. Likewise that ye shall also mark your ballots aright."

Candidate Kerr is an officer of the Canadian Club, yet he supports a policy that will make the motto of Canada for the Canadians a joke. Candidate Kerr prefers Canada for the Americans.

Mr. Stratton may find some pleasure in dragging up for the view of a disgusted public every little trifle he has ever done, but the spectacle of a public representative going down to such baby tricks is not very edifying. Faugh!

Joe Martin has returned to Canada to fight Laurierism. He says that it stinks in the nostrils of the people of the old country. He believes in reciprocity, but would rather see it go down and out than see the corrupt Laurier regime continued. And Joe Martin is a Liberal.

The spectacle of a twentieth century mob burning a negro at the stake, as was done in an Oklahoma town a few days ago reminds one sadly enough that highly civilized mankind to-day is, under the veneer, about as savage and merciless as the ancients we affect to despise.

The Lakefield power report shows that the cost of a civic system from Lakefield with a city distributive system would be enormous, reaching as high as $600,000. That is almost as high as the $800,000 Publicity Commissioner Duggan was proposing the city should spend not so very long ago.

The tidings from every quarter of Peterborough point to the defeat of Stratton this time. It is said that he is privately telling workingmen on his vote-soliciting rounds that he is against reciprocity. That won't do. He has publicly said he is in support of it and every vote for him is a vote for Laurier and reciprocity. The only safe thing is to vote for Burnham and Canada for the Canadians, and British connection.

In Montreal an anti-vaccination league is circulating fifty thousand circulars warning the people against vaccination. Good medical authorities are divided on the wisdom and merit of vaccination. It would seem to be an infraction of personal liberty that a board of health, which may be composed of do nothings like our own board of health, should make vaccination compulsory to people who do not believe in it. A citizen not believing in it has, we think, a perfect right to remain without inoculation if he so desires.

THE HOG MARKET

The Farmer Gets Better Prices in Canada than in the United States

Statements have been made and issued broadcast to the effect that hogs bring a higher price in Buffalo than in Toronto and that Canadian farmers would therefore get more for their pork in the United States. Buffalo, however, is not the whole United States market, nor is it as good a barometer of hog conditions as Chicago, and, taking prices in their broadest application to Canada and the United States as two countries, indisputable authorities on both sides of the line prove that hogs are and have been worth more in Canada, and that the hog industry is in a more flourishing condition in Canada than in the United States. This condition exists notwithstanding the fact that Canada is not a successful grower of Indian corn.

Figures are at hand from Canadian packing companies who have kept comparative records of hog prices on both sides of the border for the last five years, showing conclusively that the markets have been higher for a series of years in Canada than they have been in the United States. So far as hogs are concerned, therefore, prices furnished by the home markets are undeniably higher than those paid to the farmer in the United States, and those ardent advocates of Reciprocity who see such enhanced values in Uncle Sam's domain for everything the Canadian farmer grows must revise their bases of argument according to the facts.

For instance, having had no money before, he now begins to spend it lavishly; or becoming under the influence of liquor, boasts or lets things drop that sound queer. If it were not for these peculiarities of the criminal make-up, and the fact that he generally makes a confidant of some woman, who betrays him, the road of the criminal would be comparatively safe and that of the detective an unhappy one."

"But I cannot believe that there is anything crooked about Bruce. Deceit is foreign to his whole nature." My friend thrust one hand in his pocket.

"Does he ever smoke cigarettes?" he smiled.

"Frequently."

"Any particular brand?"

I paused to reflect. "I think so. As I remember, those that I have seen were invariably a Turkish abomination with a serrated gilt band for a mouthpiece. What is your reason for asking me that?" He withdrew his hand from beneath the table and tossed a half-smoked specimen of the species which I had been describing on the table before me. I looked at him inquiringly.

"I found that in the hallway of your house near the closet where your uncle had been confined. Perhaps you noticed at the time that I picked up something that I did not show you."

Silently I sat trying to read his blank eyes. But as for divining what lay behind them I might as well have gazed at windows back of which the shades were drawn.

CHAPTER XIII.

Directly after this seance with LeDuc, the stock which I had margined began that series of kangaroo leaps upward which will never be forgotten by those who, by reason of their interest, watched the marvel. I probably called my broker up not less than half a dozen times a day during this period, and it was seldom indeed that his last quotation was not higher than the one of say half an hour before. It went darting skyward in the eccentric zig-zags with which a kite mounts in a gale, and within a fortnight I found myself richer by thousands added to thousands. The glittering heights of fortune seemingly hung close over me; the end of the rainbow with its great bag of gold was within mathematical striking distance; and taking greater chances than ever for the sake of greater gains, I plunged wildly as I restaked my winnings on every throw. And day by day the Midas touch was mine, and I won, won, won. Then, grown money reckless by my constant success, I permitted myself another piece of extravagance for the allurement of the woman I loved and the greater opportunities it would give me to be with her. I bought a handsome motor-car upon which I had had my eyes for some time, housing it in a public garage, and telling nobody but her that I had purchased it.

I took Mrs. Dace out on the first evening after I had mastered my new acquirement for a long ride countryward. The weather was ideal, the roads in splendid condition, and we sped along to the low whir of the machine, with the soft night air fanning our faces. It had long been understood between us that she was to carefully guard all my confidences, and I kept few things from her. Exultantly I spoke of my increasing wealth and magnificent prospects. Her arm slipped under mine.

"Good, good," she cried, with a schoolgirl's enthusiasm. "I congratulate you from the bottom of my heart. It makes me happy to know about it. I told you that I should exercise my sorcery to command your success. When you win I feel that I have won also."

Her tacit confession that she considered herself as a close partner of mine, and that she was backing me to the winning of a prize which we should share together in the long time to come, combined with the delicious sense of comradeship awakened by her arm pressure, became as an intoxicant. In that moment I would have pawned my soul to have possessed her. I threw my arms about her and pressed her to my breast almost fiercely. "My God, how I love you, Matie. Tell me that you will marry me—you must." I cried, as I found her lips and drained them as a drunkard drains his cup. Her arms hung upon my shoulder; her upturned lips seemed to be clinging to mine; I could feel the ebb and swell of her bosom so closely was she drawn to me, and in that position I held her until a slight warning swerve of the machine temporarily restored my sanity. I quickly removed my right arm and clutched the wheel, but still kept the other round her waist, as I begged her in the name of my great passion to make me the happiest man on earth by her answer. Impassionedly I recalled to her my long nights and days of torture when I was half sick with despair of ever possessing her. For the first time since our acquaintance began she was visibly agitated by my pleadings.

"You say that you love me with all this great love and tell me that I must answer your question, Tom, dear," she said, very softly. "Very well, I will answer you. I will marry you upon one condition."

"And that?" I cried wildly, feeling myself grow weak in the suspense.

"That you will not importune me now to fix the date. You must leave that entirely to my discretion. When I think the right time has come I will manage in some way to let you know that I am ready. Until then you must be patient with me like the dear boy that you have always been."

"Then we are really—engaged?" I gasped it out with the unbelief of one who by a seeming miracle sees the dead restored to life. She patted my cheek.

"You may so consider us if you wish—under that condition. But it must for the time being remain strictly our secret."

Half doubting that I was still of this earth, I steered onward as in a trance. Then, unless my senses were tricking me, this most glorious of women was to become my close companion through all the days to come; the one whose head should rest upon my shoulder through the long nights; whose bosom should pillow my face in hours of weariness; who should be my wife, the mother of my children. My eyes filled with the moisture of happiness, and through the mist the chalky roadway blurred before me. A feeling almost of awe filled my soul. Never again will such a great thankfulness possess me, and silently I blessed God that in His infinite goodness he had permitted me to be born.

In front of an out-of-door garden, frequented by the better class, we stopped and dismounted. Long lines of motor cars and carriages extended away on either side, and the music of an European orchestra floated over the walls of the enclosure. We passed through the palm-lined entrance and took our seats at a table beneath a tree whose low hanging limbs almost brushed it. A thousand well-dressed people were eating and drinking around us as they idly chatted or listened to the music. It was the soul of Beethoven throbbing in our ears out of his grave. I ordered champagne in honor of our betrothal.

I seemed to be floating in the air. All weight, all consciousness of the physical left me, and the music was ethereal vibrations wafted to me from infinite distance. I could only liken my sensations to those of one occasion long before when, feeling badly, I had by mistake taken a slight overdose of a drug and for some hours thereafter had soared amongst the clouds in an ecstasy, which the earthly born are incapable of experiencing except through the wizardry of the chemist. Her hand lay idly upon the table close to mine, and with a quick glance around to make sure that no one was observing us, I covered it with my own. "The ring, sweetheart, you shall have to-morrow. During my day dreams I have sometimes amused myself by looking at them in the diamond shops, as in my imagination I selected one for you. And only the other day I found the one you sha'l have. It is flawless; as perfect in its beauty as a gem as you are as a woman. In the uncountable centuries of the past, when the world was being moulded, this stone was created for you, and yours it shall be. But you must loan me one of yours for a few days that I may have it fitted to you."

She laughed in her low, delicious way as I slipped a diamond from her finger. "Of course, I shall be proud to wear it—proud and happy. But please don't be too extravagant, Tom. Remember I do not want you to go to extremes," she cautioned. In my then state of mind money was but glittering dross, worthless except in its power to bring her pleasure. Had I possessed a million I would have poured it over her as prodigally as Bruce deluged Clare with roses.

"And of course the car is yours," I went on with the recklessness of a Croesus. "I will so instruct them at the garage, and when you wish it you will have but to telephone and have it brought to you." It was a present made under the impulse of the moment and absolutely without thought of the future; bestowed as a child, in a spontaneous outburst of generosity and affection, thrust his most priceless toys into the hands of a playmate. She looked up at me with a start.

"Do you really mean to give it to me, dearest?" she inquired, with a quick intake of her breath.

"Dearest!" The word ran through me like wine. My clasp tightened around the warm hand I held and my reason ran riot. "I most certainly do. I bought it merely to please you. Perhaps you had better keep it at the Arcadia, where it will be handy for us on pleasant evenings." She leaned forward and looked at me, her magnificent eyes glowing softly.

"You are very good to me—better than I deserve," she murmured in a momentary lull of the music. "I shall not tell you how much I appreciate your generosity; I shall show you instead." Nothing but the presence of the crowd restrained me from repeating my physical demonstration of the hour before.

"And I will always be good to you, and you will be happy with me, won't you?" I breathed, full of anxiety. Her long lashes fell until they swept her cheeks and screened the royal blue eyes from mine.

"I think so—given certain conditions."

"And those?"

She looked at me again, smiling now. "If we should be married, Tom, dear, I should demand nearly all of your time as my own. I should want you nearly always where I could reach out my hand and touch you. That privilege you could not grant me if you were engaged in some occupation which demanded much of your physical attention. Also, in order to make me contented, you would have to be able to take me where I wanted to go and at such times as I cared to be there. I don't care for Italy in the summer and I despise St. Petersburg in winter. Furthermore, we both love the beautiful things of this world, its flowers, its music and its luxuries, and could we enjoy them together I believe that I would be a happy woman. But I don't believe that we would ever be content were we tied down to a flat in a narrow street. Therefore, I want you to understand me, dear. If you wish our lives to be rich and filled with the joys of living you must succeed. And in this age success means money. Having made your fortune the world will cheerfully admit that you have brains, and a man who at your age has achieved wealth and the consequent respect of the world, has few other difficulties to overcome. These are the reasons why I so earnestly beseech you to make the most of your opportunities now that you are well on the road which leads to all that both of us crave. Whip your talents and courage to the uttermost; ride them mercilessly, but wisely and with patience."

I followed her quickly and anxiously. "But suppose, dearest, that I should be unfortunate; suppose through some financial cataclysm which man is as unable to foresee as he is to prevent, I should become ruined and left dependent upon what I could earn by work. Would you then love me any the less?" She smoothed the rose upon her bosom, her eyes falling.

"I have not meant to intimate that life in a cottage would make me love you the less. Neither would I expect you to believe me if I said that it would have a tendency to make me love you the more. Anyway, I do not feel that such an existence is essential to my happiness, which you say is of the utmost solicitude to you. Therefore, I mention these things, not as a condition to govern our future relations, but as incentives for you to strain yourself to your best efforts as though you were fighting for your life; to overlook nothing which you may turn to your advantage; to think; to act; to succeed—succeed. I am fonder of you than of any other man for many reasons. You have been devoted to me and believe in me; you are strong and handsome and have an alert mind. But to make our lifelong happiness assured you must lift us above the sordid vexations of the world. We are both hopeful and ambitious, and I doubt if we could be content should we have to give up our ideals for commonplaces. I do not say that I should not love you in adversity, but I abhor it, and I know that our lives would be greatly marred if you had to slave for me and I had to cook for you. I am speaking frankly to you as my prospective husband. For our mutual happiness you must win."

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Belief that much of the Canadian wheat crop which will be offered for sale would be something of a frost-bitten character caused the market to lift somewhat up to-day.

News of low temperatures in the Canadian Northwest appeared to scare the shorts out of countenance in the wheat pit. Considerable covering was done as a result and there was also modest buying on the part of longs who, however, seemed unwilling to take hold in earnest at the end of the week. Owners found encouragement in the fact that export bids for hard varieties were not far from a workable basis. Moreover primary receipts showed a decided falling off, so much so indeed that cash concerns here put noticeable energy into efforts for the purchase of wheat to arrive from Indiana and Illinois. Right up to the last minute, too, Winnipeg sent unvarying warnings of further danger of frost before Monday. In consequence the final tone was steady. During the session December ranged from 94¼c to 95½c to 94⅞ to 95c, last sales.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ½d to ⅝d higher than yesterday on wheat, and ½d higher to ⅛d lower on corn. Antwerp closed unchanged on wheat, Berlin ⅜c higher, and Budapest ¼c higher.

Burglars Started Fire.

Vankleek Hill, Aug. 28.—Fire was discovered Saturday morning about three o'clock, in the store occupied by Fergus Jamieson. After two hours' hard fighting the fire was under control. The whole of the goods in the store and cellar, as well as the furniture in the dwelling over the store, were badly damaged by fire and water. The fire seems to have started near the safe in the office. The safe was opened and all the money taken out with the exception of some change. Also silverware, cut glass and other goods missing. Mr. Jamieson went to Petrolea on Monday to accompany Mrs. Jamieson home, but has not arrived yet.

The fire is supposed to have been started by burglars. E. S. Labrosse, a merchant, on High street, also found his safe door open yesterday morning when he went into the store to open up. He could not say if anything was missing. He had not left his money in the safe.

"BARGAIN" GLASSES ARE DANGEROUS GLASSES

A woman who was hunting "bargain glasses" finally succeeded in "fitting" her eyes with what she enthusiastically declares was "just the thing." And immensly pleased with herself, this woman had brought about the gravest danger a woman could invest in, for she had bought two pieces of glass crudely ground, but magnifying strongly, and with them she can see "better to read"—That seeing better will mean an intense strain upon the her eyes, but she will not realize what the trouble is, nor the injury the glasses are doing. Some day she will be under the care of a Specialist, probably for the removal of a cataract, which will cost considerable, to say nothing of the suffering entailed, and she will be fortunate indeed if she does not suffer partial or entire loss of sight for the remainder of her life.

We have every qualification for giving your eyes a thorough examination. We fit you with the finest ground lenses, and at a very reasonable cost. Thousands of our citizens can certify to the care, skill and thoroughness of the examination, and the good results they had in wearing the glasses we prescribed. ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

CONFIDENT OF COMING VICTORY

Everything Very Favorable Says Conservative Candidate

Mr Burnham's committee rooms were well filled Saturday evening, and a very noticeable air of enthusiasm prevailed. Short red hot speeches by leading Conservative supporters of Mr. Burnham were loudly applauded and Mr. Burnham himself addressed a few stirring words to those present

"Things have a very favorable look, just at present," he said, "and every thing is proceeding most satisfactorily." "People generally think, as we do here to-night" he remarked, a statement which met with general approval from all present.

The meeting broke up with rousing cheers.

VISIT SCARBORO WHEN IN TORONTO

Great Amusement Resort for the Exhibition Visitors

Visitors to Toronto at Exhibition time ought not to fail to take a trip to Scarboro Beach Park, the great amusement resort at the east end of the city.

Scarboro Beach has had the most prosperous season in its history this summer, and visitors who have seen it before will be struck by the many improvements. The Scarboro Inn is generally considered to be one of the very best restaurants in the city, and during exhibition time will specially cater to out-of-town guests. The vaudeville entertainment is of the same class as that put on at the Exhibition; the permanent houses of amusement surpass anything else in Canada, the Park itself is one of the prettiest on the continent.

A visit to Toronto would not be complete without a ride down to the Beach which is in about the same relative position to the east of the city as Exhibition Park is to the west end.

Going from one park to another, you see practically all there is to see of the south part of the Queen City.

The condition of Mr. Wilson is very favorable. The hospital report this afternoon was that he is doing nicely, and is able to be up and around.

STORM KING AT STONY LAKE; WORST OF MANY YEARS

Stoney Lake was visited yesterday afternoon, by one of the worst storms of many years and much damage was done.

The wind blew a perfect hurricane trees were uprooted, tents overturned, boats blown off the wharves and other places, and it is fortunate indeed that more serious results were not brought about. The storm raged in all its fury between five and six o'clock Rev. Mr. Lord, of the Anglican church, Apsley, who took the service at Mount Julian, having a memorable return drive to his home, he having to cut his way along the road in many places where trees had been blown down.

The boat house of Mr Thompson at Mount Julian was swept away by the wind and his launch blown out on the lake, but it was rescued by Mr. Graham and R. W. Hall. Thunder and lightning was very much in evidence and the home of Mr. Tate, near Burleigh, was struck and fired, but the blaze was extinguished before any damage was done. The apple orchard of Mr. Israel Church near Mount Julian suffered greatly, many of the trees falling before the elements.

Many Stony Lakers came down this morning on the boats which made their way with great difficulty owing to the dense fog, and the low water.

HUGHES IS REMANDED AGAIN; IS WANTED IN HAMILTON

Police Take in Youth Who Doesn't Like to Work

Herbert Hughes, after a week's remand on a charge of the theft of a gold watch and $19 from a boarder at Mr. Craig's on Aylmer street, came up again this morning, and was again remanded till Sept. 5th. It is understood that there is another charge against him for an offence in Hamilton, Ont. Chief Thompson has received his police record which is anything but flattering to the prisoner.

YOUTHFUL VAG.

A youth of eighteen named Carey, who was one of the gang present when James Rivers was touched up for $10 by Lawes and Wright last week was pleaded on a vagrancy charge. His besetting sin, from what evidence could be secured, was a dislike for manual occupation.

His father and mother are both dead, but he said that an uncle lived in Toronto. He was remanded for a week to allow the authorities to get in touch with the relative.

Chief Thompson was interested enough in the youthful prisoner to secure him a position with the Matthews Company about two weeks ago, but Carey threw up the job on the excuse that he did not like the employment.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Glass

Many friends will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. John Glass, for many years an esteemed member of George street church, and identified with the work of the Sunday school. She passed away on Thursday, 24th, at the family residence, Hepburn street, Toronto, and the funeral was on Saturday to the necropolis

The Late James Burnet

Peterborough lost a good citizen on Saturday evening, when Mr. James Burnet, for twenty-five years a well-known resident, passed away, at his residence, 833 Water street, after an illness, extending from the early part of the year. Three years ago the late Mr. Burnet had a slight paralytic stroke and his health began to fail.

He was born in Cobourg of scotch parentage on September 15th, 1845, and the early years of his life were spent there. In 1867 he married Miss Mary Kendry, who is a sister to Mr. James Kendry, and twenty-five years ago he came to Peterborough, taking up the position of superintendent at the Auburn Woollen Mills.

With this concern he was a capable official and one who was well liked by its employees. His was a quiet and unostentatious life.

The late Mr. Burnet was a veteran of 1866, and served for his country at the time of the Fenian Raid. Fraternally he was a member of the I.O.O.F. and Ancient Order of Foresters, a Presbyterian in religion and in politics a Conservative.

Surviving are his widow and one daughter, Mrs. H. H. Stevens, of Port Elgin. Two sisters are Mrs. Alex. C. Hutchison, of Montreal, and Mrs. Allan, of Cobourg.

The funeral will take place from the late residence, Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

Another Bereavement

General sympathy will be extended to Mr Sidney Revoy in the death of his four months' old child, which occurred Sunday morning at Marmora, the home of his father, after an illness of two days. The funeral took place to the Little Lake cemetery this morning. Mr. Revoy only recently lost his wife.

Parents Bereaved

Norman Thompson, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Thompson, 279 William street, passed away this morning.

The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon to Little Lake cemetery.

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR IN THEIR PLACES

Splendid Music by Choristers at Services

St John's choir reassembled in goodly numbers yesterday after the holidays and signalized the occasion by singing choral evensong last night in a most praiseworthy manner.

The Rev. Chas. Carpenter sang the Tallis Responses (Festal) in C, the precentor being heartily responded to by choir and congregation. The Psalms were given a perfect rendering the last two being specially noticeable for unaccompanied effects. In the hymns and anthem the phrasing and expression were splendidly brought out, and a word of praise is due to Miss Quartermaine for a nice rendering of the soprano solo in the anthem. At the morning service Thomas' setting of, "As Pants the heart," was freely rendered by Miss Quartermaine and Mrs. R. J. Devey.

For next Monday the choir have been most kindly invited to the cottage, on the Otonabee of Mr. and Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie to spend a pleasant day, an event that a large number hope to take part in

The last practice but one for the Harvest Festival will be held on Thursday next at 8 p.m.

WHERE DID THE HORSES COME FROM

It is Rumored That Mr. Stratton Will Dispose of His String

A despatch from Cobourg to the Toronto Globe to-day says:

J. R. Stratton was a prominent exhibitor at the Cobourg horse show and won many prizes. In fact he was so well pleased with his winnings that his horses are still in town.

Mr. Stratton's horses have made a very creditable showing wherever they have been exhibited. It is rumored, however, that Mr. Stratton intends to dispose of the string. It has not been brought to notice so far as the Review is aware, just where Mr. Stratton secured all the horses, although it has been stated that some of the animals came from New York.

YOUNG LADY WAS "STUNG" ON FACE

She Experimented With Contents of French Cream Bottle

A few days ago, two young ladies from Douro visited another young lady who resides on Stewart street.

The question of whether the visit was welcomed or not, has very little to do with this story, but on the following morning, while the guests were away on a shopping expedition, the fair host had occasion to go to their room. With curiosity, only known to the feminine sex, she took possession of a large bottle, the label bearing the name of a face lotion, with an almost unconquerable French name. The visit of the Douro maidens had something to do with the action of the lone Miss and as her face was not all it should be, what did she do but find a smaller bottle and secured some of the "face salve."

Next she began experiments, not from her own bottle but from the other—but not altogether because she wanted to be greedy.

But she applied the "cream" rubbin git on lavishly and actually timed herself according to the directions. Imagine her surprise after some time had elapsed to find that her features were becoming somewhat shrivelled. But she was game and bound to give the mixture a thorough trial. The minutes dragged on. Miss Curiosity took another look at the big bottle. Just think what she said when her eyes caught another label, and the correct one—it was on the other side WHITE CANVAS POLISH, for boots and shoes.

DISMISSED ON THEFT CHARGE; ONE MONTH ON ANOTHER

Fine of $50.00 Imposed on Hector Baker, But He Couldn't Pay.

The trial of Hector Baker, charged with the theft of $19 from John Dugan was heard at this morning's police court session, and after taking the evidence, His Worship considered it insufficient to warrant him in finding a conviction and hence Baker was discharged.

ONE STORY

In the witness stand his story was that he and George Shearer cashed a couple of cheques on July 29th, and shortly after they met Hector Baker, who bought a flask of liquor and they all repaired to Wolstenholme's yard and absorbed most of it. Dugan said that he became very sick, not being accustomed to the 'raw,' and he left the other two and navigated to the territory across from the National Hotel, where he lay down and fell asleep. He awoke soon afterwards and found his trousers pockets inside out and his money gone; about $19 in all. He hurried up street and meeting both his former drinking companions accused them of taking his money, but both denied having it, each stating that the other had it. Witness then went home.

THE OTHER SIDE

Shearer in the stand, stated that he and Baker followed Dugan to where he fell asleep. Baker took the money and counted out $18 to witness. Shearer being highly intoxicated himself wanted to leave it in the possession of a George street tobacconist, but Baker and another man named Sheridan with whom they had fallen in, objected to the plan. Shearer said he became so drunk that he did not remember anything until he awoke in East city yard, at 3 o'clock in the morning, and he did not know where the money had disappeared. His Worship considered Baker and Shearer to be one as bad as the other, but on the evidence alone, he could not find in it sufficient strength to warrant a conviction.

CHARGE OF SUPPLYING

Hector Baker however, was charged with supplying liquor to Dugan, who is a black lister. Crown Attorney Wood felt that a severe penalty should be imposed to make an example of what results from this serious offence. Therefore he was fined $50 and in default of payment, one month in jail with hard labor. As he was not a man of substance, he will spend the next thirty days among the yellow and black dwellers in Castle Nesbitt.

DR. SMITH GAVE GOOD SERMONS

Medical Missionary of India at Murray Street Church

Dr. Everett Smith, medical missionary of India preached two excellent sermons at Murray street Baptist church yesterday, his messages being interestingly told and also in a manner that gained for the speaker, the close and thoughtful attention of the hearers.

In the morning, Dr. Smith dealt with the life of Samson, and brought out a number of lessons, which Christians might learn from the mistake made by this great man of strength.

It was announced that Rev. J. R. Webb would occupy the pulpit next Sunday, and also that the average attendance at church services of Sunday school scholars for the three months was eighty.

LABOR CONDITIONS

Reported to Gazette by the Local Correspondent

Active conditions prevailed during July, the building trades continuing very busy. The iron trades remained about the same as last month. The Canadian General Electric Company's power plant has been shut down temporarily during the rebuilding of the pole line and the construction of two new circuits from the water works dam down to its factories. The Peterborough Light and Power Company is supplying it with 1,200 h.p. for 24 hours per day, until such time as the new power line is completed. J. R. Stratton, and Mr. J. H. McClellan, superintendent of the Trent Valley Canal have waited on the Department of Railways and Canals with a view to having the remuneration of the lock masters, bridge tenders and overseers along the line of the Trent waterways increased; the apportionments will be made during the present month and the increases will date from April 1, 1911. The Thursday summer half-holiday which was granted the clerks other seasons, was granted to them again this season. This affects all the retail stores in the city. Wholesale and retail merchants reported business very good.

CONDITION OF LOCAL INDUSTRIES

Agriculture—Farmers were very busy haying and report a fair crop. Reports so far of the crops are very favourable.

Lumbering—All the sawmills in the district have been running to their full capacity.

CONDITION OF PARTICULAR TRADES

The building trades were active, especially bricklayers, masons, carpenters, lathers, plasterers, plumbers and builders' labourers. Metal workers, iron moulders, coremakers, and machinists were active. Electric workers and linemen were very busy. Metal polishers, buffers and brass workers were active. Woodworkers, cabinet makers, upholsterers and varnishers were well employed. Printers, pressmen, bookbinders and allied trades were active. Journeymen tailors and garment workers were busy. Bakers and confectioners were active. Butchers and meatcutters had a good month. Cigarmakers found trade fair. Leather workers and saddlers were active. Railway and street railway employees were well employed. Steamboat men were active. Teamsters and express men were well employed. Unskilled labour was in good demand.

SAD CONDITIONS IN LOCAL HOME

Mother of Two Children Appears in Police Court

Mrs. Hector Baker was a sad example of the effects of drink and the use of injurious drugs, as she appeared before Magistrate Dumble at a closed police court sitting this morning. She was arrested and brought to the police court cells very much intoxicated on Saturday night.

Chief Thompson stated that many complaints had been received at the police station about Mrs. Baker and her actions. It appears that she is not particular as to the character of her callers, and the noise of revelry emanating from her house on Murray street, has annoyed the neighbors for a long time.

She is also addicted to the use of laudanum and according to the chief is a total wreck. The house is in a disgraceful condition and there are children. As it was a case for the Children's Aid Society, Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill was present and took the children to the Shelter, pending further investigation in the matter.

"It is a condition of moral leprosy in my opinion," remarked Magistrate Dumble in regard to the lamentable condition of the family. The unfortunate woman has a husband, who, from his police court experiences, it would appear, is of little assistance to her, and she has had to work hard to support herself and family. Her husband was sent to jail for one month this morning.

WE-NEVER-SLEEP CAMPERS RETURN

Big Four Had Splendid Holiday at Point "Poverty"

The "Bachelors" are again in the limelight after two weeks of dissipation and revelry at camp "Poverty" Rice Lake. You all know who the bachelors are; those four young sports whose names have appeared in print before, when a recital of their doings at camp "We-Never-Sleep" had everybody on the "qui-vive."

If you were to believe all they will tell you, it would appear that never were four youths more deserving of life-saving medals, etc., than they are. Innumerable almost are the lives they must have saved from a watery grave. With wonderful modesty they will tell you of how they were the first on the spot to save the struggling and frantic canoeist as he was about to sink for the last time. "Whitey," is crammed full of stories of heroic deeds in which he and his doughty trio figured.

Outside of this they certainly had an immense time and are now back in the city, tanned and looking fit as the proverbial fiddle, and full of pleasant memories of their camp life for the summer of 1911.

LABOR DAY LABOR DAY

One week from to-day is Labor Day, and the citizens can look forward to that holiday and feel certain that they will not have to leave the city in order to enjoy an afternoon's sport. The Peterborough Trades and Labor Council are putting on a program at Riverside Park, the equal of which has not been seen for many moons. They intend to put a record crowd in the field that day, and with that idea in mind have went to considerable expense to give the patrons something worth while going to see. The prizes will be displayed in the window of J. C. Turnbull on Wednesday and are a beautiful lot and well worth competing for. The rug which was presented by the Brinton Carpet Company and their employes, to be drawn for as a special prize, has arrived and will also be on view in the window. Don't fail to see them.

BRYDIE'S PETS WERE DEFEATED

Cresswell Pitched Winning Ball and Won by 12-4

Ex-Petes Break Into Game Again And Do Well

When Cresswell and his men were through with Brydie's Petes on Saturday afternoon the score stood 12 to 4 against "Happy's" followers. The game was a fairly good exhibition in places, but Cresswell had the Petes at his mercy at all stages. There were about one hundred fans present. Umpire Dorris had something new to contend with in the shape of a genial drunk, who persisted in taking his turn at the bat in spite of the remonstrances of the players and his umps. He was given a chance and proceeded around the line still under the impression that he was one of the invaluable members of the team. The boose soon had its turn, however, and the latter was to be seen enjoying a siesta in the fence corner.

Cresswell had ten strikeouts to his credit and allowed four singles, but they were not bunched. Rahmal, on the other side had lots of speed, but lacked the control. He also struck out ten men and allowed three hits. The loose playing on the part of some of his team mates was partly the cause of the large score.

In right garden Callaghan was used to advantage. He secured two of the three hits off Rahmal, and scored one run. Acting Manager Dorris was giving him a workout and he made good.

Brydie persuaded Chris Graham to operate on the initial sack, but he was called away in the fifth innings. He handled everything with the same accuracy that characterized his playing in his palmy days. Unlike Jim Jeffries he "Came back."

George Minorgan patrolled at short for "Happy" and was in fine form. He will likely be seen in action again on Labor Day, when the Belleville Grand Trunks play the locals.

Manager Quinlan is still holidaying but will be here for Monday's game. "Jimmie" O'Hearn did not join in the fray on Saturday either and W. O'Brien played at second. He made several slip-ups during the game, so did some of the others as the eleven errors will testify.

The score by innings was as follows:

SPORT TALK

The Pittsburg National League ball team with Fred Clarke, and his $22,500 pitcher phenom, will be the attraction at Toronto this Thursday when the Pirates play the Leafs. A number of local fans expect to witness the game.

Bowlers should remember that all games in the first draw of the Novice Singles must be played by this Wednesday. Co-operation with the officers in charge will help a whole lot and the rinks should make every effort to have the result of their game in the hands of Mr. T. E. Pratt, on or before that day.

The Church League Footballers are going to be active again this fall, when they will again be busy at the football game. At least four of the clubs of the past season are to be represented in a league, which will be arranged, so that all players, green or proficient can take a hand.

And now they have it that Mr. Jack Johnson, met and had a chat with ex-King Manuel of Portugal. Next?

LONGING EYES

The American Farmer Looking to the Canadian Market

The home market is taking eighty per cent of the produce of the Canadian farms at good prices.

The demand of this market is increasing and it will continue to increase as the country grows.

It has the advantage of nearness, stability, cheapness of transportation and quickness of returns.

The Canadian farmer is familiar with its conditions and requirements.

And yet, withal, the Canadian farmer is inclined to look beyond this market with longing eyes to the market of the United States, forgetting, perhaps, that the United States farmer is looking with just as longing eyes at the Canadian market.

There are at least twelve farmers in the United States looking longingly at the Canadian market to one farmer in Canada looking at the United States market.

Let us remember that there are at least twelve times as many farmers in the United States as there are in Canada, and so, while one Canadian farmer will get entrance into the markets of the United States, twelve American farmers will get entrance into our home markets. They have already succeeded in selling immense quantities of farm products in Canada, in spite of the duty. They have sold twice as much in Canada as Canadian farmers have sold in the United States.

With reciprocity in farm products the twelve American farmers will crowd the one Canadian farmer pretty closely in his own home market.

The surplus production of the United States farmer would be liable at any time to demoralize the home market of the Canadian farmer.

It will cost the American farmer no more to bring his farm products to Canadian towns and cities than it will cost the Canadian farmer to carry his to the United States.

These American products are pretty well kept out now by the tariff wall. With this removed they will enter twelve to one.

We must remember, too, that the Americans have the earlier season and that their products will therefore be upon our markets before our products are salable and get the early price.

Unappreciated Sympathy.

The Soda-fountain clerk was engaged in vigorously shaking up a chocolate and egg, says a writer in the Bellman, when suddenly the glass broke in his hands, and the ensuing deluge made him look like a human eclair. The horrified customer leaned over the counter and tried to be sympathetic. Not knowing exactly what to say, he finally burted out, consolingly:

"Oh-er-too bad! Did the glass break?"

Dripping from head to foot, the clerk looked at him witheringly.

"Did the glass break?" he repeated "Did the glass break?" And then with freezing sarcasm, "Oh, no, not at all! You just happened to stop in while I was taking my morning shower."

One Way.

"How did you get your husband out to that musicale last night?"

"Told him there was going to be a lunch afterward."

AUTHORITIES REPORT ON CROP.

Prospects Good in Canada.

The seeding and growing season for the whole of Canada has opened late this year, and the month of April has been marked by hard frosts. But May has been favorable to cultivation of the land, and the rainfall has been sufficient for healthy vegetation.

Fall wheat, which is grown chiefly in Ontario and Alberta, showed an average condition of 82 per cent. at the end of April, being 89 per cent. in Alberta and 81 per cent. in Ontario. In Ontario, however, the April frosts were destructive in some regions; and from 12 to 34 per cent. of the area sown has been reported as winter-killed. The central countries, North of Lake Ontario, suffered worst, the average loss as reported being 34 per cent. In the Western counties 27 per cent. of the area in crop has been destroyed. In the Southern counties, North of lake Erie, the loss is 10 per cent.; in the Northern counties and districts, 12.6 per cent.; and in the Eastern counties, between the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, 15 per cent. For the whole of Canada, the area winter-killed is reported to be 21 per cent., and the per cent. condition of the growing crop is 82.

About 12 1-2 per cent of the clover was heaved out by the spring frosts, and the average condition of hay and clover at the end of April was 89 per cent. Alberta shows better than any other part of Canada, its average being 94 1-2 per cent. Nova Scotia comes next, with 93.75; and in Quebec, British Columbia and Saskatchewan it is 86, and in Manitoba 85 per cent.

Montreal will employ Mr. Dagger, of Toronto, as expert in the enquiry into telephone rates.

HOMELY WISDOM

Pull together, said Abraham Lincoln, or Upset the Boat.

A recent biographer of Abraham Lincoln has some interesting things to say of "Honest Old Abe's" views on the dependence of the different classes on socity on one another. "The farmer and the manufacturer" the president once said, with his characteristic shrewdness, "are both in the same boat and I reckon they've got to learn to navigate the craft together or they'll upset." "He compared the case of a Pennsylvania farmer", continues the historian in question, "and a Pennsylvania iron implement maker whose properties adjoined. Under a protective policy the farmer supplied the ironmaker with bread, meat, vegetables, fruit, fodder for horses, etc., and the ironmaker supplied the farmer with all the iron, iron implements, etc., which he needed. Assuming that a change is made and the Protective policy abandoned, the farmer then discovers that he can buy his iron implements cheaper from Europe than from his neighbor, assuming that he sells a sufficient quantity of flour in Europe to enable him to effect the purchase of the iron. He ultimately discovers that the cost of carriage to the coast, transportation by sea to England, insurance and cartage on arrival, does not enable him to receive such a good reward for his labor as he formerly did when selling his flour to his neighbor, the ironmaker. He, therefore, determines to sell his flour as before to his neighbor. But meantime the farmer discovers that while he has been purchasing his iron implements from Europe his neighbor, the ironmaker, has been compelled to stop his works and dismiss his employees, not having sufficient work for them. The farmer, therefore, now finds that he has more wheat than he knows what to do with, also, that he is no longer able to sell his fruit, vegetables fodder meat, horses, etc., to his neighbor, the ironmaker, as he has gone out of business. In fact, he finds that through buying abroad in the cheapest market he has destroyed the home market for his own products and thrown a number of his fellow-countrymen out of employment."

NEED OF THE HOUR.

Major George Washington Stephens Talks on Canadian Transportation

Not long ago Major Stephens, the President of the Harbor Commissioners of Montreal, delivered a masterly address before the Empire Club of Toronto on the development of the St Lawrence route. "In the possession of this great national asset, the St. Lawrence waterway," said Mr. Stephens, "into which has gone the genius, the courage and the money of the Canadian people, Canada unquestionably has within her midst the cheapest and most efficient national trade route on the Continent.

"The St. Lawrence River to-day carries to and from the port of Montreal one-third of the country's national trade.

"In this enterprise there are just 6,000,000 Canadian shareholders, all equally interested.

"At her present rate of increase Canada will, during the twentieth century, contribute to the Empire a population exceeding that now occupying the British Isles, and will produce from one-quarter of her available areas in the West more wheat than now comprises the total wheat crop of the United States.

"There are two methods of providing for the handling of this new business, not to mention the concurrent industrial production of the country. First, by increasing transportation and terminal facilities on Canadian soil; second, by allowing business to be taken care of by transportation routes and sea terminals not within the limits of this Dominion.

"I like to regard this system extending from Fort William to the sea, a distance of 2,500 miles, as a great national undertaking, into which are going the money, the genius and the patriotism of the Canadian people, and out of which are coming year by year privileges and powers to the transportation interests of Canada, instead of diversity of control and authority."

FINE THING FOR GLOUCESTER

But Where Do the Nova Scotia Towns Come In?

General William Slopford, of Beverly, Mass, who has been all his life in the fish business, has recently been telling the Boston Herald about the consequences that will follow from the possible adoption of Reciprocity in fish. His arguments were considered worthy of being reproduced and printed in the report of the hearings before the Committee of Ways and Means of the House of Representatives. They were certainly excellent arguments,—from the point of view of our neighbors.

"With free fish," said the General, "Gloucester has a chance to boom its business as a distributing point, and to make it the biggest salt-fish port in the country, if not in the world. It will mean that firms who engage in business in that city can secure the green fish, cured, handled, and put into shape for distribution. It will mean that more firms will engage in business there; and instead of a few combinations, the city will have many independent firms. Since 1892 the fleet from Gloucester has gradually dwindled, until to-day it is not more than a third as large as during the years of free trade. There will be no Gloucester firms going to Nova Scotia to do business. The business will come to Gloucester; and Gloucester is in a position to take advantage of it."

Prince Jaime, of Spain, has been operated on for nose and throat trouble. It is expected a permanent cure will result.

CAMERON HIGHLANDERS.

The Sergeant's Story.

The Cameron Highlanders fought at Waterloo throughout the three glorious days of June, and they were "particularly mentioned" by Wellington in his famous despatch of June 19, addressed to Lord Bathurst. Fortunate in their opportunities, they have been fortunate also in winning the praise of poets. Byron, in "Childe Harold," has consecrated their immortality in a famous stanza:—

Here sounds the high note of romance, and bravely the Highlanders would echo it. But war does not always rest at the lofty plane of glory, and we can sometimes realise it most clearly in homelier touches.

After the battle it is said that the 79th stripped the cuirasses off the dead Frenchmen and used them for cooking its rations. They were good enough frying-pans, though the bullet-holes let something escape. But some Belgian soldiers who passed by while the cooking was in progress, and seeing the cuirasses, went off with the legend that the Highlanders were cannibals, and no doubt the legend, which it is a pity to disturb, is repeated unto this day.

One other piece of comedy is worth remembrance. When the allied armies were in Paris Sergeant Campbell of the 79th was taken with others to the Elysee to be shown to the Emperor Alexander, and it is thus that he tells the tale himself. "The Emperor made a very minute inspection of us," he writes, "and his curiosity led him to call upon me, as being the most robust of the party, to step to the front. . . . As soon as I stepped to the front I was surrounded by the astonished nobility, and the emperor commenced his inspection and questions as follows: First, he examined my appointments and drew my sword. . . . . Second, he examined my hose, gaiters, legs, and pinched my skin, thinking I wore something under my kilt, and had the curiosity to lift my kilt up to my navel, so that he might not be deceived. The questions were:—If I was present at the actions of June 16, 17, and 18? How many officers and men the regiment lost? . . Whether I was in Egypt? If I wore the kilt in winter, or if I did not feel cold in that season? If I was married? If my parents were alive?" Thus it was that the Highlanders seemed beyond the general experience of mankind.

Cars Are Delayed.

St. Catharines, Aug. 28.—Traffic on the entire system of the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway was tied up for several hours Saturday, owing to an accident to the power transmission line at Thorold. The cables of the transmission line cross beneath the canal at Thorold, owing to vessel traffic. Saturday morning at 11 o'clock the steamer Ames, which was unloading near N. S. and T. swing bridge, broke from her moorings and started down stream. To prevent smashing into the bridge, the anchor was thrown out and caught in the cables at the bottom of the canal, dragging them along and putting them out of commission.

Automatically every car on the Falls, Port Dalhousie, Welland and local line stopped and for several hours not a wheel turned. A crowd of Toronto excursionists coming on trolleys from the steamer Dalhousie City at Port Dalhousie had to foot it part of the distance to the city park.

Returns to Canada.

Kingston, Aug. 28.—J. M. Campbell, formerly of Kingston, has resigned the position of head of the Buffalo, Lockport and Rochester Railway, with headquarters at Rochester. He will return here. His resignation takes effect September 1.

Acute Dyspepsia

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep, and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

POINTS ABOUT THE DEAL

THE FARMER RECEIVES MORE

Prices For Which He Sells Have Increased More Rapidly than the Cost of What He Buys

By JOHN V. BORNE.

"The wise man often changes his mind; the fool never"—a way of saying that the political wisdom of to-day is the political foolishness of to-morrow. Nothing is more valuable than the teachings of history. Nothing is more futile than piling up proofs that many years experience have changed the point of view of a man or a party of men.

It is nothing to show that Sir John Macdonald was serious or merely astute in advocating Reciprocity, forty, thirty, twenty years ago. He is not with us now. We have conditions to which his utterances do not apply. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's position is different. He was an advocate of Reciprocity. On his experience he renounced it. The commercial conditions which caused him to renounce it—the prosperity of Canada without it—have become greatly accentuated in every particular.

The farmer particularly has flourished. The Dominion Government reports show that in 1909 prices received by the farmer had risen over those of the ten years before 1899, like this:—

Grain and fodder, including thirteen selected standard commodities, 49.9 per cent.

Cattle and cattle products, hogs and hog products, sheep and sheep products, fowl and turkeys, 48.6 per cent.

Dairy products, 33 per cent.

And that the price of goods the farmer has to buy have not risen to an equal extent, as this list shows:—

Woollen goods	23.3	per cent.
Cotton goods	25	"
Boots and shoes	26	"
Metals and implements	3.4	"

The staple lines, which represent over 90 per cent. of the farmer's expenditure have only increased 14.3 per cent., while the goods he sells have increased 35.7 per cent.

Agriculture is the basic industry of Canada. If its prosperity grows in greater ratio than that of other industries, it is in the doubly happy position of flourishing itself and enabling others to flourish.

This has happened with a home market that is nothing like as big as it will be. Canada has only really begun her manufacturing career, if she is permitted to retain her fiscal independence.

"LET LAURIER FINISH HIS WORK"

The Grand Trunk Pacific Scheme is a Direct Result of the Abandonment of Reciprocity

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Always when a country adopts a new and definite line of policy, some special, tremendous work is undertaken, which embodies that policy and becomes its monument. That is as inevitable as that day should follow night. It may be undertaken by members of the community, whose efforts may coalesce in several enterprises, or the Government itself may launch some scheme in the name of the country.

Canada furnishes two outstanding examples of this. The logical outcome of Confederation was an ocean-to-ocean Canada. The logical necessity of an ocean-to-ocean Canada was an ocean-to-ocean railway. The Canadian Pacific had to be. It was first undertaken by the Government, and was then committed to private hands, with Government assistance.

When the abandonment of the Reciprocity idea was so quickly succeeded by a marvelous expansion of business, and, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier said, "We now put all our hopes upon the British trade," the policy of fiscal independence had its sequel in a vast engine designed to establish that independence—the National Transcontinental Railway—which is to be operated by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, to which the backing of the public treasury was liberally given.

The general election of 1904 was fought on the wisdom of the Grand Trunk Pacific and National Transcontinental bargain, which was the Government's method of carrying to its logical end the repeal of the Reciprocity offer, and of implementing the Premier's announcement to the Imperial Conference, that Canada was devoted to East-and-West trade.

The election was won by the Government, and the railway was begun. In 1908 the Government went to the country again—not on the wisdom of the bargain, but on the necessity of completing the job. "Let Laurier finish his work," was the victorious slogan.

The work is not finished. Another in competition with it has been begun.

BEWARE THE COMPETITOR

Sir Wilfrid Said, "Heaven Grant That It Be Not Already Too Late"

By JOHN V. BORNE.

A great deal has been said for and against the contention that in making a reciprocity agreement without consulting the people the Dominion Government reversed its established policy.

Those who say the Liberal party was always committed to Reciprocity, forget that the transcontinental railway policy was based on the abandonment of reciprocity, and that the general election of 1904, won by the Government, was the strongest endorsement of the abandonment of Reciprocity the country could give; for it authorized the Government to spend large sums of money to make new channels of East and West trade, which Reciprocity would have rendered unnecessary.

> A railway to extend from the shores of the Atlantic Ocean to the shores of the Pacific Ocean, and to be, every inch of it, on Canadian soil, is a national as well as a commercial necessity. That such a road must be built, that it is, in the language which I have used, a national and a commercial necessity, that it is a corollary of our status as a nation, that it is a requisite of our commercial develoment, is a proposition to which, up to this moment, I have heard no dissent.
> We consider that it is the duty of all those who sit within these walls by the will of the people, to provide immediate means whereby the products of those new settlers may find an exit to the ocean at the least possible cost, and whereby, likewise, a market may be found in this new region for those who toil in the forests, in the fields, in the mines, in the shops of the old Provinces. Such is our duty; it is immediate and imperative. It is not for tomorrow, but of this day, of this hour, and of this minute. Heaven grant that it be not already too late; heaven grant that whilst we tarry and dispute the trade of Canada is not deviated to other channels, and that an ever vigilant competitor does not take to himself the trade that properly belongs to those who acknowledge Canada as their native or their adopted land.

CANADA'S INDEPENDENCE

The Finance Minister Would Have Built a Third Transcontinental to Emphasize It

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Though the Prime Minister always speaks for the Government, great importance attaches to the declarations of their Ministers: and, where big expenditures are concerned, especially to the Minister of Finance, Mr. Fielding.

In turning from the United States Mr. Fielding was as thoroughgoing as his chief. He told the House of Commons:—

> It is desirable that we should give our American brethren to understand that Canada is resolved to work out her independence in these things, that the present proposal will promote this object, and that even if still another railway should be necessary we shall be prepared to construct it. The attitude that the Government has taken upon this subject . . . . has already attracted much attention across the border, and there is a much keener appreciation of Canada's independence than ever before.

You will at once be struck by the clearness of the allusion to the desirability of achieving independence of the United States. Why should there be this persistent appearance of the United States in the speeches of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding, insisting upon the building of a railway that was not to approach the United States border line? There was no proposal to build the line north and south instead of east and west.

It could only be because some condition that formerly affected the relations of Canada with the United States had undergone a change. What was it? You may search the records of the times in vain for the slightest proof that there had been any question between the two countries which could be a factor in Canada's embarkation on a vast commercial enterprise, except one—and that was the question of reciprocity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had led the Liberals who in 1891 desired unrestricted reciprocity. Mr. Fielding when Premier of Nova Scotia had kept an open door for his Province's withdrawal from Confederation, because it was thought better to trade with the United States than with the rest of Canada. Especially to them, therefore, the new transcontinental railway scheme was a confirmation of the abandonment of the reciprocal idea; and their assertion of the Fiscal Independence of Canada was consequently all the more definite and clearcut.

KINGSTON LOCOMOTIVE WORKS

The stockholders of the Canadian Locomotive Works Company, Limited, of Kingston, have decided to accept the offer of an English syndicate for the sale of the works. Between 500 and 600 men are employed.

ROBBERS MAKE $50,000 HAUL

Robbers made a haul, estimated at $50,000, in a novel manner. In a dump at Nome, Alaska, thrown up three years ago, the gang sunk a hole through the top and sluiced out all the inside, leaving only the hollow shell standing.

A cigar butt caused a fire, which destroyed Loyst's hotel and two cottages at Mountain Grove, Ont.

NO GAMBLING AT FAIRS

Ontario Government Determined to Suppress Gambling Devices

J. Lockie Wilson is on the trail of gambling machines, wheels of fortune, and all that sort of amusement. He has got a fully equipped roulette wheel at his office in the Parliament Buildings that you can't win on, no matter how you try. This wheel has given Mr. Wilson an idea as to the system on which the majority of these money-making devices are being run.

It is also authoritatively stated that any agricultural society having these roulette wheels, or gambling devices of any kind, on their grounds this year, will lose their grant from the Government. Heretofore this clause has oftentimes not been adhered to, but this season it will be strictly enforced.

CITY AQUATIC CHAMPIONSHIPS

Program for September 9 Looks Like a Winner

Judging from the many favorable comments which have been passed about the Peterborough aquatic championships, which will be held on Saturday, Sept. 9th, there promises to be an unusual amount of interest taken in these contests. The exact location has not yet been chosen, but it is the intention of the committee to hold these events at some convenient place where the spectators will be quite close to the course, and a first class view obtained.

The events are all open to residents of Peterborough, and the winner of each event will be considered the city champion.

The canoe singles and fours willl no doubt draw large entries, also the swimming events. It will be seen that the program is not extensive, yet it contains events enough to give everybody a chance to get in on one or more events. In the event of these sports proving successful it is the intention to make this an annual affair.

PROGRAM.

50 yards swim, any style (junior.)

WHO WAS THE FISHERMAN?

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—One is reminded on reading of the many sporting proclivities of Mr. J. R. Stratton in Saturday's Examiner that there had arisen some ancient champion of the days of Protagoras, the opponent of investigation. We are told who the cricketer of the family was, of the many afternoons our hero spent—a bare-footed boy—in the swimming pool out Ashburnham way, and of his natural instincts generally for our-door sports, all of which is interesting and amusing. I wonder, though, that the Angling Club has been forgotten in the obituary. Perhaps the Examiner will inform its readers, in the arts of its investigations, who was the fisherman of the family?

PADDY SECURES A PRISONER.

After Charles O'Malley had been promoted to the lieutenancy of his regiment, he heard an officer say to his (O'Mally's) colonel:

"Ere I forget it, pray let me beg of you to look into this honest fellow's claim; he has given me no peace the entire morning."

As he spoke O'Malley turned his eyes in the direction indicated, and, to his utter consternation, beheld his own man, Mickey Free, standing among the staff; the position he occupied, and the presence he stood in, having no more perceptible effect upon his nerves than if were assisting at an Irish wake. On seeing his master, Mickey exclaimed, in a somewhat imploring tone:

"Arrah, spake for me, Master Charles, alanah, sure they might do something for me now, av it was only to make me a gauger."

Mickey's ideas of promotion thus insinuatingly put forward threw the whole party around into one burst of laughter.

"I have him down there," said he, pointing as he spoke to a thick grove of cork trees at a little distance.

"Who have you got there, Mike?" inquired an officer.

"Devil a one o' me knows his name," replied he; "may be it's Bony himself."

"And how do you know he is there still?"

"How do I know, is it? I tie him last night?"

Curiosity to find out what Mickey could possibly allude to, induced his master and a brother officer to follow him down the slope to the clump of trees mentioned. As they came near, the very distinct denunciations that issued from the thicket proved pretty plainly the nature of the affair. It was nothing less than a French officer of cavalry that Mike had unhorsed in the "melee," and wishing probably to preserve some testimony of his prowess, had made prisoner and tied fast to a cork tree the preceding evening.

"Sacrebleu!" said the poor Frenchman as we approached, "que ce sont des sauvages!"

"Av it's waking your sowl ye are," said Mike, "you're right; for maybe they won't let me keep you alive."

"And what do you want to do with him, Mickey?"

"The sorra one o' me knows, for he spakes no dacent tongue. The-gium thoo," said he, addressing the prisoner with a poke in the ribs at the same moment; "but sure, Master Charles, he might tache me French."

There was something so irresistibly ludicrous in his tone and look as he said these words, that both the officers absolutely roared with laughter. They began, however, to feel not a little ashamed of their position in the business, and explained to the Frenchman that their worthy countryman had but little experience of the usages of war, and proceeded to unbind him and liberate him from his miserable bondage.

"It's letting him loose you are, captain! Master Charles, take care; begorra, av you had as much trouble in catching him as I had, you'd think twice about letting him out. Listen to me now,"—here he placed his closed fist within an inch of the poor prisoner's nose—"listen to me; av you say peas, by the mortial, I'll not lave a whole bone in your skin."

With some difficulty the officers persuaded Mike that his conduct, so far from leading to his promotion, might, if known in another quarter, procure him an acquaintance with the provost-marshal, a fact which it was plain to perceive gave him but a very poor impression of military gratitude.

"Oh, then, if they were in swarms forment me, devil receave the prisoner I'll take again."

THE LAUGHING FOUNTAIN.

A Persian Story for Canadian Children.

Althy was a dear little girl of six years old. Her mamma was dead, but her papa called her his star, and her old nurse Mermel loved her dearly, and looked after her with the tenderest care.

Althy's papa had made for his little girl a garden in which grew the loviest flowers in the midst of which a tinkling fountain played. The fountain was the great delight of little Althy's heart; its spray was so pearl-like and the music of its falling water so light and happy. She would sit for hours watching it, and listening to her old nurse talking of her mother in paradise. One evening, when the moon hung in the sky like a great yellow pearl and the fountain tinkled even sweeter than usual, her nurse, who had also been her mother's nurse, cried: "Hark, I hear your mother laughing."

Althy listened. "It is the fountain, nurse," said she.

"Ah, yes," sighed the nurse. "It is the fountain!"

That night Althy, weeping sadly, awoke from sleep.

"What is it, heart of my heart?" inquired the nurse.

"I dreamt," said Althy, "I dreamt that my mother was dead."

The nurse, knowing not what tot reply, remained silent.

Through the open window could be heard the laughing fountain.

Althy brushed away her tears.

"Ah, no," said she. "It is not so. I can hear her laughing, laughing!"

Her head dropped. She was sleeping again.

TO THE ELECTORS — OF — EAST PETERBOROUGH

Fellow Electors:

At the Convention of the Liberal-Conservative party of East Peterborough, held in the village of Norwood on July 27th, 1911, my friends, unsolicited, again conferred on me the honor of again selecting me as a candidate for the House of Commons.

During the past three years you have had opportunities of judging of my fitness and worthiness for the position.

The arduous duties of a member of Parliament I have honestly and faithfully, and to the utmost of my ability, endeavored to fulfil.

Both in the House and out of the House I have been unceasing in my efforts to promote the best interests of that Riding which I had the honor to represent.

Many questions of vital importance have come before the House during the last Parliament, some of which have been of particular interest to the agricultural classes of the country.

Being a practical farmer myself and representing a riding mostly rural, I have studied and watched closely any legislation affecting agriculturists, believing as I do that anything that is of benefit to the farmers and laboring classes will work out to the great advancement of the country at large.

On the great subject now agitating the minds of the people over the whole Dominion, viz., that of reciprocal trade with the United States, you are acquainted with my views.

After months of laborious study on the subject — After a trip to the United States in order to satisfy myself as to farming conditions in that country, I here repeat that neither statistics nor actual conditions warrant me in thinking that the Canadian farmer will gain anything by such a pact.

On this subject I hope to have an opportunity of addressing you at a public meeting.

I now appeal to all my friends, and all those who desire honest administration of public affairs, and who are in sympathy with the Liberal-Conservative platform, to rally to my support and promote an active campaign in my behalf and thus for better government.

Thanking you for past support, I am,

Your Obedient Servant

EARL GREY OPENS FAIR

Presses the Button That Starts the Show.

Makes Special Plea on Behalf of Teachers.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—The thirty-third annual season of the Canadian National Exhibition was officially declared open yesterday afternoon. Earl Grey, attended by a number of Toronto's notables, performed the time-honored ceremony in the auditorium of the dairy building, which was crowded to capacity, with an audience who listened appreciately to the remarks of the Governor-General and George H. Gooderham, M.P.P., the president of the exhibition. Countess Grey with Lady Sybil Grey and Lady Evelyn Grey was also present.

His Excellency was the guest of honor at two important functions, being present at the directors' luncheon and taking the leading part in the official opening ceremonies. He made short addresses on both occasions, expressing the greatest appreciation of the treatment he had received at the hands of Canadians in general and Torontonians in particular.

Earl Grey particularly urged the immediate inclusion of the old fort withing the exhibition grounds, and the maintenance of certain of the buildings as a permanent, open exhibit for education purposes.

At the directors' luncheon the toast to His Majesty King George was proposed by President Gooderham; that to the Governor-General by W. K. George.

Turning to the educational influences of the exhibition and to the status of educational institutions in the province, Earl Grey said every aid should be given to enhance the educational facilities of the province. The teachers should be the best money could procure and they should be well compensated. He said "Economy in school teachers is the very last economy to which a wise and prudent people in any country will descend. We must get the best teachers to instruct the children and teach them how to think for themselves, not merely to mechanically recite."

After luncheon His Excellency was joined by the Countess Grey, with the Ladies Sybil and Evelyn, who had lunched at the women's building, being guests of the wives of the directors. The whole party then repaired to the dairy building for the official and formal opening. On the platform with the Governor-General were: Lieutenant-Governor Gibson, Bishop Sweeny, President Gooderham, Mayor Geary, W. K. George, ex-Mayor Oliver, W. K. McNaught, M.P.P.

Proceedings were opened with prayer by Bishop Sweeny, after which President Gooderham, on behalf of the directors, presented His Excellency with an illuminated address.

Yesterday evening the exhibition grounds put on the appearance of fairy land. The Hydro-Electric forces turned the current on to thirty thousand lamps which outlined the various buildings and illuminated the roadways through the park.

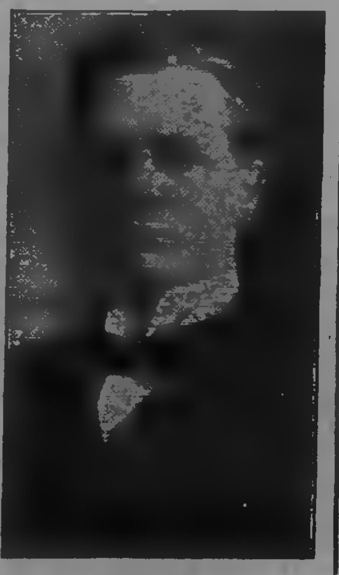
LAURIER SPEAKS IN ST. JOHN DEFENDS HIS PUBLIC CAREER

First Appearance in New Brunswick City in His Political Life.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 29.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier opened his tour here yesterday and addressed a large audience. At the conclusion of a spirited address he appealed to the electors as follows:

"To you, my fellow-countrymen of New Brunswick, I now appeal. The issue is in the hands of the Canadian people. Let New Brunswick do as she did last time; let Quebec do the same—and she will do it, let me tell you—(applause); let Ontario do as she did—and I hear she will do better—(loud applause) — and within three months the great boon of reciprocity will be ours. I appeal to you to support a policy of moderation and conciliation in developing a united Canadian nationhood. I appeal to you against the unholy alliance of the Nationalists in Quebec and the jingoes in the other provinces. In my own province I am branded by the trumpets and organs of Bourassa and his allies as a traitor to the French race. In other provinces I am denounced by the jingoes as a traitor to the Empire. What I have sought to be is a true Canadian and a true British subject. I have kept the double connection before me throughout the whole of my public service. It has been to me my cloud by day and my pillar of fire by night. I have followed its leading, earnestly, faithfully, and. I hope, nay, I believe, with happy results, to the best development of the highest lines of our Dominion. I thank you for the four times you have endorsed that aim by your votes, and I depend upon you, I am sure, as sure as I am of the verdict of my own province of Quebec, for the renewal triumph of that policy on September 21."



J. E. ARMSTRONG, M.P., East Lambton, a rising young Conservative, who is sure of re-election.

GERMAN SPY TO STAND FOR TRIAL

Special to The Review.

Plymouth, Aug. 29.—Max Schultz, the alleged German Spy, has been remanded for trial at the Assizes in September. The authorities refuse to grant bail.

Perhaps reciprocity will make the farmers so rich that they will need another Farmers' Bank to handle their wealth. The Examiner supports reciprocity.

LEADER BORDEN INVADES THE GRAHAM LAIR WITH SUCCESS

Great Meeting Was Held in Brockville—Mr. Borden Compares the Standard of Living in the Two Countries.

Brockville, Aug. 29.—In spite of rain 2,000 people attended the Brockville skating rink last evening to hear the Conservative leader. Brockville is the constituency of a minister of the crown, but there was no lack of warmth in the reception given Mr. Borden. Cheers started as soon as he entered the rink, and they were frequent all the evening. The rink was decorated with flags and with banners. Every person in the audience carried a Union Jack, and they used them freely to cheer with. Some of the banners struck a new note for the campaign. "Laurier has finished his work," ran one of these, and another, "Laurier's Limit, 1911."

The Conservative leader received an ovation when he rose to speak.

He began by comparing the standards of life in Canada and the U. S. "That," he said, "is one reason why we should not wish to exchange our present standards for theirs." He went on to refer to Sir Wilfrid's statement in Quebec that the Government is "Like the Kingdom of Heaven." "In the Bible we read," he said, "that in the Kingdom of Heaven 'neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and thieves do not break through nor steal.' I venture to think that perhaps that is one difference between the Government and the Kingdom of Heaven, which will strike the observer who has watched the history of the Government during the past ten years."

Mr. Borden proceeded to point to the great prosperity of New Ontario and its great possibilities. "Much," he said, "has been done by the provincial Government to place before intending immigrants the advantages of this northern country, but the Dominion Government has treated this greater Ontario with almost absolute neglect and disregard. The Liberal-Conservative party if returned to power will see that New Ontario receives its just and full share of attention, and that its wonderful natural advantages are brought to the attention of the world in an effective manner and by efficient methods."

He closed with an appeal to the loyal sentiment of the audience, which found a ready response. "I hope," he said, "that the electors of Brockville will on the 21st of September be found side by side with the rest of Canada in declaring for a continuance of British connection, and that we will send to President Taft a message that we will remain under that flag, which is our protection the world over."

In Nicolet.

Becanour, Que., Aug. 29.—Dr. Gustave Turcotte, ex-M.P. for Nicolet, was again nominated by the Liberals to contest the division at the convention yesterday afternoon.

To Oppose Verville.

Montreal, Aug. 29. Ald. Noe Leclaire last night received the Conservative nomination in Maisonneuve to oppose Alphonse Verville, M.P.

Pastor May Run.

Vancouver, Aug. 29.—There is a well-defined report abroad to-day that Rev. Dr. Fraser of the First Presbyterian Church, will resign the pastorate and will be the independent Conservative candidate in the coming election.

WHEN DOCTORS DISAGREE

Toronto Star.

In the great bulk of farm products prices are almost uniformly higher in the United States than here, and consequently, the opening of the American market to Canadian farm products will benefit Canadian farmers.

Buffalo News.
(Pro-reciprocity.)

Prices for farm products are higher on the average all over Canada than in the United States. Market prices as they are reported daily in the press of the two countries, prove the truth of this statement.

PROMINENT MAN FACES A CHARGE

Manslaughter Charge Against W. J. Waters, of Hamilton.

Hamilton, Aug. 29.—W. J. Waters was yesterday served with a summons to appear in the police court here on Wednesday next to answer a charge of manslaughter. Waters is the man who ran down William Boyce with a motor car on Main street east on July 15. Boyce received such severe injuries that he died in the City Hospital the next day. The coroner's jury at the inquest into the matter found that the car was traveling at an excessive rate of speed when it struck Boyce, and the charge of manslaughter has been laid against Waters by the local police as a result of the verdict.

GOOD POSITIONS GET IN LINE

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of seven Business Colleges located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk, students may enter any day. Many students study all at home and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada and have thirty years experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1200 students and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you. 12d

Longshoremen Out of Work.

Montreal, Aug. 29.—Upwards of six hundred longshoremen are this week practically thrown out of work on account of the labor difficulties in England, which have resulted in the cancellation and non-arrival in port this week of many of the large steamers.

Never in the history of the port, it is said by those whose daily work keeps them on the waterfront, have conditions been so bad as they are just now, and it is felt that with large families to support many of the dock laborers and workers will be the real sufferers through circumstances over which they have no control.

"All of last week," declared a longshoreman yesterday, "we had little or nothing to do. Some of the ships going out took no cargo and the couple that came in were such small boats that fifty men were able to do all the work required."

JOKED AND SUICIDED

Toronto Man Took Carbolic Acid in Friends Room.

Special to the Review

Toronto, Aug. 29.—William Hallett, aged 27, and employed at a knitting factory, went to a friend's room at two o'clock this morning. The two sat and joked for some time and then Hallett swallowed a quantity of carbolic acid, and died before he reached the hospital. He lived at Sydenham street and had been drinking heavily of late.

FRENCHMAN IS TRAVELLING AROUND WORLD IN RECORD BREAKING TIME

MONS ANDRE JAGER-SCHMIDT

Mons. Andre Jager-Schmidt, the reporter for the Paris Excelsior, who on July 17 started from the French capital for the purpose of cutting in half the time required to circle the globe by Phileas Fogg, the hero of Jules Verne's "Around the World in Eighty Days," arrived in New York on August 18 and departed on August 19 on the Olympic on the last leg of his record breaking journey.

McGILLICUDDY DEALS WITH THE OLIVER CASE IN TORONTO

Western Editor Interrupted, and Annoyed—Tells of the $69,000 Deposit.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—Dan McGillicuddy had his turn at a meeting of Centre York electors at Humber Bay last night. He was there to tell the people about his charges against Hon. Frank Oliver, the substance of which has already been published.

About 300 men and women were crowded into Devin's Hall.

Mr. McGillicuddy was interrupted time and time again. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, M.P.P., pleaded and threatened. Finally his appeal to give one more chance took the wrong course and a score of men made a rush at the main interruptor, and, to the accompaniment of cries, "Put him in the Humber," he made a speedy but inglorious exodus.

Mr. McGillicuddy's speech was virtually a condensation of a letter addressed to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, under date of July 8 last. During the course of his remarks Mr. McGillicuddy made no attempt to state where the money in question originated, but confined himself to the statement that in 1907 a "slush fund" for the Liberal party was raised in New York, and the member of the Government who went down to deal with the fund was Hon. Frank Oliver.

Mr. McGillicuddy disclaimed any desire for reward. His answer to Sir Wilfrid's question, "What do you want?" was that Frank Oliver should retire from the Cabinet and give way to a man who retained the confidence of the people, suggesting Dr. Michael Clark, Red Deer, Alta., as a fitting person. That letter hastened dissolution, he declared, because Sir Wilfrid, when in trouble, was always disposed to leave the matter in the hands of the party and the country.

WHITE RETIRES

Winnipeg, Aug. 29.—Sir William Whyte, who for the past quarter of a century have been in control of the western lines of the Canadian Pacific, will terminate his connection with the company in this capacity at the end of September. He will continue to serve the company as a director, having decided that he should be honored in this manner. The announcement was made by the president of the road at a dinner given by the latter in honor of the retiring official at the Manitoba Club last night.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, at the conclusion of the function, stated that the matter has not been discussed. He also stated that no decision had been reached in the matter of the location of the new western shops.

His Barns Burned.

Cornwall, Aug. 29.—The up-to-date barns of D. W. Hope at Summertown, ten miles below Cornwall, were completely destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon, together with the end of the season's crops. The horses in the barn were got out safely, as well as some of the farm implements, but a piggery near the barn was also destroyed, along with a good many valuable porkers. Spontaneous combustion is supposed to have been the cause of the fire. The loss is about $4,000. Mr. Hope carried $1,000 insurance.

SULPHITE FOUND IN CANNED CORN

Ottawa, Aug. 29—In 146 samples of canned corn, the Dominion analyst found that 50 per cent, contained sulphite used for bleaching. White sulphite is a poison, the quantity found is very minute.

SIX TORPEDO BOATS ASHORE

Death List From Storm Said to be Twelve

Special To The Review

Washington, Aug 29.—Officials at the navy yard have been notified from Charleston that six torpedo boats were blown ashore in Sunday's hurricane. All were badly damaged. The death list is now placed at twelve. At present there is little wire communication and news is still meagre.

CHARLESTON HIT BY GALE

Five Killed and $1,000,000 Damage Done.

Storm Had Disastrous Results on Railways.

Charleston, S.C., Aug. 28, via Summerville, S.C., Aug. 29.—As a result of a freak storm which struck this city and Savannah, Ga., last night and which reached hurricane proportions, Charleston virtually has been isolated for 24 hours. Five persons are known to have been killed near here, and property losses, it is estimated, will reach $1,000,000.

The wind velocity increased from 48 miles an hour at 1.25 p.m., to 94 miles at 10.20 p.m., when the wind gauge was put out of adjustment.

The tide was something over eight feet during the storm, three feet short of 1893. The waters have caused washouts on the approaches to the Union Station, preventing the operation of trains.

Alonzo Coburn, an engineer on the Charleston division of the Southern Railway, was instantly killed by flying timbers. A man named Smith of Columbia, and Motorman Cutter of the local street railway system, were killed, two men seriously injured when a trestle collapsed, and two unidentified women were drowned when their home was flooded. Several negroes are also reported among the storm victims.

Great damage is feared for the rice and sea-island cotton industries by the rise of the tide. Not since the cyclone of 1885 has the water front here suffered so severely.

Anxiety for the people marooned on Sullivan Island was relieved yesterday afternoon, when a steamer came in with a load of excursionists and residents from the island. The island was completely flooded, houses were inundated and the people had harrowing experiences. Two schooners and small steamers were either sunk or damaged and had it not been for splendid rescue work by soldiers at Fort Moultrie the death list would have been appalling.

HUNTING FOR THE OLD MONA LISA

Da Vinci Masterpiece Object of Much Search.

Cherbourg, Aug. 29.—In connection with the search for the painting "Mona Lisa," which disappeared last Monday from Louvre at Paris, the port police here have reported to the Paris headquarters that on Wednesday last two persons, one of them small and dark, carrying two framed canvases by a wooden panel sailed aboard the Kaiser Wilhelm II. for New York. They think that possibly the panel was the painting of "Mona Lisa."

Rome, Aug. 29.—Visitors to the gallery at Villi Carlotta, on Lake Como, have recently remarked the disappearance of a fine copy of the painting "Mona Lisa" executed during the lifetime of Leonardo da Vinci. No one knows what has become of it, and the newspapers suggest a connection between its disappearance and the original from the Louvre.

Minister Killed at Crossing.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 29.—Geo. Goodwin, aged 84, was struck by a Michigan Central passenger train at Bender avenue crossing yesterday and almost instantly killed. He was carried along for some distance and badly cut and mangled. His one-year-old grandson was thrown out of the buggy, but escaped serious injury. Goodwin was a superannuated Presbyterian minister.

Fell Down Shaft.

Port Colborne, Aug. 29.—A young man about 17 years old, named William Bitterman, was instantly killed yesterday by falling down one of the shafts of the Maple Leaf Flouring Mill. His parents are farmers, living a few miles out of town.

CURIOUS CROWDS VISIT LOUVRE

To View the Place Where Mona Lisa Hung.

Special to the Review.

Paris, Aug. 29.—The Louvre was re-opened to the public to-day and throngs of people visited the place to view the vacant spot, where the painting of Mona Lisa used to hang. The building is heavily policed.

DO YOU WANT RECIPROCITY WITH CONDITIONS LIKE THESE?

60,000 ARE LAID OFF

Boston, Aug. 26.—More than 60,000 cotton mill operatives in the New England States will be idle until Sept. 5th, partially emphasizing the most drastic curtailment policy which has been in force in nearly 20 years. Many millions of spindles will be idle next week, and it is estimated in mill circles that the production will be less than 50 per cent. of the normal output. Many mills have been closed for a week or more and yesterday and to-day their number was increased.

Some of the cotton machine shops will be idle next week, as will the Bigelow Carpet Mills at Clinton, employing 2000, and the Cocheco Print Works at Dover, N.H., with 100 hands.

CANADIANS IN THE U.S. ARE OPPOSED

A fact of no small significance in the matter of reciprocity is that Canadians living in the United States are as a rule strongly opposed to the measure. Some of the more earnest opponents of the pact have come back to their native land to lend their aid by voice and pen to the Conservatives and other loyal Canadians to the great battle they are now engaged in on behalf of the integrity of the Dominion. The sentiment against reciprocity has been strengthened here by what Canadians who live on the other side of the line have to say about it. Letters are continually received from them by business men in Toronto and Montreal, Halifax and St. John, Winnipeg and Vancouver, and other places, strenuously urging the rejection of reciprocity on the grounds that the entangling web that will be woven by reciprocity can have no other result than the loss of fiscal and political independence.

The sentiment against reciprocity is undoubtedly a great deal stronger than the sentiment for it. The passionate zeal animating the adherents of the measure is missing even amongst the most active of the pro-reciprocity party. The latter are now shaded over with the pale cast of doubt. Many farmers of Ontario and the west have lately spoken with no uncertain voice against the pact. We all now see, irrespective of party ties, that reciprocity is a great deal more than a commercial arrangement with the United States. In a more intimate sense it is a political problem of momentous importance. This first break in our relations with the mother country is something much more than a tariff measure. It is an assault directed against the spirit of the British Empire, and the great imperial scheme of things in which Canada has a great part to play. It is an assault directed against the entire policy of the Dominion, the policy which has made the country what it is to-day; the policy without which we would be still what we were fifty odd years ago—hewers of wood and drawers of water for another people. To millions in this country our modest tariff wall is a symbol. It stands for one of the most heroic and determined struggles that the history of nations can show. The occasion of this new struggle is one for passions to run high.

THE FARMERS' BANK

The Farmers Bank issue will not down. The Toronto Globe is busy trying to divert public attention on the matter from Hon. W. S. Fielding the minister who granted the certificate through some unknown means, though knowing full well there was fraud and deceit in the manner of raising the required capital, by dragging in the names of W. F. Maclean and Col. Matheson, and Dr. Beattie Nesbitt. It is an attempt to throw the public off the right trail if possible.

It is a wonder that the Toronto Globe does not have occasion to refer to our own representative in the Farmers Bank affair. If J. R. Stratton were on the other side of politics, he would surely come in for his share of attention from the Toronto Globe, accompanied by the insinuations which that journal is so capable at casting.

Aside from the fact that Mr. Stratton was deemed far enough implicated in the fraudulent getting of that certificate, to be committed for trial, and a true bill found, there are unpleasant stories going around Peterboro that about the time of the Farmers' Bank's last days, bills of the bank were floating around Peterborough in quite generous fashion. Some men have privately made the allegation that they saw Farmers Bank bills in the hands of Mr. Stratton, but there is no proof of this and the statements must for the present be taken with some reservation. It is doubtful if a man of the admitted astuteness of Mr. Stratton would let himself be connected with the bank's affairs so openly, having suspicions of what was to come.

The Hughes Charles episode has furnished considerable ground for speculation. A conversation at a private house may not be official, but most of the sharp work of modern finance is not done officially. Very often the biggest schemes are hatched out in the corners of club rooms, so that what more there is in the Hughes Charles episode and beyond what was revealed in court if any must be left to speculation. Mr. Stratton had at the time his banking account with the Bank of Commerce here, and when the late manager of it was called to Toronto to give evidence there was a flutter of excitement around Peterborough, for it was thought that sensational evidence would follow.

The Farmers Bank business is one that should cause people who have respect for decency even in financial matters to think seriously. Mr. Stratton was mixed up in it to some degree, the result of the trial only can tell how much or how little. He was not so busy in his representative capacity that he could not permit his company, the Trusts and Guarantee Company to do what the Traders Bank refused to do. It may be possible that a little more of the mysteries of high finance as regards the Farmers' Bank will come to light later on.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Political news note: R. H. Leary is expected home soon.

The C.P.R. has announced an eight per cent. increase in the wages of all mechanics employed by it. Probably this will be set down to the effect of reciprocity, too.

Gentlemen, the issue of the campaign is reciprocity, but if you read the Grit organ, you must naturally come to the conclusion that the issue is: How can J. R. get that vote of yours?

The Ottawa Citizen is authority for the statement that the American trusts are spending a lot of money in this campaign to secure the passage of reciprocity. It asks why the New York Herald devotes a page every day to the reciprocity issue in Canada, boosting the Laurier side of the game entirely, and maintains a special Ottawa Bureau for that purpose. What is the game?

Hon Mackenzie King at a public meeting read a letter from D. Hibner, one of the leading manufacturers of busy Berlin, to the effect that he was in favor of the pact and giving some private information. Mr. Hibner claims that Mr. King violated confidence, and now says that he is opposed to reciprocity, and will appear on the platform of the Conservative party, and say so. It must be a hard cause that needs to publish confidential letters for support.

Electors around the city are reporting that men who are now, or very recently have been canal employes, are busily engaged in canvassing for Mr. Stratton. If Mr. Stratton stays in parliament long enough, and Laurier also, it may be possible that some day he will be able to add to his election forces Newmarket canal employes. What a cinch that would be—to have two canals to conjure with.

Some of these days the Stratton organ will be printing something like this: When he was a little baby he used to crow so prettily that everyone took him for a rooster; and it was not until he grew up, and used to soak in all the sunshine and the fresh air around the swimming holes that people found out he was just a healthy boy. And now that he has grown to be a big man, he looks back on these crowing days and mutters:

Backward, turn backward, O Time in thy Flight,
Make me a baby again just for to-night.

The Brains of John Bull's Junior Partner

By ARTHUR HAWKES.

There are all sorts of funny readings abroad about the firm of John Bull Unlimited, and especially about the Old Fellow himself. He seldom takes a good look at himself, and until lately he hasn't cared a gramme what other people thought of him.

John Bull has regarded himself as a good-natured soul who is taking care of a few bits of land scattered around the globe in the interests of civilization generally—a sort of political philanthropist. The other fellows in the international field don't regard him in that light. They think he is a grasping old codger who, instead of being satisfied with control of nearly all the strategic strongholds of land and sea power, puts up an awful howl as soon as anybody else looks around for a second-rate coaling station, or a bit of rock from which his traders may saunter into a hitherto undiscovered market.

What these people are most puzzled about is the way this old John Bull keeps the affections of his children, who have become his partners. "Why," they say, "he used to declare that they would soon leave him, and here they are closer than ever to the Old Gentleman with the side whiskers and the peculiar pants."

Just so. The way the British Empire keeps together is a regular Chinese puzzle to all sorts of clever statesmen. They can't make it out at Washington. Sometimes we can't quite make it out ourselves—this loose, strong, splendid partnership that girdles the world and has none of the ordinary forces of imperial compulsion about it. The Dominion is one of the junior partners.

"Junior Partner" hasn't a very cock-a-whoop sound. It is a bigger name than it looks. Mr. Sifton, in a memorable speech against Reciprocity in the House of Commons put the fact more picturesquely: "The Rising Hope of the British Empire." You know firms with the junior partners become the Pillars of Reliance. The John Bull Unlimited is one of them.

Canada is a miracle within the Empire, as the Empire is a miracle among the nations of the earth. The impossible has been achieved. They used to say that you could not allow an overseas Dominion of the Crown to have responsible government in exactly the same way as the United Kingdom. They said that a Colonial Governor should not be compelled to accept the advice of his Ministers when they had a majority of the popular House. But these things are done and the imperial bond is closer and warmer than it has ever been.

All this means that the obligation upon Canadian statesmanship is more subtle and tremendous than it has ever been. We have established a Department of External Affairs to handle our peculiar three-cornered relationships, but this Department is not specially charged with the duty of keeping our internal population well informed about the niceties of our external relations.

You cannot expect a farmer in the Saskatchewan valley to be well informed about the possibilities of trouble that may lie within our connection with India, Australia and South Africa. He is the great statesman who, knowing all the intricacies of statecraft, which he cannot publish, can guide the great body of public opinion aright on the big, underlying principles which dominate national action.

The brains of Canadian statesmanship—I mean statesmanship; not the erection of a post-office here, of a bridge there, and the handing out of a job somewhere else—must be directed to making clear the two-fold, fundamental basis of our national progress—the development of Canadian commerce in Canadian channels, and the extending of the right idea of Canadian national prestige, in its relation to international and inter-imperial affairs.

Here is something to cling to—that the English-speaking peoples are the great potentiality in the modern world. They are broadly divided into the Empire and the Republic. In the re-adjustment of influence that is taking place within the Empire Canada is rapidly advancing towards the first place.

Canada has the advantage of being alongside of the United States. From being neglected by Downing Street and regarded by the United States as a very poor relation to be acknowledged by a cup of cold water and a few kind words, she is regarded with almost jealous anxiety by the United Kingdom and the United States. The remarkable spectacle has been seen of the President of the United States going up and down his country beseeching the people to make a deal with Canada which would secure commercial union with and give to the United States control of the wheat trade between Canada and Europe.

The position of Canada between the United States and Great Britain is the position of the boy in the middle of the see-saw who sends the parties at the end of the plank up and down as he wills.

Canada was growing along splendidly from this point of view. The only transcontinental railway of America was ours as a means of expanding our trade in our own way. The Government undertook a second transcontinental, and is heavily aiding a third.

The brains of Canadian statesmanship were required for the fulfilment of the national policies, which were undertaken with so much care and foresight. We needed time to consolidate our forces and to bring into national sentiment the aliens to our gentes. Instead we are invited to reverse our method for one which the shrewd, experienced leaders of the Republic are sure will deflect the life-blood of commerce into their arteries, and make our future commercially subsidiary to theirs.

They have warned us. It is time we warned ourselves.

The realization of all this had ridden me like an old man of the sea from almost the beginning of my acquaintance with her, and it was because of its realization that I had played so desperately. And now confronted so vividly by the consciousness that she also realised it, I fell from the clouds like a plummet to solid earth again. Once more I sat before her a normal human being, conscious that I had weight and much of it, and that instead of floating idealistically I must treat the earth like any other man. The dream faded and grim actuality took its place. Instead of soaring to the glittering mountain peak in eagle-like flight, I must climb there. Yet by abandoning the winding and beaten roads I could short-cut it over the cliffs and the journey would not be long. I would offset the added danger of the bee-line by courage and skill. I would leave the plodders to the longer, safer road as I mounted steadily up the precipices while they wandered through the canyons in their gradual ascent.

I set my teeth as I swore to myself that I should not fail. I do not believe that any man was more coldly determined to win, no matter the danger or difficulty, than I was that moment. I emptied the remainder of the contents of my wine glass upon the gravel at my feet, and saw faint wonder come creeping into her face as she watched. I stiffened my shoulders and sat erect in my chair.

"I am glad that you spoke to me as you did. You have awakened me to a fuller realization that I have no right to ask you to entrust yourself to my keeping until I have proven that with my arms around you, you will be protected from the vulgarities and petty troubles of life as a woman of your kind should be protected. Therefore, until I have proven this my wine glass shall remain turned down." She clapped her hands softly and picked up her own glass by its reed-like stem.

"Bravo. I give you my moral support by following your good example." She pushed it, half filled, to one side, as I expostulated.

"But it is not necessary that you should deny yourself simply because I do. Yours is not the struggle, it is but the waiting." Her hand slid over mine in a fleeting caress.

"But nevertheless I am going to do it. Soul and body, I want you to prevail, and your sacrifices to the common cause shall be mine. There will be enough wine left for us when we do not have to think of a to-morrow. Come. Let us go now." I looked around and then glanced at my watch. It was 11 o'clock, and a steady stream of humanity was flowing towards the exit, as we wedged ourselves into it. Once outside the enclosure I started the motor, and taking my place, assisted her to her seat, standing erect for a moment thereafter as I allowed my eyes to wander over the outpouring stream. Through the midst of it I saw a big man with a coarse face and flowing moustaches plowing his way, his small evily-set eyes rivetted upon me with ominous fixity. It was Richard Mackay, and the malevolent jealousy of his expression filled me with an unholy joy of triumph. I laughed point blank in his face as I seated myself beside my fiancee and tucked the robe close about her with lingering and ostentatious familiarity before throwing forward the lever. A sidelong glance stolen at her told me that she had not noticed him in the press, and with no reference to his having been present, I sent the car humming homeward.

She asked me if I cared to come within for a few moments, and together we were lifted to her floor. In her reception parlor I seated myself close beside her, gathering her hands in mine. The first intoxication of success had passed, and a great, quiet joy had settled upon me, soothing and reposeful. Never had I been filled with better impulses than in this hour. In my victory the better side of my nature came uppermost in my gratitude to the Infinite. Firmly I resolved that my life in the future should be one of which no man might be ashamed, and for what I had done in the past that was unworthy I silently avowed amends. For the sake of the woman by my side I should lead a life that our sons would be proud to emulate. I would command her respect in all things. Speculation I did not consider a moral offense. It was but a battle of money and wits, and to the victors of the earth the spoils legitimately belong.

I told her the general trend of my thoughts, with much earnestness, and she listened without comment, her face slightly averted and her hands resting contentedly in mine. I kissed her eyes and forehead, and she sighed softly as her bosom rose. Just what the sigh meant I did not know, and did not ask, but believed it was the responsive chords of her nature sounding to my touch. She had told me that she cared more for me than for any other man, and that under conditions which I appreciated were not unreasonable, she would rather live within my arms than those of any other person. Neither had she made my financial success an unqualified condition of our marriage, but had merely pointed out the great desirability of it as an added stimulus to my endeavors. That the principal reason she had advanced as to why she wished me to possess wealth was that I might be able to be more often at her side thrilled me with joy whenever it recurred to me. Had she not really loved me her desires in this respect must have been just the reverse.

The buzzing of the door bell aroused us from our close communion with a mutual start. It was an unusual summons, one sharp pressure upon the button closely followed by two more of some seconds duration each. At the first alarm her hands involuntarily tightened in mine, and as the longer notes hummed their insistence I saw the color rush from her cheeks in a scurrying tide. Her form straightened and grew tense, and arising she glided with swift noiselessness across the room and touched the button that summoned her maid. As though she had been waiting in the doorway, Janet slipped into the room. Her mistress addressed her swiftly.

"Janet, say that I am not at home. Under no circumstance permit him to enter. If he says that it is important, tell him that he may call me up in the morning." Beyond all question greatly agitated, she returned to near where I sat, placing herself before the piano in the attitude of one about to play. Her face was unnaturally bloodless, and a thin, hair-like line about the corners of her mouth seemed to be constricting her lips. Altogether the change in her appearance was not to my liking, and the quick stealth of her movements caused a most uncomfortable sensation to run through me; a mingled feeling of guilt and doggedness, as though I had been surprised in a forbidden bower by its rightful lord. A totally different type from the soft and perfectly poised creature of the moment before was revealed to me in those fleeting seconds of quick action and swift sentences, and my breath came faster before the contrast. In the few steps that had been required to take her across the room and back, her face had become that of an older, harder woman. The sensitive beauty of her mouth had been lost in its compression; her cheeks were like polished marble; the soft lustre of her eyes had turned into the glinting brilliancy of gems. Whether it was fear or anger or a blending of the two that had wrought this magic transformation I could not determine.

Almost breathlessly I watched the maid as she swung the door slightly and stood blocking the opening with her lithe form. From without rumbled the heavy tones of a man unsteady and thick from drink. "Good evening, Janet. I would like to see Mrs. Dace." The girl's answer was softly apologetic.

"My mistress is not at home." The reply which followed was preceded by a laugh.

"You know better, Janet. Tell her I wish to see her. Tell her, also, that it is a matter of importance."

"But I have said that she is not at home. But of course she will be here in the morning and you can then communicate with her. I have no doubt she will be pleased to hear from you."

In the instant of heavy hanging silence which followed I shot a glance at Mrs. Dace. She had leaned slightly forward, her hands clenched and her ears strained in the direction of the door. Then the notes of the man arose again, a sullen growl sounding through them.

"Did she order you to tell me this nonsense or are you acting upon your own responsibility?" The voice of the yellow girl, theretofore respectful, took on a cold insolence.

"That is a matter for you to form your own opinion about. At least I am willing to accept any responsibility for what I may tell you. You may ask her concerning it when you see her again."

Plainly and distinctly Mackay swore, and I saw the door yield slightly to the pressure of a heavy hand from without. In the twinkling of an eye the maid's slender figure became that of an enraged panthress, and her tones rang out with positive viciousness. "If you try to force your way in here against me I will have you thrown head and heels into the street by the employees. Release that door instantly."

He swore again, the pressure ceased and I heard his heavy step as it retreated down the hall. In a trice the maid had closed the door behind him and stood before us with a hot flush upon her face and her eyes alight. Mrs Dace drew a long breath, and her form and features softened. Once more she became the low-spoken, perfectly self-controlled woman of the minute before. "You did very well, Janet. I think that is all for the present. You may retire now." Noiselessly the girl slipped past us and disappeared behind a portiere.

I turned to her mistress. "What does this mean, Matie?" I asked quietly, but with the sickening sensation that I had experienced once before, making my knees weak and my throat dry. She faced me with an almost imperceptible lifting of her eyebrows and shoulders.

"So far as I know it means nothing except that Mr. Mackay has been drinking and wished to see me for some reason of which I am as ignorant as you are."

"But at this hour of the night! It seems strange that even a man like him should have the presumption to call. I think under the circumstances I have a right to inquire. Does he sometimes do such things?"

"He never has before. He had no right to do so now. If it is a matter of important business he should have notified me of his coming at least a few moments in advance."

"But what business could he possibly wish to confer with you about at such a time of night that could not be transacted over the telephone?" I pursued unhappily. She waved her head.

Prime picked loads and lots sold at $5.90 to $6.15; loads of good, $5.65 to $5.85; medium, $5.25 to $5.60; common, $5 to $5.30; cows, $3 to $5.25, bulls, $4 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

Veal Calves.

The market for veal calves was firm at $5 to $8 per cwt., or an average of $7.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, light ewes, sold at $3.75 per cwt. average; culls and heavy ewes, $2.50 to $3.25; lambs, $6.25 to $6.60, or an average of $6.45 to $6.50.

Hogs.

E. L. Woodward, buyer for Swift Canadian Co., quoted $8.10 for hogs, fed and watered.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Aug. 26 were 2500 cattle, 3225 sheep and lambs, 2625 hogs and 800 calves. The supply on the market for sale this morning consisted of 950 cattle, 1675 sheep and lambs, 960 hogs and 175 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being firm owing to the small run of really good stock, which tended to increase the demand for the lower grades, as butchers and packers generally were short of supplies; consequently a fairly active trade was done. There was also some demand from Quebec buyers, and a couple of carloads were bought for shipment to that market.

On the whole the trade was satisfactory to both buyers and sellers. At the close everything was cleaned up. Choice steers sold at $6.15 to $6.25; good at $5.75 to $6; fairly good, $5.25 to $5.50; common, $3.50 to $4.75 per 100 pounds. Cows were rather scarce and in better demand, at $3.50 to $4.75 per 100 pounds.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for hogs, on account of the small offerings, and the demand for packers' selected stock. Prices for selected hogs ranged at from $7.75 to $7.85; mixed lots, $7 to $7.50, and heavy, $6.50 to $6.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

The trade in small meats was active, there being a good demand from local and outside buyers for supplies.

Receipts of lambs were fairly large, but prices ruled steady at the decline noted last Wednesday, sales being made freely at 6c to 6¼c per pound. Sheep unchanged owing to the fact that the offerings do not increase to any extent, and sales were made at 4c to 4¼c per pound. Good calves were scarce and in demand at prices ranging at from $12 to $15 each, and the lower grades brought from $3 to $10.

"BARGAIN" GLASSES ARE DANGEROUS GLASSES

A woman who was hunting "bargain glasses" finally succeeded in "fitting" her eyes with what she enthusiastically declares was "just the thing." And immensely pleased with herself, this woman had brought about the gravest danger a woman could invest in, for she had bought two pieces of glass crudely ground, but magnifying strongly, and with them she can see 'better to read'—That seeing better will mean an intense strain upon the her eyes, but she will not realize what the trouble is, nor the injury the glasses are doing. Some day she will be under the care of a Specialist, probably for the removal of a cataract, which will cost considerable, to say nothing of the suffering entailed, and she will be fortunate indeed if she does not suffer partial or entire loss of sight for the remainder of her life.

We have every qualification for giving your eyes a thorough examination. We fit you with the finest ground lenses, and at a very reasonable cost. Thousands of our citizens can certify to the care, skill and thoroughness of the examination, and the good results they had in wearing the glasses we prescribed. ALL WORK GUARANTEED

The Late W. J. Preston

Toronto Star: The many friends in Toronto of William James Preston will learn with sorrow of his death in Moosejaw, Sask.

Mr Preston was born in Cobourg, and at the age of 12 years came with his family to Toronto. He worked for some time at the Kemp Manufacturing Co., afterwards being manager of the American Coffee House on King street. Eight years ago he went west, entering into business as a contractor for paving, and had been fairly successful. He died suddenly from hemorrhage, due to overwork. This morning the body arrived in Toronto, accompanied by his widow, formerly Miss Berry, of Peterborough, and his two children, John James, aged six, and Marjory, aged eight years. He was a member of the Independent Order of Foresters, a member of the Sons of England, and a member of the Methodist church. The funeral takes place this afternoon from the residence of E. E. Preston, a brother, at 90 Dearbourne avenue, at 4 o'clock.

SOMETHING DOING EVERY MINUTE

Word has just been received from the Belleville Grand Trunk Baseball team, that they are in great shape for their game here on Labor Day with the Peterborough team, and that they again expect to take the measure of the locals as they did before, but by a larger score. Of course the local boys will have something to say about it also. Besides the baseball game the spectators will have something else to attract their attention, as the field events after the game are all of the best. The entries in the races are coming in fast and are sure to be good. The rivalry between the different quoit players of the city has got to fever heat, and the tug-of-war team of the different shops are practicing every noon hour. The 57th band will give a concert on the corner of George and Hunter streets prior to marching to the grounds. No use of leaving the city on Labor Day.

He has not been long in this country. He was allowed to go.

EXHIBITS AT THE TORONTO FAIR

Peterboro Firms to the Front Their Exhibits

The local firms who will send, or have sent already, exhibits to the Toronto Industrial exhibition this year, are Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, G. Walter Green company, and the Quaker Oats company. Last Wednesday the G. Walter Green company forwarded to Toronto a carload of machinery, which will be erected and shown in machinery Hall. The exhibit includes saw, shingle and lath machinery of the most modern design and manufacture. It is in charge of Mr. T. O. Donaldson.

QUAKER OATS.

The Quaker Oats company have sent up a complete line of all cereals manufactured in the mills. The assortment is a very complete one, and is under the charge of Mrs. Reed, who will be competent to demonstrate their qualities.

TURNERS' TENTS.

Turners' tents will as usual occupy a big space, and the exhibit will include the many different designs manufactured by the firm.

In charge are Messrs. R. H. Turner, James Campbell, George Gillespie, and the New Brunswick and eastern representative, Mr. P. J. Moloney.

LOCAL SHOTS BACK FROM D.R.A. MEET

Capt. Watt and Lt. Ackerman Made Good Showing

The quartet of Peterboro shots, who were at the D. R. A. meet in Ottawa last week, have returned. Lt. Ackerman was the most prominent winner of the four, aggregating $22, while Capt. R. P. Watt added $15 to his credit.

It was the first year for Lt. Ackerman, and he is satisfied that with the experience gained he will still have better success next year.

Capt. Watt and himself were up against rather hard luck at times, but are not complaining by any means. In the events for the Governor General's match, Capt Watt was but a few points behind the winner all the way until one event. His first two were winners and then unknown to him his sight lifted just enough to put his aim out. In the Bisley aggregate Lt. Ackerman, with a good standing, retired from one event, believing that points obtained did not count. He later discovered his mistake.

NORTH MONAGHAN FARMERS HEAR CONSERVATIVE SPEAKERS

Reciprocity No Good for the Canadian Farmers — Mr Burnham Made Good Impression — Speeches by Mr. Peck and Mr. Kendry

North Monaghan electors turned out in large numbers to hear Mr. J. H. Burnham and other Conservative speakers at the Monaghan town hall last night and the success of other meetings was repeated. Ex-Reeve Brown was the chairman of the evening.

HIGH HANDED ACTION.

Mr. Peck was the first speaker, and immediately commenced a discussion of the question of reciprocity, which he pointed out, was the most important issue that had been before the people of Canada for very many years. He referred to the high handed action of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in negotiating the arrangement and endeavoring to force it upon the people without permitting the electorate to pass upon the measure, that it was due to the determined position taken by Mr. Borden and his supporters that an opportunity has been afforded to the people of Canada to express their opinion about it. Mr. Peck proceeded to discuss the question of the advantages to be received by the farmers if they adopted the present proposition. He pointed out that there were as many farmers in the United States in proportion to the population of that country as there were in Canada, that as a rule the fertility of the land in the States was equal to that of Canada, and that the American farmer had in fact some slight advantage over his Canadian brother, in having an earlier season, which would enable him to flood the Canadian market with such things as early potatoes and other vegetables and fruits.

He asked under these circumstances how the Canadian farmer could on the whole expect to receive any direct benefit from the measure.

PROTECTION.

He then discussed the prospective principle which had been adopted by Canada in 1878, and which had been in fact confirmed by the Liberal government in 1896. To adopt reciprocity he pointed out would be an exact reversal of the principle which the Canadians had adopted and given effect to for over thirty years. The adoption of a protective system had encouraged the establishment of factories in Canada, had built up industrial centres such as Peterborough, and had provided thereby for the farmer a home market for almost everything which they produced. The protection had benefitted the farmer to a very great extent. They were all prosperous, and that prosperity was due to the fact that they had near at hand a manufacturing centre where they could sell their products. The tendency of reciprocity would be to encourage manufacturing in the United States at the expense of Canada. The adoption of the arrangement would not bring us a single new industry, and would effect such industries as now existed here, and with depression of trade with the removal of many operatives to the other side of the line, the demand for farmers' produce would be reduced and prices would be lowered. He pointed out the ease with which capital could be transferred from one point to the other. To the fact that though it would be more difficult for him, it was in the power of the operative to go from one place to another for the purpose of finding employment, but that the farmer was a fixture who could not remove his land upon which he made a livelihood, and that in the result the general depression in this country which would inevitably follow from the adoption of reciprocity would fall more heavily upon the farmer than any other class of persons.

MR J. H. BURNHAM.

The chairman introduced the Conservative candidate as the next speaker, and he was given a splendid reception.

Does it ever occur to the Liberal stumpers that it is nothing short of mental aberration to expect the farmers, fruit-growers and market-gardeners of Peterborough County to send their stuff to a market hundreds of miles away when they can get one at home, asked Mr. Burnham. What reason or common sense is there in comparing the prices of a Canadian city with those far away across the line? Freight to Britain is less than to most of the U.S. and yet how does it compare with the home market? If Conservatives were asking you to look for your markets far away instead of at home, what would the Liberals say? Then too is not our Canadian home-market as good to the Canadian as the American home-market is even to the American himself. Of course it is. And yet they would ask you to go away and compete with him in his distant market! Occasionally you will find cases where our people on the border are closer to American cities than to Canadian and to them it may sometimes be of advantage. You have heard Mr. Harstone, of Peterborough, tell you of the advantage of reciprocity in the west. He owns large blocks of land in the west and may in some cases be closer to American than to Canadian markets? But why sacrifice all Canada to a few such cases as these? Mr. Harstone is an estimable gentleman, and I am sure would admit the justice of these remarks himself. The speaker said he had been asked to explain BOURASSAISM. He said it was the outgrowth and up-reaching of the French-Canadian race for expansion and separate existence. Bourassa is the apostle of Nationalism. Now any form of racialism or nationalism that seeks to cut in upon the Church as by calling for particular heads of universities, certain priests and bishops, etc., incurs the immediate opposition of the Church. National churches are plainly at variance with the theory of one universal church ruled from one centre. National or racial or patriotic movements where they run against the church, as in the case of the French-Canadian Congress at Ottawa this year, when the clash with the church was most pronounced, are opposed by the Church. This is why Bishop Fallon has exposed and condemned bilingualism. Bourassaism, nominally and no doubt really loyal to the Church, is yet more loyal, however, to the French race ideal and therefore it is really dangerous to the Church. Laurier is, as he described himself at the Eucharistic Congress, "a loyal and fervent Catholic." He cannot endorse Bourassa or cajole him. He must fight him. That is why there is no possibility of reconciliation between the two.

KEEP OUR GOOD TIMES.

Mr. Kendry was in good form and he said that the people of Canada would open their eyes when, if reciprocity came in, Canada was overwhelmed with American supplies and competition. He quoted the Hon. John Charlton as a prominent Liberal, who had been against reciprocity. He was very much down on the Laurier government for concluding the pact without consulting any experts at all, whilst the Americans had a board of experts and the result was that they concocted the pact.

Mr. Kendry predicted a complete reversal of public opinion and overthrow of the Laurier government. He said that nowhere could he find any desire to swap our present good times with the bad times existing everywhere in the United States.

The meeting closed with cheers.

G. T. R. MAY BUILD NEW ROUND HOUSE

Repairs are Now Being Made to Present Structure

The hole in the north wall of the G.T.R. engine house, which was made by the amateur "Casey" Jones, a couple of weeks ago, when he accidentally started an engine, will be closed with lumber instead of brick. The company, it is said, propose to build a more commodious building at some other point in the city. The site now occupied by the engine house may be utilized in sidings.

CRESSMAN'S NOVEL COLLAR WINDOW

An Attractive Showing of Lion Brand Collars

In one of the Cressman Co's show windows is a distinctly novel attraction that commands the attention of every passerby.

The display, which is cunningly contrived, features "Lion Brand" collars and has for its central attraction a large mechanical lion surrounded by ferns and shrubs. A show card bearing the inscription, "This is the place for lion collars," enhances the novelty of the display.

The Cressman Co are sole agents for this superior brand of collars, all are four ply linen, close fitting, lock themselves, they are reversible, which makes them wear twice as long. The latest styles that have become most popular are the National and American.

The display is well worth seeing. Many conjectures have been put forth as to how the mechanism is controlled.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN DAYNARD

Was a Widely Known Bridge Builder—Funeral Thursday

A widely known bridge builder in the person of Mr John Daynard, passed away last night, at his home, 569 Albert street after a lingering illness from a cancer of the stomach.

The late Mr. Daynard was born near Omemee about forty-four years ago and came to Peterboro when a boy. He learned bridge building in the old Bridge Works on the river front, and about nine years ago removed to Toronto where he followed this trade as a contractor. He was well known throughout this province and also in Quebec province, where he handled several large contracts.

Four years ago, deceased began to feel the effects of a cancer, and later he gave up his work. Since December last he has been failing rapidly. In May of this year the family came to Peterboro and took up their old residence on Albert street. Last night he passed peacefully away in the presence of his family.

The late Mr. Daynard was a member of Court Stanley, A.O.F. under whose auspices the funeral will take place. He was also a consistent member of the Charlotte Street Methodist church.

Those left to mourn his loss are his wife, two sons, Melleville and Jack, and one daughter, Miss Elsie, all residing at home; also his mother Mrs. Dempsey of Hamilton, three sisters, Mrs Armstrong, Toronto, Mrs. J. Christo, Tillsonburg, Mrs. C. Pogue, Hamilton; and three brothers, Messrs. George Daynard, Bethany; James and William Daynard, Port Hope.

The funeral will take place at 2.30 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the family residence, 569 Albert street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

The commander of the American cruiser Hawk is accused of pronounced discourtesy in not flying the Canadian flag at Port Colborne.

Boston, Aug. 28.—"Babe" Adams had the Rustlers completely at sea to-day, and only three hits were made off his delivery.

New York, Aug. 28.—Marquard held the Cardinals to one hit to-day, and the New Yorks won a shut-out game.

JERRY EDMUNDS BACK WITH COLTS

Former Local Backstop Rejoins Hamilton Ball Club

Hamilton Spectator.—Another player was added to the Hamilton squad to-day when Jerry Edmunds joined the team. Jerry was with Hamilton early in the season, but was awarded to Winnipeg the day the league opened. Manager Lee is putting through a deal for the Toronto boy, who has been playing great ball for Winnipeg all summer, and Jerry will be seen in the outfield for the balance of the season. If O'Donnell the new third baseman from St. Louis, reports as expected, he will get into the game to-morrow, completing the team for the balance of the season, for with the St. Louis boy on third base and Edmunds, Killilea and Lee in the outfield the team will look pretty good again. Lee is himself again and will be in uniform from now out. Killilea will be kept in the outfield the rest of the season, except when he subs on the infield. Killilea wants to remain in the outfield and Lee is satisfied that he will play better ball there than on the infield position. It was the intention yesterday to put Carry back in the game, but the local lad is showing little eagerness to get into harness again and with Edmunds on the job will have to hustle some if he wants to get back in the game this fall.

Manager Elliott says Quinlan is one of the best amateur pitchers in the east, and only came up for a few days to see how he shaped up with the Canadian League. He will return here next spring to work out with the Saints and will try for a position on the 1912 team

FRANK GOTCH TO GO ON TOUR

To Appear in All big Cities of the Continent

Humboldt, Ia., Aug. 29.—Frank Gotch to-day gave out the information that after his clash with George Hackenschmidt in Chicago on Labor Day, he will likely arrange a tour beginning the first week of November and covering a period of 25 weeks—in which he and his trainer will show in every city of importance on the continent of North America.

He will carry with him the greatest aggregation of wrestlers ever participating in a tournament of this nature. The grapplers to be selected will include Farmer Burns, Fred Beell, Jess Westergaard, Henry Ordeman, Yussif Hassan, Joe Rogers and Jim Asbell.

The contest will be arranged between these men and the grapplers of every type in America. Besides the actual contests, exhibitions will be given between members of the troupe. The catch-as-catch-can style will prevail and combats will be given in Graeco-Roman and Cornish. There is to be a heavy-weight lifter of international reputation and a champion bag puncher. The show will extend over a period of about three hours and forfeits will be posted by the aggregation for comers who can stay fifteen minutes without a fall with the various members.

Gotch and his manager, Emil Klank, will be under a weekly expense of not less than $5,000, and which will amount to, not under $125,000 for the entire season, including salaries, transportation and other expenses.

It is believed that this travelling tournament will take in at least $10,000 a week and an average of three shows weekly will be given.

LAWN BOWLING

Messrs. Landry, Richardson, Burnett and Denison, journeyd to Belleville on Saturday last and met four Belleville tennis players. Out of six events the local racquet handlers won three, which is a good showing considering that they played on their opponents courts. The scores were as follows:

Landry won from Dr. Gilbert 6-3 7-9, 6-4.

R. Edmunds won from Mr. Richardson, 7-5, 6-4.

G. Phelips won from Denison 6-4 7-5.

Phelips and Edmunds beat Landry and Denison, 1-6, 9-7, 7-5.

ACCIDENTS IN AVIATION.

Mostly Due to Breakdown in Human Machine

All who walk the earth in safety and apparently in a normal condition of health are not physically qualified to be aviators. This is demonstrated by Dr. R. Moulinier who writes as follows

"The rapid ascent to great altitudes exposes the body to conditions different from any terrestral ones. Mountain climbing offers some analogy, but it is different in the fact that the transition from the high atmospheric transition of the sea level to a low pressure takes place much more slowly. The author has reported some interesting observations on the blood pressure of aviators who have ascended to high altitudes. On alighting after ascending to a height of 1200 to 2000 meters the aviator presents cyanosis of the extremities, probably from the low temperature of the high regions of the atmosphere.' "

This means that the extremities turn a dusky blue color. Often there is congestion of the inner surface of the eyes. The pulse is quickened, but there is no irregularity of the heart's action, nor bleeding from the nose. There is often slight headache and tinging in the ears. Sometimes there is a tendency to sleep, and this may be felt even during flight. Rising to a great height and coming down again always increases th blood pressure, as the writer explains.

Power From Sea Waves.

At the recent meeting of the British Association the question of economical production of power from tides and winds was again under discussion, and it has been taken up widely by scientific journals in Europe. "La Revue Scientifique" calls attention to a system of utilling the power of sea waves to actuate a dynamo which has been employed during the last six months at the mouth of the river Gironde. An air chamber is connected with a well, which communicates with the sea at a depth below the level of the lowest tides. By the advance and recession of the waves changes of pressure are produced in the air chamber, and a system of valves enables the resulting air currents to be applied to rotating a kind of turbine. It is said that the apparatus works equally well in calm and in stormy weather.

FRENCH POSTAL BANKS.

People of France More Provident than Anglo-Saxons.

The record of the postal savings bank system in France has been one of continued progress. In 1882, when this institution was established, the total number of postal banks in operation was 6024, with 211,580 deposit accounts remaining open at the close of the year. These accounts, including interest due to depositors, amounted to $9,187,116, the average sum of the deposits being $43.41. On December 31, 1909, the latest year for which complete statistics are available, the number of banks had increased by nearly 2,000, the deposit accounts numbered 5,542,882, and the deposits, including interest, represented an aggregate amount of $316,456,866, averaging $37.08.

The expenses of administration during 1909 amounted to $1,504,678 and the net profits to $536,756. It may be recalled that individual accounts are limited by law to 1500 francs ($289.50). When an account exceeds this the surplus is invested by the bank in national bonds. The total value of the bonds purchased in 1909 was $2,080,575. The withdrawals, including these purchases, amounted to $104,916,150.

RECIPROCITY AND HOGS.

Canadian Farmer Will Loose Heavily if the Compact is Made.

The average price of hogs in Chicago and Montreal for the five years ending December 31st, 1910, was as follows:

Year	Chicago	Montreal
1906	$6.20	$7.77
1907	6.10	7.43
1908	5.70	7.10
1909	7.55	8.64
1910	8.90	9.60

In October, 1907, live hogs sold in Chicago as low as $3.80 per cwt., against $6.65 per cwt. in the same in Montreal.

During the same period prices of hogs averaged lower in Buffalo than in Toronto. Occasionally the price goes higher in Buffalo, but commonly it is lower.

How can the Eastern Townships farmer compete with the American farmer on the irrigated plains of the great South West which grow yearly three to four crops of alfalfa upon which he raises and fattens as many crops of pigs?

And in this connection the matter of quarantine is worthy of consideration.

It is understood that there will be no change in the present regulations of the two countries.

If our regulations are changed then the stock of the Canadian farmer will be exposed to mange, hog cholera, foot and mouth disease, etc. If they are not changed the regulations are and will be unfair to the Canadian farmer.

Waterways of Canada.

Canada has 6,000 miles of waterways from the St. Lawrence to the Mackenzie, with only 150 miles of a lard break. The Mackenzie is with its tributaries, 2,500 miles long, equal to distance from Liverpool to Halifax, draining a region three tomes as large as France. The Saskatchewan is 1,600 miles long; the Columbia 1,400; the Churchill 1,000; the Fraser and the Red River each 650 miles. The Saskatchewan basin is as large as that of the St. Lawrence.

Mlle. Aria Ly, leading feminist of Toulouse has challenged the editor of a local paper to a duel, over a newspaper criticism.

When any one tells you that imported beers are worth the price, ask this question:

That will end the argument. The best beer brewed is just worth the cost of ingredients and production, plus selling cost and a fair profit. Order and you'll get the best beer brewed at normal cost. Try it once and you'll know exactly why "Salvador" is called "The National Drink" by the majority of Canadians.

"Salvador" (The Famous National Drink)

"Salvador" has been pre-eminent for purity and quality for over 260 years. It is pure, sparkling and refreshing, besides possessing tonic qualities which doctors recommend.

POINTS ABOUT THE DEAL

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE

Means Just About the Same as "Let Laurier Finish His Work"

By JOHN V. BORNE.

In reality there is not much difference between "Let Laurier Finish His Work" and "Let well enough alone." Mr. Fielding has sneered at "Let well enough alone." He has read into it the meaning that Canada should be content with the commercial progress already made.

"Let Laurier Finish His Work" meant "Let the Government complete the project which is intended to enlarge and consolidate trade between the provinces and trade with Great Britain."

"Let well enough alone" means "Let us not turn aside from the development of Canada on the lines that have proved our ability to be independent of the United States; and which are the best guarantee that our expenditure of $200,000,000 on a railway that is to strengthen this independence will not be prejudiced."

How important is the work by which Sir Wilfrid Laurier wishes to be judged—the work which arose directly out of the abandonment of reciprocity—may be judged by the Minister of Railways' statement on March 10th, 1911, as to the cost of the National Transcontinental, which is being built from Moncton, New Brunswick, to Winnipeg—1,804 miles:—

Cost of work done to December 31st, 1910	$94,480,500
Estimated cost of work required to complete	50,759,200
	$145,239,700

The figures, which do not include interest charges during construction, work out at $80,565 per mile. At the end of January, 1911, the total percentage of work done on all contracts was 67.62 per cent.—roughly, two-thirds.

These figures do not include a cent of the Government's obligations for the Grand Trunk Pacific from Winnipeg to Prince Rupert.

THE EVER-VIGILANT COMPETITOR

How the Government Spends Millions to Keep Him Out and Then Brings Him In

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Yearly interest, at four per cent., on the cost of the National Transcontinental Railway will be $3,200 per mile, roughly, five and three-quarter million dollars a year.

Having been in business thirty years the Canadian Pacific Railway, after meeting operating expenses, has to find $901 per mile for fixed charges, before it can pay dividends. On an average of 65 per cent. of its earnings are absorbed by operating expenses. If the National Transcontinental can begin with an equally good proportion of earnings to expenses, it will need to earn, in order to pay its fixed charges, $16,000,000 a year, in an empty country, which is being opened up entirely to enlarge east and west trade and trade with Great Britain. This is exclusive of the earnings of the Grand Trunk Pacific beyond Winnipeg.

There are two dominant reasons why the Government's predictions about its great railway should be realized, both of which make the earning capacity of the railway a matter of extraordinary importance to the Canadian people.

The first is that the people must pay the interest on the cost, whether the railway earns it or not, and therefore, every taxpayer has a direct responsibility for making the line profitable.

The second is that, if the Transcontinental cannot make both ends meet out of earnings, and the public treasury has to be drawn on, Canadian credit will be seriously prejudiced, because, for the first time in the Twentieth Century (which Sir Wilfrid Laurier proclaimed to be Canada's Century) a great new transportation undertaking in the Dominion will fail to be self-supporting, with obvious effect on the further supply of capital for Canadian development.

The Prime Minister was afraid the National Transcontinental might be too late against the "ever-vigilant competitor to the south." Reciprocity gives the competitor a three years' start of the Transcontinental Railway which was to defeat him.

He Classifies Wives Into Foolish, Stupid, Unruly, Sagacious and Good

When it comes to the wife question the Japanese have their own standard. Kalaiki Matsumura, widely known in Japan as an essayist, presents the Japanese view very clearly in a recent issue of the Tokio magazines.

He says that a wife comes within one of the following five classes: (1) a stupid wife, (2) the foolish wife, (3) the unruly wife, (4) the sagacious wife, and (5) the good wife. By a stupid wife, he explains that he means one neither a sloven nor a shrew.

"She is a stupid woman by birth," he says. "She does not know that when there is a visitor she ought in accordance with Japanese etiquette to serve tea and cakes quickly, nor at meal time to invite the visitor to partake of food. She is never punctual, and will keep her friends waiting at her door while she is leisurely putting more paint on her face. These are her salient features.

"A foolish wife is one who is uselessly secretive and talkative by turns. If you think her good natured you are mistaken. At times she will be found taxing her feeble mind with some sly thoughts. She cannot be taught. She may be popular with her visitors and neighbors, but she is capricious, wayward and moody. She gives with the utmost freedom to one she likes, and yet grudges even to move a finger for one she dislikes. She can be saint or a fury at a moment's notice. When she is happy she will babble endlessly. When she is sullen she will not ever respond to your call.

"One morning she will rise early and next day she will sleep till noon. She does not mind if by her forwardness she shall place her husband in an awkward or embarrassing position with his friends or relatives. If he frets, she frets the more. If he goes to his club she would go to the theatre. If he spends money she will decide to spend more. Quarrels and a divorce is the old story of such a union.

"A sagacious wife is neither foolish nor forward. She is shrewd and capable, knows how to manage other people and has her own opinions. She is respected by her friends and admired by people generally. She is methodical in her work and knows what is wanted before she is asked.

"People may say that a man would be of little use in the world save for such a wife, but the truth is that while such a wife is indispensable for an incapable man she may prove only an obstruction to a man who is able and more experienced than she is. her conceit will make her believe that without her advice her husband cannot blunder.

"The ideal wife is the good wife She is of course not stupid, having in reality more wisdom than the sagacious wife, but she makes no attempt to display her cleverness. She may be educated, but she is not the sort that is determined to impress the bystander with her education. She has her own opinions, but is chary of expressing them unless there is a sound reason for doing so.

"She knows that love conquers everything and that only good can result from loving her husband, so that even in matters of which she more or less disapproves she is sympathetic and encouraging. In this respect she is a sort of philosopher, and in such a marriage it is the husband who seeks her advice, because he can be sure of help and sympathy no matter whether he accepts her advice or not.

"Such a wife makes even a stupid husband seem wise in the eyes of the world. People will not say that he would be of little account save for his wife. No doubt she has great ability, but it is invisibly cloaked beneath her womanly virtues."

STARVING MISSIONARIES

Superintendent Allen Says They Are Not Paid Enough for "Food and Raiment"

A vivid picture of the miserable recompense accorded missionaries in the Canadian home field was given at Montreal by Rev. James Allen, superintendent of Methodist Home Missions. He pointed out that young shop clerks could earn two and a half times as much as a single unordained missionary, twice as much as a single ordained man, and a third more than a married ordained man. And this despite the fact that the Missionary Society had last year an income of $600,000, the greatest it had ever had, but the needs, owing to the immense immigration, had exceeded the funds. To improve the lot of the home mission worker it had been decided to try and raise a fund of $1,500,000, the income from which would be devoted to city missions and increasing the salary of workers. Under present conditions many workers were forced to go into debt, a condition which utterly ruined their influence, and he argued that missionaries should be paid at least sufficient to provide the Scriptural "food and raiment." It had been found necessary to curtail the work, with less territory and fewer workers, in order to pay a decent living rate.

COBALT BEER IN QUEBEC

As a result of the Early Closing law which went into effect in the Province of Quebec on May 1, all sorts of subterfuges are being resorted to by saloon-keepers and others to sell drinks to the thirsty ones and still remain within the pale of the law. The greatest innovation so far has proved to be "Cobalt Beer." It is claimed that this beverage inebriates sufficiently to make it attractive, but still does not contain enough alcohol to bring it under the ban. John H. Roberts, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, is having the brew analyzed, and if found too stimulating will call upon the authorities to have its sale after hours prohibited.

COST OF TUBERCULOSIS

"Preventable disease, the greatest item in which is tuberculosis and the other expenses which grow out of it, costs each family on this continent at the minimum $100 a year." This is a verdict of a most thorough and cautious estimate by expert statisticians, and it errs, if anything, on the conservative side. It is a sentence, the nugget of the discourse, taken from an address on "Tuberculosis as a factor in the increased cost of living," delivered at Denver by Mr. Edward F. McSweeney, chairman of the board of trustees of the Boston Consumptives' Hospital. The guess that preventable disease has been a large share of the growing weight of living expenses is not a new one, but the thoroughness with which the proofs have been searched out by Mr. McSweeney is novel and convincing. The nations have searched and found five major causes of this increase, namely, waste, extravagance, armed peace, inefficiency and the burden of crime, pauperism, accident and disease. By the most cautious estimate the yearly money cost of tuberculosis alone in the United States is $622,512,904, and on the present ratio of deaths annually from this disease, as compared with the deaths from all other causes, 10,000,000 of people now living will eventually die of tuberculosis. The constructive part of Mr. McSweeney's discourse deals with the proof that the treatment of incipient cases is a failure, because returning to bad conditions, they relapse; and that the prevention of contagion from the advanced cases is where the resistance must be focussed. New York is following this lead, and it has now been recognised by Germany. The rigid medical inspection of school-children is one means of prevention and "we will solve the tuberculosis question when we settle the problems of child labor, city congestion, long hours and bad factory and housing conditions." This critic is emphatic that the crusade is not one primarily for physicians and charity workers: "This is essentially a business man's crusade, and should be led by the Chamber of Commerce."

New York, Aug. 29.—Captain William H. Van Schaick, who was commander of the excursion steamer General Slocum when it burned in Hell Gate June 15th, 1904, with a loss of a thousand lives, was paroled by the United States Government Saturday, and has returned to his home in this city from Sing Sing Prison. He had been sentenced to ten years, but served only two years and a half.

It was a surprise to his wife and family and the captain himself, for the old man was almost overcome when Warden Kennedy of Sing Sing told him that parole papers had arrived.

Park says that the horse should have been returned to him in July. As to the money he has not received he claims $372.

The horse is at the exhibition to race there and Park has given $6,000 security to the sheriff for its possession until the courts decide the case.

Motorists' Close Call.

St. Catharines, Aug. 29.—Mrs. F. N. Hara, Robert Fuller, of the Imperial Bank, Miss Bailey of this city, and Mrs. Hara's son, nearly met death in an automobile accident Sunday night.

They were returning home by the Lake Shore road, Mrs. Hara driving, when she lost her head and the car slid back over a ten-foot embankment. Fortunately the car was caught by a tree and though all the occupants were thrown out, none were hurt.

Murdered Mayor and Family.

London, Aug. 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A Rome special says that terrible cholera riots have been taking place at Verbicaro in Calabria. The superstitious populace, believing that the authorities to combat the spread of the epidemic were really the cause of the epidemic itself, arose in their wrath and murdered Mayor Signor Guaragna and massacred all the members of his household.

Killed Whole Family.

South Thomaston, Me., Aug. 29.—Grief over the death of his wife led Edward Bennett, a graduate of Oxford University, England, who had been a resident of this town for the past six years, to murder his three children and then take his own life yesterday. Two of the children were killed by the use of chloroform and the third by cyanide of potassium and chloroform.

Shot Himself Through Head.

New York, Aug. 29.—Standing on the corner of New and Beaver streets yesterday, Arthur Veit, connected with the Standard Oil Co., where his father, Richard C., is one of the managers, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head.

Young Veit was employed in the shipping department of the company. The young man, without a word, left his work and went to the street, where he pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired a shot through his head.

The police found many letters and papers in his pockets, and through these his identity was established. They found no note explaining the act.

Sunday Cars Popular.

Kingston, Aug. 29.—Kingston's Sunday car service will be discontinued after next Sunday. The company agreed to run July and August, but decided to give another day's service. The cars have been well patronized, the receipts being larger per hour than any other day. Sunday night's cars were tied up for over an hour for an unusual cause. The fireman at the power-house was taken suddenly ill, and before a man could be secured to take his place the steam gave out and the power fell off.

Sarah Was Captured.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—The gasoline schooner Sarah, of Seattle, was taken into New Westminster, B.C., harbor yesterday morning, in charge of a Canadian fishery protective cruiser.

The Sarah was taken by the Government cruiser while, it is alleged, she was fishing within the three-mile limit. The capture was reported by wire to the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

Power For Kingston.

Kingston, Aug. 29—Hon. Adam Beck has written Ald. Elliott stating that the report of the engineers on the High Falls and Waddington power proposition would be in his hands this week, and that municipalities in this district applying for power would be informed immediately as to the cost of power.

Found Dead In Well.

Hamilton, Aug. 29.—Between 4 and 6 o'clock yesterday evening a man named Blunt, who resided at Kenilworth, was found dead in a well in the rear of his house, and it is supposed that he was overcome with a dizzy fit, to which he was subject, and fell in head first.

Western Crops Not Hurt.

Winnipeg, Aug. 29.—Renewed anxiety was expressed yesterday morning over the safety of standing crops in consequence of frosts, which occurred Saturday and Sunday night. Beyond some damage to tender varieties of ground products, no ill results are yet apparent. The wheat market, which is a most sensitive barometer of western crop conditions, declined yesterday to consider that damage had been done to wheat. In consequence the market declined five-eighths of a cent. Four points of frost was the lowest temperature recorded in the past 48 hours. Yesterday it was mostly clear and cool with a few local showers. Harvesting received a temporary setback through the showers of Sunday and Saturday. Twenty-four hundred harvest hands have arrived from Eastern Canada since midnight Sunday.

Falling Tree Killed Campers.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—The terrific storm of Sunday brought to a tragic close the week-end outing of seven campers near East Templeton, three of whom were killed almost instantly by a falling tree, while the other four escaped by a hair's breadth. The dead are:

Joseph Leblanc of Montreal.

Lucien Marineau of Three Rivers.

The surviving four are: D. Sabourin and his son Napoleon of Gatineau Point, and Oscar Boudrey, contractor, and his son Joseph, 163 York street, Ottawa.

Declared Court a Farce.

Montreal, Aug. 29.—Stopping in the midst of a record day's work, Recorder Weir yesterday declared before a crowded court that the administration of justice, under such conditions as he was obliged to mete out, was nothing more than a farce. With over 120 cases on the local court's list, crowds of people jammed the corridor of the City Hall yesterday morning during the recorder's court session.

The members of the bar have decided to elect a committee of four members to wait upon the council of the bar of Montreal and report to it the condition of the recorder's court at the present time.

BORDEN, CANADA AND THE EMPIRE ? ? ? ? WHICH ? ? ? ? LAURIER, UNITED STATES & CONTINENTALISM

WHY, MR. GRAHAM, WHY?

To HON. GEO. P. GRAHAM,
Minister of Railways and Canals :

SIR,—Will you be good enough to tell the people of Peterborough to-morrow night :

1. Why the Dominion Government has left a municipality the size of Peterborough without a single water power of all the many along this ancient waterway?

2. Why, notwithstanding the fact that millions of dollars have been collected at the Peterborough Customs and Inland Revenue houses, but a small proportion has been returned to us, even if we include the canal itself in our estimate?

3. Why has your government not imitated the Ontario Government in a wise provision for the general benefit of the people in this respect? If you presented Peterborough with two or three dams free of all expense they would be but a small return for what we have contributed to the revenue of the country.

4. Why do you endorse the candidature of a man who is actually under indictment, as found by a grand jury of his fellow countrymen, and committed to stand his trial at the autumn assizes, charged with having conspired to procure a certificate or charter for the Farmers' Bank with intent to deceive and defraud the public? Is it fair to the youth of this country that men sent up for trial charged with an offence which has attached to it a sentence of from one to seven years, without the option of a fine, shall allow themselves to be held up as the representatives of the principles of one of the two great parties of this country?

We, citizens of Peterborough, will await answers to these questions with interest.

Why Bridgenorth Mr. O'Connell, Why?

For some time past the people of Peterborough have been treated to a series of attacks by the Stratton organ on Mr. Burnham, in connection with religious matters. Last night the organ made another exhibition of itself. It says: —His diabolically devious campaign methods pursued, the prostitution of religion to politics, are inconceivable to those who regard the Christian church as something too sacred to be made a football of party politics, and a stalking horse for political ambition.

It should be remembered that J. R. Stratton is the man who makes this statement—a man who wouldn't hesitate to use a yellow cur loaded with fleas if he could thereby assist his political salvation. But let that pass. In the column next to this screamer, there is an account of a Stratton meeting at Bridgenorth—at Bridgenorth, mind you, near Ennismore. There are SEVEN LINES devoted, in the account of the meeting to what Mr. Stratton and Mr. Hall had to say. The balance of the report, three-fourths of a column long, is taken up by the remarks of one Daniel O'Connell on Mr. Burnham and religion. Mr. O'Connell as the head-liner at a Bridgenorth meeting! Why? Why is not Mr. O'Connell the head-liner at some Peterborough meetings?

Who talks about the prostitution of religion to politics, and the sacred Christian church! Mr. O'Connell's appeals at Bridgenorth and other sections of the county are purely non-sectarian, and non-religious, of course.

THE STRATTON SQUEAL

"The Stratton cause is getting pretty desperate, I think," said a citizen last night in commenting on the organ's howl about a little Epworth League meeting in St. James Church. "If the Examiner has to devote a big section of its front page to abuse the Conservative candidate and the president of a little Epworth League, all because of a meeting at which perhaps half a dozen or a dozen young men were present, its case is about as hopeless as it could be. The desperate straits of Mr. Stratton in his candidature this time were never more clearly shown."

This is the general tone of comment on the large-sized squeal emitted by the Stratton organ on the Epworth League meeting in St. James Church, which it entitles "Prostituting the church for the base purposes of base politics." We do not know whether any reference was made to politics at this little gathering, nor does it matter a great deal, yes or no. The point is this: That Stratton's candidature must be on its last legs when it must rest its case on such a trivial matter. No other conclusion can be drawn.

Stratton's candidature must be making its dying kick, when a pitiful two column appeal is made to vote for the "boss" because he is a "good sport and a good fellow." All these things are but evidences of how the winds do blow. The little Epworth League meeting suddenly assumes a gigantic shape in the eyes of the Stratton organ, because some things not complimentary to the Farmers' Bank hero were said. It looks very much as if the Stratton fright were dilating the Examiner's eyeballs to the breaking point — every piece of paper on the road is enough to frighten it into spasms.

If every little church gathering would take up the task of cleansing the Augean stables of West Peterborough Liberalism, it would be a magnificent thing in the cause of righteousness, morality and good citizenship. What is needed is a crushing blow to Strattonism — which is a by-word and a reproach to Peterborough all over the country. And it is coming. By its frantic effort to put a stopper to the movement, the Stratton organ merely proclaims that it knows perfectly well the precarious situation its "boss" is in.

Let the good work go on. The fact that J. R. Stratton has contributed $5,000 to this church, or $1,000 to that, to make himself "solid" should be taken for what it is worth — merely a political effort to hold the churches under his bondage. Free yourselves! citizens of Peterborough, and demonstrate that Strattonism is proving too much for your good nature and forbearance.

TUMULTUOUS RECEPTION FOR MR. BORDEN BY MONTREALERS

Great Meeting Indicates Over-Throw of Laurierism in Quebec Province—Whitney Speaks at Georgetown.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—R. L. Borden captured the mercantile and financial element of the metropolis last evening, his great gathering composed of 2,500 seated, a thousand standing and many thousands turned away.

The leader, C. J. Doherty and G. F. Johnston, candidates in St. Anns and St. Lawrence respectively, and C. H. Cahan, spoke in English, while J. G. H. Bergeron and L. T. Marechal addressed their compatriots in French. Ex-Mayor Laporte, who, with Arthur Hodgins, presided, expressed confidence as a French-Canadian in Mr. Borden's leadership, and one and all denounced the pact.

There can be no doubt as to the feeling that is in the air for two strong forces are being hurled against the Government. Borden with his anti-reciprocity, and Bourassa with his anti-naval, both of which have created a sentiment which will most likely prove fatal to the administration.

Bourassa's meetings are being attended by double the quantity of people who listened to Laurier the week before, as the Nationalist leader is following the Prime Minister from district to district. It looks to-day as if Quebec had abandoned Laurier.

Whitney at Georgetown.

Georgetown, Aug. 30.—Sir James Whitney was greeted here last night by a gathering of over 2,000 people. On his arrival a monster procession was former, headed by the 20th Regiment band, and marched to the Drill Shed, which was filled to overflowing.

Mr. J. A. Willoughby was chairman, and Dr. A. W. Nixon, M.P.P., and D. Henderson, the Conservative candidate for Halton, were among those on the platform.

Sir James Whitney was greeted with loud cheering as he rose to address the assembly. It was his second visit to Georgetown, and he was pleased, he said, to be in a county that produced such men as Mr. Henderson, Dr. Nixon and J. R. Barber. He was here to do his duty, and he proceeded to strongly criticize the reciprocity treaty, which the Laurier Government, he contended, proposed forcing on the people of Canada.

Canada was prosperous now, and he did not believe Canadians would hand over their prosperity to the United States. In closing he asked the electors to support Mr. Henderson by voting in their own interests and defeating a treaty which would mean ruin to the markets of the farmer. The Premier was loudly cheered. Little Miss Elliott presented him with a bouquet.

GOOD POSITIONS GET IN LINE

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of seven Business Colleges located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk, students may enter any day. Many students study all at home and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada and have thirty years experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1200 students and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you. 12d

Abolish Conciliation Board.

London, Aug. 30.—The Royal Commission which is investigating the recent railway strike held its second session yesterday.

Fox, secretary of the Society of Locomotive Engineers, gave evidence as to the failure of conciliation boards to achieve the purpose for which they were authorized. He suggested that they be abolished, and that hereafter, when disputes arise, complaints be first submitted to the local officers of the company where the trouble occurred. Then, if the matter is not settled, it should be brought to a general meeting of men of the grade concerned, to elect a deputation to meet the management of the company, together with the trade union officers.

LAURIER MINISTERS JEERED AT LIBERAL MEETING IN EAST

Shawville, Que., Aug. 30.—There was a hot time at the meeting held at Campbell's Bay in Pontiac County last night when Sir Alan Aylesworth and Hon. Sydney Fisher held a meeting in behalf of G. F. Hodgins, one of the Liberal candidates.

The meeting resolved itself into a free fight between the supporters of Mr. Hodgins and Frank S. Cahill, the other Liberal candidate. The members of the Cahill faction jeered and hissed the Ministers and refused Mr. Hodgins a hearing altogether.

At one time in the course of the meeting, which was the stormiest witnessed in this county since away back in the eighties, Hon. Sydney Fisher endeavored to explain to the audience that he was the bearer to them of a message from Sir Wilfrid Laurier to support Mr. Hodgins, but his voice was drowned by an angry chorus of cross cries, "We want the right to choose our own man. Tell Sir Wilfrid that."

The Cahill supporters told the Ministers their coming into the county to tell the people of Pontiac what candidate to support was an insult to the electors of the county.

Both Ministers pleaded with the crowd to sink their differences, and predicted that unless they did so the Conservative candidate, Gerald Brabason, would capture the county.

Every effort has been made to induce Mr. Cahill to retire from the field, but he stoutly refuses to do so. Saturday night Sir Wilfrid Laurier summoned both candidates to Montreal, and in an interview at which Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux was present, endeavored to have Cahill retire in favor of Hodgins.

It was immediately arranged that Sir Alan Aylesworth and Hon. Sydney Fisher should go to the county and speak in Mr. Hodgins' behalf.

Special trains bearing the Ministers and several other speakers, including Dr. Gaboury, M.P.P. for Pontiac, came up from Ottawa in the morning. Mr. Cahill, however, called a counter demonstration and ran special trains from Ottawa and from different parts of the county crowded with his supporters.

Several free fights had by this time sprung up, and the crowd, surging in all directions, refused to listen further to the speakers.

In the fight that ensued three men were seriously injured and blood was freely shed.

Two arrests were made by the local constables.

Last evening Messrs. Aylesworth and Fisher spoke to two small meetings in Shawville.

FIFTEEN KILLED IN COLLAPSE OF RAILROAD BRIDGE

Paris, Aug. 30—A railroad bridge under construction near Brazil, Switzerland collapsed to-day and killed fifteen men. Twelve others were injured.

An Expensive Delusion.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—As an evidence of their intention to take no chances of losing their votes at the coming elections, hundreds of citizens are running to the City Hall these days and paying all their arrears of taxes, under the mistaken impression that to be indebted to the city at the time of the polling is to render one disqualified to the franchise, as is the case in municipal elections.

Monday $47,000 was paid into the city treasury for water taxes alone.

THE McGILLICUDDY CHARGES

The following is an extract of Dan McGillicuddy's letter to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and his comment in Toronto Monday night;

"I figured up for you that Oliver, since entering the Cabinet, had acquired funds and collateral that would reach fully a quarter of a million—some put it at four times that amount—and that this large sum was altogether outside of his salary and indemnity. And your answer, you remember, was, "He appear to have done almost as well as Sifton.

"When you said that Oliver denied the charges and that you would have to stand by him, I told you that should you do so you would have to share the responsibility of his acts, and your reply to that was, "If he is deceiving me, God help him!"

Why, bless your innocent soul, Sir Wilfrid, Oliver has been systematically deceiving you almost since the day you called him to your Cabinet."

This is the crux of the whole question. Mackenzie and Mann had discovered that the lands in Saskatchewan and Alberta were more valuable than the lands in Manitoba, east of the Red River, and they desired to have a feast of fat things from the Minister of the Interior's department. The year previous (1906) they had tried that gentleman out, and had discovered that he was a pretty good sort to tie to. There was no such bunker-sliding by the bank managements when the Oxford County grafters were gone after, or when other eminent financiers of similar standing boodled or grafted—if Sir Allen Aylesworth will excuse the phrase. But they were not Cabinet Ministers, backed by the prestige of a Dominion Government, and with the corporate interests behind them that Roosevelt so graphically describes.

POET ROSTAND INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

EDMOND ROSTAND
FROM BLACK AND WHITE

Edmond Rostand, the poet and dramatist and author of "Chantecler," was the victim of a serious automobile accident near Biarritz a few days ago and now lies in his villa at Cambo-les-Bains surrounded by physicians, who as yet have been unable to determine what the outcome of his injuries will be. He is suffering from serious contusions of the head and body, and it is feared he is injured internally.

A SAMPLE OF THE "WIDER" MARKET

United States—195,128,000 horses, cattle sheep and swine.
Canada—14,984,473 horses, cattle, sheep and swine.
These are numbered in the following divisions:

	United States.	Canada
Horses	21,040,000	2,132,499
Dairy cows	21,621,000	2,819,306
Other cattle	47,279,000	4,264,719
Sheep	57,216,000	2,705,398
Swine	47,782,000	2,912,509
	195,128,000	14,984,473

This is the wider market that Laurier would give the farmer. Per capita of population, the United States has more live stock than Canada. In taking down the tariff barriers, whose live stock will rule the price? In the race of live stock production, or in manufactured meats, can 14,000,000 animals beat 195,000,000 animals? Could an army of 14,000,000 soldiers put to rout an army of 195,000,000?

If the United States meat trusts, like the beef trust, can corral the meat production of 195,000,000 animals, how long will it take them to manage 14,000,000 more animals?

Where is the bigger and wider market for which we are asked to surrender our birthright?

OVER-WORKED KIDNEYS

Cause. Rush of Blood, Fullness, Dizziness.

J. T. Chetland, the well-known railway engineer of Hamilton, found the strain always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clearness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some difficulty in bending—a stiffness with pain having settled in his back, it occurred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea, for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and was glad to note that some obstruction of the kidneys, which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite. Dr. Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it seizes him that he were elsewhere."

No medicine gives such unquestionably good results for stomach, liver, and blood troubles as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild, certain, and always curative. Refuse any substitute. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 30, 1911.

A GENERAL GOD-SEND

The Ottawa Free Press presents an economic argument in favor of reciprocity, summed up as follows:

> The general effect of reciprocity in food will be to enrich the tables of all the people, and especially of the poor all over Canada and the United States. The poor man will get the food cheaper, but the producer will be more than compensated by the increase in consumption, by the widening of the market, and by the lengthening of the season.

So reciprocity is going to make the people eat more. That's encouraging news. Most of us don't eat enough now, as the restaurant keeper says. But will reciprocity enrich the tables of the poor? What is the use of the farmers of Canada looking for these higher prices in the United States that we hear so much about, if the poor man is going to get his food cheaper? Where is he to get it? Will the middleman be cut out through an exchange of products, or will he continue to handle the produce as between farmer and consumer?

One great advantage of the home market is that the farmer comes into close contact with the consumer, getting rid of the obnoxious middleman, while the farther afield he sends his products the higher do they become to the consumer and the less price he gets himself. The lengthening of the season will not benefit the Canadian fruit producer very much. He will lose the early market because of the earlier American season, and he will not get a compensating advantage in a late market because the southern fields will still be producing the late varieties of fruit, in competition with his. Thus he loses in the deal, and the only benefit the consumer will gain will be cheaper early fruit.

THE U.S. PREFERENCE

The Brooklyn, N.Y., Times asserts that reciprocity "assures the American manufacturer, a larger and more accessible market" and adds. "Europe however reluctantly, must acknowledge the commercial supremacy of the United States. Because of its economic advantage, reciprocity with Canada will further uphold American prestige."

That is the whole story, says the Toronto News. Under reciprocity Canada and its vast natural resources and growing markets are to be sacrificed for the aggrandisement of the United States and the American trusts. Instead of being manufactured here at home by Canadian workmen in Canadian factories our raw materials are to be carted across the border to nourish American industries employing American workmen, and thus build up industrial centres as profitable home markets for American farmers.

Others of our natural products are to be drawn off to the United States in the crude state and shipped thence to Europe in either manufactured or unmanufactured forms. In this way United States railways, banks and business houses will benefit, to the partial exclusion of their Canadian rivals. Manitoba No. 1 hard wheat and Canadian flour, cheese, butter and bacon will lose their identity and their high standing in European markets. Mingled with American products of lower grade the "Canadian brands" which we have been at so much trouble to establish in the markets of the United Kingdom will be lost sight of, and our export trade must suffer accordingly.

And to what purpose? Merely that President Taft may be assisted out of a political difficulty, that a veil may be drawn across the misdeeds of Ottawa Ministers, that Mr. Fielding's strong free trade predilections may be indulged, and that the partly exhausted and commercially depressed republic may share in Canada's boom, and suck the life blood out of a young nation.

Sir George Ross, formerly Liberal Premier of Ontario, has given a series of convincing reasons why we should secure a preference in the British market instead of entering into an entangling alliance with the United States. He depreciates any reciprocity arrangement which would would give United States politicians, United States trusts and Congress at Washington control in our national affairs. In his judgment, and in that of most thoughtful Canadians the commerce of Canada should never be placed at the mercy of a competing country like the United States, which produces vast quantities of the same articles as we do for export abroad. He has said that where our treasure is there will our heart be also. For these and other reasons he has consistently argued that instead of binding ourselves to the United States we should wait for that preference in the British markets which cannot now be delayed for any long period.

He thus describes the advantages of preference. 1. It would stimulate emigration to Canada and facilitate the occupation of the wild lands, of all the provinces, but particularly the prairies of the west. 2. An increase of population would create a larger home market for the manufactured goods of the older provinces, employment would be more abundant, our own skilled labor would be applied at home to the manufacture of our raw material, instead of the skilled labor of the foreign manufacturer, and the additional output of our factories would cheapen their products to the consumers. 3. It would greatly increase our transportation by rail and water and tend to the reduction of freights between Canada and foreign ports and would add to the employment of remunerative labor in the carrying trade of the country. 4. It would build up our towns and cities and broaden our industries in every district where raw materials are available. 5. It would stimulate east and west transportation, create a great trans-Atlantic commerce, increase our merchant marine and cause our seaports shortly to rank with the Liverpools and Glasgows of the Old World. Lastly, a system of inter-Imperial preferences would link the different parts of the empire in fresh bonds of mutual interest, and thus add materially to the solidity of the King's Dominions. Are Canadians to throw away this splendid prospect to please a foreign country?

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Farmers' Bank was where the wild thyme grew, but some people will pay for it now.

If the workingmen of Peterborough will stand for a free trade measure that is an instalment of complete free trade between Canada and the United States, we miss or guess. A vote for Burnham is your share towards maintaining Canada's prosperity.

A vote for Stratton is not a vote for a good fellow, but a vote for the rottenest government that Canada has ever had. It is a vote for the perpetuation of Farmers Bank steals, for Pugsleyism, for a policy that will lead to the dismemberment of the British empire. A vote for Stratton is a vote against good principles and righteousness.

MONTREAL, Aug. 29.—There continues to be a fair demand from European sources for new crop spring wheat, and the prices bid showed an advance of 1½d per quarter, but even at this rise exporters could not do any business. However, at the decline in prices in Winnipeg sales of several loads of old wheat were made.

The foreign demand for oats is also good, but the bids are 1½c per bushel out of line. The local market for oats is strong, and prices have advanced ¼c to ½c per bushel. The demand is good, and sales of several round lots were made. American No. 2 yellow corn has advanced ¼c to ½c per bushel.

The foreign demand for spring wheat flour is very good, and sales during the past two days amount to 75,000 sacks. The local trade also is fairly active.

The tone of the market for bran and shorts is strong, and millers are talking about advancing prices another dollar per ton on account of the big demand and small supplies.

Butter is stronger, and prices have advanced another ¼c per pound under a good demand. Cheese and eggs are fairly active at firm prices.

"I am sure that I am as ignorant and disturbed over the affair as you can possibly be. When I see him again I shall demand an explanation. Then I will be able to tell you."

"And those rings—they sounded almost like a signal—one short and two long ones."

"It is one of his peculiarities. I think he so announces himself everywhere." She came close beside me, dropping her hand upon my shoulder. "You told me once that you would never mistrust me again. You are doing so now. I cannot wholly control the actions of others, and there are reasons why I do not wish to quarrel with Mr. Mackay unless I am driven to it. Your jealousy may ruin our prospects and make us bad friends after all. I do not feel flattered by it."

I got upon my feet and slipped my arm about her. "You must forgive me once more, dearest. While I admit that my love is a jealous one, yet where my heart is my faith also reposes. I trust you implicitly and will ask you nothing further. I was very much surprised, that is all."

She smiled upon me with a sweetness that was incomparable, and for an instant her palms held my cheeks. "You had better go now, Tom. It really is late and I am just plain, physically tired. You may kiss me good-night if you wish—just once."

She turned her cheek to me, and my lips paid reverential tribute to it. She accompanied me to the door, her hands locked above my elbow, blew me a farewell from finger tips that toucher her lips, and disappeared behind the oaken panel. Sobered of spirit by the occurrence of a few minutes before, and despite myself somewhat depressed by thoughts which, notwithstanding the fact that I would not permit them to crowd themselves into my brain, nevertheless hovered upon the horizon of it, I started homeward on a brisk walk after having ordered the car, now here, to one of the garages within the building. A vacant lot with a path cutting diagonally across it spread itself before me, and in accordance with my usual custom, I took this short cut as a saver of steps. The remains of a natural grove were scattered throughout it, and upon it's centre the nightshades lay heavily. As I passed an oak that leaned over the path I was conscious of a slight rustling movement at my back, and ducked my head with an involuntary quickness that is the gift of a natural boxer. Then I whirled with my heel for a pivot.

Close behind me through the murk I saw a big form lurch across the way I had just left behind me, thrown completely from its balance by a terrific blow that had been wasted in the empty air. In a flash I became a fighting machine; my fists knotted and my muscles hardened as, with my guard raised, I edged towards him, on the alert for either attack or defence. At the same instant he regained his balance and came towards me. "You puppy," growled the heavy voice of Mackay.

Cold as ice, externally, but nevertheless with the fires of satisfaction burning fiercely within, I stepped backward and to one side, my left hand darting towards him in rapid feints. Knowing the man's reputation as I did, I was not in the least surprised at his attempted thuggery, and I now determined to give him the worst beating I was capable of without using more than my fists or endangering his life. His reputation was an open book. When sober he used his brains for the destruction of his enemies, but when drunk the beast within him arose raging, and many was the man who, crossing him in his cups, had been felled unconscious by his great fist. Instinctively disliking him to the very core of my being, and raging inwardly at the cowardliness of his attack, I stopped his approach by a straight, left-hand blow that cracked like the report of a pistol and sent his head rocking. He was probably as powerful a man as myself, but much slower, much older and in much poorer condition physically and mentally. His bear-like rushes and swings I evaded without difficulty, sending his head backward with short, quick blows until his wine-filled mind whirled, and he staggered as he tried to reach me. My time had come, and deliberately I took full advantage of it. For the first time I used my right hand, sending it over his guard with the viciousness with which I would have struck at the head of a serpent. He spun in his tracks, threw up his hands and came down like a falling wall.

I stepped back, readjusted my coat, and stood waiting. Perhaps thirty seconds later he stirred and climbed to his feet after several unsuccessful efforts, and stood rocking in his tracks, as he wiped the blood from his face and glared at me. "If I don't get you for this you will be the first one that ever got away from me," he said, wickedly. For the second time that night I laughed in his face.

"At any time and place that suits you, Mackay. There is a beauty doctor a few blocks down the street—open day and night, I believe. I wish you a pleasant evening with the devil for your partner." He picked up his hat, coughed once in his peculiar way, and disappeared without reply in the direction of the lighted street. Although I knew that I had made an unforgiving foe, against whom it had been charged and almost proven that he had more than once hired professional thugs to half kill his enemies; knowing also that there was no reason why he might not do the same in my case, I was still more than half glad that the affair had happened. At any rate, if he had any status beyond that of a business agent with the woman who had promised to be my wife, this incident would develop the fact. Even though he was her financial guardian he would be seriously embarrassed should he attempt to uphold himself in what he had done this night; and certainly if she cared for me at all she would express her satisfaction to me over the outcome. Nursing my sole injuries, which were confined to a pair of battered knuckles, I went to the nearest public telephone and called her up. She answered rather sleepily at first, her voice quickening a bit as I told her what had happened. But when I had finished I waited in vain for her answer.

"Have you nothing to say?" I inquired at length, rather coldly, perhaps. Her voice came to my ears again, strained, it seemed to me, and somewhat expressionless.

"I very much regret that the affair happened. Certainly you did quite right to protect yourself. But I am really unfit to talk any more to-night. You may come and see me to-morrow and tell me more about it, if you care to. I wish you a restful sleep after your adventure. Good night."

Taking everything together, I went home fairly content. She had repulsed his attempt to call upon her; had made no attempt to excuse him for his actions then or later in his attack upon me; and all in all it had been a bad night for the enemy. In the nature of things, it was but natural that she should be more or less perturbed over the disagreeable events of the night, and I could well appreciate that she might be reluctant to talk of such matters over a public telephone, with all its possibilities of unseen listeners. But I was confident that she would express herself with more warmth upon the subject when we were together on the morrow.

CHAPTER XIV.

Somewhat contrary to my expectations, Mrs. Dace had little to say concerning the matter when I next saw her. She accepted my version of the episode practically without comment, and when I tried to draw from her some expression of sentiment on the subject, she threw the whole matter bodily out of our conversation with the request that we talk about something less unpleasant. In a measure this disappointed me for the reason that I feel that I was entirely in the right and that she, therefore, should have been rather more outspoken in her approval of my actions. Still, I believed that I understood her thoughts. Mackay was her business agent; was in a position to be of great service to her, and for that reason she did not care to antagonize him by coming out in open partisanship over our disagreements. I had given him a handsome whipping and escaped unhurt myself, and so far as I was concerned, therefore, there had been no damage done. I accepted this as the natural solution of her desire to refrain from further comment upon the matter. From my own standpoint I considered myself invulnerable to him, except in the case of treacherous physical attack, and that I could guard against by watchfulness. Figuratively speaking, I snapped my fingers in his face.

Of Uncle Abner, still mumbling and grumbling like a bear stung upon the nose by a bee, I saw as little as I conveniently could. When I was at home I kept myself pretty close within my own quarters, and he seldom disturbed me beyond the occasional opening of the door to glare at me for a moment and then close it with a bang. In fact, he seemed to more and more consider me as responsible for his loss by reason of my not having been present upon the night of the assault. The few attempts I made to re-establish myself even partially in his favor met with such little success that I gave them up, leaving matters to take their natural course. The securities that he had previously kept in the safe he had now deposited in the bank, even going to the extent of reposing his gold watch among them and buying a dollar timepiece for his daily use. The experience of the night of the crime had seemed to make an arrant coward of him.

I had not seen LeDuc for several days. I was anxious to meet him, as I was wondering considerably what he was up to, and was desirous of questioning him as to progress. Bruce I had hunted up on one occasion after my interview with the detective, and had found him in seemingly far better spirits than when L had last seen him upon the day after the burglary.

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SADIE MULLEN, 2728 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

Through Ontario With The British-Born

By ARTHUR HAWKES.

I have found an employer who advertises "Old Countrymen preferred." He is Moore, of Meaford, and he talks to his Englishmen as if they were his blood brethren. I heard of his popularity in advertising from a Bristolian who used to work under him and gives him a first-class name. Moore said in opening the meeting, that the least noble of the British that come to Canada are preferable to the best who bring an alien tongue. Whereat the meeting cheered.

Afterwards Moore explained himself to me. He manufactures wood mantels in Meaford. A Quebecer he spent eighteen years in New England. He had a hard time himself, to begin with—as hard as the British have who abound in the North Atlantic States. He came back to Canada because blood and early environment will tell. He has only good to tell of the English.

"Now and then one comes along," he said, "who is a bluff; but the woodcutter from England is thorough and reliable. He soon gets on to our way of doing things, and I always get him when I can. When I started in New England I was like him starting in Canada, and I don't forget it."

My Bristolian, Walter Holloway, said this about his fellow countrymen in Meaford: "There are many good Englishmen in this town, but they have been in the background, keeping themselves to themselves."

The modesty of the English in Canada is not an over-written theme. Indeed, the quality is often thought to be somewhat obscure. That little matter of the aspirate is rather upsetting, but as a quiet fellow from Northamptonshire said to me on the way up from Allandale: the way the careless Englishman forgets and fabricates his aitches is nothing to the honestly-meant reflections of English speech you see in cartoons and stories like those that frequently adorn The Toronto Telegram, the authors of which think they are mighty clever; whereas the Englishman is only natural.

The British-born are misunderstood, because they have so far done so little to understand themselves. I met a little Londoner in Moore's factory who never slept a wink a continuous week away from "the smoke" until he boarded ship for Meaford.

"I cannot say I like it," he told me frankly, "but I don't think I should like to go back.

"What's the matter with Meaford?" I asked.

"Nothing," he replied, "only it's too quiet. It ain't like the Elephant and Castle."

This delightful man likes to tell himself he isn't quite so happy here, because Meaford isn't giddy enough for one, long years accustomed to the Elephant. But when he comes to sort out his ideas he remembers that the doctor told him to clear out of London if he wanted to save the only child of eleven that survived.

"Is the child better in Meaford?" I inquired.

"Is she?" he said, with a smile from 'ere to 'ere. "Go and have a look at her. And there's another since we got here—lively as kittens both of 'em."

"And would you like them to be playing around the Elephant," said I.

"Not by a darned sight," he said.

To come straight from London to this tree-blessed, breezy resort on Georgian Bay, is a mighty change for a man in his forty-fifth year.

I asked if he thought he could be happy in London again.

"I don't know. I know several who have been back for a holiday, you know, and they all say they wouldn't like to live there again."

This man, you see, is just beginning to understand things.

And another I saw who had this story—Liberal in the Old Country; nothing in particular here for several years; now strongly against any closer entanglement with the United States.

Free Traders in the Old Country? Yes, in a way; but here it is different. Higher wages; houses on fifty-foot lots; more freedom and social life; more hope for the kids. The Free Trade we used to have may have been all right. The protection we now have is certainly better, or we would not stay here.

And for a sidelight on the home market: look at the Methodist Barn. Because there is a sheltering wall along the border there are growing industries on Georgian Bay. The farmer also used to find little sale for the stuff in Meaford now has a fine market among the people who run the wood-working factories. And the Methodist farmer who drives into town for the Methodist Gospel drives his horse into a big red brick barn—not an open shed—a big red brick barn that's bigger than the church and almost as imposing. The home market and the Gospel are near relations in Meaford.

Women Takes Poison.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Mary Crawford, 173 McCaul street, tried to end her life yesterday by taking carbolic acid, and tried to hide her actions by taking a good percentage of whisky along with the poison. She dropped into unconsciousness at the corner of Queen and Sherbourne streets at noon, and was taken from there to St. Michael's Hospital, where she regained consciousness about 8 o'clock in the evening.

Girl Swims Golden Gate.

San Francisco, Aug. 30.—Miss Hazel Laugenour, 19 years old, a graduate of the University of California, is the first woman to swim across the Golden Gate. She made the distance, one mile and a quarter, in 1 hour and 28 minutes on Monday. She had a hard time in the last 400 yards, as the tide began to set against her and her head often went under the breakers.

Perished In Burning House.

Quebec, Aug. 30.—P. C. Dauteuil, a well-known broker of this city, lost his life by asphyxiation in a fire which badly damaged his residence, situated in St. Roche's, at an early hour yesterday morning. His wife and daughter escaped by jumping, but are seriously injured. Two sons escaped through the rear of the house into the yard.

"BARGAIN" GLASSES ARE DANGEROUS GLASSES

A woman who was hunting "bargain glasses" finally succeeded in "fitting" her eyes with what she enthusiastically declares was "just the thing." And immensely pleased with herself, this woman had brought about the gravest danger a woman could invest in, for she had bought two pieces of glass crudely ground, but magnifying strongly, and with them she can see 'better to read'—That seeing better will mean an intense strain upon the her eyes, but she will not realize what the trouble is, nor the injury the glasses are doing. Some day she will be under the care of a Specialist, probably for the removal of a cataract, which will cost considerable, to say nothing of the suffering entailed, and she will be fortunate indeed if she does not suffer partial or entire loss of sight for the remainder of her life.

We have every qualification for giving your eyes a thorough examination. We fit you with the finest ground lenses, and at a very reasonable cost. Thousands of our citizens can certify to the care, skill and thoroughness of the examination, and the good results they had in wearing the glasses we prescribed. ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

DEER IN SIGHT OUT OF SEASON

On Monday morning, Mr. W. Moncrief, of North Monaghan, and who lives about ten miles south of the city was astounded to see a couple of deer break from a cluster of trees and race across the farm through a potato field.

They were evidently making for the river. Of course Mr. Moncrief is a law abiding citizen, but the things a fellow sees when he hasn't his gun, are a caution. The incident may be taken to indicate the confidence some have in the game laws, but on the other side of the river, the deer may have come to grief.

EVERYTHING IN GOOD ORDER

Fine weather is all that is wished for on Labor Day, and if we have that one of the best programs of sport ever pulled off in Riverside Park will take place. The prizes for the different events are now on display in the window of the J. C. Turnbull Company. The entries are coming in fast and each event will be well contested. Considerable time and expense has been spent in getting up the program for Labor Day and one of the largest crowds that ever went to Riverside Park is anticipated. There will be a booth on the grounds where refreshments can be procured and the band has promised a number of good selections, and with the large number of events to be pulled off one of the best afternoon's enjoyment is looked forward to. Be sure and see the prizes.

ENGINES COLLIDE IN LINDSAY YARD

Call Boy Had His Leg Injured Local Man Escapes Without Injury

Engineer J. Woods of Rubidge st., city, who is in the employ of the G.T.R., was in what was nearly a serious accident, at the east end of the Lindsay round house on Monday afternoon.

After the rain, the yard engine was hauling two loaded cars of coal and the rails being slippery, the weight of the cars pulled the train down. At this time engineer J. Woods and fireman S. Keleher were coming up the track. Both crews noticed the danger but the wet rails made the brakes useless and the engines crashed into each other.

Both crews jumped and came off safely, but the call boy, J. Trotter with engineer J. Woods' engine, had his leg slightly injured.

The damage was only slight.

NORTH HARVEY CHEESE MAN VOTED TO PUT LAURIER IN; VOTES NOW TO PUT HIM OUT

Strong Letter Warning the Workingman of the Hammer Hanging Over His Head—Reciprocity is Just What the U. S. is Waiting For.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—As at my leisure I have been following the great question of reciprocity from an independent standpoint I would be pleased in a few words through the columns of your valuable paper to give expression to my conclusion on the matter. I have studied the question mostly from literature from American sources, the Toronto Globe, etc., and the only decision that I can arrive at is that it is not of any benefit even to the farmer, whom it is claimed to be special legislation for. On the other hand, it appears to me that it will be a lasting injury to them. Taking every condition into consideration the most prosperous farmers all over the country West Peterborough nor even our own little community not excepted, do not want any change in our trade relations with United States. The ones that are raising the howl about reciprocity are mainly the ones that wouldn't make good under any trade or any other relations that may be brought forth. It also means the complete overthrow of many of our industries to a decided disadvantage to the workingman. It is over the head of the working man that the hammer is hanging most heavily at present; and if any class needs special legislation, it is the workingman at the present prices of the necessaries of life, and it is the duty of every workingman on the 21st of September by your vote to protect your industries, thus protecting yourself.

Just remember that Buffalo is on the border line with its natural gas, its seventeen railroads, its 75,000 wage earners, its diversified industries, its cheap electrical power from Niagara Falls, its 3,000 manufacturers covering 58 per cent of the different industries in the United States, its great waterways just waiting to snatch up the bread and butter off your table. Just allow me space to mention two remarks from educated persons from across the lines. A teacher in one of the universities of Pittsburg asked me the question, what I thought about reciprocity. I said that it would be all right for them, but a poor thing for us. The answer that I got was this: "That is why we want it." The other was a remark from a politician from New York to the effect that he would like to see Laurier sustained for, he and Taft think so much alike. I guess they do when it is political pie they are after.

Let the working man just consider his own position on this question. Never mind what Stratton or any other man has done for you personally, as none of those politicians will do anything for you or any person else, unless they can see at least the horizon of political gain. My vote counted one for Laurier when he went into power, and it will count one against him if all is well on Sept. 21st. The working man never had a better chance to score one than in this campaign, with the Liberal party, the advocates of the agreement, split into three or four divisions—Bourassa commanding audiences of thousands in the east, Sifton hot-foot against the agreement in the west, and German, of Welland, standing true to his convictions as regards the measure. The people of the Dominion generally do not wish for any legislation that is not to the general benefit of the people.

Yours, etc.,
W. H. MERRELL,
Cheesemaker, North Harvey.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH MAN KILLED AT REVELSTOKE, B.C.

Met Death on the Railway Track—Brother of Alfred Rickaby.

August 24, 1911

Chief Thompson,
Peterborough.

About 8.30 this morning a man named Rickaby was killed on the railway track in the yard here. From enquiry made we find that he has a brother in Peterboro, named Alfred Rickaby, so I am writing to you to ask if you will kindly look this man up and let him know of his brothers death.

We will deem it a favor if you will let me know whether you can locate him or not.

H. M. PARRY,
Chief of Police.

Inquiries fail to discover a man named Alfred Rickaby in Peterboro, neither does his name appear in the city directory. Information concerning him should be left at the police station.

The Review learned this afternoon that the above letter refers to a young man named Josiah Rickaby, aged twenty-eight, who has been in Canada a number of years, and whose home originally was in Dublin, Ireland.

The Review got in touch with Mr Alfred Rickaby, brother of the deceased, to whom the letter makes reference and learned a few of the particulars of the matter.

Alfred Rickaby has been employed at the construction work near Auburn, and on being informed of the contents of the letter received by Chief Thompson was greatly shocked. He feels sure that the man killed must be his brother, although he has had no news of him for a long time. It is over seven years since he last saw him. Alfred Rickaby was out west travelling through British Columbia and the provinces about two years ago. When he came back to Peterborough he wrote his brother, knowing he was in the west. Letters were found on the dead man written from Peterborough by his brother.

It is his intention to communicate with Chief Parry, of Revelstoke, to enable him to be positive that it was his brother who was killed.

WHAT TOOK PLACE AT THE EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETING

Young Men Were Told How to Live and Give Canada their Best—Mr. Goodwin Has Yet to Meet Mr. Burnham

The Review to-day interviewed Mr. James Goodwin, regarding the meeting at St. James' Methodist church, on Monday night and which was taken up by the Examiner of yesterday's issue.

Mr. Goodwin stated emphatically that he had never met Mr. Burnham, and that he was not a worker for him.

Furthermore that the Epworth league meeting, which was also addressed by other speakers, had nothing to do with politics. The addresses were along patriotic lines and showed how the young men of to-day could make the best of their lives lives and thereby give Canada their best. The meeting was announced to be of a patriotic character and as such was carried out.

It is not at the request of Mr. Goodwin that these statements are published, but as a measure of fairness to him. He feels the slander both on his church and himself very keenly and requested that nothing be said.

OBITUARY

The Late Samuel Kennedy

Mr Samuel Kennedy, aged 47 years, for nearly twenty years a cement worker for the corporation of Peterborough, passed away from kidney trouble at an early hour this morning, at his home, 312 London street, after an illness of but five days' duration.

The late Mr. Kennedy was born in Smith township and came to Peterborough twenty-five years ago. He was a Methodist in religion and attended George street church.

Stay at home fans, and there promises to be a large number for Labor Day, may be given a double header. The Belleville Grand Trunks, who are billed for a game in the afternoon under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council, arrive in the early morning, and in time for morning game. It is probable that the double-header will be put on.

HASTINGS GAME WAS CALLED OFF

Local Nine Received Word While at the Station

A local ball team of Collegiate Institute players, gathered at the G.T.R. station this morning, intending to take the train to Hastings, where a game was to be played to-day.

At the last moment, however, Manager Stewart arrived on the scene with a telegram notifying the team not to make the trip. No reason was given.

This is the fourth time the Hastings management has called off the game, much to the inconvenience of the local nine.

STORMY WEATHER FOR SEPTEMBER

According to the Predictions Made by Hicks

A regular storm period is central on the 3rd, covering the first to the 6th. The earth's autumnal equinox and the Mercury period are both in force at this time. It will be natural to expect a decided fall of the barometer, with all other attendant changes to active storm conditions during this period. Very warm and humid conditions, with south winds and low barometer, will admonish of equatorial storms. The 3rd, 4th, and 5th will be the crisis of the period. Watch storm developments on and touching these dates, especially in southern extremes. The Mercury period will prolong and intensify tendency to threatening weather at this period.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 8th, 9th and 10th. Moon is full on the 8th, the central day of the Mercury period and on the celestial equator on the 9th. The annual magnetic and electric crisis, also falls within this period, extending forward to about the 15th. On and about the 11th of September maximum "earth currents" disturbing telegraph lines, exciting auroral lights and causing seismic shakes, very naturally reach a crisis, over the globe generally. Look for fierce equatorial storms on and near the 9th and 10th, followed by change to much cooler weather and frosts to the northward. Seismic period, 6th to 11th, central on the 8th and 9th.

A regular storm period unites with Mercury period and the autumnal equinox, from the 12th to the 16th. This period will bring return of falling barometer, change to warmer cloudiness, rain and thunder, but we do not figure that general and abundant rains will fall at this time. In all probability equatorial or West India storms, will affect the Gulf coast regions, bringing dangerous winds and heavy rains to these sections, and up the Atlantic Coasts; but counter storms from the northwest and through the interior states will result in cooler weather but far less precipitation. Dangerous gales with possible tornadoes are among the possibilities during this and other September periods.

A reactionary storm period falls at the centre of Earth's autumnal equinox,—from the 19th to the 22nd. Threatening storms with more or less violence, will be perfectly natural at this time, or at any time in this part of the month. New moon on 22nd with prolonged low barometer, high temperature and stormy conditions generally a day or two longer than normal at this time. Chances for good, general rains grow better as we approach the close of September. Change to much cooler about the 22nd to 25th, first in the west progressing east and south. A marked seismic period covers the 19th to the 25th, being central on the 22nd.

A regular storm period covers the last week in September, the crisis of the period, falling on the 26th, 27th and 28th. Autumnal storms will be general at this time, and cool nights with frosts in many places.

LAURIER IN THE BLUE NOSE LAND

Premier Opens His Tour in Nova Scotia

Digby, N.S., The Premier held a rally here yesterday in company with Hon. W. S. Fielding and Sir Frederick Borden. Special trains brought in big crowds and it was a fete day in the fishing town.

Sir Wilfrid, in opening his address, took occasion to extend words of welcome to a number of United States visitors present, Digby being a popular summer resort. "The great mistake of American statesmen in the past," he observed, "has been that they have for years regarded Canada as a negligible quantity. But Canada has come to the front. She has attracted the attention of the world, and has won from her American neighbors the respect to which she is entitled as a neighbor."

The Premier dealt with the reciprocity issue in detail. Explaining the character of the obstruction in Parliament, Sir Wilfrid told the gathering how as leader of the House he was required day after day to hear it all. "Ah, my fellow-countrymen, don't you think after that I deserve something at your hands?" he asked, amid laughter. He looked forward with confidence to the hour of polling. From every part of the country came news of victory, he said. The Premier concluded with a glowing tribute to Mr. Fielding and his services to Canada.

Little Damage From Frost.

Winnipeg, Aug. 30.—The report of the Canadian Northern Railway relative to crop conditions in the west was issued yesterday and shows that harvesting is general and that very little damage has resulted from the frost. In some districts as much as 90 per cent. of the crop is in shock. Cutting is advancing through northern Saskatchewan and northern Alberta. As these two latter districts were those in which most anxiety was felt, the report being one of optimism. In the Regina district slight frosts have occasioned some damage, but not of a severe nature.

Is Suing the City.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—Nino Pratico, the man who, owing to a mistake of the police, was sent to an insane asylum, has entered an action against the city for $2,000. Pratico and another man named Festoria had been locked in a cell of the central police station on the same evening, and after examining them Dr. Picotte recommended that one of the men be sent before the recorder and the other sent to the asylum for the insane. It happened that the insane man was sent before the recorder and the sane one to the asylum. Hence the action of Pratico.

JURY BLAMES WILKIE

Says Woman Came to Her End Because of Beating.

Coroner's Inquest, at Toronto, Into Death of Woman After Assault by Her Husband Holds Him Responsible and Exonerates the Italian Frank Perry, From Blame — More Witnesses Are Heard.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—"We find that Ellen Wilkie came to her death on Aug. 14, 1911, at 254 Claremont street, from the effect of injuries received from the hands of her husband, Edward Wilkie. We exonerate Frank Perry from any implication in her death."

This was the verdict of the jury at the inquest held at the morgue yesterday afternoon by Coroner Graham, regarding the death of Mrs. Ellen Wilkie.

Martin McManus, 2 Frefort place, testified that on Aug. 14, about 11 p.m., he saw Wilkie and wife struggling on the door step. Mrs. Wilkie was dragged into the house by the hair. He heard a woman screaming, and soon after a little girl came out of the house crying that her mother was being killed by her father. Two policemen then appeared on the scene, and the witness ran for a doctor. On returning he entered the house and found the woman lying on the floor and Wilkie beside her crying, "Oh, Nellie, Nellie!"

P. C. Kennedy, No. 316, testified that Wilkie had come to him about 6.30 p.m. and complained that his sister-in-law, Mrs. Crawford, was bringing in whisky to his wife. He at once went to the Wilkie home and found Mrs. Wilkie very excited. Wife and husband quarrelled in his presence, but no blows were struck. An empty whisky bottle lay on the table.

P. C. Charles W. Johnson was notified of the disturbance at the Wilkie home about 10 p.m. Arriving there he found Wilkie and wife scuffling. Mrs. Wilkie asked him not to leave because her husband had been abusing her all night. After having quieted matters, he left about 11.10.

P. C. Joseph McElroy arrived at the Wilkie home about 11.30. Mrs. Wilkie had blood on her face and was bleeding at the nose, and complained that Wilkie had abused her, repeatedly exclaiming, "He beat me and choked me." She announced her intention of laying a charge against her husband, but soon after collapsed and died. Mrs. Mary Moore, 8 Frefort place, merely further verified the evidence of the constables.

Dr. S. Singer, 194 Simcoe street, who, with Dr. Silverthorn, performed the post-mortem, testified that Mrs. Wilkie had suffered from heart disease. He believed the treatment that she had received on the night of her death would and did hasten her death.

Frank Perry, a neighbor of the Wilkies, testified that Wilkie's step-daughter had called him in to separate the struggle in which her father and mother were engaged. He testified that he merely acted as peace-maker, and did not, as alleged, strike Mrs. Wilkie.

Beattie Murder Trial.

Chesterfield Court House, Va., Aug. 30.—Paul D. Beattie, cousin of Henry Clay Beattie, jr., indicted for wife murder, remained unmoved yesterday under a volley of questions from counsel for the defence, who attempted to shake the witness' story of Monday, in which he introduced an alleged confession to him by the prisoner concerning the tragedy.

John Sandifer, an intimate friend of the prisoner for several years, who accompanied the latter to Harry M. Smith's home two nights after the murder, followed Paul Beattie on the witness stand for the prosecution. He was expected to confirm the testimony that Henry Beattie, jr., telephoned that night to Paul to ask the latter to carry a message to Beulah Binford. He did not do so, and failed to give any light on the subject and practically became a witness for the defence. Sandifer testified that the relations of Henry C. Beattie, jr., with his wife were pleasant so far as he knew.

The Wider Market.

Washington, Aug. 30.—American exports of all kinds for July were $13,000,000 greater than in July, 1910. Figures given out by the Department of Commerce and Labor yesterday show exports of $127,704,119 and imports of $118,165,406 in July, 1911, compared with exports of $114,627,492 and imports of $117,315,591 in July of last year.

In the seven months ending July 31 exports from the United States have increased from $919,386,000 in 1910 to $1,115,524,000 in 1911. For the same period imports from foreign countries have declined from $916,730,000 in 1910 to $881,911,000 in 1911.

Agricultural Machinery In Russia.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—The Minister of Commerce has submitted to the Cabinet the draft of a bill which will be introduced in the Duma providing measures to foster the manufacture of agricultural machinery in Russia. It is proposed to permit duty free the entry of certain machines and machine parts and to offer manufacturers credit on easy terms and reduce taxes in their favor.

The Minister will also submit to the Duma a bill making an appropriation for a search for suitable harbors in the Pacific.

Labor Pickets Fined.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—Judgment was given by Magistrate McMahon in the Westmount police court yesterday regarding the five carpenters who were arrested three weeks ago in Westmount, on a charge of loitering and intimidation, when acting as pickets during the carpenters' strike.

Magistrate McMahon found the men guilty and sentenced them to pay between them a fine of $10, this amount to cover costs. Mr. Archambault gave notice of appeal on behalf of the carpenters.

With only a 10-foot log for a craft Jack Pollock, a young lumberman ran the Soo rapids emerging with only a few bruises. [illegible]

Cheers For Veteran.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—An audience not large enough by a couple of hundred to fill Association Hall, but nevertheless quite in sympathy with reciprocity, had the opportunity last night of hearing the original, dyed-in-the-wool, simon-pure apostle of free trade, and foe of protection, Sir Richard Cartwright.

Getting at once into the question before the people, Sir Richard said he doubted if any project had ever been submitted which would benefit so surely and so quickly the majority of the people as the proposal with which he would deal. He thought that this policy might well have been received with more universal approval. On the contrary, he had never known any project to be met with more calumny and more misrepresentation. He had discussed the question of reciprocity with men of light and leading in England and the United States, and he had not met one who did not express the belief that reciprocity in natural products would be to the advantage of Canada.

The arguments against reciprocity he classified as puerile and purely selfish. It was absurd to make it a question of loyalty or disloyalty whether the farmers of Canada are to sell their produce in the United States.

Suspicious Circumstances.

St. Catharines, Aug. 30.—No light is thrown on the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Geo. Hodginson at Merritton last Friday, at the inquest which was resumed last evening before Coroner Joy. Medical testimony showed that death was due to drowning, and that the wounds found on the head and shoulder had been received before death and probably after the body entered the water, which was probably at the bridge near McLean's sawmill. Although deceased drew $31 95 the day before the drowning, no one had seen him spend much money the last night he was seen. The suspicious circumstances regarding the pockets being turned inside out remain unsolved. One witness, Charles Dodd, stated that when returning home at 1 o'clock he saw two strangers lying asleep near the town line crossing not far from the spot where the deceased was last seen by his brother.

The inquest was adjourned until Sept. 12 to give the police a chance to solve the problem regarding the pockets and wounds.

Lightning Struck Funeral.

Canonsburg, Pa., Aug. 30.—As the casket containing the body of Stephen Mastowics, ticket seller in the ill-fated moving picture show, was being borne to the grave in the cemetery here lightning struck a tree under which the procession was passing, and the six pall-bearers were knocked down. John Hodie, a brother-in-law of the deceased, was rendered unconscious, and the mourners were panic-stricken. The casket dropped into the mud where it lay until the party had recovered from the shock. Hodie was not seriously injured, but it was necessary to remove him from the cemetery in a carriage.

Empress of Britain Sails.

Chest Inflammation

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my side and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

POINTS ABOUT THE DEAL

WHO FINDS THE MONEY?

British Investors Send Hundreds of Millions of Dollars to Canadian Enterprises

By JOHN V. BORNE.

It is not well to insist that the British investor in Canadian enterprises is governed by political sentiment, or that there is some implied obligation on the borrower to do more than earn and pay the interest on his borrowings.

But there is sentiment in business, all the same; and it has had a good deal to do with the expansion of modern Canada.

See how it works in immigration, without which our lands and other natural resources availed us little, and the absence of which had much to do with the old-time desire for Reciprocity. In 1910, over a hundred thousand people came to Canada from the British islands. A poll of them would show that one of the chief reasons why they are here is that this is a British country.

The connection between the immigration of British people and the immigration of British money is clear. Money follows people, as trade follows the flag. People will not continue to come if their friends send bad accounts of how they are getting along. Money will not continue to come if the earning power of that which has been sent is weakened, and especially if there is a failure in the undertaking which the Government said is part of the fundamental commercial policy of the nation, and if that failure is even partially attributable to the substitution of a foreign country for the inter-imperial trade on which the Prime Minister has declared "We set our hopes."

Consider the investment of British money that has been going on since, and as an effect, of that declaration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The British Trade Commissioner for Canada, Mr. Richard Grigg, in a report issued April 1st, 1911, states that in the five years ending 1909, British investors sent $605,453,852 to Canada, irrespective of the millions brought by settlers and private individuals. Examine the wide-spread distribution of these investments:—

Canadian Bank Shares	$1,128,000
Investment with Loan and Mortgage companies	5,719,774
British Insurance Companies' Investments	9,731,742
Municipal Bonds sold privately	10,000,000
Industrial Investments	22,500,000
Land and Timber Investments	19,000,000
Mining Investments	56,315,500
Public Flotations in London (Gov., Railway, etc.)	481,061,836
Total	$605,453,852

TURNED RIGHT ABOUT FACE

The Conversion of the American People from Enemies to Friends of Reciprocity

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Nothing more remarkable in international trade has ever been seen than the complete change in regard to reciprocity that has occurred in Canada and in the United States.

Canada used to ask for reciprocity, and when she did not get it, she went her way rejoicing, and the Prime Minister said, "We have turned our backs upon it."

The United States grew accustomed to answering Canadian seekers after reciprocity with cold water and a few civil words, and continued to believe that Canada, being only a country of woods and wastes and waters, would surely seek the shelter of the United States.

But, presently, the woods and wastes and waters changed their aspect, and began to show all sorts of money-making possibilities. There had been an immigration from Canada to the United States. Gradually it dawned upon discerning people that the incoming Canadians were fewer and fewer, and that manufacturers were beginning to talk about their branch plants in Canada. And, in a little while, good farmers began to go north on trips that led them to sell their farms and take carloads of stock and implements away up to the Saskatchewen country.

It set people thinking. Canada was a real country and not a wilderness of snow-covered rock. There was another pebble on the beach after all. And, strangely enough, while the United States had been expanding industrially, Canadians had also been building factories and keeping them going, because they had taken a leaf out of the book that had been written against them at Washington—they had copied the tariff, and had, in effect, imposed a residential qualification for leading places in the market.

It did not seem right, and Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, reflected faithfully the mind of his observant countrymen about this thing:—

> There must be reciprocity with Canada. Our tariff with the rest of the world does not apply to our northern neighbor. That policy has already driven American manufacturers across the Canadian borders, built vast plants with American capital on Canadian soil, employing Canadian workingmen to supply trade. That capital should be kept at home to employ American workingmen to supply Canadian demand.

THE IMPERIAL BAND

President Taft Says Reciprocity Would Weaken British Preferential Tariff

President Taft, speaking to the newspapermen of the United States at a banquet held in New York, said: "Why should we not have a closer union with Canada? Think of the absurdity of separating Manitoba and Minneapolis by as great a distance as Manitoba and Liverpool, when certainly Providence intended that their separation, socially and commercially, should only be that of their geographical distance. Canadians have furnished us with a large number of our best citizens. We are giving them a large number of the pick of our young farmers. Let us open the gateway between us. Let us give to both countries the profit of the trade that God intended between us. Let the political governments remain as they are. Let us abolish arbitrary and artificial obstructions to our association with our friends upon the north and derive the mutual benefit that it will certainly bring."

In conclusion the President said: "I have said that this was a critical time in the solution of the question of reciprocity. It is critical because unless it is now decided favorably to reciprocity, it is exceedingly probable that no such opportunity will ever again come to the United States. The forces which are at work in England and in Canada to separate her by a Chinese wall from the United States and to make her part of an imperial commercial band reaching from England around the world to England again by a system of preferential tariffs, will derive an impetus from the rejection of this treaty, and if we would have reciprocity with all the advantages that I have described, and that I earnestly and sincerely believe will follow its adoption, we must take it now or give it up forever."

THE BARLEY CROP

Free Trade in This Cereal Would Be Financial Loss to Farmers

Barley has two great uses, the most important being its value as a condensed food for live stock; the other is the use it is put to in the brewing of beer. For from barley is made malt, one of the chief constituents of ale and lager. It was solely for the brewing industry that Canada had in the past exported her barley to the United States prior to the Dingley tariff of 1897. This put a duty of 30 cents per bushel of forty-eight pounds on barley entering the States, and on barley-malt one of 45 cents per bushel of 34 pounds. After the tariff was put on, our export of barley dropped from 1,674,192 bushels in 1896 to 787,787 bushels in 1897, and to-day we are only exporting to the extent of 147,596 bushels. The great use of barley to ourselves for ourselves is as a food for livestock. For this purpose it is indeed a splendid crop to raise. If this grain be fed to cattle the land receives the natural return. As our livestock increase so will our barley. Ontario is the best proof. In spite of the Dingley tariff the market value of her barley crop has increased from $4,812,194 to $13,900,689 during the last ten years. It must therefore be concluded that allowing the free entry of Canadian barley into the United States would have no material effect for good on the quality or quantity of our barley. Neither would it aid towards the financial betterment of our farmers. It could have nothing but an influence towards the continual exhaustion of Canada's most precious and richest heritage, her farm lands.

WOULD LOWER PRICES

The Results of Opening Canadian Markets to Free Entry

The opening of Canadian markets to the free entry of the natural products from the numerous countries mentioned above, it has been shown, would just afford another repository for an extra portion of the billion dollars' worth of farm produce exported by those countries every year. What would this mean to the Canadian farmer, who, with the exception of the United States, would not have the right of penetrating the protective walls of those countries, which would be sending increased quantities of produce into his market?

(1) It would mean that prices for farm produce would be lowered in Canada.

(2) It would mean that the present high quality of Canadian products would lose their identity through mingling with inferior stuff from other countries.

(3) It would mean that United States would do most of Canada's export trade in grain.

(4) It would mean that the subsidization of steamships plying between Canada and the many favored countries mentioned above, amounting to over $1,000,000 per year, would be turned against Canada, inasmuch as those subsidized steamships would be able to bring foreign products that much cheaper to our markets to compete against Canadians.

HELPING THE COMPETITOR

Just what the opening of our markets to the free entry of the agricultural products of the "twelve favored nations" will mean in dollars and cents (not to the Canadian farmer, but to his competitor), may be estimated when one considers the principal exports of those countries and the proportion of them that Canada now receives in spite of the duties. It is only reasonable to suppose that if agricultural produce comes into Canada now in the face of various duties, the influx will increase greatly if all imposts are removed. The farmer will then be subjected to a competition he never expected, and instead of higher prices for his produce under reciprocity he will surely meet an era of lower prices.

All Saints' Womens Guild will meet to-night at eight o'clock.

NEWSY NOTES FROM BENSFORT

Wilbert Wood Acquires New Farm An Accident

Special Correspondence.

Bensfort, Aug. 30—The writer of Lakeview items should exercise his talent along the line of novels as we believe that he is more adapted for such work than for setting forth facts occurring in a community. He charges us with making false statements, but our statements are too true for him to alter to any extent and if as he says, he is going to prove false statements on the part of the Bensfort correspondent, he should first get down to facts himself, and set a good example. He says that the Bensfort correspondents have retracted their statements, re cattle on the road. He knows that such is not the case, and we believe that he himself must be the one who has been better informed on the subject, as he had let the topic drop for some time. He also says that the fire cracker episode should have been dropped also, so it was, until he renewed the topic himself. He claims to know the Bensfort writer and is going to make it warm for him. We wish him success in his atmospheric enterprise, but would advise him to get wise and let the topics drop.

Mr. Frank Buckham and Miss Lillian Fisher and Mr. Geo. Finnie and Miss Annie Hall went on an excursion to the Thousand Islands on Saturday, 20th inst.

Mr. Wilbert Wood has purchased the farm east of Bensfort on which Mr. James Laskey is tenant.

Rev. and Mrs. Thos. Dood are visiting friends in Port Hope.

The election campaign has roused little enthusiasm as yet, but in a few days we will have the pleasure of hearing both candidates. Mr. Burnham's meeting will be held on Friday while Mr. Stratton's is advertised for Monday, 5th.

Mrs. Graham of Lindsay is visiting at Mrs. John Kerr's and Miss Byers of Peterborough is visiting her uncle Mr. Geo. Byers, both of this vicinity.

We are sorry to record the death of the late Joseph Dawson whose burial took place on Monday, 28th. Much sympathy is extended the sorrowing friends in their hour of trouble.

NEIGHBORS WERE ALARMED; AGED LADY FOUND BY POLICE

Officer Kidd Had to Force Entrance to Roger Street House.

Becoming alarmed by the silence and lack of signs of life at the residence of Miss Christine Kidd, 616 Rogers street, neighbors phoned the police this morning about ten o'clock to have have the cause discovered.

P. C. Kidd went over and getting no response to his knocking for admission, forced his way in by the back door. He discovered Miss Kidd, who is well up in years, lying in a huddled heap just inside the front door. She was covered with a rug and a door mat and appeared rather dazed.

The officer had difficulty in getting her to speak. He notified the chief and Dr. McPherson was called. It appears that she had had nothing to eat for some time and that she is mentally unorganced to some extent.

PULPIT AND RECIPROCITY.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Will the editor of the Examiner be manly and honest enough to tell the public what he thinks of that Rev. gentleman from Ohio, United States, who used the pulpit in old St. Andrew's church, Toronto, for the purpose, if possible, of furthering the cause, not of the Kingdom of God, but of Reciprocity, and also of offering up a prayer that annexation might speedily be accomplished! He, the editor of the Examiner, can be very sanctimoniously indignant on occasion, but now let him come out honestly and tell us what he thinks of the above,

Yours truly,

Peruna Secrets You Should Know

Golden Seal Root.

Golden Seal, the root of the above plant, is a very useful medicine. Many people gather it in our rich woodlands during the summer. Few people know how valuable it is in dyspepsia, catarrh, and as a general tonic.

Many thousand pounds of this root are used each year in the famous catarrh remedy, Peruna. This fact explains why everybody uses Peruna for catarrh.

YOUNG HORSE THIEF CAUGHT AT LINDSAY

Made Sale of Livery Horse in This City

Pleads Guilty to the Charge and is Remanded

The horse thieves who try to work Lindsay find that they have struck the wrong town when they get Chief Chilton on their track.

This was found out by a youth, who appeared in police court this morning. The boy hailed from Toronto and St. John Reformatory. For the past month he has been working on Ford's drive and when he landed at Lakefield he hired a livery rig and secured a cheap passage to Peterboro where he sold the outfit. Ten dollars was given in cash and the balance is still to the boy's credit.

The game worked so successfully in the Porridge City that he repeated his game by hiring a horse from Mr. R. Lindsay, town. But this time he fell foul of Lindsay's Chief and as a result appeared before Magistrate Jackson this morning. He was given a severe lecture and the Magistrate pointed out the folly of the course he was following.

The boy pleaded guilty to the charge of horse stealing in Lindsay and was remanded till Thursday morning.

In regard to the above clipping from the Lindsay Warder, the same youth hired a livery outfit in Lakefield and drove to Peterboro putting up at the Munro House. Here he met a man from Haileybury and negotiated the sale of the outfit to him for the sum of $130 receiving one payment of $10. On Monday he was to get the balance of the sale proceeds.

From information received it would also appear that the youth endeavored to work the same game in Port Perry but failed.

It is not likely that he will be brought to Peterboro, if he was sentenced in Lindsay.

Took His Wheel

Two small youths, looking badly frightened, were brought into the police station this afternoon by Mr. G. Giroux, who missed his bicycle from where he keeps it at the post office building. The two lads had been noticed by him hanging around, and one of them admitted taking it to ride for a while. The boy also said that he knew who had the wheel now. Mr. Giroux has been much incensed of late by the practice of boys taking his wheel.

SCORE A VICTORY FOR THE CONSERVATIVES AT DEBATE

Hon. I. B. Lucas, T. W. McGarry M. L. A. and Dr. Maloney Against Sir Allen Aylesworth Hugh Guthrie and T. A. Low in Eganville

Eganville, Ont., Aug. 31.—Five thousand people stood for almost three hours under the glaring sun yesterday to hear the big debate on reciprocity between Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Hugh Guthrie and T. A. Low on the Liberal side, and Hon. I. B. Lucas, M.P.P., T. W. McGarry, M.P.P., and Dr. Maloney of Eganville, for the Conservatives. T. W. Crothers, M.P., who was to have been the chief speaker on the Conservative side, was unable to attend, but his place was filled by Mr. McGarry, whose trenchant and masterly criticism of the reciprocity pact, from an economic standpoint, in reply to Hugh Guthrie, was perhaps the biggest feature of the day.

The meeting, which was easily the largest ever held in the county of Renfrew, was conducted in a quiet and orderly manner and the speakers of both sides were given respectful and attentive hearing.

Sir Alan Aylesworth was the first speaker. He refrained from discussing the pact from a purely economic standpoint and criticized R. L. Borden and the Conservative party for what he termed "their shameful departure from the principles of the Conservative leaders and party since confederation."

He quoted extracts from Sir John A. Macdonald's speeches to show that he was in favor of a reciprocity agreement similar to that which the Liberal Government had secured, and which in fact had been the expressed desire and policy of every Canadian statesman since the abrogation of the Elgin treaty in 1866. He charged that the Conservatives were left without a policy or argument and were falling back upon the old refuge of waving the Union Jack, and contemptuously referred to the annexation cry as being unworthy of argument.

He attacked what he termed the "Bourassa - Sifton - Borden alliance" and declared that these men were incapable of government, as they were divided upon every question but one. Their only united policy was, "anything to beat Laurier."

Hon. Mr. Lucas followed for the Conservatives. Taking up the question from the standpoint of the farmer, he advanced a host of arguments and statistics, to show that the market of ninety millions could not possibly mean higher prices for practically everything which they had to sell was raised and exported by the farmers in the United States. He also declared that the price for farm products across the border was lower than in Canada, and challenged his opponents to explain why it was that the Canadian farmer to-day, with his British market, was more prosperous than his neighbor to the south of him who had the privileges of the markets of the United States.

Hugh Guthrie then followed and declared that the only persons in Canada opposed to reciprocity were the privileged classes and the manufacturers of Ontario. He also made a bitter attack on the pork-packing industries of Toronto.

T. W. McGarry, M.P.P., declared that the agreement was entered into by the Laurier Government solely to cloud over other issues and scandals which were creeping up, but that while the people should vote against reciprocity they should also bear in mind "the other scandals and dishonest administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

GOOD POSITIONS GET IN LINE

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of seven Business Colleges located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk, students may enter any day. Many students study all at home and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada and have thirty years experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1200 students and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you. 12d

LLOYD'S INCREASE ALL WAR RISKS

Rates Jump From Five to Seven per Cent

Special to the Review.

London, Aug. 31.—Lloyds announce another increase in war risks from five to seven per cent. The press of Europe is generally pessimistic over England's resumption of negotiations on the Moroccan question, believing, as they do, that France's offer of concessions to Germany in the Congo would prejudice British interests there.

PETERBOROUGH WAS SOAKED OVER THE HEAD AS USUAL

Hon. George P. Graham, minister of railways and canals, will be in Peterborough to-night. Will he tell the people of Peterborough how the city was betrayed and deceived by him and his department in the matter of Dam No. 8, below Campbellford, that Peterborough wanted for power purposes?

Will he acknowledge that after practically assuring Mayor Morrow and civic representatives that the city could get a lease of the water power at No. 8, he received a deputation from the Seymour Co. people, and then told the city's representatives that he could not let Peterborough have it, as the company owned the surrounding land? And that he advised the city to negotiate with the Seymour company for a supply of cheap power?

How did the city get euchred out of that dam, after assurance was given that it would be all right. Why did not the letter confirming the first promise come? And why the turn down, so suddenly, after a few days?

Peterborough may not be able to find a site for power development now. The Seymour company has got No. 8 dam. The Dickson dam is a questionable commercial proposition. Why, Mr. Graham, why did you permit a power concern like the Electric power company to gobble up what had been promised to Peterborough?

This is the kind of trickery the Laurier government has been putting up. Its record for Trent valley canal management is but a sample. Mr. Graham says that the railway commission has control of power rates here. But that does not excuse the lemon handed to Peterborough.

At a meeting of the city council the other night the whole matter was threshed out. Not very long ago it was intimated that No. 8 dam was a sure thing for Peterborough, as probably the Ontario government could have expropriated what land was necessary. But a Graham was on the job, and Peterborough was soaked over the nut as usual.

What about this, Mr. Graham?

WERE POLICE BRUTAL HERE?

Dead Montreal Man's Family Say He Was Mishandled.

Montreal, Aug. 31.—Brutal treatment on the part of the police in the case of Alphonse La Berge, who was brought to the Notre Dame Hospital on Tuesday from No. 3 station in an unconscious condition, and who died at that institution early yesterday a fractured skull is charged by relatives of the dead man.

According to the story of Mrs. La Berge, the man's mother, and her daughter Delphine, Alphonse was in an intoxicated condition, and became unruly at the house of his mother on St. Timothee street so that the daughter notified the police, and at ten o'clock Officers Chaput and Lemiere came to arrest him. They found the man unwilling to go with them, and had hard work getting him as far as the door.

The girl Delphine says that as soon as the door was reached one of the officers gave La Berge a push toward the sidewalk, the man falling on his head from the step.

Alphonse La Berge never moved until aided from that time until he was placed in the patrol wagon. The girl Delphine adds that the officers took hold of the prisoner by the shoulders, lifting him from his prostrate position and dragged him for a hundred feet, his knees scraping the walk, after which they threw him across their shoulders until they reached the patrol, into which he was thrown, his head striking the seat.

Because he annexed 15 fancy pigeons, Arthur Spicer, 12 years old, was sentenced to spend the next 15 weeks selling papers on the streets of Washington, D.C., to pay his fine.

MR. BORDEN SPEAKS IN THE QUEBEC EASTERN TOWNSHIPS

Conservative Leader Reaches Home of the Frenchman—Talks British Connections.

Bedford, Que., Aug. 31.—Greeted at the station by Mayor N. A. Pare, who read and presented an address of welcome to the Conservative chieftain, and followed from the station to his hotel by a crowd of people who had been attending the Missisquoi Fair, R. L. Borden and his lieutenants yesterday invaded this town to commence their tour of the Eastern Townships.

Dr. Pickel, the Conservative candidate, declared that if the United States got one foot into our fiscal system they would soon have four feet in it so firmly that they could not be dislodged.

Mr. Borden in opening declared that his recent tours had shown him that Ontario and the West intended to maintain the British connection. He knew that Quebec would do likewise.

"This reciprocity pact is the greatest menace to that connection that has ever dawned on our horizon," said Mr. Borden. "But if I judge aright," he continued, "the dark cloud, together with the evil genii of the Liberal party, will be dispelled on September 21."

At Granby.

Granby, Que., Aug. 31.—One thousand residents of this district stood in the Town Hall last night for two hours and a half and listened to R. L. Borden and his lieutenants. All the speakers were given a good hearing.

BORDEN CHEERED AT GRIT MEETING

Sir Wilfrid Meets Opposition in Halifax Gathering.

Halifax, Aug. 31.—Halifax people turned out well last night to hear Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. W. S. Fielding, and they filled the arena, which has a seating accommodation of 7,000.

Sir Wilfrid argued that the reciprocity policy of the Government was simply that of the Conservatives under their leaders of some twenty-five years ago. He could not understand the opposition of the present Conservative party.

It could not be because of the manufacturers, for the agreement must be for the benefit of the industrial classes as well as for the farmers and fishermen. He believed that the reason for the opinion was the unholy alliance between the Nationalists of Quebec and the British imperials.

"Unless I am greatly misinformed," continued Sir Wilfrid, "the reason for the present campaign was the consummation of an unholy alliance between the Quebec Nationalists and the Tory Imperialists. It was not the reciprocity question that caused them to institute their obstruction; it was the conviction of the present Tory leaders that by closing a secret and unworthy alliance with the Nationalists they could avail themselves of 'anything to beat Laurier.' This was the real inspiration that led those who control the Conservative party to-day to become opportunists of the worst kind in the desperate hope of wrenching an uprighteous victory from the present Administration."

Sir Wilfrid's Itinerary.

Montreal, Aug. 31.—Following is Sir Wilfrid Laurier's itinerary for the week after next in the Province of Quebec, announced yesterday morning:

Monday—Victoriaville, evening.
Tuesday—In the afternoon at Beauce Junction, and in the evening at Thetford Mines.
Wednesday—Montmagny, 2 p.m.
Thursday—Quebec, for the English-speaking electors.
Friday—Rimouski, 1 p.m.
Saturday—Grand Mere, evening.

LOW WATER STOPS WHEELS

Idle Factories Around the St. Lawrence.

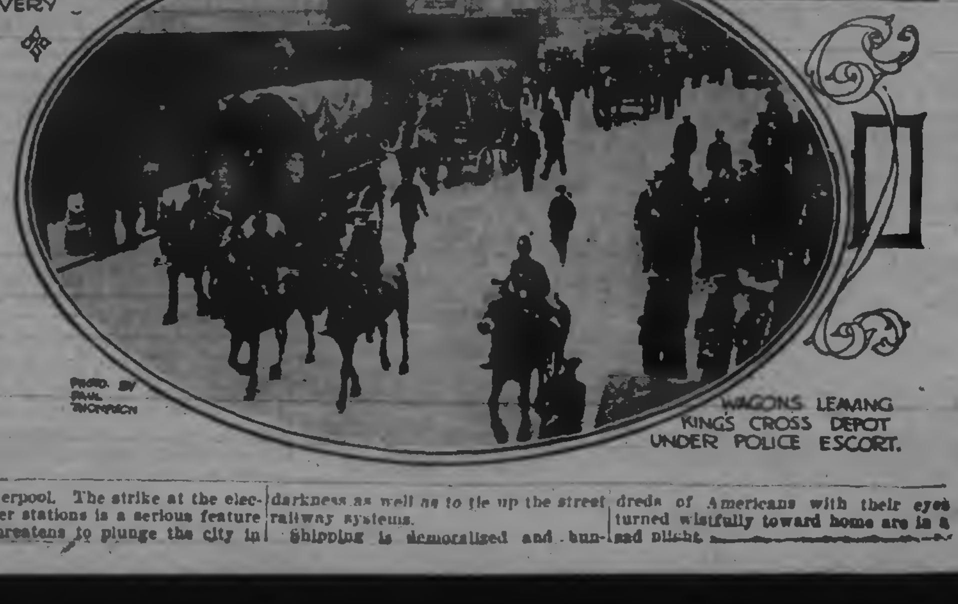
Cornwall, Aug. 31.—The water in the St. Lawrence River is so low that in order to keep the water in the canal up to the required level for navigation, it was necessary to close off the water from all the local factories at noone yesterday. The three local cotton factories, the paper mills and all industries using electrical power were obliged to close down. The east wind had considerable to do with the lowering of the water, but it is hoped that if the wind changes the mills will be allowed to use water and electric power to-day.

The steamer Riverside, which went ashore above the St. Lawrence Power Co.'s power house a week ago last night, is still stuck fast, although the water was raised to the limit and several tugs tried to pull her off. The water in the river, and consequently in the canal, is lower than at any time for years past.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

ENGLAND'S STRIKE AND BOARD OF TRADE MEMBER WHO IS TRYING TO SETTLE IT

LONDON STRIKERS HOLDING UP DELIVERY WAGON AT TOWER BRIDGE.



WAGONS LEAVING KINGS CROSS DEPOT UNDER POLICE ESCORT.

The English government is continuing their efforts to re-establish peace in the big strike, but the old deadlock between the unions and the managers has reasserted itself.

The chief cities of England are armed camps. The stations, workshops, signal posts, tunnels and bridges are guarded by soldiers. Clerks have been pressed into service to aid the non-strikers in moving the trains. Despite the efforts of the companies freight traffic is demoralized and the shortage of food supplies threatens a famine at some points.

There has been rioting at Birmingham, Derby, Sheffield and at Llanelly, Wales. Attacks have been made on the signal towers at some places, but usually the violence has been confined to attempts to interrupt the movement of food and fuel supplies.

The most serious situation probably is at Liverpool. The strike at the electric power stations is a serious feature which threatens to plunge the city in darkness as well as to tie up the street railway systems.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY ENACTED IN A FAR NORTHERN SHACK

One Prospector Poisoned and the Other Killed by an Axe—Confession Left.

Winnipeg, Aug. 31.—The tragedy of a lonely shack in the far northern wilds of Western Canada is recalled in detail by the arrival in Winnipeg of a letter to Mrs Mills, wife of Captain J. W. Mills, of the Hudson Bay Co. steamer Mackenzie River, plying between Fort McPherson and Fort Smith. The letter tells the story of a young clerk who when bringing out the mail in the spring, on June 6, found Pete Meland dead with his head crushed and W. S. Elever, the other man's prospecting partner, dead of poison, self-administered, and a confession signed by the latter, telling of the whole tragedy. The scene of the horror is Salt River, about five hundred miles north of Great Slave Lake.

The confession read as follows:

"I have been sick a long time; I am not crazy, but have simply been goaded to death. He (Meland) thought I had more money than I have, and has been trying to finish me. I tried to get him to go after some medicine, but he would not, wishing to have me die. So, good-bye.—W. S. Elever."

A further confession read as follows:—

"I have just killed the man that was killing me, so good-bye, and God bless you all. I am awfully weak and down since the last of March, so there is nothing but death for me. Cruel treatment drove me to kill Pete. Ship everything out and pay George Walker $10.—W.S."

The two bodies were buried together after the inquest, which returned a verdict of murder and suicide. A large stock of fur and the sum of $104 were found in the shack.

Conserve National Resources.

London, Aug. 31.—The London papers yesterday morning were impressed by the prediction in Sir William Ramsay's presidential address at a meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science at Portsmouth on Tuesday, that unless the present rate of consumption is retarded, England's coal fields will be exhausted in 175 years.

The editorials strongly support Sir William in urging the Government to follow the example of the United States and adopt measures to conserve the national resources.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER CHARGES THAT WE HAVE CALLED INTO QUESTION THE LOYALTY OF THE CANADIAN PEOPLE. WE HAVE NEVER DOUBTED THE LOYALTY OF THE CANADIAN PEOPLE. IT IS BECAUSE WE NEVER HAD A DOUBT OF THEIR LOYALTY THAT WE INSISTED THAT THEY BE GIVEN A CHANCE TO VOTE UPON THIS QUESTION.—MR. BORDEN.

A SAMPLE MEETING

Mr. Burnham's meeting at Bailieboro last night was an unqualified success—one of the kind of successes that count. His reception in the country is significant of one great fact, and that is, he will get majorities where he did not have them before, and increase them where he did. There can be no other conclusion drawn from the meetings, and from the reports made as to how the voters will mark their ballots. One of the features of the Bailieboro meeting, besides Mr. Burnham's strong arraignment of the reciprocity pact, was the address of Mr. R. J. Soden. Mr. Soden as one of the bright and energetic business men of the city is a clean and rapid thinker, and he can put what he has to say in telling phrases, commanding everyone's attention. He is a great aid to Mr. Burnham's campaigning forces. Mr. Thornton, the late member for West Durham, is sure of re-election in his riding, though he has a strong opponent. Mr. Thornton is a speaker who deals in a practical way with the reciprocity pact, from the farmer's standpoint, and his sincerity and great knowledge stand him in good stead. He knows that reciprocity will be a blow to the farmers of Canada, and he can tell why.

EDWARD BLAKE'S OPINION

It has been strenuously denied by the Liberal Leaders and their party members that the entering into of a commercial agreement with the Government of the United States could have any effect upon the independence of Canada. They utterly repudiate the idea that a reciprocity treaty could have any such political or constitutional effect, and they profess to make light of Conservative claims that such a trade agreement would mean the severance of existing ties and the ultimate entering into a closer political union with the Republic.

One of the greatest students of Canadian constitutional questions has argued that the tendency in Canada of unrestricted free trade with the States, high duties being maintained against the United Kingdom would be towards political union and the more successful the plan the stronger the tendency both by reason of the community of interests the intermingling of population, the more intimate business and social connections and the trade and fiscal relations amounting to dependency which it would create with the States and of the greater isolation and divergency from Britain which it would produce and also and especially through inconveniences experienced in the maintenance and apprehensions entertained as to the termination of the agreement. Here are his words;—"Whatever you or I may think on that head, whether we like or dislike, believe or disbelieve in political union must we not agree that the subject is one of great moment towards the practical settlement of which we should take no serious step without reflection or in ignorance of what we are doing? Assuming that absolute free trade with the States best described as commercial union, may and ought to come I believe that it can and should come only as an incident or at any rate as a well-understood precursor of political union for which indeed we would be able to make better terms before then after the surrender of our commercial independence. Then so believing—believing that the decision of the trade question involves that of the constitutional issue for which we are unprepared and with which you do not conceive yourselves to be dealing—how can I properly recommend you now to decide on commercial union?" Such is the calm, deliberate pronunciation of the Honorable Edward Blake on the effect of Reciprocity relations with the United States delivered to the members of the West Durham Reform Convention on March 5th, 1891.

If the Honorable Edward Blake is right then the entering into of a reciprocity agreement with the United States is a step towards annexation. No wonder then Sir Wilfrid regrets his present position, for everyone knows that he took this serious step without reflection and in ignorance of what he was doing for he too has declared that the only way for Canada to maintain friendly relations with the United States is to be commercially independent of them. No wonder then that he is kept busy trying to explain away his position in the Province of Quebec for he knows full well that the French-Canadian people realise that they are infinitely better off under British rule than they would be under the American flag.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Why share our twentieth century with the United States because Taft wants to make a political killing?

Three Grit criminal lawyers are candidates in North York, Centre York and South York. It looks as if the Liberals felt the need of this particular kind of counsel quite badly.

Mr. Goodwin is a highly esteemed citizen. It is not much wonder that decent, self-respecting men such as he, cannot stomach the Examiner's campaigning. It is at once childish and nauseous.

You cannot vote for Stratton without voting for reciprocity, and against the best interests of Peterborough. Vote for Burnham and continued work in Peterborough factories.

A vote for Stratton in Peterborough is a vote for hard times as they exist in the United States. It is a vote for less work and less pay. The manufacturers are generally alarmed, and business will take a slump. The workingman who votes for Stratton, and not for Burnham, is voting against his own family and his own pocket.

Mr. Borden's reception in Montreal was uproarious. All of which is respectfully submitted to show that Quebec will go against Laurier as well as Ontario. Even the Blue Noses are liable to squirm some in their allegiance to Laurier. And as for the west—well, it won't do at all badly, thank you.

E. H. Riley, of Alberta, a former Liberal member of the Legislature of the prairie province, says that he is opposed to reciprocity. He says that R. B. Bennett will carry Calgary, and Borden will make gains in the west. Riley is only one of the thousands of the Liberals who are turning. It looks like a sweep for Mr. Borden in almost every part of the country, with the possible exception of Nova Scotia.

The old epitaph, "I was well, I would be better, and here I am," applies to Canada in this reciprocity business. We are well. Laurier would have us better, and he puts through a trade arrangement that knocks down our good line fence to let the American spoiler in on our good things. Then we shall put up the epitaph over our good times. Smash reciprocity, and smash Stratton and Laurier, who would chloroform you while they put it through.

The Review's Warsaw correspondent says that at a meeting at Lasswade and Haultain, in East Peterborough, held by Mr. Kerr and Mr. Hawthorne, which was reported in the Stratton organ as a big meeting, there were four present at Haultain and ten at Lasswade. Must have been greatly cheering to these candidates to read the organ's account, knowing the facts. Probably they felt quite under the influence of the swing of victory.

The commercial travellers are almost unanimous in saying that the people do not want reciprocity. A great sweep of sentiment has arisen against any measure of free trade with the United States. The cry of larger markets has lost its lure to the Canadian, and instead the much dreaded American competition and American business methods is feared. "Keep out the Americans" except when they come over here to settle down and become Canadians, is seemingly the sentiment abroad to-day.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Aug. 30.—A feature of the grain trade is the increased demand from local buyers for oats, and sales of 100,000 bushels were made, including 80,000 No. 2 Canadian western at 43½c, and 20,000 extra No. 1 feed at 43½c ex-store. Oats were stronger at an advance of 1½c per quarter. The foreign demand for old crop Manitoba spring wheat was good, and sales of several loads were made for prompt shipment, and a few loads of new wheat were also worked for October-November shipment. American corn was easier in sympathy with Chicago. A good export business continues to be done in spring wheat flour, further sales being made to-day. There is also a good inquiry for winter wheat at an advance of 3c per sack. Rolled oats are strong, and prices have advanced 20c per barrel. Cheese, butter and eggs are fairly active.

Dressed hogs—Abattoir, $10.25 to $10.50 per 100 lbs.

Beef—Plate, half-barrels, 100 lbs., $7.50; barrels, 200 lbs., $14.50; tierces, 300 lbs., $21.50.

Butter—Choicest, 26c to 26¼c; seconds, 25½c to 25¾c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 30.—There has been a little more activity in export live stock circles during the past few days, owing to the improved demand from both American and Canadian exporters for ocean freight space, and fully fifty per cent. of the supply to London for September has been engaged at 27s 6d per head, which is an advance of 2s 6d over the August figure. The demand for Liverpool space is quiet, and so far only one boat has been engaged at 25s, and some Glasgow has been let at 25s.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the offerings this morning were 1050 cattle, 900 sheep and lambs, 1700 hogs and 400 calves. Altho the supply of cattle was somewhat larger than usual for the middle of the week requirements, yet a firm feeling prevailed in the market, and prices showed no change, owing to the fact that the demand from butchers was much better than expected, consequently a fairly active trade was done at the close. Choice steers sold at 6¼c; good at 5¾c to 6c; fairly good at 5¼c to 5½c; fair at 4¾c to 5c, and common at 4¼c to 4½c per pound. Cows brought from 4c to 5½c, and bulls from 3c to 4½c per pound.

There was no change in the condition of the market for small meats, prices being steady under a good demand and smaller supplies. Lambs sold at 6c, and sheep at 3¾c to 4c per pound. Calves were scarce, especially choice stock, for which there was a good inquiry, and sales of the best on the market were made at $8 to $10 each, and the common-er ones went at from $3 to $7 each.

The supply of hogs was ample to fill all requirements, and the tone of the market was easier, with sales of selected lots at $7.50, and mixed and heavy at $6.75 to $7.25 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Beeves—Receipts, 2256 head; steers steady to a shade higher; bulls and cows slow to 10c lower. Steers, $4.25 to $7.75; bulls, $3 to $4.85; cows, $1.25 to $4.70.

Calves—Receipts, 2518 head; veals strong; other calves firm to 25c higher. Veals, $7 to $10; culls, $5 to $6; grassers and buttermilks, $4.25 to $5.25; southern and western calves, $4.50 to $7.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 6314 head; sheep steady; good and prime lambs firm; others steady. Sheep, $3 to $3.75, culls, $1 to $2.50; lambs, $4.75 to $7.25, culls, $3 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 2000 head; market easy, at $7.50 to $8.05.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Cattle—Receipts, 3000; market steady to 10c lower; beeves, $5 to $8.15; Texas steers, $4.40 to $6.25; western steers, $4.25 to $7.10; stockers and feeders, $3 to $5.50; cows and heifers, $2.25 to $6.25; calves, $6 to $9.

Hogs—Receipts, 14,000; market steady to 5c lower; light, $7.15 to $7.75; mixed, $7.05 to $7.70; heavy, $6.90 to $7.60; rough, $6.90 to $7.10; good to choice hogs, $7.10 to $7.60; pigs, $5 to $7.60; bulk of sales, $7.20 to $7.45.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 30,000; market steady to 10c lower; native, $2.15 to $3.70; western, $2.50 to $3.75; yearlings, $4 to $5.10; lambs, native, $4 to $6.70; western $4.75 to $6.60.

The Lash of Circumstance

Harry Irving Greene

Author of "Yosonde of the Wilderness"

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

He did not seem to hold it against me that I had charged him with having had the key, telling me he had no doubt but that I was honestly mistaken. But when I made a slight allusion to his operations on the board he shut up tight as a clam, which of course was unusual for Bruce. Therefore I did not feel warranted in pursuing the matter further. He was operating openly now, and I thought, as recklessly as ever, but whether his deals were being made on his own account or on behalf of some client I had no information beside what the detective had given me. Clare, while equally uncommunicative about his business affairs, still remained defiantly loyal to him.

"I don't believe there is a crooked hair in Bruce's head; won't listen to anything that anybody may say against him, and have my own opinion of those who do," she asserted strenuously. I sincerely admired her fealty and told her so, as I emphatically indorsed her views. Still I could not help secretly acknowledging that there were very ugly looking features about the case that I would have considered him wiser had he explained. But he seemed rather inclined to avoid me since the affair of the safe, and as it was his business after all, and as I did not care to be snubbed, I went my way and allowed him to go his without disturbance.

A few evenings later I happened to be standing in front of one of the leading hotels. I had nothing in mind that I cared to do, and was idly watching the passers-by when some one gave me a poke in the back, and I turned to find LeDuc grinning at me. We shook hands and sauntered off together as I plied him for the latest information. He was mystically evasive.

"Talk about hustling," he said, with a short laugh. "A fly on a banquet table is idle beside the way I have been buzzing around. If there has been any busier man in town I would like to stand somewhere and behind something and watch him go by. He'd whizz like a bullet. I have run down every possible clue that I could get hold of and tried out every reasonable theory that I could conjure up, and at last know pretty near where to put my fingers next. Any way, I know who stole the money." I stopped short, seizing him by the arm.

"Who?" I demanded. He pulled me along with him, gently shaking his head.

"Can't tell you just yet. It is always bad judgment to let a cat out of a bag until the right time comes. But I know who he is and I will tell you soon enough." Burning with impatience to know whom he referred to, but restrained from further questioning by the manner of his refusal to enlighten me, we continued our way for some distance without further conversation. In a certain sense, his statement was a shock to me, and I could not rid myself of a haunting impression that when he made his disclosure there would be disagreeable facts revealed. Yet my curiosity could hardly have been at a higher point.

"Are you positive?" I ventured after a while. If there was any doubt in his mind as to the identity of the criminal his voice did not betray it.

"As absolutely sure in my own mind as though I had been hidden in the room and seen him. But you know proving these matters to the satisfaction of other people is quite another proposition, and it is the proof that will convince those who do not wish to be convinced that I am now after." He turned to me with a slow scrutiny of my face. "But I am going to get that proof to-night, and I want you to help me."

I pondered his proposition over briefly. I could see no objection to acting upon his suggestion, and it might give me an inkling of whom he had in his mind. Therefore after a short reflection I agreed. "Very well. I will give you any assistance that I can. Where are you going and what do you want me to do?" He pulled out his watch.

"It is nine o'clock now and is as dark as it is going to be to-night. We can take a stroll around and inspect the place I want to visit. If the coast is clear we will go ahead; if not we can wait until it is." He uttered a little chuckle. "For your information I will say that I am going to commit a burglary on my own hook." I must have hesitated a little in my pace, for he laughed, and taking me by the arm, led me, half resisting, with him.

"Also, for the easement of your mind, I will tell you that you need not worry about the criminality of the thing. I give you my word as a detective, and therefore necessarily as a gentleman, that what I am after has no intrinsic value. It is nothing but evidence, without value to the one who is to furnish it, but is of great value to me in proving my case. Moreover, the one from whom I will get it will know nothing about it until the time comes for me to denounce him. There is this slight risk about the transaction, however. If we should be detected in our act by some officer we would be arrested, and this would probably involve the disagreeable necessity of our going to headquarters and making an explanation. But you need have no fear of its going any further than that. The police officials know me, and I could readily satisfy them of our guiltlessness of anything more than a necessary technical offense committed in the unearthing of a serious crime. But it will be a forcible entry, and will have all the outside earmarks of a malicious offense, and I need your help to put it through successfully. Are you prepared for it now?"

I told him that while such things were not exactly in my line, that relying upon his assurances I would put myself in his hands, and he led me down a street that branched from the brightly lighted main thoroughfare which we had been pursuing into a less lighted section. For several blocks we continued our way under the scattering street lights of a section of the wholesale district which was practically abandoned at nights. In front of a darkness-haunted alley we came to a standstill. On each side of it towered great buildings with darkened windows, and with a quick glance around to make sure that no one observed us, he motioned for me to follow him. "Keep your eyes open for private watchmen—they are the fellows we have got to look out for," he whispered, as we hastened through the gloom. Absolutely ignorant of what he was about to drag me into, I felt my heart beat faster as I trod close at his heels. Half way through the block he stopped, and I saw dimly before us an iron fire escape that zigzagged its way upwards and disappeared in the blackness above. "It is a case of climb from now on. Just follow me," he instructed. Although not at all in love with the proposition, I grasped the rounds of the structure and mounted upward close under him. At the fourth story he stepped aside upon a narrow platform that branched out from the ladder in front of a window. The exertion had been quite severe, and we were both breathing rather heavily as I took my place by his side.

"Best kind of exercise for the appetite. Ought to get up every morning and do it for a couple of hours before breakfast," he panted. "This is the place I wanted to get into—this window here." He tapped on the glass before him with his finger. "And now comes the thing that I want you to assist me in doing. I have got to cut a circle out of that glass in order to raise the catch, and in doing it I am going to show you a trick of the cracksman's trade. Take this piece of soft putty and press it firmly against the glass with your right thumb while I cut out a piece of the pane around it. The putty will adhere to the glass and to your thumb, and you can thus keep it from dropping and making a racket when it is loosened. See the point? Now keep on pressing as I tell you." Placing my thumb tightly against the soft ball, I pushed steadily, as with some instrument he scratched and grated harshly as he circled my hand. In perhaps five minutes there was a slight crack, and he struck the circle a quick blow. The next instant I found a circular disk dangling from my thumb.

"Good work. But easy now," he whispered, as he gently removed the glass and putty from my hand, and slipped them into his pocket.

"Your real work is over, and all you have to do from now on is play lookout while I take a smell around inside. Just remain here and keep your eyes and ears open for trouble below. I will not be gone long." He thrust his arm through the opening and slid the catch, raised the sash, and swung himself into the blackness of the interior. I saw the flash of his electric pocket searchlight as he threw it over the room in a quick survey, then all within became as inscrutable as ever.

Alert of muscles, I stood nervously peering into the gulf below, with my ears set to catch the slightest sound. As to what LeDuc sought in the cave-like interior where he now rummaged I had not the vestige of a notion. He had not seen fit to enlighten me of his own volition, and I had not felt like going further in an attempt to raise the screen that he had drawn between us. So far as I could analyse his sayings, he had been weaving his net about Bruce; and should that prove to be the case, I knew that when the final denouement came, I should, no matter the evidence he might be able to produce, array myself with Clare in a desperate rally to the defence of the accused one. Together she and I would fight for him to the last.

Perched as I was fifty feet above the stones of an alley, the bottom of which was shrouded in blackness impenetrable to the eye, and actively participating in a deed the significance of which I was in ignorance beyond the fact of being aware that despite its object its perpetration was a severe violation of the law, I began to grow both uneasy and angry as I awaited my partner's reappearance. To make my position still more unpleasant I knew that we must descend by the same means by which we had arisen; and no one perched aloft as I was could know into whose arms we might drop as we retreated down the ladder. How long LeDuc was gone I had but little idea, because of the difficulty of judging the lapse of time when one is situated as I was. While it seemed a considerable period, it was possibly not more than four or five minutes before he reappeared. I hailed his coming with a breath of relief.

We went down in reverse order from which we had ascended, LeDuc below me now and my feet closely following his hands. So far as we were able to judge, no one had entered the alley since we had gone upward, and I felt much more at ease as upon the flagging once more I adjusted my disarranged clothes. As I did so I saw my companion stoop and apparently pick up something as we turned and hurried silently from the scene of our efforts. Once more upon the street, I ventured to ask what success he had met with. His reply was pregnant with satisfaction. "I think I have secured what I was looking for, but cannot be certain until to-morrow. I will let you know about it then."

"And have you it with you?" I persisted, thinking it high time he confided a little more in me, in view of what I had done for him. He patted his pocket.

How Producers in the United States Lose the Toll From Consumers

The American market into which the Canadian farmer is to be invited to try his luck is in no need of Canadian produce. The United States, with its great range of territory and its climate, produces a vast surplus of all kinds of agricultural products, and these products are manipulated by the food-distributing trusts to the disadvantage of many of the producers. Go up and down this country in which the New England farmers ought to find a profitable market, and what do you find? You find the cold storage plants of the Chicago packing houses and of the fruit and dairy trusts, taking the toll that the farmers ought to get from the breakfast and dinner tables of the great army of consumers. Here are some of the prices of farms actually on offer at this moment in the New England States. In the township of Bethel, Windsor County, Vermont,—a farm of 45 acres, $700; another of 90 acres, $1,300; another of 360 acres, $2,600. In the township of Brattleboro, Vt., 190 acres, $2,000; 100 acres, $800; at Chester Depot, Rutland County, 195 acres, $2,000; another of 280 acres for $2,500; another of 250 acres for $1,600; another of 225 acres, for $1,300; another of 130 acres, for $2,000.

In New Hampshire, in the township of Tilton, is a farm of 500 acres for $4,400; 150 acres for $2,900; in Peterborough, N.H., 175 acres, for $2,900; and so one might go on. These prices are not exceptional. There are many hundreds of farms at such prices—farms on which there are good buildings, and on which, in some cases, even stock and implements are thrown in gratis. Moreover, these are not the cash prices; in all the instances quoted a small cash price and the rest on easy terms will suffice. Even at such prices purchasers cannot be found, and farm after farm is abandoned.

NOT OUR SALES AGENT

Canadians Must Not Allow Uncle Sam to Sell for Them

If Canada were to go into the Knox-Fielding pact, the commercial merger thus formed would take the name of the larger member.

The name and style on the continental signboard—and eventually on the Continental map—would be the United States, and the general trade mark would be the Stars and Stripes.

Our No. 1 hard wheat, our prime Canadian chees, our superior bacon, our unequalled fruits—all the staple articles by which our producers have spread the name and fame of Canada, would be mingled with the products of the United States, and would bear the national label of that country.

Canada's individuality, now so strongly marked in so many paints with great benefit to the country, would be lost in the Continental mass.

No one who has given the matter any thought need be told how vast would be the loss of this country's reputation as a producer of various staple products.

Years of patient statesmanship and decades of painstaking care on the part of our producers were necessary to build up the Canadian brand in the world's great consuming markets.

Are we to give up the fruits of this development and turn over to the United States the business of selling and buying for us?

We have become a trading nation on our own account, and we will not make the United States th ecommission merchant, broker, or middleman between us and any other country.

THE POULTRY YARD

Eggs a Great National Asset for Farmers' Wives and Daughters

One of the most lucrative departments of farming in Canada to-day is the poultry yard. Because of the steady increase in the consumptive demands of Canadians, the export trade of the Dominion in eggs has dwindled from nearly twelve million dozen in 1902 to less than a hundred thousand dozen in the fiscal year ending March, 1911. There has been with this decrease in exports a corresponding increase in imports, especially from the United States. Our imports for consumption in 1902 were 772,572 dozen, and in 1911 the amount imported was 2,278,640 dozen. In spite of the protective duty of 3 cents per dozen Canada's demand for eggs is so great that she is importing about twenty-five times as many eggs as she is exporting. Why not preserve this great national asset for the wives and daughters of our farmers, and thus add to the domestic happiness of the land?

WHY THEY WANT OUR WHEAT

Not for United States Consumption, But for Export Purposes

So far as wheat is concerned, and it is the chief breadstuff that United States would like to get from Canada, our neighbors do not need Canadian wheat for their own consumption. Their chief purpose in getting free wheat from Canada would be to export it through their ports, and to use it for milling purposes, thus benefitting their own courses of transportation. Prices would not be helped in any way, because the United States has a surplus production of wheat that will make that country an exporter of flour and grain for the next hundred years. The following figures show how the volume of wheat production is increasing in the States:—

1908 .... 624,000,000 bushels
1910 .... 737,000,000 "

"BARGAIN" GLASSES ARE DANGEROUS GLASSES

This Editorial in the Ladie's Home Journal gives timely warning against these "Eye Destroyers" advertised as "Exceptional Values."

A woman who was hunting "bargain glasses" finally succeeded in "fitting" her eyes with what she enthusiastically declares was "just the thing." And immensely pleased with herself, this woman had brought about the gravest danger a woman could invest in, for she had bought two pieces of glass crudely ground, but magnifying strongly, and with them she can see 'better to read'—That seeing better will mean an intense strain upon the her eyes, but she will not realize what the trouble is, nor the injury the glasses are doing. Some day she will be under the care of a Specialist, probably for the removal of a cataract, which will cost considerable, to say nothing of the suffering entailed, and she will be fortunate indeed if she does not suffer partial or entire loss of sight for the remainder of her life.

We have every qualification for giving your eyes a thorough examination. We fit you with the finest ground lenses, and at a very reasonable cost. Thousands of our citizens can certify to the care, skill and thoroughness of the examination, and the good results they had in wearing the glasses we prescribed. ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

CANADIAN NOW IN BUSINESS IN UNCLE SAM'S DOMAINS TALKS ON RECIPROCITY

Canada Would be Foolish to Enter Into Trade Agreement, He Says—Let Her Continue Present Policy.

The Review had an interesting chat this morning with Mr. Rice Record, of Caledonia, Michigan, on the subject of reciprocity with the United States. Mr. Record, who is an old Peterborough boy, is visiting his brother, Mr. Richard Record, at 417 Rogers street, after a lapse of twenty-five years. He is in the flour milling business, and is glad to be back in the "old burg."

This feeling of pride goes further for Mr. Record is proud of Canada and he is one of those Canucks who believes the land of the maple leaf is well able to continue its proud position and continue to develop along the lines, which has brought her to the notice of the whole world.

"You people here do not need reciprocity with the United States," stated Mr. Record to the Review, "and you would be very foolish to enter into an agreement, which in my opinion, will not be productive of any good to Canada. "How can you people expect with your seven or eight millions of people to compete against ninety millions?

"If I were living here and had a franchise my vote would go against reciprocity. Those overtures came from Washington and not from Ottawa and again Canada has established foreign relations which are altogether agreeable."

"Canada has brought about its own development and is well able to go on as she has done in the past. Everywhere is to be seen evidences of progress. Take your building operations. You here in Peterborough are not erecting any shacks, but good and substantial houses, and this is only one of the signs that you are prosperous.

"As to labor conditions in Canada and the United States, he remarked that conditions in Canada were at the present time equally if not better. He believed that in Canada we received more for ten hours work than they did across the line.

The reciprocity question in the States, he said, was mostly a political one. As to our products such as wheat, it was the big fellows there who were going to get any benefit. But Canada should not send her grains to the United States to be ground. She should do the work herself and add to her own progress.

Taking the reciprocity question from every angle, Mr. Record is firm in his opinion that Canada should not enter into the agreement, but continue her present trade policy.

BAILIEBORO FOR BURNHAM; BIG MEETING OF THE ELECTORS

Cheers and Applause Marked Course of Speeches—Showing up the Reciprocity Pact in its True Light—A Great Meeting.

The Burnham meeting at Bailieboro last night was one of the best meetings ever held in that part of the riding. The hall was packed to the doors, the farmers crowding in and sitting on the platform in trying to find seating places. In addition to the Peterborough speakers, the presence of Mr. C. J. Thornton, member for Durham, who happened to be in that part of the country, lent added interest to the program.

The speakers of the evening were Mr. Burnham, Mr. Thornton, Mr. R. J. Soden and Mr. James Kendry, and they gave the audience many strong thinking points in connection with the so-called farmers trade measure. Mr Burnham dealt with the question of barley in a very effective manner, showing how in two years 400,000 bushels of feed barley were imported into Peterborough from the United States at a valuation of 69 cents odd a bushel, in spite of the duty. The cereal company could take Canadian barley, but it was not to be had in sufficient quantity. How could the farmer get a dollar a bushel for barley, when it was imported into Peterborough from the United States and laid down here at 60 cents! Even Canadian barley, good as it was, could not command such a superior price. He dealt with the home market, showing how the opening of it to practically the whole world would be dangerous. He dealt with the horse question, demonstrating where the Ontario farmer would lose the western trade, and how the reciprocity pact was situated in the States by the American newspapers that wanted cheaper pulpwood and paper.

MR. BURNHAM

Mr. Burnham launched immediately into the trade question. "Fortunately there is," he said, "a secure basis for Canadians to argue from, in the trade controversy, since the Department of Labor at Ottawa has now issued its official work on the question, "Comparative Prices, Canada and the United States, 1906-11."

At the end of this treasure-house of official information, is a chart like a temperature chart. This chart shows the rise and fall of prices all the way from 1890 to 1911, and it shows that Canadian and American prices have been of the same average both in rise and fall, all the way through; one now a little higher, and then the other. It is a most striking comparison, and shows officially, that in the matter of prices of agricultural products, fisheries, lumber and mines, there is nothing to choose between the two countries. This disposes at once, of the contention that the U.S. is a better market for these products than Canada. The Globe evidently has seen this book, for it has abandoned the farmer and is trying to prove that reciprocity will benefit the consumer.

Canadian politics are rapidly becoming complicated. Mr. Burnham concluded by referring to the extreme impracticability of Canada's being able to withdraw from the clutches of reciprocity. It would mean that in the end we should give up the struggle, and join the United States. In fact, Canada as a foreign power, would be stripped by the United States, but as an annexed state, she would be treated at least half decently. It was absolutely necessary, therefore, for us to keep clear of it altogether.

Mr. Thornton dealt exclusively with the economic aspect of reciprocity. He handled the question of combines, showing how double faced the Laurier policy had been on this, and demonstrating that free trade would not kill them. England, the home of free trade, was the home of the combine also. The remedy was in home legislation. In no country was there so little of the combine evil as in Canada. Mr. Thornton told how the reciprocity act had been jammed through in spite of the wishes of the Liberal party itself, ninety per cent. of the Liberals having been opposed to it. He showed how the tariff, instead of having been reduced on agricultural implements, had been really increased against the farmer, and how the home market was being opened to many agricultural countries. He said that Canada did not want direct taxation, and the only way to avoid this ultimate result was to vote against reciprocity.

Mr. Soden's appeal was along a national and patriotic line. After showing up the market of 90,000,000, Mr. Soden told the farmers of the dangers that lay in wait when the United States got Canada's head half way into the noose. How she had training ships on the great lakes in spite of the Rush-Bagot treaty, and how Canada would not dare to offend her if she was once under her iron road. He dealt with the necessity of preserving the east and west trade routes, as against the north and south continentalism, and warned the farmers to hang on tightly to the old flag that had done so much valiant service.

Mr. Kendry referred to the depression in Canada in 1878, before the National policy went through, and how it was necessary for the welfare of both the workingman and the farmer that reciprocity should be defeated, since it made a big alteration in the old National policy that the Liberals had been careful to follow.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King, candidates and Mr. Borden.

PETERBORO' BOY SCOUTS AT THE TORONTO EXHIBITION

Were First Troop in Third Division—Praise for No. 3 by Governor-General.

The Peterborough Boy Scouts, about 65 in number, in splendid health and spirits, returned from their 3 days' camp at Toronto Exhibition last night. They were under command of their respective scout masters, assistant Scout Master Moss, Scout Master W. J. Miller and Scout Master Rev. F. J. Sawers. To the Peterborough Scouts there was given the honor of being the first troop in the third division. Tuesday was the great day, long looked forward to. The program was,—5.45 a. m. bugle for rising, 6 a.m. wash parade, 6.30 a.m. parade for prayers, all the troops drawn up in a square, the clerical scout masters about 10 in number, occupying the centre. 7.30 a.m. breakfast, 10 a.m. march out in parade order, as a practice for the afternoon performance. 1 p.m. dinner, 2.30 p.m. parade to the grand stand, where the Scouts were reviewed by his Excellency Earl Grey, Chief Scout of Canada. A most impressive sight was presented before the grand stand when 4200 boy scouts were lined up. Column after column the standard-bearers occupying the centre in a long line with 200 great Union Jacks fluttering in the breeze, and when cheers for the Governor-General burst forth from thousands of boyish throats and hats were waved at the top of staves, it was a scene long to be remembered.

The troops then marched past the grand stand in review order to the music of the Grenadiers' band, and delighted by their smart appearance the the vast assembly. After the march past various scout troops put on a display of scout work Signalling, first aid, parade, fire fighting, bridge building, etc. Peterborough troop No. 3, took part in this, giving an exhibition of first aid for which they were praised by Earl Grey himself.

After tea the scouts occupied seats in the grand stand and witnessed the performance, taking part afterwards in the coronation procession. About 10.30 p.m. they were glad to wend their way back to the encampment, and a wonderful change from the night before, remarkably soon silence reigned supreme.

LOCAL POLICE MAKE ARREST FOR LINDSAY AUTHORITIES

Prisoner is George MacGregor and is Wanted on Two Theft Charges

George Macgregor, of Lindsay, dropped off at Peterborough last night. He met P.C. Meagher, unfortunately for himself, and was taken to the police station.

He is charged with the theft of $6 and a pair of boots, and Chief of Police Chilton and Constable Thornbury are in the city to-day. Macgregor will be taken back to Lindsay for his trial.

Tuesday Chief Thompson received word from Lindsay to be on the lookout for Macgregor, and the local end of the machinery worked so smoothly that the arrest followed.

The prisoner when searched by the chief had $2 in his possession. He said his name was James Ward, until his razor, bearing his name, was brought to light.

THAT QUAKER OATS WIRE

What Mr. Stuart Said in the Spring

The Toronto Star last night published a telegram which it received from Mr. Robert Stuart, president of the Quaker Oats Company, in reply to an enquiry as to whether reciprocity would mean the closing of the Quaker Oats plant in Peterborough. The wire was construed by the Star to mean a "No," but there is decidedly another interpretation which may be placed on it. Mr Stuart said, "Message received. From Peterborough plant standpoint, we are in favor of reciprocity."

The Quaker Oats Company has big mills in the United States. Eighty per cent of its manufactures here are exported to the United States, and this could, with disadvantages that the local plant might suffer, be manufactured in the United States. When the reciprocity pact was first announced, Mr. Stuart was quoted by Mr. Z. A. Lash, K.C., of Toronto, who may be presumed to be accurate in his statements, as saying that reciprocity would mean that the 80 per cent. would be manufactured in the United States, because of the duty on the grain offal which would be imposed under the pact by the United States, while grain went in free. It meant that the tax on the offal would be added to the cost of manufacture, here for that export trade and that cost would be higher than the U. S. branches could provide the same goods on.

Mr. Stuart's message may be taken to mean that the Quaker Oats Company is willing to have that export trade transferred to its United States branches, quite as much as that it will not hurt the Peterborough branch. Peterborough can ill afford to do anything that will adversely affect any of its industries, whether an American branch or a Canadian factory.

On account of the low condition of water in the canal, the steamer "Stoney Lake," carrying the C.M.B.A. excursionists out of Lindsay, was compelled to transfer its passengers to the G.T.R train at Lakefield.

The train, which arrived in the city a few minutes late, was crowded to capacity.

The excursionists returned to Lindsay last night on the regular, after a very pleasant day.

FINDS COMET

Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, informed the Review to-day that he observed the Brooks comet last night, finding it after 19 hours and 56 minutes.

It has a declination of 51 degrees and 55 minutes above the equator, which means a little north of directly overhead. It can be picked out with a good field glass.

A report that the logs of the Peterborough Lumber Company held up the Stoney Lake is erroneous, so the Review was informed to-day.

ADVANCE SEAT SALE FOR GOTCH-HACK MATCH $100,000

Resered Seats at $10, $5 and $3—Record Crowd to be Present.

Chicago, Aug. 31—The promoters of the great Hackenschmidt-Gotch match announced to-day that practically all the reserved seats for the Labor Day go had been sold, and that the greatest "gate" ever known in a wrestling championship will be assured.

The match will be held in the White Sox baseball park, which has a seating capacity of 23,000. Only grandstand seats have been reserved at $10 $5 and $3 and it is admitted that the advance sale already totals more than $100,000.

The bleacher seats will be thrown open to the public on Monday at $1 a seat. The managers are confident 35,000—the largest crowd ever present at such an event—will see the match.

The Chicago Empire Athletic Club announced to-day that Doctors A. Price and J. J. Davis, club physicians would examine both Gotch and Hackenschmidt before they entered the ring, and that neither man would be permitted on the mat unless he was in perfect physical condition.

Out-of-town visitors already are arriving for the match, and hotels report that advance reservation show that sporting men will come from the four corners of the globe. The advance sale of seats is already greater than the total crowd which witnessed the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

Referee E. W. Smith has completed the first set of catch-as-catch-can wrestling rules, he says, ever written The rules were submitted to Hackenschmidt and his chief trainer, Dr. B. F. Roller, and approved, though Hack balked for a time on a rule defining what is "offensive" and what is "defensive" wrestling.

No change was made, and each wrestler will be compelled to take the offensive at frequent intervals under pain of disqualification. Hack's objection probably was based on the fact that he desired to remain on the defensive for an hour or two, permit Gotch to wear himself out and then throw him.

Smith leaves to-day for Humboldt, Iowa, to submit the rules to Gotch. A unique feature is that, for the first time, the strangle hold is defined. Former wrestling articles simply have barred the strangle hold, without telling what it was.

After a long period of lethargy Hackenschmidt has resumed hard training to keep his muscles supple, though he will do little more mat work before the big event.

Gotch was expected to start for Chicago to-morrow but it is now believed he will not come in before Saturday or Sunday, and will by that time have completed all his training It is said the champion is getting a little restless and that his managers thought it best to keep him in seclusion until the day of the match.

LARGE BOOKINGS FOR AERIAL TRIPS

Price Has Dropped to Half a Guinea per Mile

London, Aug. 31.—Aviation is becoming a fashionable pastime, bookings for aerial trips having increased 100 per cent during the last few weeks.

The growing reliability of machines and the increasing skill of airmen have mainly led to the popularity of flying. Mr. H. Barber, the inventor and pilot of the Valkyrie monoplane, whose headquarters are at Hendon, has booked $4,000 worth of passenger flights, and his "fares" require to be taken to all parts of the country.

"The aeroplane flights booked through our instrumentality are now increasing to an almost remarkable extent," said the manager of the aviation department of Messrs. Keith, Prowse & Company.

"At first our charges for cross-country aerial journeys were at the rate of a guinea a mile. Now, however, in view of the number of flights being made, we are able to reduce the price to half a guinea a mile.

"Long distance trips by aeroplane are mainly in demand, and we had a 'fare' the other day for instance, from Brooklands to the Isle of Wight."

NO RECIPROCITY FOR BAILIEBORO

Canada for Canadians and Not for Billy Taft

Special Correspondence.

Bailieboro, Aug. 28.—For some time past the activity of our bright correspondents of Lorena, Lakeview and Bessfort has almost entirely relieved your worthy Bailieboro penman of his duties. However, there is a mighty heap of good news still untold each week, notwithstanding the fact that the above-mentioned persons visit our village very regularly.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Byers returned recently from an extended trip through the western provinces.

Miss Sadie Taylor ex-school mistress of Bailieboro Public school, has been renewing old acquaintances round and about our burg during the past week During her short stay at Bailieboro Miss Taylor won the esteem of the entire community and her contemplated departure to distant fields of labor will be regretted by all.

The evils and the benefits of reciprocity are being keenly discussed each evening at Bailieboro club rooms.

Mr. Joseph Lang, pump-maker, says reciprocity will kill the pump trade dead as a door nail. Why? Everybody will have a "lager" then.

Mr. John Greer is going in on growing barley, he says barley will be $1 a bushel. He is going to have his farm all drained so that he may specialize in barley. Don't forget the big under drainage demonstration of Mr. John Greer's farm on Saturday, Sept. 2nd, when experts from O. A. C. Guelph, will explain the best methods, etc., of digging and laying out drains.

Mr. Fred Maycock, our well known blacksmith and general repairer, who has been seriously contemplating starting farming during the past six months has abandoned the idea, awaiting the issue of Sept. 21st. Mr. Maycock is a strong imperialist and has ever for a motto;—Canada for the Canadians, not for Billy Taft.

Mr. Roy Byers, of Toronto, is spending vacation with his parents.

Dr. W. H. Benson, former teacher in our Public school, was renewing old acquaintances in the village recently.

Canadians Are First.

London, Aug. 31.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The artillery contests yesterday resulted in a handsome victory for the Canadian team, commanded by Capt Harris of Victoria. Five companies were entered in addition to the Canadian garrison, namely, the 1st Sussex North Scottish, East Riding, Glamorgan and Dorsetshire. Firing took place at a moving target towed across the sea at a range from 4,000 to 5,000 yards in front of the battery, at a speed of about eight to ten knots. The Canadians won the Prince of Wales' prize with a figure of merit of 988. Second prize went to the Sussex company with 715. The North Scottishmen were credited a figure of merit of 512 giving them third position, East Riding 500. Glamorgan received no marks.

The weather on the whole was favorable to firing and showed an improvement upon that in a similar contest last year, but, excepting that of the Canadians, was only of average merit. The event concludes the principal competitions.

LUNG TROUBLE

Mrs. Biny Brown, of Tenecape, N.S., Was Cured by Catarrhozone of Lung Trouble and Catarrh, After Hundreds of Other Remedies Failed

If your lungs are weak; if there is consumption in your family; if Colds, Catarrh, and Bronchitis bother you, be sure to use Catarrhozone. It is especially adapted for these diseases and cures every time.

Mrs. Brown took cough mixtures, but they made her sick. Then she used an atomizer, but, after resorting without benefit to poultices, she tried Catarrhozone.

"I used Catarrhozone Inhaler," writes Mrs. Brown, "five minutes every hour, and soon recognised that it was going to cure me. I could feel the soothing medicated air spreading through the air passages of the throat, and it touched the sore spots in the lungs that other remedies failed to reach. Catarrhozone seemed to go just where it was needed most, and soon put a stop to my cough. It restored me to perfect health, and I am convinced that no cough, cold, or catarrh can exist if Catarrhozone is used."

No treatment is so clean, so pleasant, so certain to cure as Catarrhozone. By means of the Inhaler, the local symptoms, such as coughing, inflammation and congestion are speedily corrected. Ferrozone tablets which are taken after each meal purify and cleanse the blood of all poisons and build up and strengthen the system.

This local and constitutional treatment is always effective, and cures cases that have been given up as hopeless. Money can't buy or produce anything better, and to get cured it is absolutely necessary to use Catarrhozone.

POINTS ABOUT THE DEAL

BLOW AIMED BY CONGRESS

Against Canada's Dealings With Britain Caused President Taft to Approach Ottawa

By JOHN V. BORNE.

A few years ago Canada began to look like a promised land to the people across the border. Men began to say that the statesmanship which first gave and then took away Reciprocity, and then aggravated the taking away, was not statesmanship at all—it was dog-gone foolishness. Nothing like this had ever been said about the United States statesmanship—in the United States. A call arose for access to Canada, by offering Canada access to the United States, by a return to the Reciprocal idea formally abjured by Canada.

In fulness of time this new song reached Washington, and a President who was in sore distress because his people hated a tariff bill which he had described as the best ever, and complained, like the children of Israel, that it was getting harder and harder to live, and that they must be relieved of the afflictions of the trusts and combines.

The President turned to Reciprocity with Canada as a means of relieving everybody. It would relieve the President of the worsening incubus of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Bill, would relieve the consumer of his sense of oppression, and it would relieve Canada of the natural resources whose enormous value was beginning to be appreciated in the United States.

There was another reason. Congress had planned a blow at Canada which it left the President to deliver, and which he did not want to deliver. Canada had made a family preferential trading arrangement with Great Britain, which had operated for thirteen years as an equalizer of the advantage enjoyed by the United States manufacturers on account of their close proximity to the Canadian market. As a blow against British Preference on this continent, Congress devised a maximum tariff which the President must enforce, whenever it appeared that any country gave to its allies something it did not give to the United States.

The President felt obliged to inflict this punishment on Canada unless Canada would help save his face, by a few trifling concessions. Canada sent Mr. Fielding to Albany, and the President's face was saved.

He asked for more.

TO HELP PRESIDENT TAFT

Canadian Representatives Saved His Whole Body, Instead of Face Only, as Expected

By JOHN V. BORNE.

In the fall of 1910, two emissaries went to Ottawa from Washington and conferred with the Dominion Government with a view to making a Reciprocity Agreement. When the year had turned, Mr. Fielding and Mr. Paterson paid a return visit and made the agreement in Washington without coming back to Ottawa to consult their colleagues.

In Canada a preponderance of opinion had declared against any substantial concession to United States sentiment. For instance, Senator Sir George W. Ross, the Liberal ex-Premier of Ontario, in a very able speech, contended that Canada did not need a reciprocity treaty, and declared that any proposals should be made "as openly as if they were submitted to Parliament."

The utmost expected was a few unimportant changes, sufficient to save the President's face once more. The agreement was disclosed simultaneously at Ottawa and Washington. To everybody's surprise, it was seen that not merely the President's face, but his whole body had been saved. A prospect had been opened up to the United States which put the Payne-Aldrich Bill into the shade, and turned public contemplation towards the natural resources of Canada.

How clearly this was so is evident from President Taft's message to Congress. The President, of course, used extremely diplomatic language, but he could not help showing the ultimate object of the Agreement from his point of view. Take some of his sentences:—

> If we can enlarge our supply of natural resources, and especially of food products and the necessities of life, without substantial injury to any of our producing and manufacturing classes, we should take steps to do so now. . . . Ought we not, then, to arrange a commercial agreement with Canada, if we can, by which we shall have direct access to her great supply of natural products without an obstructing or prohibitory tariff.
>
> The Dominion has an active, aggressive and intelligent people. They are coming to the parting of the ways. . . . Should we not now, therefore, before their policy has become too crystallized and fixed for change, greatly increase the natural resources available to our people? . . . .
>
> By giving our people access to Canadian forests we shall reduce the consumption of our own.

SENT A PAWNTICKET

"What's the matter, Jack? You look broken up."

"I am. You know I came three hundred miles to see Miss Hardcastle. Well, I called on her last night, and by mistake sent up a pawn-ticket instead of my card."

THE DEDUCTIVE METHOD

"The professor says that music owes a great deal to Rossini."

"What's Rossini?"

"That's probably Italian for 'rosin.'"

Women Get Prices Down.

Paris, Aug. 31.—The agitation against the high prices of provisions continues and disorders of considerable proportions were reported yesterday from twelve places in northern France.

The usual procedure is for a crowd of women of the lower class to assemble and do their marketing together, carrying large placards upon which are written the prices which the women are willing to pay.

If the shopkeeper assents to sell his goods at the price offered, the women buy; but if he refuses they pitch all of his stock into the street.

The man next door generally yields, though the crowd in its excitement may sack the place out of spite without enquiring whether the dealer is willing to reduce the price of his goods.

Fired Sub Fire Chief.

Montreal, Aug. 31.—Sub Fire Chief Martin was officially suspended by the Board of Control yesterday, after an investigation lasting over an hour. An investigation into the charges against Martin will be held next Wednesday at 3 o'clock.

Martin incurred the wrath of Chief Tremblay for an alleged interview given to La Patrie, in which he protested against the system of hiring firemen. He is alleged to have said that bookkeepers and clerks were given positions as firemen in preference to practical men who could handle horses and put out fires, even though their book knowledge was not so extensive.

Hen Gets Two Years.

Chatham, Aug. 31.—Edward Hen, alias Fatty Rowe, was sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary by Judge Dowlin yesterday, on a charge of burglarizing the house of a man named McCugan at Kent Centre. Hen is the man who attacked Constable Peters with a sledge hammer when he went to arrest him.

Wm. Baby, jr., was fined $5 and costs for each offence, on being found guilty of allowing two minors in his poolroom, by Squire Merritt.

E. A. McCrery of Louisville was arrested yesterday on a charge of indecent assault preferred against him by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Weaver.

Would Remove Junction.

Kingston, Aug. 31.—Although it is not officially announced, it is reported that the Grand Trunk intends to move the station of Kingston Junction to Kingston Mills. The company has just purchased the Black and Ravenscroft farms at the Mills and offer to purchase thirty acres of the McAdee farm, close by. Removal would make Kingston the connecting place with the Toronto and Ottawa line via Smith's Falls.

May Not Be Guthrie.

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—The Journal, Independent, yesterday, said: "It is learned that the vacant portfolio of Justice has been promised to Mr. A. H. Clarke of South Essex, and not to Mr. Hugh Guthrie, as has been said. It is probable that the mention of Mr. Guthrie has been made in order to help him in his election."

Cotton Mills Close Down.

Warwick, R.I., Aug. 31.—The Warwick Cotton Mills of the B. B. and R. Knight Co. at Centredale, closed last night, for a week. The mill employs 600 operatives. A majority of the mills of the company in this state, Massachusetts and Connecticut, have been running on three-quarters' time for several weeks.

Dog Saved Six Lives.

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—The lives of six people were saved by a dog in a fire early yesterday morning which destroyed the residence of Alex. McDougall, near the Ottawa Golf Club. The barking of the animal, a Boston bull dog, awakened the family just in time to get out of the building in safety though almost suffocated by smoke. The loss is $25,000.

Motor Runs Down Bicyclist.

Kingston, Aug. 31.—Edward Reynolds was struck by a motor car while wheeling home to dinner and seriously injured. The car was owned by Mr. Baldon of Ottawa, his chauffeur being in charge. The wheel was demolished and the car was badly damaged.

The Theatre Garibaldi, Third street, New York, will be devoted hereafter to Arabian comic opera.

Three Engineers Drowned.

Port Arthur, Aug. 31.—An upturned canoe found on Lake Helen, above Lake Nepigon, following their non-arrival at Nepigon Station as expected indicates the drowning of Division Engineer R. H. McCoy and Resident Engineers C. H. Nelson and Drum of C.N.R. construction staff. The men left camp at Exander Sunday evening for Nepigon, telephoning to Nepigon that they were departing. Their route lay across Lake Helen, between their camp and Nepigon River, and when they did not arrive search was made, resulting in the finding on Tuesday on the shores of Lake Helen of the upturned canoe and floating paddles. McCoy is 48, married, and comes from the Western States. Drum and Nelson, also Americans, have unknown residences.

At Least Fifteen Dead.

Thousands of men are at work clearing away the wreckage of the hurricane.

Fifteen persons are known to have perished and it is feared that reports from the exposed sea island will swell the death lists and the property loss.

Annual Barbecue.

St. Catharines, Aug. 31.—Montebello Park swarmed with picnickers yesterday, when the annual barbecue of the St. Catharines' Butchers' Association, was held. After speeches by Dr. Jessop, M.P.P., and E. J. Lovelace, Liberal candidate in the Dominion elections, 1,500 pounds of prime beef and 500 loaves of bread were distributed to the hungry crowd. Races were held in the afternoon and a band concert and fireworks in the evening.

For President of Mexico

Beattie Murder Trial.

Chesterfield Court House, Va., Aug. 31.—The prosecution rested its case at noon yesterday against H. C. Beattie, jr., under indictment for the murder of his wife, and the defence began the introduction of its witnesses.

The prosecution produced fourteen witnesses yesterday, mostly county detectives, to controvert the testimony of young Alex. Robertson as to the presence of more than one blood spot on the Midlothian turnpike where Mrs. Beattie was killed.

The state had contended that the big blood spot where the murder occurred was not caused by dripping from the machine in which the husband alleged his wife was seated when shot, declaring that no blood whatever could have oozed through the bottom of the car and the grease drip pan beneath.

The defence announced early in the day that it would call Paul Beattie to the stand again.

Forty Thousand Harvesters.

Winnipeg, Aug. 31.—Forty thousand men have been brought in by the C.P.R. and C.N.R. to harvest the western crops. Of this number 34,000 have come from Eastern Canada and the remainder from the south. Temperatures have risen all through the west. There was no frost Tuesday night at all, the average temperature was well above 50, and harvesting operations are proceeding very favorably. Threshing will be in full swing next week.

Charged With Manslaughter.

Winnipeg, Aug. 31.—Ralph E. Doe, motorman on the car which on Sunday night crushed Albert W. Wilson to death, was formally charged with manslaughter in the Police Court yesterday. The charge is based upon Doe's negligence in taking a Main street curve before his time. Doe is out on $5,000 bail.

Held Up at Border.

Kingston, Aug. 31.—Because he was stopped once before this season when he went over to work on one of the boats, Edward Charles was held up at Cape Vincent, N.Y., and refused admittance, although he was on his way to attend the funeral of his sister-in-law.

Russian Seamen's Strike.

Odessa, Aug. 31.—The seamen's strike at Black Sea ports is extending to the volunteer fleet. Thirteen mail and passenger steamers are now tied up. A railway strike is threatened and 10,000 factory hands have struck at Lodz.

New York's Insatiable Thirst.

New York, Aug. 31.—Despite the fact that between 12,000,000,000 and 15,000,000,000 gallons of water have been added to the city's reserve supply by the rains of the past few days, the possibility of a serious shortage is still present, according to Commissioner of Water Supply Thompson. The commissioner said yesterday afternoon that he would appear before the board of estimate and control and advocate the appropriation of $1,200,000 for connecting Ten-Mile River with the present Croton water system.

Menace of Socialism.

Christiania, Aug. 31—The Norwegian press is calling upon the Government to adopt stern measures to prevent the spread of socialism in the army. The Young Socialist party has secured enormous influence over the soldiers, and mutinous scenes are constantly occurring on the drill grounds. Two serious affairs of this kind happened at Stenkjaer and Gardemoen, soldiers storming the cells and liberating comrades whom they considered unjustly imprisoned.

Aviators Sued.

New York, Aug. 31.—Suit for $25,000 damages was filed yesterday by Mary Lynch of Delavin, Wis., against the Wright Co. for injuries sustained Sept. 18, 1910, when she was hit, she says, by an aeroplane driven by the late Archie Hoxsey, at Milwaukee. She claims to have been injured, and asserts that the accident could have been foreseen and provided against.

COW TESTING RESULTS SHOWN

Startling Results at Norwood, Keene, Warsaw Etc.

In looking over the records of the Cow Testing Associations of Norwood, Indian River, Keene, Warsaw and Shearer for the month of July some startling figures are shown which should cause every farmer to pause and consider whether every animal in his herd is producing sufficient milk or fat to pay for the feed consumed and leave a fair profit. This can be readily ascertained by weighing the milk of each cow three days per month throughout the milking period and saving samples for testing.

The lowest amount of milk as shown by the July records is 400 lbs. while the lowest amount of fat is 16 lbs. The highest amount of milk is 1531 lbs. and the highest amount of fat is a little over 51 lbs. Valuing the fat at 22 cents a lb there is a little over $8 difference between the poorest cow and the best. The best cow is owned by Mr. Andrew Marks, of Norwood.

A striking instance of the danger of considering a herd collectively instead of individually is to be seen in a herd of 5 cows, which averaged 800 lbs. of milk in July. On looking over the records of each cow it was found that one cow gave 1500 lbs. of milk, another gave 900 lbs. while the other three fell below the average, one giving only 500 lbs.

A herd of 6 cows belonging to Mr. Louis Brown of Norwood made an exceptionally high record in June, averaging 1444 lbs. of milk and 49 1-2 of fat. One cow produced 1674 lbs. of milk but the largest amount of fat was produced by a cow which gave 1293 lbs. of milk and tested 42 p.c. thus producing over 54lbs of fat. A remarkable fact in connection with this cow is that Mr. Brown has on two occasions offered to sell her for $20 as he did not realize her value until he began testing his cows. As this cow has in June and July produced a little over a hundred pounds of fat and valued the fat at 22 cts. a lb, she has brought in for her owner in two months over $22, or more than he offered to sell her for.

Mr. Brown has grown a crop of peas and oats for quite a number of years which is fed when the grass becomes dry and short. For about fifteen years a pure bred Holstein sire has been used and the herd is certainly returning to its owners the results of good breeding and proper feeding. Would it not be very interesting to know just what each cow in your herd is doing? Can you afford to take the chances of disposing of any of your cows without knowing exactly what they are producing for you.

The excursionists reached home about 8.30 after a most enjoyable day.

Coldsprings is also soon to have a fine new public school. The board of management met on Monday night and opened the tenders, of which there were five, the choice going to the tender of Mr. Wm. Tully. When it is completed it is said that it will be the best school in the county. Building operations are to be commenced right away.

BRIGHT NEWS PARAGRAPHS ON OMEMEE HAPPENINGS

Gathered by the Review's Special Correspondent

Special Correspondence

Omemee, Aug. 28.—Mrs. (Dr.) Sutton was a visitor to Peterborough on Monday.

Miss Betty Bleasdell was the guest of Peterborough friends on Thursday last.

There's a lull in the industrial activity of our corporation since work on the new town hall has ceased. It will be resumed as soon as material arrives.

Principal Barron, accompanied by his sons, Willie and Fred, is a visitor this week at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

In the basement of the Methodist church the Epworth League held a cake and ice cream social on Monday evening. The event was a decided success, there being a short and spicy program rendered. The chair was taken by Mr. Fred Johnston.

The 'Let us be Jolly Club held a green corn roast last week. A festoon of variegated and brilliantly colored lanterns made the scene a subject for fairy stories. The members of the amusement club sat around and watched the pot boil, while the majority trilled like the larks sung of so much by the poets. One of their number was presented with a suit case, and when the time came for the present to be handed over, consternation reigned supreme, for the goods had disappeared. Some joker had evidently taken it off, for the male members of the party were informed at once, and scouting about they soon discovered the missing article and returned it to the scene. The recipient was Miss Harmony Balfour, who left last Saturday for the west. The little trick made the outing more realistic as an adventure and more impressive as a reminiscence than it would have been otherwise. Let us indulge in the anticipation that the club will have many more such social gatherings and evidence the true spirit of fun and hospitality.

Our high school re-opens next week with an efficient and qualified staff of teachers, last year's staff having been re-engaged. Pupils passing the examinations to any of the training schools or to the university, have the same status as those who pass similar examinations in any of the Collegiate Institutes of our province. The approved school clause is dispensed with, except as a means for grants and equipment. We are looking forward to a very successful year in the history of our high school.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Mills, of Bobcaygeon, with their children, were week-end visitors with friends in town.

The condition of Mr. David Rae, who has been ill for an extended period, is variable. His many friends are wishing him a speedy restoration

Messrs. G. A. Lucas and Ed. A. Hooper, of Lindsay, met some of our tennis players on a local court last Saturday afternoon and engaged in a strenuous practice game, which was very enjoyable.

Messrs. R. J. Adams and Geo. Weir made a business trip to Mount Pleasant on Monday.

Mr. John McCrea has the enviable distinction of having captured the largest 'lunge taken in these waters this season. On Monday afternoon he landed a fine specimen, which measured 41 inches in length and weighed 24 lbs.

Owing to the fact that many people fancy all the news appearing under the caption of Omemee is the product of the regular correspondent, we wish to state that many special correspondents may avail themselves of the privilege of sending local news items for print, and besides this, the editor has access to news in his press exchanges, in the records of law, etc. This explanation is made because of an erroneous report that has gained considerable circulation.

Rev. D. H. Currie occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church on Sabbath evening and delivered a bright and interesting sermon on the subject of "Our Religion."

He is back at Lass-wade,
Where the Tories are made
And they don't want Free Trade,

And then they will cheer,
Oh! that's what will happen to-night.

On Wednesday, Aug. 23, Mr. Sexsmith held a meeting in the Town Hall, Warsaw. Mr. Barr was chairman and opened the meeting with a short address. He then called on Mr. Lennox, who gave a splendid address telling the farmers a great many things they were anxious to hear. The hall was packed to the doors, but owing to a mistake the ladies were not invited, though a number of them were there who knew they were welcome. They were anxious to pay the respect and honor due to Mr. Sexsmith, who, when called upon, gave a practical sensible address to the farmers who agreed that his was their sentiments too. Cheer after cheer greeted his appearance.

Hurrah for Sexsmith.

FARMERS BUILD TELEPHONE LINE

Communication Opened Between Lakehurst and Gannon's Narrows

Special Correspondence

Lakehurst, Aug. 28.—The Telephone Company, which is composed entirely of the farmers in the vicinity of Lakehurst, has now completed the line which for the last few months has been in course of construction between Lakehurst and Gannon's Narrows. Mr. Brewett, who put the phones in the houses in such a highly satisfactory manner last week, being also a Harvey man. Twenty-five houses are now connected by the line and as many living rooms or halls are adorned and enlivened by the phones. It only remains for the Bell Telephone Company to fulfil their contract by constructing the line between Ennismore and Gannon's Narrows and we shall be within speaking distance of all the surrounding places of importance.

J. R. STRATTON HOLDS A RALLY ASSISTED BY HON. MR. GRAHAM

The diet handed out to the faithful who went to the Grand Opera House last night to hear the doin's was Graham bread, buttered with Stratton jam—the latter so rich, and thick and sweet that part of the audience made faces at having to swallow it, or, in other words, hissed. The dose became more palatable after a bit, however, and by and by the patient took the medicine handed out with some degree of animation. Graham bread is usually worth while getting, and in this case the boss of J. Harris McClellan and the canal outfit, was in particularly inviting form.

They didn't have any little British flags in the audience, no, indeed. That would never do. The faithful, among whom were interspersed many ladies who were quite interested, and apparently enjoyed the proceedings very much, are so loyal that all one had to do was to look into their faces, as Mr. Graham said that he was doing, and he would see right there the map of the Union Jack. But they had the banners up about Laurier and the Wider markets, and the Bigger business, though they didn't tell the audience that this was principally for the American business man. It was a typically American motto, this one.

Robert Hall was chairman, he who the other day got judgment for $15,000 against the Trusts and Guarantee Company of which Mr. Stratton is president. And after Mr. Hall had warmed the surrounding atmosphere, surcharged it with some really electrical or live wire remarks (he could scarcely let go) Mr. Stratton came to bat. The Liberal candidate swung at all the balls, whether they were high or low, or just behind. He was determined to make a home run some how, Though no one told him that he would make a run home on September 21.

The hero of the Farmers' Bank wasn't such a hero after all, for he forgot the chief act in his repertoire. He didn't tell the audience, waiting and gripping the arms of their seats in anxiety, that he had decided to abandon the fight to get into parliament next session, and had decided to devote his remaining energy in the Christian work of searching for one Dr. Beattie Nesbitt. No, not quite! In fact, the Farmers' Bank never existed, insofar as Mr. Stratton's remarks were concerned. This remarkable lack of appreciation of the importance of the various events of the last few months was noticeable when Mr. Stratton took up the task of replying to questions propounded for Mr. Graham to answer.

STRATTON MAKES THE ANSWERS.

"This," said Mr. Stratton, "I will undertake, instead of Mr. Graham." Why, no one knew, unless Mr. Stratton thought people wouldn't mind his method of explaining, while they might be surprised at a minister of the Crown making such an exhibition. Question 1 referred to why of the many water-powers around Peterborough, the government had not seen fit to reserve at least one for Peterborough.

"I do not see any water powers running away," declared Mr. Stratton. "All of them are being developed. And they will be under the control of the railway commission to regulate the rates. If these rates are not satisfactory, it will be time for us to inquire." The same old song. Just let the power companies get everything in sight, and take your chances afterwards on watered capital. Did the Ontario government let the private companies control everything from Niagara? Not much; it assisted, and did not throttle the municipalities that wanted municipal power at cost. The Graham method ties you up like a whipped cur to the big monopolies, and if you don't like it, just squeal, and squeal. It's good for the lungs.

The second question was why out of the millions of dollars that had been collected at Peterborough customs houses, but a small proportion had been returned, even if the canal was included.

This, Mr. Stratton decided, was a fool question. It was just like the source from which it emanated (hisses.) He did not remember that slippery Bill Pugsley made contracts amounting to $16,000,000 for the benefit of St. John, N.B., his home city, and bribed Halifax with millions, more than they ever contributed. But Peterborough, even with Mr. Stratton, did not get much. But this was a fool question.

"I am not boasting about it," quoth Robert Gamey's particular friend, "but I will tell you something confidential. The minister of railways and canals has arranged with the Seymour Power company to give the city 500 or 700 h.p. free of charge, in settling these matters about powers. If this is taken, it will light your homes and your streets." It would just simply illuminate everything so that the Seymour company might just as well forget all about Peterborough as a market for power. That 500 would do the trick, and at last we would be free, free from the clutches of a power monopoly. Beautiful, isn't it.

"If the Review had not asked the question, I do not think I would have mentioned it." Of course not. Mr. Stratton, who reminds all the sporting associations of the mugs he has handed out, would not insult Peterborough by telling how the Seymour company was to be made to give 500 or 700 h.p. free to the city. His modesty would be painfully shocked at such brassy election methods.

Mr. Stratton assured Peterborough that it would not be neglected on the power question. When the city was done out of No. 8 dam, it was not neglected—not by the Seymour company, at least. This city gets careful attention in power matters, you know.

Skipping Question No. 4, which asked Mr. Graham how he could endorse the candidacy of a man who was actually under indictment by a jury, charged with conspiracy to procure the Farmers' Bank certificate by deceit and fraud, and was it fair to the youth of the land that this man, in this position, should be held up as a representative of a great party, Mr. Stratton went on to the power question. Now no one could expect Mr. Stratton to speak for Mr. Graham on No. 4. He had the other questions, there, but not this one. Oh no! his private secretary had snipped it off the clipping, and he was not aware of the fourth question. This was left for the audience to answer itself.

In reference to No. 8 dam, Mr. Stratton's answer was beautiful in simplicity, a model of directness, and clear as mud on a rainy day. "The policy of Mr. Graham in reference to these little powers—"little" now, mind you—is to place them in charge of those who were able to develop them, without having a municipality mortgage its homes for the purpose. This policy is to give the dam to the people who have the money to develop them, and invest it directly for that purpose. The power so harnessed would be given to Peterborough and the intervening municipalities. And if the people are not treated right, we will have something to say, or Mr. Graham will."

Now you have it. Mr. Graham was charged by the Review with having betrayed Peterborough after promising No. 8 dam to the city—and this, ye sons of Israel, is the reply. How do you like its perspicacity, Mr. Peterborough man? Is there much hope of the city getting a municipal water-power from Graham? His policy is to give it to the "interests" and prevent you from doing anything for yourself. Mr. Stratton's answer is to the point. Will you vote for Graham and Stratton and electric power monopolies?

Leaving the Review questions for something easier, Mr. Stratton spoke for an hour and a half. It was his meeting, and he was to be assisted by Honorable George P. Graham, so why not. He went on to talk of obstruction in parliament.

"The Conservative papers will tell you that if reciprocity passes the rivers will dry up," said he. But it was a good thing in the old days when he was a bare-foot boy and used to soak in the sunshine around

BORDEN'S TRIUMPHS

Two Big Meetings in Quebec Cities.

Enthusiastic Gatherings Greet the Leader.

Richmond, Que., Sept. 1.—Mr. R. L. Borden arrived here yesterday afternoon in the course of his tour of the eastern townships, and spoke to a large audience in support of Dr. Hays, the Opposition candidate in Richmond-Wolfe division. Mr. Borden was given a cordial reception.

"Does any one imagine," asked the leader, "that the United States would claim no power to dictate the fiscal policy of this country if they were once given an opening? One need only remember what happened last year, when that nation threatened us with a discriminatory tariff, to understand what the power of the republic is, even at the present time. If they had put a duty of 70 per cent. against us, it would have forced us into a state of panic. If, when reciprocity has been in force five years and that trade has grown to more than $500,000,000 we could abrogate this treaty only at the peril of such reprisals as already threatened, what would it mean to us?"

Dr. Hays asked the farmers how they could hope anything to be gained by being granted access to the New England market, when the farmers that already have that market find it insufficient to maintain their farms and are abandoning them to move to the west by the wholesale.

Sherbrooke, Que., Sept. 1.—R. L. Borden was tendered a fine reception here last night on his return from Richmond. A large profession, including five bands, playing national airs, escorted him to His Majesty's Theatre, where two thousand were present to hear him outline the Conservative program. Many more were unable to gain admittance and an overflow meeting was formed outside, which was addressed by Mr. Borden's lieutenants while he was speaking within.

Mr. Borden covered the same ground as at Richmond.

Will Hold Joint Debate.

Ottawa, Sept. 1.—Henri Bourassa will speak at Hull on Sept. 5, and the meeting will develop into a joint debate between Bourassa and E. B. Devlin, K.C., Liberal candidate in Wright County. Mr. Devlin announced yesterday that he would certainly appear on the platform in answer to Mr. Bourassa.

Premier's Ontario Tour.

Ottawa, Sept. 1.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier speaks in Alexandria on Monday night, going thence for another tour through Ontario, in which he will be heard at Cobourg, Sudbury, Collingwood and Stratford. Afterwards the Premier will return to Quebec. In Quebec City he will deliver an address in English and later speak at Drummond-Arthabaska, Montmagny, Megantic, Rimouski and Champlain.

Nominations.

Lachute, Que., Sept. 1.—G. H. Perley, the Conservative whip, was again tendered the unanimous choice of the Liberal-Conservative convention here yesterday afternoon. It was significant that the larger number of the delegates were farmers, and the way they cheered the strong anti-reciprocity speeches showed that the agreement is not popular in this section of the province.

GOOD POSITIONS; GET IN LINE

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of seven Business Colleges located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk, students may enter any day. Many students study all at home and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada and have thirty years experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1200 students and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you. 13d

VERDICT AGAINST PAUL GEIDEL

To be Sentenced for Murder in Second Degree

Special to the Review.

New York, Sept. 1.—The jury in the case of Paul Geidel, the bell boy, who is charged with the murder of millionaire Jackson, returned a verdict this morning of murder in the second degree.

The young man is to be sentenced on Tuesday next.

HERE WAS THE QUESTION

Hon. George P. Graham, minister of railways and canals, will be in Peterborough to-night. Will he tell the people of Peterborough how the city was betrayed and deceived by him and his department in the matter of Dam No. 8, below Campbellford, that Peterborough wanted for power purposes?

Will he acknowledge that after practically assuring Mayor Morrow and civic representatives that the city could get a lease of the water power at No. 8, he received a deputation from the Seymour Co. people, and then told the city's representatives that he could not let Peterborough have it, as the company owned the surrounding land? And that he advised the city to negotiate with the Seymour company for a supply of cheap power?

How did the city get euchred out of that dam, after assurance was given that it would be all right. Why did not the letter confirming the first promise come? And why the turn down, so suddenly, after a few days?

Peterborough may not be able to find a site for power development now. The Seymour company has got No. 8 dam. The Dickson dam is a questionable commercial proposition. Why, Mr. Graham, why did you permit a power concern like the Electric power company to gobble up what had been promised to Peterborough?

This is the kind of trickery the Laurier government has been putting up. Its record for Trent valley canal management is but a sample. Mr. Graham says that the railway commission has control of power rates here. But that does not excuse the lemon handed to Peterborough.

At a meeting of the city council the other night the whole matter was threshed out. Not very long ago it was intimated that No. 8 dam was a sure thing for Peterborough, as probably the Ontario government could have expropriated what land was necessary. But a Graham was on the job, and Peterborough was soaked over the nut as usual.

What about this, Mr. Graham?

THE ANSWER

Mr. Stratton—The policy of Mr. Graham in reference to these little powers, is to have them placed in the hands of those who are able to develop them, without having a municipality mortgage its homes for the purpose. This policy is to give the dams to the people who have the money to develop them, and invest it directly for that purpose. The power so harnessed will be given to Peterborough and the intervening municipalities. And if the people are not treated right, we will have something to say, or Mr. Graham will.

SIR JAMES WHITNEY SCORES HEAVILY AT DUNDAS MEETING

Hamilton, Sept. 1.—Before an audience which packed the new music hall at Dundas last night, Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario, subjected the proposed reciprocity agreement to the keenest analysis and an attack of argument and ridicule which left that one-sided measure with little prestige among the voters of Wentworth County, who heard the Premier's address.

A big crowd of Hamilton people went out for the big meeting, and the gallery of the house was filled with ladies.

E. B. Osler, M.P., of Toronto, who preceded Sir James, characterized Fielding and Paterson as the two Rip Van Winkles of this country, for the reason that they had been politically asleep for twenty years and had arranged a treaty which might have been a good thing for the Dominion twenty years ago, but which would be a detriment to the country now.

The former commercial treaty of years ago between Canada and the United States had been abrogated, said Sir James Whitney, and now that Canada was developing into a healthy, vigorous nation, the American doctor comes along and suggests that we are about strong enough to take some more reciprocity medicine. In reply to the Liberal claim that Sir John A. Macdonald and other old-time Conservatives had favored reciprocity, he wanted to know if, assuming that these statesmen did favor such a treaty in their time, did that justify reciprocity to-day? Such a claim was an ancient and mossgrown Toryism as anyone could be accused of.

Sir James denied that reciprocity is a party issue, and said that the agreement was arranged by Fielding and Paterson without the knowledge of anyone else in Canada, except Sir Wilfrid Laurier. "If it was a party question, why did not the members of the Liberal party know about it?" asked the Premier. He then referred to the statement of Lloyd Harris, M.P., that if the question had been brought up in Liberal caucus 90 per cent. of the members would have been against it."

"I believe that every intelligent man in Canada who has studied this measure, no matter what he may say, is at heart opposed to it," declared Sir James.

JOHNSON TRYING TO DODGE FIGHT

Promoter Claims Negro is Afraid of Wells

Special to the Review.

London, Sept. 1.—Following the recent actions and statements of Jack Johnson, comes the accusation from James White, the promoter of the the promoter of the Johnson-Wells fight, that the negro is trying to back out, he realising that the Englishman is a hard proposition, and that he himself is in a bad condition.

Aviator Badly Hurt.

Freeport, Ill., Sept. 1.—Fred. Heegles, 26 years of age, an amateur aviator of Chicago, was probably fatally injured and a number of spectators were hurt Wednesday when Heegles' biplane fell fifty feet during an exhibition flight. The exhibition was for the benefit of Mrs. Daniel Kramer, whose husband was killed a short time ago while trying for a pilot's license in Chicago. None of the spectators were severely injured.

Child Burned With House.

Chatham, Sept. 1.—The three-year-old granddaughter of Mrs. Edeline met death in a fire which completely destroyed the residence on concession six. Children were playing with matches upstairs. In an attempt to save goods the child was lost sight of, and the body was later found in the ruins. Coroner Stewart decided an inquest unnecessary.

Guelph and Peoples' Railway.

Guelph, Ont., Sept. 1.—The Railway and Manufacturers' committee of the City Council decided yesterday to recommend that the Council give the Peoples' Railway ninety days' notice, and if they do not carry out the agreement with the city to apply to the Railway Commission to cancel the agreement.

POISON IN THE WINE

Mons. Contessa May Die. Canon Has Been Arrested

Special to the Review.

Agata, Sicily, Sept. 1.—Guleseppe Trepunti, canon of the cathedral here, has been arrested and is charged with having placed poison in the sacred wine used at the altar. Monsignor Contessa fell into convulsions after partaking of the wine during the celebration of mass, but he may recover. The church authorities cannot account for the attempted murder.

Accidentally Shoots Brother.

Cobalt, Sept. 1.—Barney Albany, aged 15, was killed at Pork Rapids, on Montreal River, Wednesday, when his brother, two years older, was handing him a gun over a rock. The gun was accidentally discharged, the shot entering his throat, killing him instantly.

Mrs. Gotch Will Be There.

Humboldt, Iowa, Sept. 1.—Mrs. Frank Gotch will accompany her husband when he goes to Chicago to complete his training for his match with Hackenschmidt on Labor Day. She will occupy a box close to the mat and will entertain a party of her friends at the match.

Jesse Westergaard, one of Gotch's trainers, expresses the opinion that the champion will try neither a hammerlock nor any sort of a Nelson on Hackenschmidt. "It would be useless," said Westergaard. "Hack is too strong around the neck and shoulders. He will work on his legs."

CRYSTAL SOLD

The sale of the Crystal Theatre to Mr. Pappas, who is acting for another party, has been finally effected.

Case Not in Court

The report that a local bellboy would appear in police court to answer a theft charge is untrue. What little misunderstanding there was satisfactorily cleared up.

CHATHAM MAN GETS A FORTUNE

F. Gardner Will Receive Big Sum of $50,000

Special to the Review.

Chatham, Sept. 1.—F. Garner, the proprietor of a small cleaning and pressing establishment, has received the information that he has fallen heir to a fortune of fifty thousand dollars in England.

WHY WAS THIS IGNORED WHILE THE OTHER QUESTIONS RECEIVED ATTENTION? WHY? WHY?

4. Why do you endorse the candidature of a man who is actually under indictment, as found by a grand jury of his fellow-countrymen, and committed to stand his trial at the autumn assizes, charged with having conspired to procure a certificate or charter for the Farmers' Bank with intent to deceive and defraud the public? Is it fair to the youth of this country that men sent up for trial charged with an offence which has attached to it a sentence of from one to seven years, without the option of a fine, shall allow themselves to be held up as the representatives of the principles of one of the two great parties of this country?

FRIDAY, SEPT. 1, 1911.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER CHARGES THAT WE HAVE CALLED INTO QUESTION THE LOYALTY OF THE CANADIAN PEOPLE. WE HAVE NEVER DOUBTED THE LOYALTY OF THE CANADIAN PEOPLE. IT IS BECAUSE WE NEVER HAD A DOUBT OF THEIR LOYALTY THAT WE INSISTED THAT THEY BE GIVEN A CHANCE TO VOTE UPON THIS QUESTION.—MR. BORDEN.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A vote for Burnham is a vote for a man with an absolutely clean record, for a man of his word, for a man of personal honor. A vote the other way, is, well——

At the Laurier meeting in Halifax the mention of R. L. Borden's name brought forth loud cheers. Nova Scotia people can see farther than their Bluenoses.

Vote for Borden and a government for the people, not for Laurier and a government which plays the double faced Janus game as between the farmers and the workingmen, and the combines!

For years the United States spurned the advances of Canada. Now it is Canada's turn to reject the advances of the United States. They did not want our products then, we do not need their's now.

The Laurier sunny smile has a parallel in the Stratton hand shake. Sir Wilfrid wants votes because he is growing old and his hairs are white Mr. Stratton wants votes because he once was a boy, and used to soak up the sunshine at the old swimming hole. Curious, ain't it?

What has happened? For several days "the bare-foot boy, who used to run and jump, and soak in all the sunshine and fresh air of an afternoon," hasn't been heard of. Did the crabs in the swimming holes pinch his toes, and lay him up, or is he merely taking a prolonged siesta, a result of all that sunshine and fresh air treatment?

The hoodwinking and buncombe in progress to convince the farmer that he will gain by swapping products with the Americans is gradually being shattered. There was a time, even twenty years ago, when Canada would have benefited by having the United States market to sell to, because her own prices were low, and there wasn't much prosperity at home. Now it is we who should shield ourselves from the outside competition.

New Auto Badly Burned.

Acton, Sept. 1.—Some excitement was caused Wednesday night when a new auto owned by Mr. Fred. Storey, of the W. H. Storey Glove Co., was destroyed by fire. Ernest Macklin, mechanician, who was running the car, dropped a match on some recently spilled gasoline. The car is almost a total loss.

Schooner Burned at Sea.

New York, Sept. 1.—Wireless reports received here yesterday afternoon from the steamer Oklahoma, bound from New York to Port Arthur, Texas, tell of the burning of an unidentified schooner at sea yesterday and a futile search by the Oklahoma for the crew of the doomed vessel.

Burglars Used a Wagon.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—Burglars who broke into the premises of Guilbault Brothers, St. Lawrence, Wednesday night by the front door, opened a rear door, and backing a wagon up loaded it heavily with butter, hams, lard, tinned meats, etc., to the value of $800.

If I Were Farming Again

By ARTHUR HAWKES.

A rather inconsequent slogan was concocted in a Montreal newspaper office the other day and telegraphed all over the country as the battle-cry of the Liberal party in this election. It is "Let the farmer have his turn."

When clever politicians conspire to make a slogan they generally make a mistake. The cleverer the politicians the bigger the mistake.

The slogan doesn't really hit off the situation, except from the point of view of those who, like Sir Wilfrid, have decided that they want Free Trade as it is in England. Sir Wilfrid's speeches in the West last year frequently contained this doctrine. If you are for unconditional free trade it is no use trying to make out you are for the National Policy. So you mustn't talk about letting the farmer have his turn—as if he were not capable of taking care of himself. To have free trade as it is in England means that wages would have to come to the English level, and the power of wages to buy grain produce would be correspondingly weakened.

Half the controversy that troubles the world arises not because people give different answers to the same question, but because they ask different questions, and they approach public affairs from different points of view. In this Reciprocity business one man sees only a few schedules. Another discerns a change in the temper of the national life.

Many people tell us that the farmer thinks of nothing but price. I believe they are mistaken, important as the price is. I am very chary of talking to farmers about their relationship to a commercial-political question, because, having left the farm, I leave lecturing to farmers to those who know nothing about farming except what they see in the papers and observe from train or automobile. The best I can do is to size up the situation as I believe I would if I were farming again, remembering the long days of toil, the short nights of rest, the aching limbs and hardened hands, that used to belong to one's daily rustle with the earth.

The farmer who takes wide interest in public questions is the man above all others who should be able to grasp the great forces that originate and govern political action, because he is detached from many petty things that afflict city people, and because his closeness to nature helps him to discern the processes of national change and growth which are always behind political action. In politics—not the fussy little manoeuvreings between rivals for office that we sometimes dignify by the name—it is dead true that whatsoever a country sows that will it also reap.

Another consideration that would influence me, I think, as a farmer having to decide my attitude towards a vital national question would be the knowledge that most likely some, if not most, of my children would leave the farm, and that I should be ambitious for them to achieve the best possible result in other walks of life, and I should remember that nearly all the best services of the nation have been performed by rubes who were raised on the farm.

I would have a peculiar interest in the development and dignity of my province and of my country, from a patriotic point of view. I should know that in the building up of Canada the climactic factor has played a vital part. Just as the far north of Canada is the backyard of the southern portions of the Dominion, so, unless there has been something to check the flow of trade south across the boundary line, instead of there being big cities in Canada manufacturing for the farmers, and buying his produce at good prices, our industrial centres, without which no country can be really prosperous, would have been in the United States.

I should inquire how the United States had become such a great manufacturing country, and should read carefully what Mr. James Wilson, the Scotsman who is Secretary of the Agriculture of the United States, has said:—

> The American farmer brought about the building of the American factory because he wanted a home market. The home market is the best to be found anywhere, because our peole live well and are all able to buy the best farm produce, that is, all who are willing to work. It may be said, without much exaggeration, that the American farmer is responsible for the upbuilding of the factory. He has voted steadily for half a century to give protection to the extent of the difference in cost of production between this country and any country that desires to sell in our markets. Was that right or wrong? Was it wise for the farmers to do that? There was no market at home. They wanted a market as near the factory as they could bring it.

Having read that I would dig into the Dominion Government reports, which show that in 1900 prices received by the farmer had risen over those of the ten years before 1899, like this:—

> Grain and fodder, including thirteen selected standard commodities, 48.9 per cent. Cattle and cattle products, hogs and hog products, sheep and sheep products, fowls and turkeys, 49.9 per cent. Dairy products, 23 per cent.

And that the price of goods the farmer has to buy have not risen to an equal extent, as this list shows:—

> Woollen goods, 22.2 per cent.; cotton goods, 25 per cent.; boots and shoes 25 per cent.; metals and implements, 2.4 per cent.; imported goods, [illegible] 4 per cent.

The staple lines, which represent over 90 per cent. of the farmer's expenditure, have only increased 14.3 per cent., while the goods he sells have increased 55.7 per cent.

It is estimated that 12,000 farmhands left Chicago in the last few weeks for points in the Northwest.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Unexpected strength in foreign markets, the result mainly of war risks having been advanced, brought about to-day higher prices here for wheat. The close was at a gain of 3-8 to 5-8 over last night. Other leading staples rose, too—corn 5-8c to 7-8c, oats 5-8c to 1c and provisions 2 1-2c to 12 1-2c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ¾d higher than yesterday on wheat, and ¼d lower on corn. Buda Pest wheat closed 2c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Aug. 31.—There continues to be a good enquiry from foreign buyers for new crop spring wheat for October, November shipment, and prices bid were 3c per quarter higher, but even at this advance exporters stated it was impossible to do any business which would show a profit. The demand for old crop wheat is fair and further sales were made.

The local demand for oats is good, and further sales of 50,000 bushels of No. 2 Canadian western made at 43½c c.i.f., but at the close sellers were firm at 43¾c to 44c. American No. 2 yellow corn was ½c higher. The foreign demand for flour is good with sales of 10,000 sacks and bids on hand for considerable more.

Demand for bran is active and bids $22.75 per ton were received freely for 1000-ton lots, but owing to the limited supplies and millers being sold ahead few of the orders could be accepted.

"Yes—right here. If upon an investigation made under the proper conditions by an expert it turns out as I think it will, I will name your man for you to-morrow. And when I do I am going to have you present as an interested party. By the way, here is your match box." He held out the mentioned receptacle to me and I took it with a look of surprise as I demanded that he tell me when and where he had gotten it. I was very certain that I had not handed it to him.

"Some thing dropped upon my shiuldas we were coming down the ladder and I picked this up att he foot of it when we struck earth agoin. It must have worked out of your pocket as we came down while you were using your arms for climbing. Great way to lose anything smooth like that, especially from a vest pocket. Well, I guess that is about all for to-night. If you will just excuse me for the rest of the night I would like to do a little more experimenting all by my own self. Much obliged for your assistance. If I land my party it will be because of the tips and clues you have furnished me, and I won't forget you." To tell the truth I was not at all sorry to have him make his request to be excused. I had had enough experience with him for one evening, and I bade him good-night with a sense of relief at the next corner. He waved his hand and turned into the straggling line of passers-by.

Pondering deeply over the events of the night and with the idea suddenly popping into my head that I would do a little experimenting upon my own account, I continued upon my way for several blocks. An alley something similar to the one which the detective and I had explored lay before me, and I turned into it with the intention of traversing it and catching my street car homeward bound in the street beyond. Near the further end of the way I paused, struck a match against the wall, and lighting a cigar, stood for a moment with the flame in my hands as I made the investigation that I had in mind. Then casting the blaze away I passed into the fan of light that was projected into the narrow way from the street just beyond. As I turned once more into the regular course of travel I almost ran into the arms of my friend whom I had left but a few moments previously. With a mutual start we stepped backward.

"I had not expected this pleasure again to-night," I said, as I surveyed him up and down. He fingered his cigar apparently a trifle annoyed that I had intercepted him; nevertheless answering me with a grin.

"I just made the second experiment which I mentioned to you, and it turned out quite successfully. Our man is downtown to-night and is moving about considerably himself. I am just a little afraid that he is becoming uneasy, and I don't know as I can blame him under the circumstances Still, should he confess his guilt by flight, the life of a hunted fox is the best he can look forward to, and I don't believe he is going to run. Hope I have not got you fascinated with the alley habit by our experience to-night." I surveyed him in distinct disapproval of his everlasting secrecy

"No danger of its becoming chronic. Are you going to tell me anything yet?" I addressed him rather shortly, and as usual his head waved its negative.

"Not now. But I hope to-morrow I may be able to tell you everything that I know. Meanwhile you might bear in mind the old adage that when ignorance is bliss it is folly, and so forth." I turned abruptly away.

"Very well, I will exercise my patience. Good night again." Stepping into the street, I boarded a passing car and watched him from the back platform for a moment as he disappeared in an opposite direction. Then I found myself a seat.

I went directly home and to bed. Although somewhat tired, my experiences of the evening had rendered me thoroughly wide awake, and I slept very little in the hours that intervened between my retiring and daybreak. LeDuc had told me that he was positive that he knew his man; had assured me of his confidence that he had secured the necessary proof, and I had too much respect for his ability to hold him lightly. And while I believed that he had centred his efforts upon Bruce and had built a wall of circumstantial evidence around him, there was also the sikening possibility that he had learned things in other directions that were beyond my ken. However, I refused absolutely to allow such a possibility to occupy any real place in my mind. Still, there was a mystery about some of his actions that utterly baffled me, and caused me profound wonder; while as to my own experiment of the evening, it had failed absolutely. I went to sleep along in the gray of the morning no wiser than I had been when I had wakened from my last sleep.

CHAPTER XV.

The next morning I found a note awaiting me which had arrived over night in the mail. It was from Mrs. Dace, and said that she would be very happy to have me accompany her on a little shopping tour that forenoon, provided that I could arrange without inconvenience to be away from my place of business. I at once telephoned her that I would go with her. I had never felt a greater aversion for my daily, half-mechanical work at the office than I did this bright morning, and the invitation to spend a day with the woman I loved so madly was an opportunity not to be ignored. Moreover, as my wealth had rapidly increased, the fact that I was still the daily employe of a soulless corporation at a nominal salary and must still give my attention to the petty details of journal and ledger had galled me until several times I had been upon the point of resigning. This I now decided to do at once, and sitting down at my secretary forthwith notified them to that effect by means of a letter, giving more important business as my reason and enclosing them a cheque for my overdrawn salary. This radical step having been taken, and with my bridges now being burned behind me, I experienced some of the joyous sensations of an onward marching invader of a new continent. With nothing to hamper me now except the keeping of an eye upon my investments, I could give myself over to the attractions that lay by the way without the ever-present and pleasure-marring thought of early rising and uncongenial work upon the morrow. What my uncle would say regarding this latest move of mine I did not know, nor did I greatly concern myself. I was making my own fortune, and revelled in the thought of being able in the not far distant future to silence his taunts by proof that a man of brains could make money in ways other than those of a miser. Nevertheless I decided to say nothing to him about it at this time. Any way, I was so deeply involved in my speculations that the matter of my salary was practically inconsequential to me. If I continued to win I would soon be in a position where I would be independent of everione, financially; and if I lost, the fact of still having a job would be a matter of small consolation. I felt that I had risen above the office of cashier and that a broader field of endeavor beckoned me to its bosom. In the short time that had elapsed since I had struck out boldly for myself I had accumulated more than I would have saved in a lifetime at my salary, and my prospects had never been brighter than they were on this day of warmth and summer sunshine. The high play of the stock exchange had unfitted me for the drudgery of the pen.

The automobile was at the entrance of the Arcadia; Mrs. Dace awaited me in her apartments, and together we descended and entered the machine. I gave it plenty of speed, and we went whirring down the wide artery that led to the heart of the city. I told her of my resignation from drudgery, and after a moment's reflection she voiced her approval of it.

"The position was but a stepping-stone, and it is hardly possible that it would have ever brought you more than a hard-earned living. And that is the very thing that I am anxious that you should escape. You are rapidly becoming a man of affairs and your future depends a great deal more on what you do with your head than with your hands. I have confidence in you and believe that you are able to hold your own among men who do big things. Your office position bound you to a desk and hampered you. Now that you are freed from it, you can get out among those who have had the opportunities that go with personal liberty, mingle with them and avail yourself of the knowledge that is bound to come from such associations. I congratulate you upon your determination to devote yourself wholly to the large things of the world rather than to the small. You are too big a man to look graceful upon a stool. You were built for a large chair. Your self-confidence strengthened my faith in you, and we shall win out yet."

It was a glorious thing to be humming along with her in that early forenoon hour, her commendation ringing in my ears and the sweetness of breezes blown across fresh waters exhilarating my physical senses. My enthusiasm leaped onward as lightly as a bounded rubber ball, and despite her injunction to the contrary, I determined to make a cast towards the subject of our marriage. But I would make it judiciously, and if she cautioned me, would immediately turn into some other channel. I let one hand fall upon her gloved fingers.

"If you were my wife, sweetheart, I would be the happiest man in the world to-day," I said tenderly. "There is an old and wise adage which says we should live to our fullest to-day for to-morrow we die. And it sometimes seems to me that we are partially wasting the most precious days of our lives; camping, as it were, upon the borders of the promised land and fearing to enter it. I already have enough money to last us for years, and surely with the start I now have the rest will not be long in coming. I want you to tell me: Is there any reason why you desire the postponement of our marriage except that I am in the midst of accumulating more resources?"

"None in the world. I am interested heart and soul in your success, and shrink at the thought of diverting your efforts. For once married, I know that I should claim your time jealously."

DENOUNCES CLERGY.

Lemieux Says Young Priests Are Fighting Laurier.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—In a speech delivered before the Young Liberals of Montreal, Hon. R. Lemieux denounced the clergy of the province for the part they are taking in the present fight. In part he said: "I am ashamed to hear Monk and Bourassa denounce Laurier's naval policy. To-day men want to raise a monument in bronze to Dollard des Ormeaux. It is the cult of heroism, but when the question of founding a Canadian navy is raised, destined to protect our coasts, to protect our commerce, flying the Canadian flag, manned by Canadian marines, commanded by Canadian officers, what they preach is fear and cowardice. They want us to be a modest crown colony, as in the past fifty years." He ridiculed Mr. Bourassa's statement concerning conscription, made by him and followers in the Drummond-Arthabaska fight. England, a great naval power for two hundred years, has never had conscription, for the English people want freedom.

"The young Nationalist clergy who oppose the navy, if they read the statutes, would say maintain the British flag in Canada, for to it they owe their liberty. I am a Catholic, and I can say I am a Liberal, and am proud of it. Lacordaire said: 'When I die I will be a penitent monk, but an impenitent Liberal,' and yet these hot-headed, brainless and broken-down men, like Blondin, go about the country saying we owe nothing to England, and we will not give them a navy. Is the Canadian country the monopoly of English-speaking persons? Do we not belong to it? Have we no interest in conserving this land that our fathers fought and died for? To pretend otherwise is the greatest insult possible, and if I judge by the enthusiasm, the victory of good sense, of reason against Chauvinism, fanaticism and narrowness.

Kicked In Fight.

Ottawa, Sept. 1.—Echoes of the Liberal faction fight at Campbell's Bay Tuesday evening on the occasion of the Aylesworth-Fisher meeting were heard yesterday, when John Hirty was brought to the Water street hospital in a critical condition as a result of kicks received from an ardent Hodgins' supporter. Hirty was one of those who were in the thickest of the fight and after the smoke of battle had cleared away, was found lying in the hotel yard unconscious and bleeding.

He was carried to the train and removed to his home on a stretcher. Yesterday his condition became serious and was brought to the hospital here, where he now lies in a critical condition. He complains of having been brutally kicked in the abdomen. One of the men who participated in the fight is now under arrest and his trial will be held at Shawville in a few days.

Warlike Preparations.

Brussels, Sept. 1.—The Belgium Government continues actively engaged in completing the armament of all the garrisons on the German and French borders. Several trains have been dispatched with ammunition and guns from the Liege arsenal to Namur, Liege and Verviers. All the forts are being inspected.

At Antwerp the engineer corps are transporting all campaign material from Tete de Flandre to the Antwerp side of the Schedlt.

The Belgian newspapers explain the activity by the statement that the talk of European hostilities has awakened the Belgian War Ministry to the unprepared condition of the Belgian army and defences.

No Blame Attached.

New Hamburg, Sept. 1.—Upon resumption of the inquest before Coroner Marty yesterday on the death of Robert Spahr, who was found dead upon the G.T.R. near here last Friday morning, the following verdict was rendered: "That Robert Spahr came to his death by being run over by the train whilst lying unconscious across the railway track on the morning of Aug. 25, 1911, unconsciousness being caused by the result of a fall in a friendly scuffle at Berlin with Aaron Binkle, no blame being attached to Binkle or any other person."

May Be One of Martin's Crew.

Wiarton, Sept. 1.—The decomposed body of a boy was found floating in the lake by Capt. Burke of the barge Chamberlain, 13 miles off Cape Croker and brought here Wednesday night.

Dr. Fisher, the coroner, believes the body has been in the water nearly two weeks, and in that case the lad may have been one of the victims of the ill-fated tug Martin of Midland, lost off Point au Baril, on Monday, August 21st.

Standard Oil Dissolved.

New York, Sept. 1.—The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, the corporation which has been the storm centre of anti-trust agitation throughout the country for years, yesterday passed out of existence, so far as its present form and functions are concerned.

The work of apportioning the company's holdings of the stock of more than 30 subsidiaries affected will occupy at least three months.

Parker Goes to Pen.

Seattle, Wn., Sept. 1.—George H. Parker of Seattle, convicted in New York of using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of stock in the United Wireless Telegraph Co., was brought to the federal prison on McNeil Island from New York yesterday and began serving a sentence of two years' imprisonment. Parker is rated as a millionaire.

Got Minimum Sentence.

Lindsay, Sept. 1.—Frank Reynolds, the 16-year-old Toronto lad who on Sunday last hired a horse from Lindsay's livery, drove it to Port Perry and sold the equine there for a small sum, was yesterday morning sentenced to the minimum period of six months in Central Prison. The boy has also to face a similar charge in Peterboro.

Almost four-fifths of the total excavation to be done on the Panama Canal has been completed.

Ferryboat Not to Blame.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—Instead of giving the ferryboat the right of way which it should have had, it was shown at the inquest at the morgue last night that Clayton Smith, who was in charge of the launch, the sinking of which caused the death of Mrs. Hattie Gates, had not noticed the ferries approaching until within a few feet of it and had gone straight ahead. And it was also shown that had Smith swerved to the right instead of to the left he might have merely scraped sides with the ferry, as the captain of the steamer, "T.J. Clark," had turned his boat to the right when he saw that the launch was not going behind him. Instead, Smith turned to the left, foiled the captain's attempt to miss him and was run down.

Caught Runaway.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—Elwood Oles, one of the five boys who escaped from the Mimico Industrial School last January, was arrested at the exhibition grounds yesterday. As luck would have it, he came to see the fair on the very day when the boys from the Mimico School had their annual visit there and Oles was spotted by his former schoolmates. It was not a very loyal act on their part when they told the detectives of his whereabouts.

Since his escape, Oles has been in many places, including Brantford and Detroit.

British Miners Restless.

London, Sept. 1.—A deep undercurrent of unrest and dissatisfaction exists among the coal miners, who are agitating for a minimum wage.

The miners threaten a national coal strike unless a settlement of this question is arrived at without undue delay.

A great conference of miners will be held in October, when, if the matter has not been settled, preparations will be made for a strike to take place in November or the beginning of December.

For Losing Mona Lisa.

Paris, Sept. 1.—Theophile Homolle, director of the National Museums, was suspended by the French Cabinet yesterday in consequence of the disappearance of Leonardo Da Vincis' painting, "Mona Lisa," from the Louvre. It was the opinion of the members of the Ministry that M. Homolle took insufficient precautions to guard the treasures in the museums.

Candidates Sign Agreement.

Chatham, Sept. 1.—The campaign in West Kent over the question of reciprocity is growing in interest. Both candidates have signed an agreement that they will conduct an absolutely clean campaign, and a joint fund of $1,000 has been deposited for the purpose of prosecuting any person on either side who is found guilty of bribing the electorate.

Planing Factory Burned.

Lindsay, Sept. 1.—Yesterday morning the planing factory of the Gull River Lumber Co. at Coboconk was totally destroyed by fire; origin unknown. The sawmill and shingle mill were in great danger, but were saved by the efforts of the bucket brigade. The loss is estimated at over $4,000. A Grand Trunk car on the siding was partly destroyed.

"BARGAIN" GLASSES ARE DANGEROUS GLASSES

A woman who was hunting "bargain glasses" finally succeeded in "fitting" her eyes with what she enthusiastically declares was "just the thing." And immensely pleased with herself, this woman had brought about the gravest danger a woman could invest in, for she had bought two pieces of glass crudely ground, but magnifying strongly, and with them she can see 'better to read'—That seeing better will mean an intense strain upon the her eyes, but she will not realize what the trouble is, nor the injury the glasses are doing. Some day she will be under the care of a Specialist, probably for the removal of a cataract, which will cost considerable, to say nothing of the suffering entailed, and she will be fortunate indeed if she does not suffer partial or entire loss of sight for the remainder of her life.

We have every qualification for giving your eyes a thorough examination. We fit you with the finest ground lenses, and at a very reasonable cost. Thousands of our citizens can certify to the care, skill and thoroughness of the examination, and the good results they had in wearing the glasses we prescribed. ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

REV. H. D. RAYMOND LEAVING ORILLIA

To Become Lecturer in Emmanuel College at Saskatoon

The Rev. H. D. Raymond has resigned the position of assistant minister at St. James' church to accept the post of lecturer in Church History and Pastoral Theolgoy in Emmanuel College at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. Emmanuel College is an English Church institution affiliated with the University of Saskatchewan. It owes its inception largely to the energy of that remarkable man the Rev. Archdeacon Lloyd. The position taken by Mr. Raymond will involve a certain amount of pastoral work for the first year or so. Mr. Raymond has done an excellent work in St. James', which will leave its mark on the congregation in more than one direction. He has been particularly attentive to the sick and the poor, and there are many who have profited by his ministrations who will learn with much regret of his removal from town. He leaves on Saturday for a well earned holiday prior to taking up his duties in Saskatchewan on the 24th of September.

HORSE THIEF GETS SIX MONTHS

Lindsay Magistrate is Lenient With the Young Prisoner

Lindsay, Aug. 31.—Frank Reynolds, the 16-yearsold Toronto horse theif, appeared before the magistrate this morning to receive his sentence. The magistrate showed leniency towards him, holding the view that there might still be some good left in the boy, and a light penalty might serve as a lesson and set the boy on the right track.

The maximum penalty for horse stealing is 14 years and the minimum is six months. The magistrate gave him six months in Central prison.

This is the youth who got the outfit at Lakefield and disposed of it in this city, getting one payment of $10.

No further action will be taken by Chief Thompson.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Harry Dolby

The death occurred early this morning in the Ross Memorial Hospital of Mrs. Harry Dolby, a young Lindsay woman, well known and highly respected by her numerous friends. A year or so ago the late Mrs. Dolby suffered the loss of her husband, and recently the deceased lady underwent an operation from the effects of which she never fully recovered. A week ago she paid a visit to her brother-in-law, at Sutton, Ont., where she took seriously ill and had to be removed to Lindsay.

The late Mrs. Dolby is survived by one son and one daughter, while a brother, Mr. Drake lives in Peterboro; a sister, Mrs. Natress, of Millbrook, and Mrs. Murray of town. All have the sincere sympathy of their many friends in their sad bereavement.—Lindsay Warder.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late John Haynard, held yesterday afternoon from the late residence on Albret street, was largely attended. WEDDING BELLS

DOWNING—SMART

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smart, 94 Lindsay Ave, Toronto when their second daughter, Margaret E. was united in marriage to Mr. Albert J. Downing. Only the immediate relatives and very close friends witnessed the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. John McIntosh pastor of the Olivet Baptist church.

The bride entered the drawing room which was nicely decorated with ferns and roses, leaning on the arm of her father by whom she was given away, the wedding march being played by Miss Letta M. Smart, niece of the bride.

The bride's wedding gown was a beautiful marquesett dress trimmed with white satin, and guipure face. The bride and groom were unattended.

The many beautiful and costly presents received testified to the high esteem in which the newly married couple are held.

After congratulations had been extended, all sat down to a sumptuous supper.

The bride's travelling costume was a blue tailored suit with hat to match. The newly married couple left for Alcott Beach and other points midst showers of confetti and well wishes. Upon their return they will reside at 391 Hope Avenue, East Toronto.

Among those present from Peterboro, were Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Matchett and Mr. G. A. Gobeen.

FRANCIS LeFABVRE MET DEATH WHILE AT WORK AT C.G.E.

Jammed Between Door of Freight Car and Unloading Platform—Resided on Elm Street.

At nine o'clock this morning, a distressing accident occurred at the stores department of the Canadian General Electric works, resulting in the death of Mr. Francis LeFabvre, an elderly employe, who lived at 412 Elm street.

WAS UNLOADING FREIGHT

From what information could be gathered it appears that the unfortunate man whose duty is to assist in the unloading of the freight from the box cars on the stores siding, became jammed between the unloading platform, and a car door thereby sustaining such a terrible crushing that he expired shortly after he was extricated.

The cars were being shunted at the time, and it seems that the deceased failed to get out of the way quickly enough, when the car passed in front of the end of the platform which is used to bring the freight from the cars into the stores building.

DEATH SOON FOLLOWED

While Mr. LeFabvre was removed from his terrible position as rapidly as possible, his injuries were so severe that he lived only a few moments, and was dead before the ambulance which had been ordered, arrived.

The late Mr. LeFabvre had been a resident of this city for nearly half a century, but had been in the employ of the Canadian General only since last Spring. He was a genial and generally liked employe, and his tragic death will be widely regretted.

Besides his wife, there is left a family of eight, consisting of four sons and four daughters namely Mrs. Lawrence of the city, Mrs. Head of Toronto, Mrs. Smith, also of Toronto and Mrs. LeGros of Peterboro, and three sons, Alfred, Frank and Harry of the city, and John of Rochester.

Coroner Dr. Greer is absent from the city, and it is now known whether or not an inquest will be held.

It is about fourteen years since they left their native land.

JUNK DEALER ACQUITTED

Charge Against John Doig Dismissed by Magistrate

Boys Said They Received Permission to Take Wire

John Doig, the junk dealer, was acquitted at police court this morning of a charge of having received alleged stolen goods consisting of copper wire to the amount of 400 pounds.

The circumstances of the charge are familiar to the public. It seems that one of the C.G.E. company's foremen missed 1000 pounds of copper wire from the premises where they were stringing wires to the north end power house.

The company informed the police and Chief Thompson had the junk shops of the city searched. A considerable quantity, 400 pounds in all, was found in the Florence junk shop on Aylmer street. The proprietor stated that it was purchased from John Doig. Doig was arrested on the charge of receiving stolen goods. His defence was that he bought it from several small boys without being aware that it was stolen goods.

In court this morning the boys stated that the men in charge of the construction work had given them permission to have the wire, showing thereby that Doig must have been innocent of receiving stolen property knowingly. His worship therefore brought in an acquittal.

PITTSBURG PIRATES BEAT LEAFS BY SCORE OF 4-2

Clarke's Men Took All Their Tallies in the Third—Wagner Did Not Play.

Toronto, Sept 1—The Pittsburg Pirates, while being detained on their journey here yesterday, made up for any lost time sustained by taking the Leafs into camp to the tune of 4 to 2, one bad inning—the third—netting the visitors their four counters. Over 10,000 fans and fanettes gathered from all over Ontario were on hand, many coming down from London to see their favorite "Mooney" Gibson in action. Incidentally, it might be remarked that the paid attendance was 10,642 and Secretary Locke, of the visitors paid this high tribute to the Toronto club after the game, by remarking that his cheque for the exhibition was the largest one ever received by the Pittsburg Club.

Take two Pittsburg

Gardner, a big rangy fellow started on the mound for the Pirates, and had the Leafs guessing with his curves and mixers, although baseball conditions were not conductive to good batting by either team, as a strong wind blew in towards the plate. With these conditions existing, the outfielders were given some busy moments, catches by Campbell and O'Hara being the features of the afternoon, with O'Hara's grand running bare-handed spear of Wilson's drive in the fifth being the grand play of the day. Wilson hit the ball for keeps to deep left, but O'Hara, after a long run, just reached it in time to grab it with his bare hand.

The Leafs outhit the visitors by one, but this was offset by four bases on balls by the Toronto twirlers to two by Gardner. Errors figured largely in the Pirates run getting, two of them coming in the third, when the visitors scored their four counters, and these, along with a fluke hit by Gardner, when the latter attempted to sacrifice.

MURDERESS NOW IN KINGSTON PEN.

Mrs. Neapolitano Thinks She Will Ultimately be Pardoned

Kingston, Sept. 1.—Mrs. Angelino Neapolitano, the convicted slayer of her husband, who was sentenced to die at Sault Ste. Marie, on August 9th, who through the efforts of the women of Canada and the United States was spared to spend her life in prison, arrived in the city on the midnight train and was taken to the penitentiary early this morning. She stopped at the British American Hotel for the night.

Mrs. Neapolitano was in good health and apparently her future life had no terrors for her. She seemed confident of an ultimate pardon. As yet she has not been placed in the prison, but it is probable that she will be set to work in the women's ward.

The officials who brought her down stated that there was an affecting scene, yesterday morning, when the baby, for whose birth the date of execution had been delayed was taken from her at the Sault Ste. Marie jail, to be placed in the care of the Children's Aid Society, which has now custody of her five children. Before leaving she took an affectionate farewell to all the children, and with tears in her eyes made for the door, where a closed carriage was waiting to convey her to the steamer.

HELPING NATIONALISTS?

Sir Wilfrid Says Conservatives Are Financing Them.

New Glasgow, N. S., Sept. 1.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier at his meeting here yesterday charged the Conservatives with distributing Nationalist literature. Last night ended the Nova Scotian tour.

En route to New Glasgow he held three meetings; speaking to the Hants electors at Shubenacadie, to the Colchester people at Truro and the constituency of Pictou at Stellarton.

In the course of his New Glasgow address, Sir Wilfrid produced a copy of Le Devoir of July 13, and a reproduction of the article as a leaflet which he read. It charged that he was an ultra-Imperialist, and had intrigued with Chamberlain to carry on their ambitious Imperial projects through this 'infamous war.'

"What has this to do with the present issue before the Canadian people" queried Sir Wilfrid. "It has this to do with it, my fellow-countrymen. I charge that the anti-reciprocity Conservatives have entered into an unholy alliance with Mr Bourassa and the Nationalists in an effort to defeat the Government at this time. The Montreal Herald, which has been investigating the circumstances surrounding the promulgation of the article I have read you, advises us, and publishes the statement, that the distribution of this article in the parishes of my native province is being financed and paid for by the anti-reciprocity Conservative party in Montreal. You are told by these gentlemen that I am conspiring to betray Imperial interests and British connection; my compatriots are told by the same gentlemen that I am conspiring with and for British Imperialists. What does it mean What is its purpose? Perhaps Mr. Borden or Mr. Bourassa can tell."

American Lumbermen Are Evading Canadian Duty.

Vancouver, Sept. 1.—A sensation was caused yesterday at a joint session of coast and mountain sawmill men of British Columbia, when it was alleged that American competitors have taken advantage of the absence of the duty on rough lumber to send thousands of carloads of dressed lumber into the prairie markets without paying the duty, as required by the Canadian Customs tariff.

Customs officers, it was alleged, overlook proper classification of imported dressed lumber, and continue to wink at devious methods declared to be in vogue. A strong protest will be sent to Ottawa.

The meeting devoted nearly all day to a consideration of the situation created by the competition of Puget Sound and Idaho rivals in western Canada. The depression in the lumber trade south of the international boundary has resulted in an invasion of the markets of the prairie provinces and British Columbia at prices estimated to be lower than actual manufacturing costs. A strong committee, entrusted with the task of devising ways and means to meet the extraordinary conditions which now prevail, was appointed. It will report to a special meeting to be held next month.

Seen the Aeroplane Hats?

Chicago, Sept. 1.—The science of aviation is to be the chief influence on designs for woman's headgear next winter, according to the National Association of Retail Milliners, which opened its fall convention here on Wednesday night. Like the aeroplanes, the hats will be based on two distinct designs, monoplanes, with single spreads of plumes, and biplanes. In the display of winter styles, such names are found as "Sky stars," the "Volplane turban," and the "Rainbow spiral," a particularly giddy effect in many colors.

Chicago, Sept. 1. Fighting against flames which swept through a four-storey building in the downtown district yesterday, ten firemen were slightly injured by an explosion of chemicals, and before the fire was extinguished $100,000 worth of property was burned. DEMAND CHEAPER FOOD

French Riots Are Steadily Growing in Seriousness.

Agitation For a Reduced Price on the Necessities of Life Is Spreading From the Northern Districts to Other Parts of France—"Butter at Thirty Sous or Revolution" Is One Cry of the Manifestants.

Paris, Sept. 1.—A campaign which has for its purpose a reduction of the high prices of food was started yesterday in Paris.

Ten taxicabs, the occupants carrying devices on which were inscribed demands that the cost of necessaries be lowered, paraded through the Champs Elysee and other thoroughfares.

Open agitation, with some violence, is going on in thirty or forty towns and cities in the northern departments, and the movement is spreading to other parts of France.

Energetic demonstrations are being held at Orleans, the capital of the department of Loiret.

At Douai, department of Nord, banners bearing the inscription "butter at thirty sous or revolution," were borne in a procession of 2,000 persons, mostly women, here yesterday. As they marched the manifestants sang revolutionary hymns.

At Lille, the general confederation of labor has taken up the agitation. Six thousand metal workers voiced their protest yesterday by parading through the streets.

Serious riots over the price of food occurred in St. Quentin last night. The mob pillaged several butcher stores and set fire to one of them, in spite of the efforts of the police.

Ban on Joy Riding.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—Expulsion from the Ontario Motor League is threatened by the directors as a penalty for reckless driving on the part of the members.

They have decided to send a circular to all their members, asking that they drive carefully and that they report to the secretary of the league any cases of furious and reckless driving which may come under their notice. The league has always favored and advocated careful driving. The reason for the steps that will be taken is that there have been several serious accidents recently.

E. A. James, engineer, has reported to the league that three-fourths of the work of improving York County roads would be finished by the end of 1912.

New York, Sept. 1.—Steps that may lead to the revoking of the license of the Madison Square Athletic Club, under whose auspices the fight was held Wednesday night between Matt Wells and "Knockout" Brown, were taken yesterday by Fire Commissioner Johnson. Patrick Powers, one of the fight managers, was served with a notice that in permitting 300 persons or more to stand in the arena during the bout, he had violated a provision of the city charter.

POINTS ABOUT THE DEAL

IT IS AGAINST CONSERVATION

Chairman of Government's Conservation Commission is a Foremost Opponent of Reciprocity

By JOHN V. BORNE.

It need not be supposed that Canada should "hog" her supplies of pulpwood, any more than that she should throw them at the Republic, as a means of saving the Republic from the woeful want that will follow its own wilful waste.

Two policies are working for the general advantage of Canada in this matter, neither of which must be sacrificed to the natural desires of Washington.

The first is that of stimulating the conversion of natural products into finished manufactures, as near to their place of origin as natural conditions and far-seeing enterprise will permit—a policy which explains the increase of pulp and paper mills in the highlands of Quebec, and the creation of such flourishing towns as Grand Mere and Shawinigan Falls. United States papermakers, of course, would rather bring Canadian raw material to their mills than to take the mills to Canada. Ontario and Quebec and New Brunswick have decided that the pulpwood on Crown Lands shall be manufactured at home—hence the disappointment of Secretary Knox and his colleagues to be content "for the present" with conditional arrangements.

The second policy is represented by the Conservation Commission, which is intended primarily to preserve the forests from precisely the kind of destruction which it is bound to accompany their ruthless invasion by aliens whose interest is confined to what they can take away.

The Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in establishing the Commission appointed as Chairman the Hon. Clifford Sifton, who, from 1896 to 1905, was Minister of the Interior. Mr. Sifton is one of the strongest opponents of the Reciprocity Agreement.

EXPECT TO CONTROL CANADIAN WHEAT

And Regret that Provinces Stand in the Way of Unlimited Access to Canadian Forests

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Though the President of the United States in his official message transmitting to Congress the Reciprocity Agreement did not use the word "control" when anticipating free access to Canada's raw materials, he used it in a speech at Columbus, Ohio, in reference to the wheat trade:—

> It will give to the United States much greater control of the wheat market than it ever had before. It will enable its milling plants to turn the Canadian wheat into flour and send abroad the finished product

Secretary of State Knox used the same word at Chicago, at a Reciprocity banquet, attended by leading business men from over the whole of the Middle West. He said:—

> In providing for free wheat we also take into account the facilities which the United States possesses for handling a part of the surplus Canadian crop, and thus preventing the demoralization of prices which results through the dumping of large quantities upon the European markets, where the world's price is fixed. The free admission of grain from Canada thus meets the present situation and provides against contingencies when the Canadian surplus becomes greater by placing the control in the hands of our own grain growers

Literally, Canada is to be a hewer of wood to the United States, for, as the President wrote, "We shall reduce the consumption of our own forests." Secretary Knox, in a letter of January 21st, informing the two Canadian Ministers that they had properly interpreted the agreement that they had made, mourned over his failure to get all he wanted because certain Provinces were in the way:—

> It is a matter of some regret on our part that we have been unable to adjust our differences on the subject of wood pulp, pulp wood and print paper. We recognize the difficulties to which you refer growing out of the nature of the relations between the Dominion and the Provincial Governments, and that for the present we must be content with the conditional arrangement.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Will someone please tell me if D. O'Connell, of Bridgenorth and Young's Point fame is the same little mannikin with curly white locks and a headlight we see trotting up and down on our streets? We sometimes see him on horseback, and he reminds one of a peanut on a log. If he is the man, then for goodness sake tell me where he stores all those big phrases in that measly little body? What trade does he follow, or does he just wander around slangwhanging people who are his superiors in every way? I wonder why Big Thunder Stratton don't make him a judge. He would be such an ornament to that body. I am of the opinion that on the 21st September it will be a Daniel come to judgment. He was not of big enough calibre to take part in the Talkfest in the opera house last evening, (was he)?

Yours, &c.,

OUT FOR INFORMATION.

MR. BURNHAM REPLIES.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Mr. D. O'Connell, who, no doubt may be regarded as the spokesman of the church, charged me on the platform at Young's Point and Bridgenorth in the presence of Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P., and Mr. Stratton charged me at the Hon. George P. Graham's meeting at the Opera House here with having wrongfully, wantonly and maliciously stirred up sectarian and religious strife in Peterborough. It is doubtless incumbent upon me to make a reply to these charges or stand convicted of them. My reply, however will be brief. It will be in the words of his Holiness Pope Pius X and I hope the above gentlemen will not fail to accuse his Holiness of stirring up strife in his efforts to turn the world from what he considers its mistaken ideas of modern freedom and government. Let it be remembered Modernism and Protestantism are the same thing. They both deny the supremacy of papal authority and affirm the liberty of believers. This decree against modernism is addressed to the clergy only. His Holiness says after stating the case of Modernism and the necessity of immediately putting an end to its existence;—"Such is the situation of the Modernists and their one great anxiety is in consequence to find a way of conciliation between the authority of the Church and the liberty of believers." Thus it will be seen the Pope denies the liberty of believers. So much for the religious part of it. His Holiness then says regarding the social institutions of the people;—"Finally we entrust to the Councils of Vigilance the duty of overlooking assiduously and diligently social institutions as well as writings on social questions so that they harbor no trace of Modernism, but obey the prescriptions of the Roman Pontiffs." What are the Councils of Vigilance referred to? In instituting them the Pope says;—"But of what avail, Venerable Brethren, will be all our commands and prescriptions if they are not dutifully and firmly carried out? And in order that this may be done it has seemed expedient to us to extend to all dioceses the regulations laid down with great wisdom many years ago by the Bishops of Umbria for theirs. In order (they say) to extirpate the errors already propagated and to prevent their further diffusion x x x we decree therefore that in every diocese a council of this kind which we are pleased to name 'The Council of Vigilance,' be instituted without delay. The priests called to form part in it x x x shall meet every two months x x. They shall be bound to secrecy as to their deliberations and decisions x x."

In order that these orders of the Pope may not be taken lightly as Mr. O'Connell and others would appear to ask us to do his Holiness further says;—"We will, therefore that the Bishops putting aside all fear and the prudence of the flesh, despising the outcries of the wicked x x x do each his own share of this work x x." People will now see what the new marriage decree means. It is the first attempt of the Councils of Vigilance since the Modernism decree to interfere with social institutions. We may expect much more for has not the Pope most positively ordered it? Is it likely that Protestants will lie down quietly in the face of these decrees? It is to expect too much. What designs on our liberty has the man who commands that we keep silent in the face of these repressive measures. France has rebelled. Why not Canada? We are on the eve of a great crisis.

Yours, etc.,

J. H. BURNHAM.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

J. R. STRATTON HOLDS A RALLY ASSISTED BY HON. MR. GRAHAM

the swimming holes, that there wasn't any reciprocity, and the Conservative press didn't amount to much. It would have been a sin to have had the rivers dry up then, and do away with those swimming holes. Where would the Exam get campaign material now?

This reciprocity agreement was a "simple, little agreement." A pin is a little, simple thing, but it can prick rather hard, but reciprocity was different. He went on to tell about the addition of a third market. "Let me look back——" a roar of laughter drowned the speaker, for people thought he was going to tell them about those old swimming days.

"Just a minute," protested Mr. Stratton.

He went back to the old days when the National policy was instituted and depression reigned over the land, to tell about how Peterborough industries were up against it. It was when the tariff was lessened by the Liberals that these industrial wheels began to hum louder and whir faster. At this rate free trade in manufactures would make such an industrial roar that we would all have wheels. It was the great Liberal reduction of 1 per cent over the Foster tariff of 1896 that made these wheels go round.

A heckler asked what was the population of Peterborough in 1896, as compared with 1910 when the great I-am was telling of the increase in the Peterborough customs return. It was 10,000 then, and it was now 18,300. But the addition of Ashburnham in the meantime seemed to have been a figment of the imagination. Cheers and hisses greeted this population remark.

The Farmers' Bank hero thought that when it came to a question of the ladies voting, he would get the ladies' vote, for he had a wife. What good would ladies' votes do Mr. Burnham (hisses.) What good did the Farmers' Bank do to the depositors and the shareholders, and to Beattie Nesbitt and some others it might be asked. But while Mr. Burnham might have been the creator of the Children's Aid Society, he as provincial secretary had put legislation through. (Loud applause when Mr. Burnham's name was mentioned as the creator of the Children's Aid Society.) "Mr. Burnham has this thing to his credit, and I'm satisfied that when he departs this life he will have at least one thing to show he was alive." Big Thunder Chief Stratton will have many more things than one to show he was alive. You bet! When it comes to deals that make a Jew in a pawnshop look like a baby with a toy rattle, he is right there. He was alive in this strife, and awake when others slept to see what he could get. No fleas on him, except to bite other people if they came too near

The speaker got onto the religious racket. The same old story, the same old stereotyped phrases, the same hypocritical sanctimony—all were on the job. Hisses and cheers greeted his statement that he knew those who had signed applications as members of the Protestant federation. This piece of bluff and effrontery was quite a la Stratton. The big noise then dealt with his elections, but it would have been most interesting to show how much these had actually cost him. But Mr. Stratton went on to mention all the public institutions in Peterborough, scarcely even forgetting to mention the dog-kennels and the cat-roosts, and to show that these were provided by "a Protestant and a Liberal." Judging by the list, there never were any Conservatives in the place for the last forty years who had enough money or enough spirit to do more than pay their taxes. They were not members of the Ross government, or even adherents of the boodling community at Ottawa.

Then the Farmers' Bank hero came to the question of Mr. Burnham's seat on the church on the hill—St. John's ... etc.... etc.—ad nauseam. He (Stratton) was the great, the broad-minded defender of the faiths of all men. He was ready to publish the names of those in the federation, the sowers of disunion, of strife,—this man who rose to the lofty pinnacle of such disregard for denominational and religious differences.

"What I have done for Peterborough" formed a chapter in the address by itself. Strange to say, mugs weren't mentioned, nor even the addition to the lasting fame that Peterborough has secured as the home of the man who wrecked the Ross government. "How I have done Peterborough" will form the chapter in some future time. He announced that by the time his next term in parliament was through (bio)—a prospect, by the way, on which Mr. Stratton is privately shaking in his shoes—he hoped the Trent valley canal would be completed. And, oh, what a powerful election army will there be then, under the able generalship of the boss. The canal will elect the members from here, not the workingmen of Peterborough.

"You are safer in the hands of the devil whom you do know," said he "than in the hands of the devil you don't know." Let us scratch our heads a moment about that. It is probably the first time the big gun has admitted he was the very devil himself. Then if he is the devil, Peterborough must be hell, for this is where he lives. Surely on September 21, it is time this devil were bound and chained and cast into the bottomless pit for a thousand years. Then he may be loosened for a season. If Peterborough is the residence of the devil, let us make it hot for him. Is it to be always the case that the devil shall be boss of hell, or do the inhabitants thereof have a say? Do the people rule?

RECIPROCITY.

The chief excuse for reciprocity Mr. Stratton could offer was that it was not as harmful as it was understood. It was not for one year, or two or five or ten. "Let us give it a trial," said he, "and if we are not satisfied with it, we can repeal it." He asked it, just like a parent says to her two-year-old hopeful, when she wanted to give it some soothing syrup. "Now just try it, dear, just try. If you don't like, you don't have to take it." But in the meantime it is down

Many in the audience got up, and made for the doors when the tariff question was being handled. They had heard the old tale that reciprocity was good for the farmer who sells to the workingman; would help the workingman to get cheaper produce from the farmer who got higher prices; and that the manufacturer would be benefited by the opening of the Canadian markets to the competition of the whole world. Mr. Stratton worked hard to show that the manufacturers and the workingman would not be hurt, but that he could buy his Georgia watermelons and his California strawberries early and cheaply. He argued that if an extra American buyer were on the ground for the farmers' produce, would the farmer shove him off? But he neglected to ask if an extra American seller were here, if the merchant would invite him in, to sell in his store. And if the American extra buyers were here, to offer a higher price for the farmers' products, how the workingman of Peterborough would get them at a lower price.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was a great man. His "white locks had crossed the ocean five times." Whether he had crated them for export, or shipped them merely in care of the cabin boy, is in doubt. But the white locks went, and like the proverbial cat, came back.

And no Canadian ever was ashamed of the premier. Not even when the premier declared in Boston that the ideal of Canadian life was independence "as the ripe fruit falls from the parent tree." This was Mr. Stratton's last appeal to the people of Peterborough. It was then good-bye, old pal, good-bye.

HON. GEO. P. SPEAKS.

By this time Hon. George P. Graham had almost given up hope of a chance to speak. The honorable George is a good speaker, logical and pointed. He roused the audience some, by his knowledge and his apt comparisons. He made the plea of the necessity of larger markets, for Canada's growing time, and denied that Canada had been clubbed by the United States into making reciprocity a go. He dealt with the east and west transportation systems, but he did not tell the audience about the G.T.P. scandals, or the grafts and the steals, etc. He argued that the nine Hill lines with their noses on the Canadian boundaries, would carry United states stuff to the Hudson Bay route, but he forgot to say that the Hudson Bay route is open for only two months of the year, and the rest of the time, where will the traffic go? He spent a lot of time hunting up old evidence about views of reciprocity, and the loyalty cry. The working man of Peterborough would have fresh southern eggs all winter. (How about the higher prices for the farmer?) The workingman would have early southern vegetables. (How about the wider markets and the higher prices for the gardener and the farmer?) Poultry which was scarce and high in cold weather would be low and plentiful in price. (Where does the farmer come in?) And so on.

Hugh Guthrie, K.C., of Guelph, happened in, and spoke until half-past eleven, to a half empty house, on beans, and other aspects of reciprocity. It was a good stomachful for one night—quite a mixture.

CHARGE AGAINST OFFICER GUNTON

Woman Says He Extorted Money From Her by Menace

Toronto, Aug. 31.—A rather serious charge is preferred by the Morality Department against W. A. Gunton, who is well known as a provincial officer of the Children's Aid Society. It is alleged that he obtained $10 from Mrs. Bertha Hall by menaces.

It appears that Mrs. Hall took a friendly interest in a young girl who had been taken from an improper resort to a hospital, and gave the girl a home when she was released from the institution.

The written statement of Mrs. Hall is to the effect that Gunton went to her and told her that she was liable to seven years' imprisonment in the penitentiary for holding a ward of the Children's Aid Society, and that she must pay $10 towards the girl's keep. She says she paid the money, and after telling him she was not afraid of the police, she went to the station and told her story.

Gunton appeared in the police court this morning and was remanded for a week.

He asked Crown Attorney Corley to undertake his defence, as the whole thing was a mistake, but he was told that it couldn't be done.

A second will of the late John W. Gates has been found which bequeaths only $1,000,000 to his son as an outright bequest, with a $2,000,000 trust fund.

FORMER PETERBORO TEACHER MR. J. H. LONG, CONDEMNS THE RECIPROCITY PACT STRONGLY

Gives Brooklyn Eagle Reasons Why Canadians Are Opposed to Reciprocity—Was Collegiate Principal Here Twenty Years Ago

J. H. Long, who was principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute twenty years ago, and who is now in Brooklyn N.Y., has written a most able letter to the Brooklyn Eagle on the reasons why Canada does not want the reciprocity pact. Mr. Long will be remembered in Peterborough as an exceptionally clever man, and this letter is only characteristic of him. It has been quoted in some Canadian papers without the name being divulged, but the fact that Mr. Long was the author came to the knowledge of Mr. W.H. Hill, in a personal letter from the United States. Mr. Long prefaces his article by remarking that the reciprocity scheme will be opposed by the Conservative party en masse and also by "very many prominent Liberals;" and he then proceeds to state reasons for their so doing, as follows—

CANADA HAS DONE WELL WITHOUT RECIPROCITY.

"1. Canada has done very well indeed without reciprocal trade.

Put upon their mettle by the brusque indifference and many a rebuff from her southern neighbor, the statesmen of Canada many years ago determined that there should be "no more pilgrimages to Washington."

She set herself, therefore, bravely to the task of working out her own economic salvation.

It need not be said that her efforts have been crowned with wonderful success.

Her population—which, by the way, contrary to the general opinion, has since the Revolution, since the war of 1812, and since the union of the two provinces in 1841, grown much faster proportionately than has that of the United States—has lately gone forward with leaps and bounds.

GREAT GROWTH WITHOUT RECIPROCITY, THEN, WHY MAKE A CHANGE?

"Immigrants of the very best type are pouring into the country by hundreds of thousands, the American contingent numbering about 75,000 a year.

Again, the trade per capita of Canada, is much greater than that of the United States, her foreign trade being about three times as large per capita.

Furthermore, the wealth of Canada per head is about 50 per cent greater than that of the United States; while in railway mileage, telegraph mileage and various other criteria of material progress Canada is proportionately in advance of the great Republic.

Moreover, she is now just on the threshold of a development without parallel in her history.

Why then, it is said, imperil this development by an EXPERIMENT, the result of which no one can foresee? Why not leave well enough alone?

RECIPROCITY WOULD BREAK UP THE FABRIC OF HOME PRODUCTION

"2. Hundreds of millions of dollars have within the last few years, been invested in Canadian manufactures invested in the firm belief that the Canadian market should, within reasonable limits, be preserved to Canadian producers.

Now, even if the present measure do not at once and directly injure these manufacturing interests, it is the thin end of the wedge to be used for breaking up the fabric of home production.

The history of Canada has shown again and again that American manufacturers use Canada as a dumping ground for their surplus stock, with the object of killing the Canadian trade, and when the Canadian trade has been killed, the prices of the American goods at once go up.

DESTROY EAST AND WEST TRADE AND INJURE RAILWAY ENTERPRIZE

"3. Vast sums have, within the last few years, been invested in canals, railroads and steamship lines. At the present time two tran-continental lines are being pushed through, in addition to the Canadian Pacific.

Of this last named line, by the way, it was said at first that it would never yield a single cent of dividend. We know what its stock is worth to-day; and there is no reason to doubt that the other roads opening up New Canada will prove equally successful.

These roads with their subsidiary enterprizes, are, however, primarily for east and west, not north and south traffic.

(Anything that deflects traffic to north and south channels must therefore, injure them.

Moreover, they have been built very largely with British capital, which has been poured into Canada in an increasing stream on the belief that her fiscal policy would not be revolutionized.

What will be the effect of such a radical departure upon the minds of the investors abroad?

RECIPROCITY WOULD DEPLETE CANADA'S NATURAL RESOURCES

"4. It is asked why the Americans who have hitherto taken so languid an interest in Canada, are now so anxious to have reciprocity; and the answer is a The Natural resources of the United States in the way of timber and so on are becoming exhausted, and b The cost of living in the States has become so high that something must be done.

Shall Canada's resources then be subjected to a like process of depletion?

Shall Canadian artisans, small farmers and laborers, whose scale of living is acknowledged to be higher than that of their American neighbors, be ground down by trusts and monopolies, so that Canada shall become the land of opportunity indeed, but for millionaires, not for honest, hard-working people?

"These are the most important economic objections. There are others which appeal to Canadian patriotism.

These Americans generally fail to understand, because they have not read Canadian history, a very inspiring and romantic history. There is all the romance of the old regime, the gallant struggle for 150 years of a mere handful of "Canadians" against the power and wealth of the English seaboard colonies to keep the fleur de-lis flying in the clear Canadian sky.

LOYALTY TO CANADA AND BRITAIN STRONGLY OPPOSES RECIPROCITY.

"There is the epic of the Revolution when rather than haul down the old flag, the United Empire Loyalists after a heroic fight against mighty odds, betook themselves into the northern wilderness, enduring hardships far more bitter than those suffered by their Pilgrim sires, and laid broad and deep the foundations of the Canada of to-day.

"And then there was that other day of trials, the war of 1812 and 1814 when French and English Canadians fought side by side, a quarter of a million against eight millions, and again and again drove back the invader.

The Canadian of to-day cannot forget this.

He cannot forget the aid given by Americans to the Rebellion of 1837-8 and to the Fenians, in their raids of 1866-1870-1.

He cannot forget the aid given by 1854-66 was abrogated by the Americans with the avowed purpose of forcing ANNEXATION.

THE PACT WOULD LEAD TO COMMERCIAL UNION AND ANNEXATION

"He cannot forget that American newspapers and public men have for 100 years been prophesying of the day when the flag shall fly from the Arctic Ocean to the Gulf of Mexico. Canadians are resolved to resist, therefore, everything that has the slightest tendency towards annexation or toward the breaking up of the Empire for which they have shed their blood in every part of the world.

It is argued then, that the present measure is but the beginning of unrestricted reciprocity, as indeed all prominent Americans have declared.

If that comes to pass, the Canadian tariff will be made in Washington, not in Ottawa, all hope of an inter-imperial tariff agreement will disappear and there will remain one and only one more step to be taken, ANNEXATION

"To this, as I have said, CANADIANS ARE ABSOLUTELY OPPOSED: opposed on the grounds of traditional patriotism, opposed because, rightly or wrongly they believe they have NEVER BEEN TREATED FAIRLY in negotiations with Americans; and opposed, because they wish to PRESERVE THE HIGHER TONE which they believe prevails in Canadian life.

That there is such higher tone, there is good ground to believe.

CANADA'S MORAL AND CIVIL STATUS ENDANGERED BY THE SCHEME

"For example, on the same basis of population there are thirty times as many murders in the United States as in the Dominion; there are virtually no divorces in Canada, while there are 60,000 a year in the States. It is not necessary to enlarge upon this one has but to compare the House at Ottawa with that at Washington; the professional tone in Toronto with that in its sister city, Buffalo; the lawlessness of the settlement of the American North-West with the order and security of that of the Canadian. There is no denying the fact that in the administration of justice in the official life, in education, and in social life, there is a higher tone in Canada than in the States; a fact which the American settlers in the North West are the first to acknowledge. Now, if the present measure of reciprocity will tend to the amalgamation of the two peoples, Canadians in general will have none of it. They are willing to forget what they have suffered in the past at the hands of the American people; they wish the Americans all happiness and prosperity; but they will not prove recreant to their trust.

They will not take one step towards reciprocity if they believe that this will at last lead to the absorption of Canada by the great Republic, or to the severance of the tie which binds them to that mighty Empire which stands to-day as the world's greatest bulwark of peace and civilization."

NOTHING SAID FOR RAILWAYMEN

Hon. G. P. Graham Made Bad Omission at Havelock

The Town Hall in Havelock yesterday was fairly well filled, to hear Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals endeavor to tell the people of that town why, and how, reciprocity would beneficially affect the country.

Mr. F. D. Kerr also spoke briefly renewing parts of Mr. Graham's address, and ending up with a regular patriotic oration, evidently intended to work up more enthusiasm than was manifested at the meeting. Indeed the occasional outbreaks of applause did not appear to be very enthusiastic at any time, and there appeared to be some slight difficulty in getting the applause started at times. It was only when Mr. Graham and Mr. Kerr got away with a rather vigorous and nicely turned sentence which appealed to the gathering, from a pure rhetorical standpoint, as demanding of approval, that it was forthcoming.

Hon. Mr. Graham outlined his idea of what the reciprocity pact would do in Canada. He also quoted some ures and statistics printed in pamphlet issued by the Conservative party entitled "Let Well Enough Alone" he furthermore tried to over rule two of the objections that have been raised against the treaty, namely one that it would destroy transportation and the second that it was disloyal.

There appeared to be little real interest manifested by the presence of Mr. Graham in the town and Nothing of interest to the railroad men of Havelock was said at any time during the meeting.

PRESENTATION BY ST. LUKE'S W. A.

A pleasing event took place last week at the residence of Mrs. W. H. Gibbs, 767 George street when Mrs. J. He is now in command of the 101st regiment at Edmonton, which he organized.

FRANCE SENDS AN ULTIMATUM TO GERMANY; IS IT TO BE WAR?

Germany a Seething Camp of Anglophobism—Meetings Held—Britain Was Not Asleep.

New York, Sept. 2.—A London cable to The Times yesterday morning says: "Ultimatum" is the term used in London to describe the character of the written instructions which the French ambassador at Berlin, Jules Cambon, carried from Paris on his return to his post to resume the negotiations on the Morocco question.

The word has an ugly sound, and its use was avoided by the newspapers yesterday morning, but throughout yesterday ever since the Echo de Paris published an article summarizing the draft of the instructions for M. Canbon, drawn up by the French Cabinet, no hesitation was shown here in so interpreting them. One paper, indeed, goes the length of speaking of the ultimate concessions that France can offer to Germany in exchange for definite guarantees with regard to Morocco."

There is confident expectation here that Germany will swallow the pill, just as there exists a certain amount of satisfaction at the thought that she will not find it to her liking.

German resentment at the part which England, rightly or wrongly, is supposed to be playing is growing apace, and the persistent enmity of Great Britain toward Germany is the keynote of many Berlin newspaper articles.

There is a disposition here to consider the Teutonic attacks upon England as a red herring drawn across the trail. "The octopus when alarmed tries to hid itself by discharging an inky cloud," says The Daily Mail "Germany has adopted this ruse, and the re-opening of the negotiations with France have been made the occasion of another outburst against Great Britain."

France Is Hopeful.

Paris, Sept. 2.—The French Foreign Office, it is understood, has not received any sure indication that Germany will accept the French proposals for a settlement of the Moroccan question, yet a measure of confidence is felt in an early agreement because of the extent of the compensations which are to be offered by France. Since these are Central African areas, it is not supposed that Germany would proceed to extreme lengths over a few thousand square miles, more or less.

The real difficulty in the way of an early settlement, it is believed at the Foreign Office, lies in the special commercial and mining guarantees which Germany may seek in Morocco, as nothing can be given Germany in Morocco which Great Britain does not possess. Besides, anything like special privileges would afford endless occasions for the re-opening of the controversy on questions of interpretation.

The French and British Governments have reached the fullest mutual agreement upon every phase of the Franco-German dispute.

Anti-English Meetings.

London, Sept. 2.—A fair amount of war insurance was offered Thursday, and with the market becoming restricted the rates advanced further on the risk of war breaking out between certain European powers within two months. Some risks were accepted at 5 per cent. and in some cases 10 per cent. was quoted.

A Morocco mass meeting was held in Berlin Thursday night, and all accounts indicate that the gathering resolved itself into a violent demonstration against England. There has been no similar public outburst of Anglophobia in Germany since the days of the Boer war.

References to France were couched in terms of friendship, and were greeted with something approaching enthusiasm.

It may be added that even in London circles where Germanphobia is not rampant, it is generally believed that the German action at Agadir was taken in the belief that England was so much occupied with domestic affairs that she could pay little or no attention to foreign matters, and that the decisive position taken up by the Liberal Government was a complete surprise to the German Foreign Office.

LIBERAL BOLTS THE RANKS

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Another bomb was thrown into the camp of the reciprocity supporter this morning when Mr. Thomas Robertson, head of the great confectionery firm of Robertson Brothers, Limited announced that on this occasion he would not support Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Mr. Robertson has been a Liberal since the days of George Brown. His gigantic factory in this city employs six hundred loyal people. It is the largest exclusively confectionery factory in the Dominion.

Mr. Robertson is a man of broad experience. He did not announce his break with the Liberal party without mature consideration. He sees industrial life of the country threatened and its transportation services injured. There is no aspect of the agreement and its possible consequences that Mr. Robertson has not studied, and his stand is timely taken.

FISHING PARTY OF EIGHT SENT TO WATERY GRAVE

Launch Was Struck by a Freight Steamer Soon After Starting.

Special to the Review.

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 2.—Seven men were drowned in Maumee Bay to-day, when their launch was run down by a freight steamer. The dead are James Wisler, superintendent of the waterworks system, Harry Batch, a member of the Council, Fred Shane, secretary of Public Service Commission and four others named Platt, Carroll, Tinker and Mayor, who were waterworks employees. The party had just started on a fishing excursion.

Western Wheat Crop.

Winnipeg, Sept. 2.—It was estimated yesterday that half of Saskatchewan's wheat crop is cut. In Manitoba the percentage is even higher. Accurate estimates from Alberta are lacking, but most recent reports announce harvesting operations well under way. A large proportion of the oat crop has also been cut. Threshing on the Portage Plains has commenced and it is anticipated that the beginning of next week will find threshing pretty general. In the few places where grain has been threshed, it has been found to average from twenty to twenty-five bushels to the acre, but it is impossible to make any general estimate from these isolated returns. The 40,000 men required to handle the crop are now on the ground and it is anticipated that the yield will be handled without further damage from any direction.

MURDER CASE GOES TO JURY

Col. Denison Commits Wilkie for Trial by Jury.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Standing in the dock tapping the rail, Edward Wilkie was committed for trial by Col. Denison yesterday on a charge of murdering his wife, Ellen, on the night of Aug. 14.

Frank Perry, jointly accused, was discharged. A coroner's jury had exonerated him. The prisoner Wilkie was represented by Mr. W. A. Henderson.

Dressed in black, her little face drawn and white, Lily Reynolds, the prisoner's thirteen-year-old stepdaughter recalled the night of her mother's death.

"He dragged mamma into the hall by the hair and kicked her," she said, blanching.

In answer to a further question by Mr. Corley, who tried to save the little girl as much as possible, Lily told of her mother getting up from the floor standing near the stairs and being struck by her stepfather.

To Mr. Corley's last question, the white-faced little girl said her mamma lived 15 or 20 minutes after being struck.

The prisoner was then committed for trial.

Little Lily Reynolds' life has been crowded into tragedy. Her father was killed by a fall during the erection of the City Hall.

PREMIER NOW IN ISLAND PROVINCE

Big Crowd Hears Him at Charlottetown.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Sept. 2.—After a hard trip across the straits yesterday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier entered Prince Edward Island and addressed eight thousand people in the Arena here. The Premier was cordially received.

A deputation informally waited upon Hon. Mr. Fielding at Georgetown, urging the Minister of Finance to make arrangements for the improvement of communication between the island and the mainland, in order, they said, that the islanders might secure the full advantage of the service to the New England States in exporting their fish, potatoes and farm products under the operation of the reciprocity agreement.

"As in the United States," said the Premier, "so here in Canada, reciprocity is opposed by the trusts, monopolies and special interests. But we have the people, our fellow-countrymen, at our back from one end of the country to the other."

From Montague to Charlottetown the Premier traveled over the Prince Edward Island Railway, arriving here for the big meeting last night. At every station en route he was accorded demonstrations. Special trains had run from all parts of the island and had to leave passengers at nearly every station for lack of accommodation.

MR. BORDEN TELLS HOW THE OLIVER SCANDAL WAS STIFLED

Someone Wanted to Know About the $69,000 Slush Fund in Quebec.

Cookshire, Sept. 2.—Mr. R. L. Borden and his lieutenants adjourned from Victoria Hall here yesterday and converted an intended indoor meeting into an outdoor one, in order to satisfy several hundred people who could not find room within.

The Conservative chieftain had hardly started to review the charges against the Laurier administration when someone cried, "What about Oliver?"

Mr. Borden immediately took up this question and said:

"No one knows very much up to the present time concerning the source of the huge sums of money which Mr. Oliver awoke one morning to find to his credit in the bank. This ignorance is due to the flagrant manner in which the Government has buried an investigation. A solemn pledge was given in Parliament to the Opposition that Parliament would still be sitting at the date set for the resumption of the committee's hearings on the charges against Mr. Oliver, and that pledge was given in the presence of the Minister of the crown whose honor was at stake. You all know how that pledge was broken."

Mr. Borden then discussed reciprocity at some length along the lines of former speeches.

Academic Appointments.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Prof. Abraham Lincoln McCrimmon was formally appointed Chancellor of McMaster University by the Senate at its meeting yesterday afternoon.

H. F. Dawes, M.A., teacher in physics in the University of Toronto, was appointed to the McMaster chair in physics, made vacant by the appointment of Dr. Hogg to Saskatchewan University. Mr. Dawes is a graduate of Varsity. He was awarded in 1906 the Wellaston Research Studentship at Cambridge.

Three appointments were made to the staff of Woodstock College. V. A. Ray, M.A., of Galt, was appointed instructor in manual training; Leon McCrimmon, son of the new McMaster chancellor, becomes science master, and Ralph Bowron, of Hamilton, is now physical instructor.

Miss Louise Risdon, of St. Thomas, was appointed teacher of the piano at Moulton College.

Food Riots Continue.

Paris, France, Sept. 2.—Rioting, which broke out at St. Quentin on Thursday evening over the high price of food, lasted all night. A regiment of infantry and a squadron of cavalry called out to quell the disturbance were unable to cope with the mob, which plundered shops in widely separated streets at the same time.

At Lens trade is completely at a standstill owing to the fear of expected food riots.

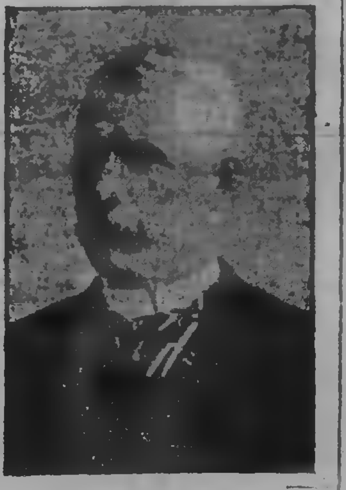
TONS OF LIME DUMPED INTO RESERVOIRS OF NEW YORK TO PURIFY WATER AND CHECK TYPHOID FEVER EPIDEMIC.

DISSOLVING LIME TO BE DUMPED INTO CROTON ACQUEDUCT.

New York's threatened scarcity of water has reached that alarming stage which has caused the Board of Health to take extraordinary precautions to prevent contamination of the low supply of water in the city's reservoirs. To guard against a wholesale epidemic of typhoid fever every method known to science is being adopted in an effort to bring about a purification of the water supply in the Croton aqueduct.

Great quantities of chemicals are being placed in the aqueduct to free the water from the impurities. Acting on the advice of the Board of Health, Commissioner Thompson, of the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity, is employing a large force of men in an effort to guard against supplying impure water to the residents of New York city. These workmen are dumping five tons of chloride of lime into the aqueduct daily.

RECIPROCITY LIBERAL IS IN THE FIELD AGAINST GERMAN



WILLIAM M. GERMAN.

Port Colborne Barrister Accepts if Sir Wilfrid Approves of the Opposition.

Welland, Sept. 2.—Though the Liberal convention of Welland County declared a week ago that they would put no candidates in the field in opposition to W. M. German, the Liberal, who has been representative for the past twenty years, his strong speeches against the reciprocity pact and his declaration that he will vote against it, brought about the convention that was held yesterday for the purpose of bringing out a reciprocity candidate. The choice fell upon Louis Kinnear, M.A., a Port Colborne barrister. Mr. Kinnear asked for three days in which to consult Sir Wilfrid. He wishes to learn first if it is Sir Wilfrid's wish that Mr. German should be opposed, and second, who will get the patronage of the county.

A. J. Ben, president of the Pelham Liberal Association, called the meeting together. He said that the convention had been called to protest against dishonorable dealing to which the previous convention had been subjected. It was clearly evident in the speeches which followed that Mr. German had made many enemies among his old-time friends; one man ever went so far as to accuse him of being connected with the "interests." Louis Kinnear, who later received the nomination, took the chair after being appointed by motion. "Instead of resigning Mr. German has placed himself in line with the opponents to the pact. At the Conservative convention it was made plain that he played to both sides. In the committee room at our convention he told us he would vote for reciprocity, and afterwards he told the convention that he would not vote favorably if his vote was needed. It is for these reasons that this convention has been called," said the prospective candidate.

Hon. Richard Harcourt remarked that he was glad to see so many, as he termed them, real Liberals at the meeting. "Canada's lean years were under Sir John A. Macdonald's period," he said.

The nominations were then made. Mr. Kinnear was nominated by A. J. Mabee of Fort Erie, and A. H. Schrigley, and made unanimous by a motion of B. Atkinson and J. Steele. Others who were nominated were Hon. Richard Harcourt, J. F. Gross, J. F. Guenthier, Wilson Cline. All withdrew.

Personalities In South York.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Louis Heyd, K.C., intimated in a letter he has sent to W. F. Maclean that he intends to turn the joint meetings that he proposed with the Conservative candidate in South York into a discussion, not of reciprocity and the real issues of the campaign, but a personal discussion concerning W. F.'s business conduct.

He gives notice that he intends to talk about the Farmers' Bank, a circular to the members of the C.M.A. sent out by the manager of The World a year ago, "the inconsistent attitude and policies which you and The World newspaper have taken on different occasions," and "other matters which it is unnecessary at the present time to mention."

Two Suffocate In Sewer.

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 2.—Rexford D. Lyon and Oliver K. Harwood, civil engineers employed on the intercepting sewer, were suffocated in the sewer at noon yesterday while making measurements for additional work. Harwood was a famous football player.

GOOD POSITIONS GET IN LINE

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of seven Business Colleges located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk, students may enter any day. Many students study all at home and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada and have thirty years experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1200 students and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you. 12d

C. E. CONVENTION FOR OTTAWA

Will Meet on Sept. 12 in the Capital

Toronto, Sept. 2.—The Ontario and Quebec Christian Endeavor Unions are arranging for a convention in Ottawa on Sept. 12 to commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of the birth, near Ottawa, of the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, Rev. Francis Clark, D.D., LL.D. Dr. Clark has promised to attend this convention, and will bring with him Earl Lehman, one of the ablest of the many field secretaries of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. Both will deliver addresses on Christian Endeavor work.

A feature of the convention will be a trip to Aylmer, the birthplace of Dr. Clark, and the holding of a memorial service at the grave of his mother near that town. This trip will be taken on the afternoon of the convention day, and will be followed by a banquet and mass meeting in Ottawa.

FOR FAMILY USE

An Ideal Remedy for Coughs, Sore Throat, Catarrh, Weak Chest.

After having made a special study of the treatment of the throat and lungs for twenty years, Prof. D. Jackson states that in his opinion no preparation for general family use is so efficient, so healing, so certain to cure as Catarrhozone.

As his reasons for making this claim for Catarrhozone, Dr. Jackson says:

"Catarrhozone is free from opium.

"The patient can breathe its rich, balsamic fumes direct to the diseased spot.

"It is a remedy that treats and cures causes—prevents disease spreading.

"Alleviates chest soreness.

"Stops coughing instantly.

"Prevents bronchial irritations.

"Relieves clogged nostrils.

"Cures sniffles and nasal catarrh.

"Prevents La Grippe.

"Has proven itself a cure for weak lungs, loss of voice, speakers' sore throat, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, coughs, colds, and winter ills."

Catarrhozone is unquestionably the world's greatest breathable cold cough, and catarrh medicine, and being free from all drowsy drugs, entirely safe for children and old folks; it makes an ideal family remedy. ITS TRUE INWARDNESS

Liberal orators throughout the country are so wonderfully endeavoring to persuade the people of this country that with the opening of the great American markets to the farmers of Ontario the agricultural community of this country will be greatly benefitted. They are endeavoring to delude the farmer into belief that larger markets mean higher prices for agricultural products, and to induce the farmer to vote for reciprocity in the belief that he will be benefitted in pocket thereby.

Before the present treaty was negotiated the United States government employed a small army of experts to examine carefully into the conditions of their various markets, and to gather statistics bearing on every conceivable point so as to show congress clearly how the United States farmer or producer would be affected. These facts and figures were before the American negotiators when our Canadian representatives went to Washington. Our statesmen had no such facts or figures before them. Then entered into negotiations blindfold. After the negotiations were ended the President sent his message advocating the passing of a reciprocity treaty to Congress. Attached to that message were a number of tables of facts and figures showing, amongst other things, a comparison of the prices obtained for agricultural products in the market at Buffalo with those in Toronto and those in Oldensburg, New York, with those in Prescott, Ontario. These figures, let us remember, were obtained to show how the people of the United States would be affected. We can rely upon it, therefore, that the figures are absolutely correct and not misleading. These figures show that in Toronto and Prescott the prices for beef, cattle, sheep, hogs, dairy produce and poultry are higher than in Buffalo and Ogdensburg.

President Taft, in a recent address, told the farmers of the United States not to be alarmed as they would sell Canadians more agricultural products than we would sell them. In the face of these facts how can the farmer of Ontario benefit by throwing open his home market, with its higher prices to competitors in exchange for the larger market of the United States with its smaller prices.

In the United States at the present time the price of horses, for instance, is $50 per head less than in Canada. Every farmer owns from four to ten horses, which at $50 per head will mean a net loss to him on horses alone from $200 to $500. How long will it take to make up the loss on his horses, his cattle, his sheep and his hogs, from the higher prices it is claimed he may possibly get from the sales of a few apples, a little hay or one or two other products, too trifling to mention in the American market.

In what respect do the Liberal leaders who are holding out the inducement that a larger and uncertain market means larger income for the farmer differ from the fake company promoters who hold out glittering inducements of large returns on an investment to induce one to part with his money and then pay the first few dividends out of capital? Is there any difference? There can be none if by the change the farmer stands to gain even a little in income, but stands to lose a goodly part of his hard earned capital through the reduction in value of his horses, cattle, sheep and hogs.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A vote for Burnham is a knock for Strattonism. Peterborough needs a bath.

Clean up the electoral house. Gather up the fragments of Strattonism, and Burn'em.

The Hamilton Spectator very pointedly remarks that when a Liberal like Joe Martin turns against Laurierism, it is time for ordinary people to put clothes-pins to their noses.

On every side around the city, and in many of the townships around, voters are declaring that they have cast their last vote for the Honourable James Robert Stratton, late provincial secretary of the Ross administration.

By the way, where was Dan. O'Connell on Thursday night? Why was he carefully secluded from sight? Can it be that his speeches are such as to appeal only to the intelligence of Ennismore farmers, and that he isn't a suitable speaker to address a city audience?

The Graham meeting was remarkable for the enthusiasm shown for Hon. George P. Graham's remarks, but hisses and cheers equally divided the honors as regards the big 4-am. Yesterday a lady who was at the meeting, and who said she was a Liberal, called up the Review to protest against the personal abuse handed out by Mr. Stratton as argument against Mr Burnham. She said that the lack of even public decency made her sick and ashamed, as Sir William Van Horne was, but, of course, the abuse was to be expected. Evidently this dear lady has not been reading the Stratton organ very closely, or she would not have made a face at what she heard from the platform. The organ years and years ago was called the "smut-machine," and it seems to be able to keep up to the old reputation pretty well.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TEMPER.

"I know I have a temper," I heard a girl say the other day; "but, at any rate, I'm not sulky." And from the tone in which she said it, one would have thought that a temper was something to be proud of, so long as it wasn't a sulky one.

As temper ages people, and leaves more lines on the face than almost any other thing, it isn't very wise to indulge in it at all. And there is another side of the picture, too. The people we live with have to be considered to some extent, and if we could only realise all the pain we give those near and dear to us when we indulge in fits of temper, we should surely try to get out of this bad habit. Life is too short to spend in wounding people unnecessarily, so the sooner we give up doing it, the better.

ABOUT COREA.

Corea is the land of queer customs. One is that the children in school use sand boxes instead of slates. They use the difficult Chinese characters and have to learn them as early in life as we do the alphabet. They make the character in the sand with a stick and then shuffle the box and make another.

There are many "little mothers" in Corea, for babies are mostly given over to older girls to be cared for. A broad sash or strip of cloth is tied around the waist of the little mother, and the baby is tucked snugly within its folds. It keeps its place during all the games of the children and seems as contented and happy as possible.

AWAY WITH THE TREATY

Hon. G. W. Ross Says Canada Must Not Become Entangled with the States

"Canada does not stand in any great need of a reciprocity treaty with the United States," says G. W. Ross, former Premier of Ontario. "Let me remember the epitaph of the man who, having lived to a good old age, thought medicine might be of some use, and so consulted a physician. He wrote his epitaph for the benefit of his fellow-men: 'I was well, I wanted to be better, and here I lie.' We are prosperous. Reciprocity might furnish a better market for the minor products of the farm here and there, but that is a small matter. Let us not want to be better unless we are sure of the effects of the medicine. We are free from entanglements with the United States. We cannot be embarrassed by any amendments we make in our tariff, or if we are we can alter it ourselves. A treaty we cannot alter. We have taken the duty off binder twine and barbed wire and corn, and we have given the Americans a free list of goods under which they sold us last year $79,471,000 worth of merchandise on which there was no duty. If they are anxious for better trade relations with Canada, let them negotiate through their own Congress at Washington and reduce their tariff as it may suit them and let us reciprocate, if we deem it expedient, through the Parliament of Canada. An adjustment of the trade relations between the two countries by the independent legislation of both rather than by treaty is the only safe course, as it affords publicity in the first instance and admits of perfect freedom of action thereafter. In the meantime let Canada continue to sell her merchandise wherever she finds a market, and, trusting in that Providence which has always filled her barns with plenty and made her merchants princes in the land, let her not hazard her trade or her independence for expectations that may never be realised, nor place herself under obligations that might interfere with the fullest development of her industrial prosperity in the years to come."

AN EMPTY SHADOW

Canada Would Suffer with its Cheese Selling at American Prices

The advocates of Reciprocity with the United States would turn from the splendid British market and send our cheese across the border to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, and other large American centres. They argue that prices are higher in the United States than in Canada, and that Canadian cheese makers will be able to hold their present enviable position on the British markets and supply the States too. This policy reminds one of the old fable about the dog with a large, succulent steak in his mouth jumping into the water in a vain attempt to secure a bigger piece of meat. The bigger piece turned out to be only a shadow, and the poor dog, besides being disappointed, lost the choice morsel that he had been carrying. Canada, in the year ending 1909, shipped 176,408,960 pounds of cheese, worth $22,106,108, to Great Britain. The average value per pound was 12 53-100 cents. But, had Canada received for her cheese an average price equal to that received by the cheese makers of the United States for their exports to Great Britain, he would have realized a total return of only $21,753,118, or a loss of $362,990.

The following statement of cheese imports into Great Britain in 1909 is sufficient to show Canada's excellent position in the Motherland:—

Belgium	$ 981,129
France	790,152
Netherlands	3,365,426
United States	636,443
Other Foreign Countries	36,504
New Zealand	5,430,075
Canada	22,106,100
Other British Possessions	6,020

BAD FOR APPLE GROWERS

The West Would be Swamped with Washington and Oregon Fruit

Sam Nesbitt, M.P.P., speaking at Campbellford, said he would take five electors from the constituency for a tour around Ontario and thence to New York State, and thus give them all an opportunity to judge the conditions governing the apple growing industry in the two countries. He pointed out that the State of Washington was expected soon to produce 20,000,000 barrels of apples a year and Oregon would have a yield of 7,000,000 barrels yearly. In these States fruit trees would yield a full crop in five or six years, as compared with ten or twelve years in Ontario. The Ontario grower would thus be unable to compete with the United States grower in the Western provinces. Last year, he said, he had sold 11,000 barrels of apples in the Western provinces. This year he had found it impossible to make contracts for the sale of apples in the West until after election day. Buyers in Prince Edward County, he said, had already reduced their purchases to await the result of the polling on Sept. 21.

Would Resist Any Attempt

The late Sir John Macdonald in one of his electoral addresses said: "I therefore need scarcely state my firm belief that the prosperity of Canada depends upon its permanent connection with the Mother Country, and that I shall resist to the utmost any attempt (from whatever quarter it may come) which may tend to weaken that union."

The Theatre Garibaldi, Third street, New York, will be devoted hereafter to Arabian comic opera.

"And you could marry me one time as well as another?"

"Tomorrow as well as any other day."

Within arm's length of the prize which I coveted more than all else in the world combined, the woman for whom I would have waived my claims upon immortality to have possessed at the point of yielding herself to my embrace, my tongue burst forth in an impassioned appeal. "Then come with me to-morrow, sweetheart—dearest! We will be quietly married and start at once for Europe. I can leave my interests in the hands of my broker, who will protect me fully. We will want for nothing. We will go to Paris, to Spain, to Algiers. We will cruise through the Mediterranean. We will summer in the Alps. We will winter on the Nile. The world shall be ours. The papers and cable will keep me in daily touch with affairs here. If all goes well for a few months, as it surely must, we will not need to return, but will go on and on as you wish. None will be as happy as we, and our lives will be one long honeymoon. Nothing shall be denied you, come." Carried away as I was by the impetuosity of my passion, I firmly believed that I had forecasted our destiny as infallibly as fate itself as I turned my glance from the flying roadway to her face. She must have caught some of my enthusiasm, for her eyes were glowing and the fingers which I held entwined themselves amongst mine.

"It is what I have dreamed also. It is what my life must be, and of late I have grown to picture you in my mind as the one who is to share all those things with me. But it would be terrible to awake some morning in the midst of our happiness and find it ruined. Therefore I wish you to be fully insured before embarking—not that I would love you any the more if you had a million, but because the life you have just portrayed is what we both crave. And I believe that all you have said will come true. But while I might wish very much to marry you to-morrow, I think it is better to wait."

I slipped my free arm beneath hers and drew her to me. "Make it to-morrow, dearest," I pleaded, feeling that she swayed upon the brink of surrender and that could I have taken her in my arms she would have yielded completely. "When I think how happy we would be, it seems a shameful waste of time to deny ourselves." Her bosom was rising and falling rapidly and I knew that the battle within her was raging sharply. Her reply was both distressed and beseeching:

"You must not press me any more, Tom. No woman is more human than I. You are making it very difficult for me to resist, and it hurts me to say 'no' to you. Please—please don't drive me so hard."

"To-morrow," I insisted mercilessly, holding her still tighter and pushing my advantage to the uttermost. She averted her face, a troubled look haunting it.

"Then I will compromise in this way. I will give you your answer to-morrow. I must have one day in which to think it over. Mind you, I do not promise; I do not refuse; I simply demand a day of grace. You must let go of me now."

The finality of her tones told me that further pleading at this time would be more likely to jeopardize my chances than help them, but feeling confident, nevertheless, that I had won, I released her. And that she had practically made up her mind to yield I became more and more convinced during every momtnt of the next two hours as I attended her in her purchases of dainty handkerchiefs and other bits of lingerie as we wandered through the great stores. Never before had she smiled upon me so often or so sweetly, and her little detaining clasps upon my arm from time to time as she drew me aside for the inspection of something that attracted her attention were almost caresslike in their lingering warmth. And when she finally made the excuse of wishing to shop alone for an hour among forbidden things, promising to meet me for lunch at the end of that time, I left her in an ecstasy that mortal man seldom attains, and even then for but a fleeting moment.

It was 12 o'clock, noon, and I decided to run over to my broker's for a little talk with him while I was killing the interval of her absence. My stock had closed strong the night before after a substantial rise during the day; and there was absolutely no cause in sight for uneasiness on my part. That it would go at least 20 points higher nobody seemed to doubt, for at last the public was fairly apprised of its value and the daily heavy purchases were sending it upward by leaps and bounds. The project back of it was a tremendous undertaking; the value of the franchise already practically inestimable, and that the enterprise would be one of the greatest money makers of the world seemed as certain as that the inhabitants of the city would increase and multiply. I knew that a ring of politicians had fathered the enterprise in the shadow of a star chamber with curtains drawn, yet they had been granted official sanction by the city council and that seemed to settle the matter. Whether the scheme had been carried through by bribery or not was a mooted question. Richard Mackay had been arrested upon such a charge, but had escaped through a technicality of the law. But whether there had been chicanery back of it or not was a matter which did not concern me, and I saw no reason why I should not be swept along to opulence upon a tidal wave of some one else's creation as well as any other man. It would have been a super-sensitive conscience that would not have taken advantage of such an opportunity. Certainly it was a beautiful world, a glorious world, and I one of its greatest fortunates.

At the first corner a shrieking newsboy nearly ran between my legs, and above the uproar of the street I heard him shout a sentence that caused me to gasp and clutch at a lamp post for support. Snatching a paper from him I threw him a coin and began to read, the paper shaking in my hands like a wind-thrummed reed. Two paragraphs told me the hideous truth. Upon information that had been given him by Richard Mackay, who had been frozen out of the combination by his co-conspirators, the state's attorney had filed a quo warranto proceeding in which he attacked the very life of the franchise of the underground system. Should that official be able to substantiate the attack and prove that the grant had been obtained by fraud and trickery, as Mackay stated, the courts might deprive the corporation of all its rights and privileges, take away its power to act and render it hopelessly impotent. Under such a frightful condition of affairs the stock would become absolutely worthless, and beneath this stab at its heart it had already fallen with a crash that had carried half of those who had ridden upon it to ruin. My meagre margins had been wiped out as quickly as a guilty schoolboy scours his slate, and I had been made a bankrupt in the time which it takes to tell it. I dropped the paper and staggered into a doorway, my hands pressing my temples.

The world swam drunkenly before me in a hideous gray mist, through which men with faces lined and hardened by hopes long deferred, passed ghostlike as they plodded silently along with strained eyes in search of the sordid necessities which bind the soul and body together. The roar of the street came to my deadened ears like the sullen grumble of thunder. From out of the gloom weary shop girls and ragged newsboys stared curiously up at my drawn face, none poorer than I, none half so wretched. For they had abided in the depths and had not seen the star of hope shining close above them, whereas I had been hurled from the battlements of heaven in the twinkling of an eye. Deadened of sense and seeing but vaguely, I went stumbling towards my broker's office, my only hope being that I would awake and find that I had dreamed a nightmare.

His doors were locked. Already a rabble stood before them vainly clamoring for admittance, and realizing the uselessness of remaining there, I rushed down the stairs and towards the floor of the Exchange. The shrieking uproar of the pit was unintelligible to me, but in the midst of it with his collar torn from his neck and his coat split down the back, was my agent, still dancing about insanely, with wild thrusts of his fingers into the air. The frenzy upon his face left me no vestige of hope, and I turned away with my brain spinning. Four steps further and I almost ran into the arms of Richard Mackay.

His teeth showed beneath his heavy moustaches; his eyes burned and his face was stamped with the vindictiveness that had brought this inferno about. He saw me at once and a brutal laugh of satisfaction burst from between the half-sealed lips which my fist had split. "I did it partly for your benefit, if that is any satisfaction to you. But I am not through with you even yet, puppy," he said in my ears, as he passed. Too broken of spirit to resent the insult other than by a look I passed him in silence.

How I got through that terrible afternoon I am still uncertain, except in a vague way. I dared not keep my luncheon engagement with Mrs. Dace and tell her all; but instead kept mumbling to myself that I would call her up that evening when I had a chance to think over what I should say.

There is always a chance, though it be only one in a million, that something will be saved out of a wreck; and come what might, matters could not possibly be more hopeless at nightfall than they were now. And perhaps by then I could think of something to retrieve myself temporarily; something which would eventually start me once more along the primrose way. Scarcely conscious of what I was doing I wandered to Bruce's office. He was not there, but his clerk told me that my cousin for some reason had closed out all his holdings the day before at a handsome profit and had announced himself as through with speculation. The bitterness of the contrast between him and myself brought the tears to my eyes. Should he carry out this resolve and stick to his commissions, as I had little doubt that he would under Clare's persuasions and the weight of his promise, has happiness was in his own keeping. He had undoubtedly again gained a modest competence, had a good business and the love of a sweetly beautiful and contented woman. Verily the richest gifts of the gods reposed in the hollow of his hand.

I went home and threw myself heavily upon the bed. At the summons to the evening meal I failed to respond; burying my face in the pillow instead, as for the hundredth time I rehearsed what I was to say to Mrs. Dace. I could only tell her that I had received a severe setback, but was planning a new campaign, and beg of her a few days' indulgence until I could go over matters. She had told me that she was to be at home that evening, and it had been understood between us that I was to be with her; therefore, at eight o'clock I arose and called for her number. The voice of Janet answered me, telling me that her mistress was not at home.

Skyscrapers Lean Over.

New York, Sept. 2.—A Chicago despatch says: The discovery that the Unity building, a sixteen-storey Dearborn street structure, is three feet out of plumb at the skyline, has set the city building inspectors investigating. They say every skyscraper in the city is leaning more or less. The 21-storey Masonic Temple is seriously out of plumb, while the Ellsworth building and the Pullman building also, are imitating the Tower of Pisa. The owners of the Unity building have been ordered to straighten it up, as it threatens to topple.

The subway constructed in swampy soil, is blamed for giving the skyscrapers a dangerous tilt. If it were not for the steel construction the city would order several vacated.

Beamsville, Sept. 2.—Pearl McTaggart, 17 years of age, is missing from her home here. Bed clothes tied by a rope were found hanging from her window, showing that she had lowered herself out of the window during the night. The police are searching for her. It is believed she may have gone to Toronto.

BRONCHITIS COMPLETELY CURED.

St. Jean, P.Q., Jan. 5th, 1910.
Father Morriscy Med. Co. Ltd.,
I can gratefully testify in favor of Father Morriscy's Remedy for Bronchial trouble. I had suffered for some time from Bronchitis, and could get nothing to give me ease, until I tried Father Morriscy's Prescription (No. 10). To my great surprise, after I had taken this remedy I commenced to grow better, and soon after I was completely cured.
Mde. GEORGE DESMARAIS.

Everybody knows that many common roots, barks and herbs contain Nature's own provision for the relief of coughs and colds. It remained for Father Morriscy, with his wonderful medical skill, to combine extracts from these in such a way as to make the most effective cure for all forms of throat and lung troubles.

His prescription, known as "Father Morriscy's No. 10" or "Lung Tonic", stops a cough by curing the inflamed condition of throat or lungs which causes it. It goes a step further, too, and earns its name of "Lung Tonic" by strengthening the weakened parts.

AFRAID OF A BLOW

A System of Imperial Preferential Tariffs Would Injure the States

Champ Clark, in his famous speech at Chicago, said: "The time, probably the last time, when this can be realized has arrived. The future union of all parts of the British Empire in a commercial federation is almost certain. When that shall have been concluded, under a system of preferential advantages securing the English market to the colonial producer of raw material and food products, and the colonial market to the English manufacturer, it will strike the United States a double blow. Our best customer, Great Britain, and our third best, Canada, will trade less and less with us and more and more with each other. And it will then be permanently impossible to repair our error. Political and economic weather signals indicate that should the present measure fail no other can succeed for many years, if ever."

DESERTED FARMS

The Decline of Farming In New England is Proceeding Apace

Do the Canadian farmers imagine that they can invade the markets of the United States, and succeed where so many American farmers fail? If so, let them make a survey of farming conditions east of the Mississippi in the United States. If there were any virtue in this cry of free access to a market of ninety millions of people, or if the United States had even begun to have reached its limit of production, surely these farmers would at least have begun to feel the benefit of it. Exactly the reverse is the case.

The United States census reports of the 20-year period from 1880 to 1900 show that in that time no fewer than 15,344 farms in New England went out of existence; that there were 17,000 less farmers in these States at the end of the period than at the beginning, and that some 5,000,000 acres of land that were in cultivation in 1880 went out of tillage and cultivation.

And, thanks to the trusts, the profits of the farmers in the great markets now to be placed open to the people of Canada are so small that the decline of farming in New England is still progressing, despite free access to the market of ninety millions of people. Last year—the year of their census—there were in New England 187,418 farms, which is 2.3 less per cent, than the number at the census of 1900. The total acreage of these farms in 1910 was 19,674,000 acres, and in the acreage there had been, in the last ten years, a decrease of 4.8 per cent. Of this total acreage not quite one-half—or, to be exact, 7,242,000 acres—was improved land.

And here, too, there had been a decrease, and a very substantial one, for it amounted to almost 11 per cent. This is where the effect of abandoning appears, the land of these abandoned farms having passed out of cultivation and ceased to be a factor in the agricultural production of the New England States.

RUIN THE HORSE TRADE

A Result That Is Bound to Follow the Reciprocity Agreement

"I have spent the last fifteen years dealing with the farmers in live stock and farming," said James Cobban, West Middlesex, "and I claim that the farmers will not better the prices they now secure by any access to the United States. I have shipped 270 horses out of this country to the West this year. Last year we shipped 500 horses, and I tell you that all the competititon we have is from the United States. In one town in the West to which we have shipped 11 cars of horses this year there have been 27 cars of horses brought in from the United States. If reciprocity comes into force, I say it will demoralize the Ontario horse trade at once."

DESTROY OUR MARKETS

Reciprocity Would Also Split Up Confederation, Said Sir James Whitney

Sir James Whitney, speaking at Walkerton, quoted from speeches made and newspaper articles written in the United States proving that the ultimate desire of Americans was the annexation of Canada. He said: "I do not say it will come in six months, but I do say that what President Taft and others say they mean, and we should thank them for the candid, open, bald and unblushing way in which they have said what they think will happen under reciprocity. It would mean the destruction of home markets, the ruin of East and Wets trade, the split up of Confederation, and would leave two streaks of rust running from Winnipeg to the Atlantic ocean." He emphatically announced that the Ontario Government would make no change in their policy covering the export of pulpwood from the province, despite the efforts of President Taft along that line.

Would Have to Close

James Kendry, who presided at Peterborough at Mr. Borden's meeting, made the startling statement that the Quaker Oats Company, employing six or seven hundred employes in that city, would have to close down if reciprocity became law, because they would be unable to utilize the by-products through excessive competition.

Be good to some people, and they begin making demands on you until you can't stand it.

Publish My Letter The World Over

The Words of Harold P. Bushy, Who Was Permanently Cured of Chronic Lumbago by "Nerviline."

"Three years ago I discovered that a man subject to lumbago might just as well be dead as alive." These words open the sincere, straightforward letter of H. P. Bushy, a well-known man in the plumbing and tinsmithing business in Portland.

"One attack came after another, and lumbago got to be a chronic thing with me. I could scarcely get in a day's work before that knifing, cruel pain would attack my back. I used a gallon of liniments; not one of them seemed penetrating enough to get at the core of the pain. I read in the Montreal Witness about Nerviline, and got five bottles. It is a wonderful medicine—I could feel its soothing pain-relieving action every time it was applied. When I got the disease under control with Nerviline, I built up my strength and fortified my blood by taking Ferrozone at meals. This treatment cured me permanently, and I urge everyone to give up the thick, white, oily liniments they are using, and try an up-to-date, penetrating, pain-destroyer like Nerviline.

THE "DANGER" CART

Special Vehicle for the Conveying of Bombs, Alleged or Real

Few members of the general public are aware of the method adopted by the Home Office when a bomb, alleged or real, comes into the possession of the London, England, police.

It is generally known that the article under suspicion is at once put into a pail of water, but the after proceedings have, so far, been left to the imagination. Here is what actually happens after a thorough soaking of the object under suspicion is assured.

What is known as the "danger" cart is sent from the Magazine in Hyde Park, where it is kept, to the point where the "bomb" may be, and not many who might chance to see a small hand-cart, painted a brilliant red, being drawn along the street would imagine that it possibly contained an instrument of destruction, which had been intended to blow up some public place or other.

The cart itself is built on two finely balanced springs, and has suspended underneath it a smaller, box-shaped receptacle in which the suspected article is placed.

The cart and the suspended box are built with the greatest care, so that, no matter how great the jolting may be, the contents of the lower chamber will be in no way disturbed.

The "danger" cart is generally drawn along by two men in plain clothes, whose duty it is to see the cart and its contents safely housed in the laboratory of the Magazine. There the examination by experts takes place.

"BARGAIN" GLASSES ARE DANGEROUS GLASSES

This Editorial in the Ladies' Home Journal gives [illegible] warning against these "Eye Destroyers" advertised as "Exceptional Values."

A woman who was hunting "bargain glasses" finally succeeded in "fitting" her eyes with what she enthusiastically declares was "just the thing." And immensely pleased with herself, this woman had brought about the gravest danger a woman could invest in, for she had bought two pieces of glass crudely ground, but magnifying strongly, and with them she can see 'better to read'—That seeing better will mean an intense strain upon the her eyes, but she will not realize what the trouble is, nor the injury the glasses are doing. Some day she will be under the care of a Specialist, probably for the removal of a cataract, which will cost considerable, to say nothing of the suffering entailed, and she will be fortunate indeed if she does not suffer partial or entire loss of sight for the remainder of her life.

We have every qualification for giving your eyes a thorough examination. We fit you with the finest ground lenses, and at a very reasonable cost. Thousands of our citizens can testify to the care, skill and thoroughness of the examination, and the good results they had in wearing the glasses we prescribed. ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

SICK HEADACHES AND NERVOUSNESS

"Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured Me.

LAKELET, ONT., May 12th, 1910.

"It is my firm belief that every woman should take "Fruit-a-tives" if she wants to keep herself in good health.

Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I was constantly troubled with what is commonly known as "Nerves" or severe Nervousness. This extreme Nervousness brought on the most violent attacks of Sick Headache, for which I was constantly taking Doctor's medicine.

Constipation was also a source of great trouble for which the Doctors said "I would have to take medicine all my life" but "Fruit-a-tives" has banished these troubles and I am a well woman.

When I started taking "Fruit-a-tives", I took four at a time, but have reduced the dose so that it is only necessary for me to take one in a week, and that one "Fruit-a-tives" tablet every week keeps me well". MRS. FRED GADKE.

It is wonderful how quickly women get better when taking "Fruit-a-tives". These famous fruit tablets relieve headaches and tone up the whole nervous system. They regulate the bowels, strengthen the stomach, stimulate the appetite, and take away that pain in the back. Pale, weak, nervous women should always use "Fruit-a-tives".

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

NOTES ON PLAYS AND THE PLAYERS

Miss Ethel Barrymore has a new show this season, "The Witness for the Defence."

"Green Stockings" will be repeated by Miss Margaret Anglin, but another play has been secured for her in "The New Religion."

"Who Is Who," a new farce, is to be sent out for a trial this month with Walter Jones and Digby Bell appearing in the east.

For Miss Blanche Ring's coming season has been supplied "The Wall Street Girl."

"Casey" Jones, the doughty hero of the popular song of that name, was a figure in real life. "Casey" was a nickname applied to John Luther Jones, the engineer of the Chicago and New Orleans limited, a fast passenger train on the Illinois Central Railroad. It was on this midnight run, March 18th, 1900, that he lost his life in a rear-end collision with a freight train at Vaughns, Miss.

Irving Beers is to put on the production, "All the Comforts of Home," at Kingston, the latter part of this month.

FUNERAL NOTICE

BENSFORT ELECTORS GAVE MR. BURNHAM SPLENDID MEETING

Biggest Political Gathering in Fifteen Years Greets Conservative Candidate.

At the biggest political meeting held in Bensfort within the past fifteen years, Mr. J. H. Burnham, received a rousing reception in the Village Hall last night. The building was packed and the big audience gave the Conservative candidate an attentive hearing throughout.

Reeve Waterman made an excellent chairman.

Mr. Burnham said that he thanked them in the name of all those who were striving for modern free popular governments for the efforts they were making to elect him as a humble supporter of the revolt against reaction. He was surprised to find what an interest was taken in Bourassa and yet he was not surprised. Bourassa was striving to bend the authorities of the Church of Rome to the purposes of the French race. The moment however, any race or party became dominant in that Church outside of Rome it would obviously mean the death of the church, hence the opposition to Bourassa. The following clipping from this week's Catholic Register, the official Roman Catholic organ is "significant in this connection. It says—"The Holy Father's injunction in his recent letter to "eradicate whatever differences of opinion still exist amongst Catholics through diversity of race and language" comes at a particularly opportune time. It behooves all of us to take it to heart and to buckle down to the serious work which lies before the Church in Canada." That is why Bourassa and Bishop Fallon come in such fierce conflict. It is a case of the striving of a race against the power of the Church and nothing more or less. With regard to trade, Mr. Burnham dealt exhaustively with the barley question. He first showed how absurd it was to talk of exporting barley to the United States, when the United States exported it to Canada. Even Peterborough itself received four hundred thousand bushels of feed or domestic American barley in the last two years. It can be laid down here cheaper and pay the duty than our own Peterboro County barley. What more do you want! As for the superior class of barley, such as malting barley, it would be supplied, which under the pact would drive our own best barley out of the malting market. Why should it not also affect the American malting barley? Because the "favoured nations" clause is interpreted differently by Great Britain and the United States.

Such a treaty as the Pact, lets it into Canada but does affect the United States. Russian barley can be laid down in Montreal with duty paid for an outside high price figure of 73 cents and when the duty is taken off it will be too cheap for our farmers to compete with. And Russia raises more barley than all other countries combined. Britain buys nearly all her malting barley from her. Once again the astute Yankee will have beaten us out.

He has deluded us with a will o' the wisp in order to get our pulpwood, free wheat for his flour mills and the by-products for his cattle. Add to this a further measure of reciprocity and it will be "Goodbye" to Canada as a separate country altogether. Take another practical instance. On Aug. 31st, a well known Peterborough firm paid $5.50 for alsike. Philadelphia was that same day offering 5.34 for it to this same Peterborough firm, who sold by 'phone in Toronto for considerably more. Under reciprocity the Peterborough firm would have bought Philadelphia alsike if the Peterborough farmer did not come down to that level. It is things like these that show the true meaning of reciprocity.

The meeting closed with cheers.

ALL READY FOR RE-OPENING OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS TUESDAY

Many Changes Made for the Welfare of Pupils and Teachers — Improvements at the Central.

The city schools reopen on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock a.m.

The Public schools of the city have undergone extensive alterations and improvements during the holidays.

An extra room has been fitted up in the East city school which will give relief to the overcrowding in that part of the city.

The third story of the King Edward school has been completed and one of the new rooms is ready for occupation.

The old Collegiate Institute building has been thoroughly renovated and cleaned, and a new system of heating has been installed.

The Central School building has undergone the most extensive changes, new walks have been laid, hardwood floors have been put down, vestibules have been added. The changes in this building have been so many and important that it would hardly be recognized. The other buildings have been thoroughly renovated and improved and all are ready for the re-opening on Tuesday.

The vacancies on the teaching staff have been filled and everything is ready for the re-opening.

The Central School alterations and improvements have been accomplished only by arduous and speedy work on the part of the contractor in charge, W. F. Johnston and the painters. The school certainly presents a vastly improved appearance and when the youngsters occupy it again, they will surely be surprised.

On the east and west sides of the school, have been built additions or wings, which are comprised of broad, finely finished hall ways and wide oiled and varnished stairways leading up from the basement to the upper floor. These stairways and halls are 20 by 22 feet in area, and will add materially to the appearance and accommodation of the school.

The material is all of the best maple hardwood, both stairways and passage ways up and down stairs. New flooring has been laid in the corridors also in the upper and lower floors.

From the outside the school presents a striking appearance. The foundations of the additions are of stone corresponding to the foundation of the main part of the school building. The rest of the new structures are white brick. In the upper floor are two new rooms, one a supply storage room and the other a retiring room for the teaching staff.

The playgrounds have also been sheltered with cement wall or fence extending along the east side. The floor of the basement has been relaid with concrete, and a couple of new radiators have been installed.

Credit is due Mr. Robt. Fair, chairman of the Board of Education's Property Committee for the splendid results which have been brought about. In all the work, Mr. Fair has had the co-operation of his committee, Col. Miller and Mr. T. H. Adams.

A. O. F. SENDS LETTER OF CONDOLENCE

The following letter of condolence has been forwarded to the family of the late Jno. Daynard.

Peterboro', Ont., Aug. 30, 11

To Mrs Jno Daynard and Family

We, the members of Court Stanley, No. 768 A.O.F. wish to convey to you our sincere sympathy in the loss you have sustained by the death of your beloved husband and our brother. We would willingly bear a part of your burden and share the grief which now fills your home with sorrow. We pray that the wise God, who doeth all things well will lessen your sorrow by filling your heart with a strong desire for a glorious reunion where parting shall be known no more. We realize how vain our words to bring comfort but we trust you will seek consolation from him who alone can give. This we know death is lot of all and sooner or later those who are dear to us will be taken away from us, yet we feel the blow heavily when it comes. In conclusion we commend you to the word of his grace, who has called your beloved husband from scenes of labor to those of abiding rest praying that his ever loving providence may watch over you and your family, the blessings of many years till in the sweet by and by we shall meet to part no more.

THE CALAMITY OF THE C. G. E. WORKS

Poor Frank la Fabvre! A kindhearted, jovial, sympathetic fellow-workman. There was an "entente cordiale" existing between him and myself that was a reminiscence to me, of Europe, the "entente cordiale" between Britain and France, for he was a Frenchman and I am English. From the first moment of our acquaintance up to within an hour or so of his death, there had always been a cheery "Good day," or "How dy'e do" passing between us. Little did I think when, as usual, at 7 a.m., or thereabouts, on the fatal September 1st, I gave and received the customary salutation that within the short space of two hours my arm would have been the pillow on which he would be called upon to draw his last breath, and only a short quarter of an hour after he had received the fatal squeeze which crushed his life out. I miss him. I miss his fat, cheery, good natured, old world type of smile. How many times has he "chidded" me for being a bachelor and not doing—as he thought—my duty to my country! "Is there not one girl in Peterborough nice enough to please you?" he would say.

Of the immediate manner of his death I was not an eye-witness. I was engaged on a machine some 50 yards away when I heard an ominous sound. Instinctively I scented a casualty, and before many seconds had elapsed I was on the spot where he lay an inert mass—he was a big built man—barely breathing. I saw at a glance that death had marked him for a victim. Willing hands beside mine own helped to carry his moribund body from the fatal spot, and in a few minutes all was over.

It knocks a fellow some to have a dying man in one's arms when one knows he can do absolutely nothing to help. God rest his soul.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

Notice has already appeared in the daily papers in regard to the extension of the holiday hours in the library. It seems necessary, however, to once again draw attention to the fact that the hours for obtaining books will be (until further notice) from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. daily. The reading room hours will be as formerly, from 9.30 a.m. to 10 p.m. This change in the time has been rendered imperative owing to the cataloguing and classifying of the books which is now in actual operation.

Attention is once more drawn to the fact that magazines in the ladies' department of the reading room have been mutilated. As there is a heavy punishment attached to committing such an offence, it is as well that people should have the matter brought clearly before their minds. Another matter that needs public attention is that in one or two cases it has been discovered that borrowers of library books have been signing names of people as guarantors. It is not supposed that this is done with criminal intent, but as it is tantamount to forgery, it is as well that people should be warned of the seriousness of the act.

WEDDING BELLS

TAYLOR—BURKE

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burke of Pickering when their daughter Lillian M., was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. Wm. J. Taylor, youngest son of Mr. Mark Taylor, Highland Creek.

The lawn was tastefully decorated for the occasion and the bride was escorted by her father to a beautiful arch under which the nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Mr. Baynon of Centenial Methodist Church.

The bride was becomingly attired in a dress of white embroidery and wore the customary veil caught up with lilies of the valley and carried white sweet peas tied with white ribbon.

She was assisted by her sister, Miss Luella of Toronto, who was also dressed in white and carried pink sweet peas tied with pink ribbon.

The groom was supported by Mr. Jordon Booth of Green River.

After the ceremony the guests, to about the number of 60 sat down to an enjoyable repast, after which the newly married couple left for Toronto Peterboro and points east, amid showers of rice and confetti. The bride was the recipient of many costly and beautiful presents.

Upon their return they will reside at Highland Creek

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

"THE DREAMER."

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I notice that one of the worst charges that the Examiner can bring against Mr. Burnham is that he is "a visionary, a dreamer." Now sir, is not this a singularly unlucky expression of opinion on the part of the Examiner, for was not one of the greatest statesmen on record, viz., Joseph, a dreamer. Supporters of the reciprocity pact tell us that the greatest question to-day is the disposal of the great wheat harvests of the west, both present and future. Why, this was the very question before the Egyptian Empire and the only man who could be found to solve that problem and he ably solved it too, was Joseph "the dreamer." Following out the same line of thought, did not those who mocked "Behold the dreamer cometh," afterwards humbly bow their knees to him.

GEO. LEADER.

WHERE THE MONEY COMES FROM

To the Editor of the Review.

I noticed to-day in a southend store apples advertised 15c per doz. and oh! you working man. When we have reciprocity, you will be able to buy them for a nickle, but where will you get that little five cents. And Stratton answers where. So does echo.

A QUESTION OF CUSTOMERS

To The Editor of The Review.
Peterboro, Sept. 2nd, 1911

Sir—Did you ever hear of a store with three customers, refusing to take a fourth? NO.—Hon. Geo. P. Graham at the Opera House.

Did you ever hear of Uncle Sam with one market refusing to take two? NO.

Mr Editor, Don't you think that the Hon Geo. J. Graham and your humble servant are too clever too live

P.S. Still we are not half as clever as President Taft.

I remain,
Yours etc.,

NO MORE MONEY FOR THE FAIR

Request for Further Grant Turned Down by Committee

The Finance Committee passed a goodly number of accounts at a meeting which was held yesterday afternoon.

The only matter on file for their consideration was a letter from the Peterborough Exhibition management the committee for their usual grant to the exhibition fund this year, and asking if the committee could see their way clear to increase the donation.

Ald Bradburn, the chairman and the other members of the body failed to see how they could comply with the request, seeing that an appropriation for that purpose had been made.

It was moved and seconded that no action be taken. The grant was $400.

AMERICAN BILLS ARE IN EVIDENCE

Are Being Freely Presented as Payment in the City

New American bills of various denominations are appearing in the city, and have been so much in evidence during the past few weeks, that there is considerable conjecture as to the reason. The fact of their appearance at this stage of the election campaign, gives to some people what they think is the explanation.

SAID TO BE SON OF MURDERED WOMAN

Sad Plight of Youth Sentenced to Prison

Frank Reynolds, the youthful horse thief, sentenced at Lindsay to 6 months in Central prison, is said to be a step-son of Mrs. Edward Wilkie, the unfortunate woman, who was murdered by her husband, Edward Wilkie, at Toronto on August 15th. The circumstances of the brutal crime are familiar to all. Reynolds says his father died about ten years ago, and it would appear from this that Mrs. Wilkie was married twice.

PROVIDENCE GAVE LEAFS BAD BEATING IN FIRST GAME

Lush Was Walloped for Ten Hits in Five Innings—Montreal Batted Hard.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—The first game to be shuffled into the discard by the Leafs in a long time was that at the Stadium yesterday, when the lowly Providence tail-enders gave the Leafs the most inglorious beating of the year. Jimmy Lavender did it. He trimmed the Kelleys by 3 to 1 at Providence on the last trip, and just to demonstrate that it was no mistake he did the same thing yesterday.

Tony Smith played second base in the absence of Eddie Fitzpatrick, who was called home to Phillipsburg, N.J., yesterday by the death of a brother, who was killed in a railway accident. Johnny Lush, who went into the game with a record of having won eleven games in his last twelve starts, was whaled for ten hits in less than five innings. Jim McGinley pitched part of the fifth and all of the sixth and seventh. He was taken out to let Mullen bat for him with the bases full in the seventh. "Mac" pitched good ball. Mueller was hit hard in the ninth. The Grays had a batting streak and hit everything that came along without waiting for the ball to come over the plate.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—The Royals had a batting bee at the expense of Cantwell and Delaney this afternoon, clouting their offerings for 21 hits, and winning from Newark by 12 to 3. Holly and Barberich each got four hits out of five times up, and Ward and Miller got two triples in the third, when Montreal got seven men across the pan.

SOME REMARKABLE INSURANCE.

Lloyds Underwriters Will Take All Kinds of Risks.

Some remarkable underwriting ventures in fancy risks have been done by Lloyd's in connection with the coronation. Large insurances have been effected by traders whose interests are bound up with the coronation, and ten per cent has been paid to cover a claim should the ceremony not take place before the end of the year. In one or two cases policies have been taken out on the joint lives of the King and Queen until the end of the year, at the rate of four guineas per cent, whilst a "Royal Family" risk has been accepted, insuring the lives of the King and the Queen and their children for the same period, the premium in this instance being ten guineas per cent. A possible change of route for the coronation procession has also come within the speculative scope, though the premiums are small.

To pay a loss if there is a general election before March 31, 1912, twenty-five guineas per cent is quoted, and five per cent has been accepted to cover the payment of a claim should Mr. Lloyd George become prime minister on or before December 31 next. This risk has been written several times, but the amounts involved are not large.

The next budget has also been the basis of speculative business of this nature at Lloyd's.

The last rate quoted to pay a loss in the event of the duty on sugar being abolished was twenty guineas per cent, whilst several policies to cover a reduction in the tea duty have been taken out at twenty-five guineas per cent, the equivalent premium for coffee and cocoa being thirty-five guineas per cent. The possibility of an increase in the cost of license is apparently considered remote, seeing that a policy for this risk can be got at twenty per cent.

By far the largest amount of speculation has, however, been done in connection with the income tax, and a rate as high as fifty guineas per cent has been charged on a policy to pay a total loss only in the event of no alteration being made in the present charges.

BAD FOR BARBERS.

Among the many suggestions made for commemorating the reign of King Edward VII., the quaintest is that now put forward by Captain MacIlwaine, R. N. Captain MacIlwaine's suggestion is that the men of the British Empire, following the example of the late King, should put their razors aside and proceed to grow beards. Our present King, sharing the views of his father, grows a beard, and makes his staffs do the same. The beard is the exception, not the rule, among men of the present day.

A Salvation Army Baronet.

A scion of one of the oldest of the noble families of England, Sir Genille Cave-Brown-Cave, 12th baronet of Stanford, is now a member of the Salvation Army in Brooklyn. His patrimonial estates in England were so encumbered that years ago he came to this country to make a living and had been employed on ranches in the west. He became one of the most expert of cowboys, and held the record for roping and branding a steer in the shortest time. The freedom of the plains appealed to him. Some months ago Sir Genille decided on going to England on a visit and travelled east as far as New York. There a Salvation Army lass with her tambourine and a frank look in her blue eyes lured him from a public resort, in which he and a party of friends were regaling themselves, and interested him in the work of the army. He is now working as a janitor and trying to save from his wages the $100 matriculation fee required at the Salvation Army training school for officers of the army.

Our Four Great Railways.

The United States had thirty million people before the country was connected by railway from ocean to ocean. Four years from now, when Canada's population will probably approximate ten millions, we will have four transcontinental railway systems. And no one doubts that there will be traffic for all of them if we maintain our fiscal independence and encourage interprovincial trade. If the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways do as much to develop Canada and advertise it through the world as the Canadian Pacific Railway has done the progress of Canada during the next twenty-five years will surpass that of the United States in any twenty-five years of its history.

Reason for His Hit.

"I made a great hit at the banquet last night. Came off with a good deal of distinction, in fact."

"I didn't know you ever spoke at banquets."

"I don't. I was the only one there who absolutely declined."

Black Hand in Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 2.—That the diabolical power of the Black Hand was responsible for the non-appearance of a complainant in court, was the statement made by Constable Raoul Trudel yesterday morning.

"He has been visited," continued the constable, "by swarthy individuals who threatened him with vengeance were he to appear in court this morning to testify against this man."

When the case of John Papali, accused of stabbing George Osgood, was called, it was noticed that the complainant was missing. Osgood received a cut in the neck last Friday while he was engaged in fisticuffs with another man. Papali is charged with aggravated assault in connection with the affair.

Fell From Scaffold.

Montreal, Sept. 2.—In a fall of 75 feet from a scaffold in course of erection for construction work at the Dominion Spool & Cotton Co., George Moore, aged 44, lost his life yesterday. After hearing the evidence of his foreman, J. P. Kay, and another workman, J. E. Cooper, Coroner McMahon decided an inquest was unnecessary.

LIBERAL IS AGAINST IT

Seed Pea Exporter Opposes Reciprocity

Was a Candidate in Liberal Interest Recently

Picton, Ont., Sept. 1.—W. P. Niles the prominent seed pea exporter of Wellington, who, as Liberal candidate opposed R. A. Norman, M.P.P., in the last provincial election, has taken a determined stand against reciprocity. At the campaign meeting for B. R. Hepburn, Conservative standard bearer in Wellington, Mr. Niles was chairman.

"Reciprocity will work out to a loss," was the emphatic declaration of Mr. Niles. Then he proceeded to tell what he knew from experience in the seed pea business. It was admitted that United States farmers are getting slightly better prices for seed peas per bushel than Prince Edward farmers who supply the Niles warehouses and Hogg and Lytjeware house in Picton. There was now a duty of 40 cents on the bushel on peas entering the United States. Were the duty removed, he said, the Wisconsin warehouses would have their seed peas grown in Canada, but would have them handled in the United States warehouses. United States labor will be used and the $10,000 to $12,000 now going out in wages to Wellington men and women will be lost.

"The seed pea question is a serious one to Wellington. I can see no benefit from reciprocity, and I do see loss," he said. "Again, if the duty is to be taken off canned goods, what will be the result? In Maryland they can grow tomatoes and pack cheaper than we can. That is practically why none of our canned goods are exported. They can be exported from the United States cheaper. If the duty is taken off the canned goods the result is evident."

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Till Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes:

"For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes affected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifying the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE"

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache, constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Are Mild--Never Gripe

POINTS ABOUT THE DEAL

AT THE MILLERS' MERCY

Wealth of Many United States Industries is to be Created by Control of Canadian Wheat

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Though wheat is a finished product of the farm, it is a raw material for domestic industries which create home markets for the farmer. For Canadian prosperity it is as desirable to grind wheat into flour at the nearest convenient point to the threshing machine as it is to manufacture paper alongside the river which brings the pulpwood down from the hills.

When President Taft and Secretary Knox spoke of the "control" of Canadian wheat, they knew what they were talking about, as The Northwestern Miller makes abundantly clear:—

> The disposition of Canada's surplus is a question upon the answer to which depends the future, not only of the milling interests of the (American) Northwest, but indeed of the United States. Should this surplus be shipped abroad it must inevitably mean the destruction of the American export trade, the shifting of the American milling centre, the gradual decline of the American milling interest to a comparatively unimportant place in the list of large American industries.
>
> The miller who is able to grind this enormous (Canadian) crop will be the miller of the future, and where he is there will be the great mills of the world.
>
> The future of American milling with free Canadian wheat secured is a grand one. With this enormous crop flowing into the mills and elevators of the States, a splendid tide of prosperity would follow in its wake. The mills of America would go forward on their developing course, new mills would be built and capacities enlarged. New markets abroad would be conquered. New railways would be extended into the wheat-growing territory; American railroads carrying the flour from the mills would secure additional freights; American banks would obtain increased deposits, and greatly enlarged exchange accounts; American mill operatives would be in demand; and payrolls would be increased; mill machinery, bags, barrels, and other mill supplies would be required in larger quantities; more money would be in circulation; and the benefit would be felt in every artery of industrial life touched by milling. There would be an increase in grain firms, in elevators, and in every branch of the grain-handling and flour-making interests. It would be felt in the added value of real estate and in the solid and substantial development of every undertaking and enterprise that makes a community prosperous.

OPENING WEDGE AVOWED

Congress Ways and Means Committee Points the Way to Three-Fold Control

By JOHN V. BORNE.

It does not matter where you touch the broad policy of the United States which dictated the Reciprocity Agreement, you come across the intention to control—a natural incentive to a nation of ninety-five million people which proposes to deal with a nation of less than eight millions.

In this case there is a treble object:—

1. (1) The control of Canadian raw material.
2. (2) The control of Canadian exports by restricting British exports to Canada.
3. (3) The control of the whole export trade of North America.

Nothing like the cool, matter-of-fact way in which the men of Washington have gone about the disclosure of their ideals is furnished in the annals of statesmanship.

The Reciprocity Bill was sent to the House of Representatives by the Ways and Means Committee. In the late House, the Ways and Means Committee, of which Mr. McCall, of New York, who introduced the Agreement to Congress, was the spokesman, was a Republican body. The present Ways and Means Committee is a Democratic body; and in sending the bill to the new House makes no bones about it being but the opening wedge of unrestricted trade relations:—

> The bill takes a long step towards establishing for the continent of North America a policy of unrestricted trade and commerce, recognizing natural conditions that have been so long ignored.

The notion of using a club on Canada in the shape of a threat to withdraw Reciprocity if Canada should propose closer relations with Great Britain could not be more delightfully announced.

It is an odd way of preserving the fiscal independence of Canada.

STATISTICS DID NOT MATTER

Mr. Fielding Asserts They Were Unnecessary to Reciprocity Agreement Because Conditions Were as Thirty Years Ago!

By JOHN V. BORNE.

While the United States Secretary of State and his commissioners were negotiating an agreement, which was introduced to Congress as an implement by which Canada could be prevented from dealing with Great Britain, they had the aid of tariff experts, who had compiled voluminous reports on every aspect of the trade conditions about to be affected, while the Canadian Ministers were ill supplied with information about their own country.

Mr. Fielding, in the House of Commons, on April 6th, questioned by the opponents of reciprocity, said that the information contained in the comparisons and price-lists "for the purpose of the Agreement were not necessary at all."

In the same speech Mr. Fielding said, "The agreement is in accordance with the policy of Canada for forty years. There is no more reason for statistics and price lists to-day than there was when the Conservative party brought in the National Policy."

Every time the Government spokesmen in the House of Commons have discussed reciprocity they have insisted that there is no real difference between the situation of the Canada of 1911 and the situation of Canada, fifty, forty, thirty, twenty years ago.

The National Policy is forgotten, the repeal of the offer of Reciprocity is forgotten; the British Preference is forgotten; the Commercial policy of the National Transcontinental Railway is forgotten. There is no need to look at statistics to see how these things are working out. "Leave statistics to the United States; pass the Agreement which has been made in accordance with the statistics compiled by the United States," is the effect of the Government apologist.

And still, the Prime Minister had declared that the main fundamental of the Government's commercial policy was the British Preference.

See what happened to the British Preference in Washington.

BRITISH PREFERENCE IS HIT

On Five and a Half Million Dollars Worth of Goods Imported from Great Britain, the Agreement Hurts the Preference

By JOHN V. BORNE.

"Statistics be hanged," suggested the Finance Minister when asked inconvenient questions as to which side was better fortified by facts and figures during the Washington negotiations.

There is no evidence, therefore, as to how far the immediate effect of the Agreement on the British Preference, to say nothing of its ultimate effect, was considered at Washington. But, in the light of Mr. McCall's prophecy as to what might happen to Canadian-British relations, it is doubly remarkable that the British Preference was interfered with; and that the information on this question had to be furnished Canadians by the English Tariff Commission, in a document that gives more lucid information than anything issued by the Dominion Government.

The Preference has been wiped out on goods of which Canada in 1909-10 bought $3,340,000 worth from Britain. Of these imports, four lines, representing $2,615,000, came from the United Kingdom; so that a strong incentive is furnished the United States to try to drive the British manufacturer out of Canada's market.

On imports amounting to $2,195,000 the margin of British Preference has been reduced, the percentage of reductions varying from 2½ to 7½ per cent.

To interfere with the preference on between five and six million dollars' worth of British imports, without any inkling being given that this was the way in which the British Preference was being treated, was an exceedingly clever way of beginning the process of breaking Canada away from the channels of trade leading to and from the United Kingdom, which was openly avowed immediately the provisions of Agreement were announced, by statesmen, railway magnates and publicists, all over the United States.

There was another effect of the negotiations that peculiarly accords with the [illegible] of Mr. McCall—the expectation [illegible] the United States advantages given [illegible] enjoyed by over Great Britain are [illegible] twelve other countries.

Besides, there is a discrimination against Great Britain in the United States, for none of the advantages given to Canada apply to the Mother Country.

MONEY IN THE BANKS

And Great Increases in Trade Have Made Canada a Brighter Britain

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's repudiations of Reciprocity with the United States beginning in 1898 and continuing until 1907, was endorsed by Liberals and Conservatives alike. The country was behind him. The future was before him.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

ENIGMA OF GROWTH.

Reason Why Persons Do Not keep on Growing.

Six pounds and a half is the weight of the average child at birth; at the end of the first year the average weight is eighteen pounds and a half, a gain of twelve pounds; and at the end of the second year the weight is twenty-three pounds, a gain of only four pounds and a half. And with each successive year the gain is less and less until maturity is reached. Why is the gain less each year? And why does it finally cease altogether?

The reason is that the absorbing surfaces inside the stomach and intestine do not, and in the nature of things cannot, grow proportionately to the growth of the body as a whole. During the first year of growth the child's body becomes approximately three times as large as it was at birth, but the interior of the stomach and bowel of the child at the age of one year is not even twice as large as it was at birth, let alone three times as large. Yet all the nourishment which supplies materials for growth has to be absorbed by the membrane which lines the inside of the stomach, and especially the small intestine. It is, therefore, plain that growth of the body as a whole must gradually subside as the tissues to be nourished gradually approach a size at which their demands balance the utmost supply of nutrition taken up by the stomach and intestine.

QUEEN MARY FROWNS.

Order about Hobble Skirts was Disobeyed.

Queen Mary's order about hobble skirts was disobeyed at the two courts by all except the actual court ladies. All the rest wore tight skirts, but their trains covered them. They say they didn't see why they should make themselves unfashionable because the queen herself is abnormally large around the hips and unsuited to tight dresses.

Nevertheless everyone was staggered by the costume of the Marchioness de la Vill Urrutia, the wife of the Spanish ambassador. Her dress was so tight that her whole figure was sharply outlined and she had great difficulty in walking. As she belongs to the diplomatic circle she is independent of the queen's wishes and fortunately had no courtesy to make with consequences which might have been indescribable.

The queen only smiled when she saw her trouble and seemed wisely obvious of how her order was generally obeyed. Indeed, the queen, to the surprise of the court, she was so smiling and bright, with a word for everybody.

Charles Hummer, who is 23 years of age, and his wife, two years younger, will start from Hackensack, N. J., on a walk to Buttel Mon., where they hope to arrive next Christmas Day.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes, and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty; and the lashes are short and lifeless. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes, on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. THEY MUST "KEEP UP"

This is the Lot of Most Women in Spite of Aching Backs, Dizzy Spells, Etc.

Mrs. Edward Calwood, of 123 S. Harold Street, Fort William, Ont., says: "I suffered with dull, miserable pains, soreness across my back and in my sides for months. They would catch me so badly at times that I could scarcely move around. I would have dizzy spells and altogether felt generally run down. After using a number of remedies without finding relief, I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills and found them an excellent remedy. They not only relieved me of the miserable pains and soreness in my back but cured me of my kidney trouble."

Booth's Kidney Pills are the best friend a woman has; guaranteed by the proprietors they are a safe remedy. Sold by all druggists and dealers 50c. If you know of a sufferer who should get these pills, advise them to send to the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., for a free box. Sold and guaranteed by Wm. Madill, druggist, Peterborough.

Indignant at neglect of his wife by women of his congregation, the Rev. William C. Sherman, pastor of the Reformed Episcopal Church, Greenpoint, N.Y., suddenly resigned.

All that is required now, is a fine day, the track and grounds are in first-class condition, and with such a varied program it sure will be some great meet.

ECZEMA IS CAUSED BY IMPURE BLOOD

Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Because They Make Pure Blood

Ask any doctor and he will tell you that eczema is caused by impurities in the blood; that nothing can cure it that does not reach the blood—that salves and outward applications are worthless and a waste of money. The reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have always been most successful in curing this most annoying trouble is because they act directly on the blood, reaching the root of the trouble and driving out all impurities. They banish eczema, salt rheum, and unsightly pimples and eruptions, relieve the irritation and itching and give perfect health. Mrs. A. Puling, of Milestone, Sask., says: "I was afflicted with a blood and skin disease which the doctor called eczema, but which did not yield in the least to his treatment. I was covered with sores and in a very bad shape. A friend advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using eight or nine boxes I was completely cured. I can strongly recommend the Pills to anyone suffering from that trouble."

A medicine that can make new, red blood, will cure not only skin trouble, indigestion and a host of other troubles, simply because these troubles are the result of bad blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new blood and under their use blood and nerve troubles disappear. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CONFESSED TO ARSON.

Henri Carufel Tells How He Burned Hotel In Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 2. Henri Carufel in the witness box yesterday, related to Judge Lanctot how at the instigation of Ovila Lambert, the lessee of the hotel, he had set fire to Peloquin's Hotel on May 25 last.

As a result of his confession Ovila Lambert, who up to date has been out on bail for $6,000, was sent to jail to await his trial. The cross-examination conducted by Mr. N. K. Laflamme elicited evidence to the effect that Carufel had perjured himself no less than seven times during the investigation before Fire Commissioner Richie a few days after the fire.

Carufel claimed that he was employed by Lambert to work for him as a bartender. Three weeks before the fire Lambert had showed him two jugs containing oil which were stored in a back room of the hotel. At the time he said that he understood that a man named Roy had been hired to set the place on fire.

About eight days before the blaze Carufel claims that Lambert came to him and made some proposition with regard to taking Roy's place. Carufel claims that Lambert told him to empty the two jugs of oil in the bar, throw a match into the pool and run to safety.

He claims that he did as he was instructed and the hotel was burned

May Deter Elections.

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—There is still a chance of deferred elections in Northern Ontario. The lists are coming in to the clerk of the Crown-in-Chancery, many having already arrived, including the lists for Nipissing and sufficient progress is being made in regard to the lists to allow polling in all of the unorganized districts on Sept. 21st, but there is a possibility that the election may be held up by appeals. J. G. Foley, clerk of the Crown-in-Chancery, has no word yet of deferred elections in any of the western provinces.

Sifton's Ontario Dates.

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—It was announced yesterday that Hon. Clifford Sifton will meet at these places on the following dates: Ottawa, Sept. 5; North Lanark, Sept. 6; Cobourg, Sept. 7; Oshawa, Sept. 8; Weston, Sept. 9; Aylmer, Ont., Sept. 11; Stratford or St. Mary's, Sept. 12, Newmarket, Sept. 13; Port Hope, Sept. 15; Windsor, Sept. 16.

Condemned Race Cry.

Berlin, Sept. 2.—An enthusiastic rally in support of Mayor Weichel of Waterloo, Conservative candidate in Waterloo, was held in Wellesley Village last night. Besides the candidate, the speakers were Dr. Lackner, M.P.P., Hon. Adam Beck, Mr. Hibner, a prominent Berlin merchant, and H. B. Murphy, K.C., of Listowel.

Hon. Mr. Beck severely condemned the attempt of Hon. Mr. King to raise the race cry, and said that, while he held his own German forefathers in deep respect, he deemed that his native land commanded his deepest affection.

Inherited a Fortune.

Chatham, Sept. 2.—F. Garner, Richmond street, who conducts a tailoring and pressing establishment on West King street, two door east of Bradley's grocery, received word that he had been left heir to £10,000. The legacy was left by a bachelor uncle, who left £10,000 each to Mr. Garner and his surviving brothers, their father being a favorite brother. Mr. Garner has a wife and a family of seven. He was born in the old country and came to Chatham about sixteen years ago, where he has since worked at his trade as a tailor and cutter.

REGULAR ROUT FOR STRATTON AND R. R. HALL AT CENTREVILLE

Conservative Wanted Chance to Speak, But Was Refused—Farmers' Bank Business Was Brought up by the Electors.

There was a meeting at Centreville last night in the interests of Mr. Stratton, at which the candidate and R. R. Hall addressed a big meeting. According to the reports of those who were at the meeting, brought into the city this morning, the meeting was a merry one, and ended in a regular rout, with the Farmers' Bank business figuring prominently in the verbal bouquets handed by the audience to the Liberal speakers.

There were about four Conservatives to every one Liberal at the meeting, a gentleman who was there told the Review to-day. R. R. Hall got a good hearing, and it was not until Mr. Stratton started to talk about barley that the patience of the audience waned. Someone started asking questions as to how it was that 400,000 bushels of barley were imported to Peterborough from the United States, in the last two years. Mr. Stratton's answer that it was an inferior quality of barley did not seem to answer the purpose.

Mr. Joseph Clark asked for a chance to address the meeting. Mr. Clark is a Conservative, and he wanted to take issue with the speakers, and tell of a few things he knows about reciprocity. But a hearing was refused. The Liberals would not give him a chance on the platform. Then someone started throwing questions about the Farmers' Bank, and in the uproar, Mr. Stratton started in to tell what he knew about the affair; or, to be strictly correct, to give his version of it. What he had to say did not appeal to the audience at all, as being satisfactory. From the feeling of the electors, as shown at the meeting, there is little hope for many Stratton votes from that part of Monaghan. It was a regular rout for the Liberal speakers.

Amateur Birdman Fatally Hurt.

WRECK OF THE LEHIGH VALLEY TRAIN SHOWING PHILADELPHIA CAR IN BOTTOM OF GULLY.

The photograph herewith shows the wreck of the Philadelphia car on the Lehigh Valley. This car was filled with G. A. Nearly all who occupied this car were either killed or injured.

AUTOIST RAN DOWN A CROWD ON TORONTO STREET CORNER

Port Huron Man Nearly Mobbed by Maddened Pedestrians—Charged With Being Drunk and Reckless Driving.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—Three policemen had difficulty in rescuing from the hands of an angry mob, Alexander S. Tracey, 40 years of age, a contractor from Port Huron, Mich., who drove into a crowd of people gathered at Queen street and Roncesvalles avenue at 7.50 o'clock last night. The following persons were injured:

Gordon Cole, 218 Osler avenue, sinews of both legs lacerated, serious, taken home in police ambulance.

Mrs. Cole, legs lacerated, not serious, taken home in police ambulance.

The people who had no warning of the approach of the motor car, were thrown in every direction, and the heavy car was brought to a standstill by the impact of running into the bodies. The nose of the car was crushed in, and Tracy was dragged from the seat by the angry crowd, which surged back about the car when they recovered from the shock of the collision. The injured six were left lying in the roadway for Policeman Grant (220) was forced to go to the rescue of Tracy, who, with his brother-in-law, who was riding with him, was threatened with serious injury by the crowd. Policemen Seeford and McGrath arrived upon the scene and stood off the mob until Tracy was removed to the Cowan avenue police station in the patrol wagon. The police took charge of the auto.

At the station Tracy seemed to regard the matter as of little consequence, saying to Sergt. Mulhall that it was not much, and no one was hurt. He is charged with being drunk and with wilfully injuring a number of people.

Dr. Young, 280 Roncesvalle avenue, attended the injured, who were sent to their homes.

The course of the auto is traced west on King street, thence north up Dufferin street, and west on Queen street, all along which route accidents were narrowly averted.

CONCILIATION BOARD IS MAKING START ON ITS WORK

Taking Evidence of Men Relative to Railway Conditions—Much Information.

London, Sept. 5.—The commission appointed by the Government August 22, to enquire into the trouble between the railroads of Great Britain and their employes, which led to the recent strike, has already been in session for one week, and gives promise of being as long-lived as some of its predecessors.

The railroads are represented on the commission by Sir Thomas R. Ellis, secretary of the Mine Owners' Association, and Sir Charles Beale, vice-chancellor of the University of Birmingham, while the representatives of the men are Arthur Henderson, Labor member of Parliament for the Barnard Castle division of Durham, and John Burnett, chief labor correspondent of the Board of Trade. Sir David Hartel, former Under Secretory for Ireland, is chairman of the committee.

The commission is taking the evidence of the men's representatives first, and the whole week did not suffice to exhaust the flow of information sought to be imparted by only four out of a host of officials from the different unions.

There was not a good word to be said of the conciliation board's scheme established by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Lloyd-George, in 1907. The general trend of suggestion favored a board for each railroad, made up of an equal number of representatives of the men and the company, with a national board, on which the companies and men's unions are equally represented, for service as a kind of a court of appeal.

Indian Girl Drowned.

Cornwall, Sept. 5.—Susan Lazore, an Indian girl, living on Sugar Bush Island, St. Regis, lost her life in a peculiar manner. She arose about six o'clock in the morning, and, following her usual custom, took a couple of pails and rowed out into the St. Lawrence in a boat to the channel to get fresh drinking water. In some manner she fell overboard and was drowned. Search was made and the empty boat found floating. The body was recovered about an hour afterwards.

Bourassa Against Pact.

Montreal, Sept. 5.—Mr. Henri Bourassa, who has recovered his voice, held a meeting Sunday at St. Andre Avelin, in Labelle county. The meeting was remarkable for two facts. The first was that Mr. Bourassa, for the first time in his campaign, declared himself clearly and without reservation against reciprocity.

FRANCE MOVES; GERMANY TOO

Both Nations Bound to Have Strong Navy

Special to The Review

Berlin, Sept. 5—Much space is being given by the German press, to the speech yesterday at Toulon by the French Minister of Marine, who said that the new navy of France would be prepared for any eventuality. An emphatic response comes to-day from Kiel where the Kaiser is renewing the German fleet, that the German navy will be equally well prepared.

GOOD POSITIONS GET IN LINE

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of seven Business Colleges located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk, students may enter any day. Many students study all at home and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada and have thirty years experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1200 students and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you. 12d

Balloonist Drowned.

Charlotte, N.C., Sept. 5.—After making a balloon ascension at Lakewood Park, a pleasure resort near here Saturday night, and making a fireworks display from the car, H. C. Brown, a daring young aeronaut of Michigan, fell with his parachute into a shallow artificial lake and was drowned before assistance could be given to him. A large crowd of people who gathered to witness the display saw the aeronaut drown, but were helpless to save him.

MR. STRATTON'S COMPLAINT

Mr. Stratton complains bitterly through the Examiner and otherwise of the attacks made upon him, which however, he has brought upon himself. Mr. Stratton is not accustomed to show mercy himself. No man who ever lived in Peterborough has more cruelly and savagely put the thumbscrew upon people who did not vote for him, and would not bow to his will. That he has made a host of enemies is therefore to be expected.

A CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

MR. BURNHAM TO MR. STRATTON

To J. R. Stratton, Esq., M.P.

Sir,—The editorial entitled "The Real Reason," in the issue of the Examiner of Sept. 2nd, is of such a hysterical and bluffing character as to require an answer from me. If Mr. Stratton wishes, as the Examiner says, an opportunity of replying to the charge contained in the indictment upon which he is to be tried at the Toronto assizes this autumn, I will grant him that opportunity, as the Examiner suggests, on the platform at the opera house or anywhere else he may choose on any date after this week. I have no desire to take advantage of Mr. Stratton and he shall have every opportunity to clear himself, if he can, in the eyes of the electors of the extremely serious charge hanging over him. There is no need of the Examiner's supposing, or pretending to suppose that I think the Conservative party has no objectionable characters in it. There is probably little distinction in partisan humanity in that respect. I presume if it is shown by me that the magistrate had reasonable grounds for sending Mr. Stratton up for trial and that the grand jury had reasonable grounds for finding a "true bill" against Mr. Stratton, Mr. Stratton will abide by the inevitable consequences of these two separate findings and will admit that the statements made by the Review and myself are fully justified. The public will decide on the 21st.

LAURIER FOR SOULANGES

Will Run in Riding Turned Down by Lemieux.

Alexandria, Sept. 5.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier resumed his Ontario campaign here yesterday, addressing a crowd of four thousand people at the fair grounds.

He brought with him the news that he had accepted the Liberal nomination in Soulanges, which nomination Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux recently refused, and accepted nominations in Gaspe and Rouville. Sir Wilfrid's special stopped at Coteau on its way here, and while at Coteau he interviewed the Liberal leaders of the district and promised to contest the riding himself.

The Premier was accompanied hither by Hon. George P. Graham, J. O. Mousseau, M.P.P., and R. C. Smith. He was welcomed by Hon. Charles Murphy and J. H. McMillen, ex-member and present Liberal candidate.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his party were escorted to the scene of the meeting by local Liberal organizers at the head of a huge procession, including several bands and a detachment of Highland pipers, in uniform. The streets were liberally decorated with bunting, flags, streamers, mottoes and pictures of the Premier.

Mr. McMillan presented Sir Wilfrid to the meeting, delivering a glowing eulogy of his chieftain and telling the voters of Glengarry that it was probably the last time they would have the opportunity of joining with other Canadians in returning Sir Wilfrid to office, as the Premier was growing old.

Sir Wilfrid showed no sign of it when he arose to speak, his voice ringing out clearly. His speech was not a lengthy one, but covered concisely the points which he has already advanced during his campaign. He was well received.

R. C. Smith of Montreal dealt mainly with reciprocity and on the value of the pact to a farming community. Hon. Charles Murphy and Hon. Geo. Graham also delivered addresses.

Mr. Mousseau confined his speech to an eulogy of the Premier. The presence of Mr. Hugh Munro of the firm of Munro and McIntosh, in the chair, and his statement that reciprocity would not hurt the manufacturers and that the Liberal Government could be trusted to treat all parties fairly was received with applause.

SEPARATED FROM HER HUSBAND

Father of Perth Girl Will Try to Annul Marriage

Special to The Review

Rochester, Sept. 5—Addie Stewart a seventeen year old girl whose home is in Perth, and who on Saturday eloped with and married Nelson Scott, of Waterloo, N.Y. is being held here at the order of her brother in law, who forcibly separated her from her husband on Sunday. The father of the girl is coming here, and he will attempt to have the marriage annulled.

FIRE-BUG DESTROYS THE BIG SMELTER AT NELSON, B.C.

Loss is Estimated to be About $750,000—Plant Covered 13 Acres of Ground—Nothing Saved But Cable.

Nelson, B.C., Sept. 5.—At midnight Saturday the huge plant of the Hall Mines Smelter, covering 13 acres of ground, and one of the largest plants of its kind in Canada, was a mass of blazing, crackling ruins. Nothing is saved except the seven miles of cable running from the smelter to the Silver King mine on Lode Mountain, the tall, blackened chimneys, one of which is 200 feet in height, and the one-storey building used as an office, the bridge house and numerous smaller buildings, are a tangle of blazing timber and twisted iron. This disaster is the work of an incendiary, who in the past two weeks has started a dozen fires, three of which have entailed enormous loss. Friday night the Nelson Brewery was burned to the ground, with a loss of $50,000. Previously a Chinaman's house, stables and outbuildings were destroyed, with a loss of $6,000.

The plant destroyed is conservatively estimated to have cost $750,000. The incendiary has shown the utmost persistency. At noon Saturday the watchman discovered the fire in the smelter and he thoroughly quenched it and arranged for extra guards. At nine o'clock, just after he had made the rounds of the buildings, fire broke out and within a few minutes the plant was a blazing furnace. By midnight the entire plant was practically consumed. Nothing could be done to save the buildings.

The smelter, built of magnificent timber, is situated on the hill above the railway just outside the city limits and no water supply was available.

The fire brigade could only watch the blaze from the town, ready to grapple with any fire that might break out in the city. From the assay office a few chemicals were saved as valuable chemical balances. The furniture in the buildings used as residences was carried out by hundreds of willing hands and saved. All else went up in smoke, and for a time danger existed that neighboring residences would be consumed even if dangerous bush fires were avoided.

Only the complete absence of wind prevented a far worse calamity. The Hall Mines Smelter was formerly used to treat ores of Silver King and other famous properties of Lode Mountain, Morning Mountain and adjacent territory, and employed hundreds of men.

There is no clue to the incendiary. The city posted placards offering $500 reward for information leading to the apprehension of the culprit. The city is thoroughly watched, but in spite of extra constables and the utmost vigilance on the part of the citizens, the police are completely baffled.

LABOR DAY IN OTHER PLACES

5,000 Men March in Big Toronto Parade.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—Five thousand men marching with jaunty step through Toronto's crowded streets yesterday morning showed just why this particular day of all the 365 on the calendar should be denoted Labor Day. It was a great demonstration of the might and dignity of the organized workers of the city, and remarks upon the stalwart well-dressed and entirely prosperous appearance of the marchers were freely made. The occasion was one which symbolized a year of great industrial advancement, in which the workers have shared, and the comparative absence of clashes between employer and employed.

It is estimated that 200,000 people viewed the parade on the route from Queen's Park by way of University avenue, Queen and Dufferin streets to the grounds, and there was manifest public satisfaction over the revival of the event.

On the whole it could not be considered otherwise than a grand success and worthy of all praise. The men marched well—that is for amateurs. It was a long march and they were not quite so accustomed to the feat as trained soldiers.

Thomas C. Vodden, 45 years, 137 First avenue, financial secretary of Toronto Typographical Union, No. 91, collapsed opposite 96 West Queen street yesterday morning while walking in the parade and died on the way to St. Michael's in the police ambulance. The body was removed to the morgue.

Labor Day In Hamilton.

Hamilton, Sept. 5.—The Labor Day celebration at Dundurn Park yesterday was a great success, and a big crowd witnessed the fine program of sports arranged by the celebration committee. Every event on the program was well filled and several of the races had to be run on relays. A clear, warm day added to the enjoyment of the festivities.

Vancouver is complaining bitterly of the smoke nuisance.

HALF A MILLION PEOPLE HOMELESS; FLOODS INCREASE

Suffering in Chinese Provinces by Overflowing Rivers.

Pekin, Sept. 5—Summer floods along the Yangtse-Kiang and its tributaries, and also other great rivers, are repeating in various provinces the conditions in Anhwei and Kiangsu, which have not yet been relieved. In the Province of Anhwei, early in August, hundreds of thousands of acres of rice were destroyed by floods and half a million persons were rendered homeless.

Many thousands of square miles are now submerged and the bodies of hundreds of people lie unburied. The Chinese Government, as well as special committees, is subscribing relief funds, which is a new departure for the administration and shows the advancement towards modern ways, but the project of attacking the root of the evil, control of the waterways and the reclaiming of lands, has only up to the present been suggested and mildly discussed. Hence a repetition of these horrors may be expected each year, according to C. D. Jameson, the engineer sent by the American Red Cross to China to study [illegible]

Wheel Ran Over His Head.

Ingersoll, Sept. 5.—His skull fractured at the base and his cheek bone broken, James Streetfield, an Englishman, about 40 years of age, is in a precarious condition at the hospital. Streetfield fell from a wagon loaded with fertilizer on Saturday afternoon at the Baptist church shed, and a wheel passed over his head, which was crushed into the ground. He is suffering from concussion of the brain and has only a chance for recovery. The injured man has resided in Dereham township for some time.

PRISONER SHOT THROUGH HEART

Officer Who Arrested Him Was Also Wounded

Buffalo, Sept. 5—Ambushed friends of the prisoner, fired several volleys at patrolman Schaffer, who was taking Frank Kozuch to the police station. Kozuch was shot twice through the heart and Schaffer was wounded four times.

MUCH DAMAGE BY BIG STORM

Buildings Near London Wrecked by Gale.

Small Tornado Visits Part of Middlesex.

London, Ont., Sept. 5.—Tales of narrow escapes from death and of great financial loss are coming in as a result of a furious storm which broke over the district north of London on Saturday afternoon. One house was blown down, and its occupants were within a narrow margin of death. Scores of barns were unroofed or more or less damaged, and whole orchards of trees, laden with apples and other fruit, were uprooted.

The house of George Hall, on the Proof Line road at Birr, was practically demolished. It was a two-storey affair, and the wind tore off the roof and most of the second storey. Mrs. Hall and her six-year-old daughter were in the yard at the time and rushed into the house, where they were covered by pieces of flying timber.

The barn of James Ryder, on the Roman line, Biddulph, was struck by lightning and the entire crops of the season, with buildings and implements, were a total loss. The insurance amounts to only $1,000.

A huge silo on the farm of Percy Ferguson, Proof Line road, was blown down and scattered over the fields, and the barn near which it was built suffered the loss of its roof.

A Mrs. Coursey of Biddulph was struck by pieces of flying timber and injured.

A barn on Ovens' farm at Lucan was unroofed, and the roof, which was of tin, was carried across the railway tracks into a field.

Others whose orchards and buildings suffered severely are Ernest Guest, A. M. Crunican and J. Brumwell of the Proof Line road. The loss will run into many thousands of dollars.

Two children who were driving and were blown from the road were slightly scratched and badly shaken up. Otherwise they were unhurt.

For miles there is a trail of destruction, and in many places it is almost impassible to travel the roads, owing to the trees which were blown across the highways.

Two Attempted Suicide.

Hamilton, Sept. 5.—Weary of their brief sojourn in this vale of tears, two young men of this city Saturday night made unsuccessful attempts to end their lives. While their actions were not preconcerted, by a peculiar coincidence they both adopted the same means in their suicidal effort, and both attempts were made at approximately the same hour. Gordon Ross, who lives at 106 North Bay street, took carbolic acid at 44 East Hunter street, where he was visiting, a little before nine o'clock, and was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital. At about the same hour Henry Glover, a 17-year-old lad, living at 232 East King street, tried to throw off this mortal coil in the same manner, and was rushed to the city hospital. Both would-be suicides will recover, and the police will likely prosecute them for their actions.

Abandoned Dock Proposition.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 5.—The Jamaican Government has practically abandoned the idea of constructing a floating dock at Kingston. This action is the result of the proposed establishment of repairing plants at both entrances to the Panama Canal.

Coughs, Colds

Bronchitis

If there is an ailment in the throat or chest, it is surely essential that the remedy be conveyed direct to the affected part. It's because the healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed into the sore, irritated throat and bronchial tubes, because its balsamic fumes kill the germs and destroy the cause of the trouble. These are the reasons why Catarrhozone never yet failed to cure a genuine case of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, or Throat Trouble.

The wonderfully soothing vapor of Catarrhozone instantly reaches the furthest recesses of the lungs, produces a healing, curative effect that is impossible with a tablet or liquid, which goes merely to the stomach, and fails entirely to help the throat or lungs.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhozone only. 50c and $1, at all dealers. 10

A FRENCH APPEAL

The Liberal newspapers and speakers are working strenuously these days trying to foster the impression that there is an alliance of Henri Bourassa and Mr. Borden, and the Conservatives. There is an alliance in this respect that both are working for the downfall of Laurier. And so is Hon Clifford Sifton, who was the brains of the Laurier administration a few years ago. And so is Joe Martin, who says he is in favor of reciprocity but that doesn't count when the Laurier regime has to be turned out. There are hundreds and thousands of other Liberals who will this time join the ranks of the anti-Laurierites, whether they be from Quebec or Ontario, or New Brunswick, or the west.

The tactics of Henri Bourassa have been described as fire-brand, and inflammable, and calculated to disrupt confederation. He has been accused of raising the race and religious cry, but even this be true—which is apart from what we are discussing for the moment—he has found a formidable opponent at this game and in this election in Laurier. Rather should it be said that Laurier has found a formidable opponent in Bourassa, for Laurier was on the ground first, and Bourassa merely follows in the wake of the ground-breaker. But Laurier can do some race and religious work also, apparently. The government has issued a handbook for use in Quebec in the elections. Is it devoted to reciprocity?—reciprocity, the main issue we hear so much about?

This Liberal handbook is printed in French, and is for consumption among the French only. Its translation into English offers a fine sample of Laurier methods in Quebec. Following are some extracts—

Manitoba School Question—"When this settlement was made known, Mr. Laurier avowed that he had hoped to do better, but he had not been able. In any case, this was much more than the Conservatives had obtained."

Sending of Contingents—"If the Government had followed the counsels of Mr. Bourassa, it is reasonable to suppose that Sir Charles Tupper would have been called next day to form an Administration. The Conservative chief would have gone farther than Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Bourassa knows well. If elections had been Sir Wilfred doubtless would have carried his province, but the rest of the Confederation would have been against him. As a certain inevitable result we would have been isolated. . . The Liberal party would have been in opposition for a generation. Perhaps civil war would have been result of the resistance preached by Mr. Bourassa."

Separate Schools in Western Provinces—"The trouble was over the clauses which established confessional schools in the Northwest. . . At this epoch Sir Wilfrid Laurier passed through the most painful, the most cruel crisis of his political career. What was his distress in presence of lack of generosity on the part of the Protestant majority . . . He supervised himself the changes in the bill, defended them foot by foot and although the bill was modified, the changes were not radical and conserved to the Catholics of the new provinces the essence if not the name of Separate Schools."

At Imperial Conference—"Such was the work of Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the Conference of 1911; he rejects every attempt towards federation, he proclaims our naval and fiscal autonomy, work. . . Long live Laurier, the champion of our autonomy and our rights. Long live Laurier, our great Canadian."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Borden and British connection, and not a sell-out to the United States.

Let Laurier finish his work in the cool shades of opposition, where the heat is not bothersome.

Vote for Burnham and Borden and an end to Strattonism and Laurierism. The country needs a house-cleaning with a new broom.

This fight is not altogether a campaign where you vote for the men only, for them as persons. You are voting for or against principles important to the welfare of Canada and your own pocket.

The Toronto Globe is daily disgusting thousands of its readers who like it as a newspaper by its political contortions. It may have caught some of the pestilence from the Stratton organ, because a little germ may cause a big trouble

Isn't it an odd spectacle of the people of a country dividing every three or five years into two camps, throwing mud at each other with all their energy, letting out their passions of hate and enmity? If what is said in a political campaign is even half true, aren't we mighty tolerant and long suffering the remainder of the time?

The reports from the various districts in East Peterborough indicate that Mr. Sexsmith will be again returned by a large majority. The farmers of East Peterborough do not want reciprocity, for they are too far away from the border to get much benefit, if any, and they will lose a good deal. Mr. Kerr may seek the assistance of the reverend editors from Toronto, but even a pulpiteer cannot make reciprocity go down the throats of the people any easier.

The Stratton organ puts into the mouth of "a citizen"—that most handy of all citizens, who hasn't a name and never will have a name—a declaration that Mr. Burnham is said to have made, in the course of conversation. We reproduce this "imaginary" remark. Does it do credit to the fertility of the organ's imagination? One would think it had just returned from a visit to the Tenderloin. Here is the choice gem—and we apologise to our readers that a political campaign is the excuse for its reproduction—"I don't care a —— whether I win or lose this election; but by —— I'll blacken Stratton, throughout the country." Anyone who knows Mr. Burnham and his clean, honorable personality, will be able to pigeonhole this where it belongs. Probably before the end of the campaign the Examiner will be one long series of dashes.

VII.

The Imperial Immigrant

By ARTHUR HAWKES.

You smile when you discuss the immigrant, and when he is called the Imperial Immigrant, why, the idea is positively funny. Hold on, now! Think awhile and your face will come straight.

A young swell was laughing in the train the other day about "these immigrants," and he imitated, or tried to imitate, their accent. I ventured to ask him where his family came from to Canada. He said his grandfather was a Yorkshireman who came to Canada with twenty-eight shillings in his pocket, and died worth eighty-five thousand dollars.

"You needn't sneer at your grandfather," said I.

"My dear sir," he answered, "you have no right to say that. I honour my grandfather."

"Your grandfather was an immigrant," said I, "and I have no doubt you could cut his dialect with a knife."

Let me ask you something: Where would Canada have been without the tide of immigration of the last ten years? And what is the place of the British-born in that wealth-producing tide?

We are all in the same boat. Some of us are immigrants direct. Some of us are immigrants once, twice, thrice removed. Let us join together in appreciation of our common creditorship of the Empire. For we are its creditors, and we are debtors to one another.

Ever think of that? The unique glory of the Empire is not the central kingdoms, magnificent as they are. France is bigger than the United Kingdom. Germany has fifty per cent. more population. France has states across the seas. So has Germany. But compared with the British states overseas the French and German countries are puling pigmies. They are dependents on their European owners. We are the partners of John Bull, and we increase daily in power. The Future of the Empire is in our Hands. Great idea, isn't it?

The Empire has been made by Emigration. It will be perpetuated, magnified, just so far as it learns the lessons of the Immigrating experience: Cast thy Emigrant upon the waters, and he returns, after many days, AN IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

The future of our inter-Imperial relations is the future of the Imperial Conference, the most remarkable stituted. The Imperial Conference is the Emigrant Returned.

Any political bat can see the importance of the Emigrant when he goes to London in the guise of Sir Wilfrid or Mr. Fisher, the Australian Premier, or when he resides in London as Lord Strathcona, the High Commissioner, of wizardly influence and almost boundless wealth.

You will be a far wiser man if you discern the importance of the future Lauriers, Fishers and Strathconas, when they arrive in the new country looking for work.

There are three-quarters of a million Imperial immigrants in Canada endowed with all of the rights of citizenship the moment they set foot on Canadian soil. They are raised in the atmosphere wherein all the great institutions, the noble ideals that belong to the Canadian Confederation, were begotten and nourished with vastspread power. They have only one thing to learn—to give Canada the first place in their affections. All other things will be added unto them, even a better accent and more command over the aspirate than they ever knew.

Among the things to be added will be a greater insight into the conditions of the land he has left, and a curious detachment in the way he looks at the affairs of that country. He leaves Britain a strong partyman. He imagines that the words "Liberal" and "Conservative" have the same meaning in Canada as they have in the United Kingdom. But, unless he is unhappily swept into the midst of some party organization in Canada, he will soon find himself wondering what sort of new political affiliations he will make when he has had time to feel his feet and take his bearings.

If he has been a Liberal, he will marvel how it is that the Liberal party in Canada, after calling aloud, and almost with tears, for a reform of the Senate, which had become a party instrument, has for fifteen years appointed practically nothing but Liberals to the Senate, until it is as partisan a body as the House of Lords itself.

If he was a Conservative in Britain he will marvel that a Conservative Government like that of Ontario should be a pioneer in such radical legislation as that which established the Hydro-Electric Commission, that is distributing the lighting through the province over four hundred miles of transmission wires. Clearly he must sort things out for himself and be in no hurry to tie himself to either side. If he cares to learn of my experience, it is that though I took in Canada in 1885, 6, 7, and 8; 1890-1; 1904, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11, I have not yet joined either of the political parties; for the only thing about which I have made up my mind concerning them is that I wish to Heaven they were both a great deal better than they are. I am going to vote against the Government on the twenty-first.

The Imperial immigrant, if he be observant, and especially if he go to the West, will find that his relation to the Empire is more direct and vivid than ever it was in the Old Land. There he was one of forty millions, to whom the ideals of British institutions, the historical heritage of all who were born under the "Union Jack," have been taken for granted these scores and scores of years.

Perhaps in his desire to vote for a candidate who advocated one man one vote, or the taxation of land values or the crippling of the veto power of the House of Lords, he has never experienced the direct responsibility for Imperial existence which is implied in his contribution, definite or indefinite, to the army and navy, which were the essence of national and Imperial life centuries before he was born.

He takes those things for granted; but if he happens to fall into a settlement of the West, in which Americans, Germans, Galicians, Scandinavians, Doukhobors, abound, and if he should be the only British-born they know, they will judge Canada's connection with the British Empire by him, and almost by him alone. They will observe his every peculiarity. If he displays a lack of knowledge of the English language, they will wonder if all the British are like him. Do you not see that to them he is the pattern imperialist—a living epistle known and read of them? Do you not see also, that these people to whom Canada, at the beginning, is a foreign country, attractive because it offers new chances to acquire material wealth, will, to a greater or lesser extent, judge the political wisdom of the native-born Canadian by what they think of his imperial yokefellow?

Nowhere, in all the world, has the individual Britisher a greater responsibility than in Canada. He has charge of his own reputation; he may worthily represent the Imperial connection; he may bring discredit on the native-born.

There has begun, especially in the West, the process of turning out a new racial amalgam, similar in essence to the amalgam which took place in Britain during the centuries when the early Briton was joined by the Roman, and then by the Angle, then by the Saxon, then by the Dane, and then by the Norman. The West is the real crucible of Canadian nationality. If the British immigrant exhibits contempt, ill-nature, ignorance, towards those who are being moulded in this newest crucible of the Empire, he will be an ingredient of fateful weakness to the amalgam.

He may go to Australia, where there is practically an entirely British population, and become an excellent part in the making up of that nation. But the responsibility, the opportunity, the privilege that belongs to his emigration to Australia, is not comparable to the privilege belonging to his immigration to Canada. There no foreign flag ever appears to challenge the devotion of Australians to their National Emblem. In thousands of homes in Canada a foreign flag has the place of choicest honour.

And we are told that in the more important of our relationships we are at the parting of the ways.

The Imperial Immigrant unlike all the rest; finds above him the accustomed emblem. For him there surely can be no parting.

Mr. A. Christie has been elected president of the New Westminster

The Lash of Circumstance

— BY —

Harry Irving Greene

Author of "Yosonde of the Wilderness"

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

With an overwhelming presentiment of more misery to come, I vainly implored some information as to where she had gone and at what hour she was expected to return. The answer that I received was a click that told me of the hanging up of the earpiece and my future voicings brought only the ringing silence of an unanswering wire. I sank into my chair again.

In the midst of my stupor I heard the ringing of the door bell, and a moment later the sound of light footsteps ascending the stairs. There was a tap at my door, and at my listless response LeDuc quietly entered. I saw him run his eyes quickly over me as he tossed his hat upon the bed and drew a chair close beside mine. He said nothing, did not even smile, as was his habit, and in my misery I did not offer him any greeting. For perhaps a minute he sat without speaking, and then addressed me with unwonted gravity: "Tom, I have the proofs."

I started slightly and raised my eyes to his. I fancied they were full of regret, even sorrow, but his mouth was firmly set. My head was hot and my throat dry, and I cleared the latter before I spoke. Then I asked him hoarsely where they were.

He laid them on the table before me. They consisted of a silver card-case, a bookmaker's ticket, a bit of steel, a soiled piece of paper, and a small lump of some grayish substance. Stupidly I stared at them.

CHAPTER XVI.

In the silence that followed the slow ticking of the tall clock sounded like the tolling of a bell. I shut my eyes. "Go on," I commanded, as he sat facing me with no signs of any inclination to proceed. "What does this junk signify to you?" He got up, and crossing the room, silently bolted the door that led to my uncle's apartments; then resumed his seat and addressed me in the low tones of one who adds caution to precaution.

"When I began this investigation, Tom, as I then told you I was about to do, I commenced to sift the chaff from the wheat in order to decrease the number of objects which I would in the last analysis be compelled to examine with great minuteness. My inquiries made upon the morning I first came, together with my inspection of the house upon that occasion, satisfied me of several things, among which were that Mrs. Tebbets had possessed no knowledge of the money being in the safe, and because of that and divers other reasons she should be eliminated; that your uncle had in no wise spread the information of his having the currency to anyone except yourself and Bruce, and therefore that he, as a distributor of the news to outside parties, was to be eliminated; that the house must have been entered by the front door, and therefore that the idea that all parties were telling me without reservation all they knew about the matter was to be eliminated; and last, that on account of the unusual drilling of the safe and the quantity and quality of the explosive used, that all thought of its being the work of a professional cracksman must be eliminated. You see that brought me down to a pretty narrow field." He ceased speaking, and with my eyes still closed and my head resting heavily against the back of the chair, I nodded slightly.

"I understand. Having eliminated the possibilities of its having been done by a professional, you have brought it down to Bruce, who possessed a key, or to Richard Mackay, or one of his friends, who might have obtained a duplicate from the key I left at Mrs. Dace's. However, go ahead."

"You seem to be following me to a certain extent. Having decided that it was the work of an amateur, I was obliged to start out with those thoughts in my mind as I attempted to still further construct the circle. Your key was in the possession of your uncle at the time of the crime, and I did not believe that you had ever had another. Mrs. Tebbets and your uncle had theirs; Miss Winton's was missing, and you had assured me that Bruce had been in the possession of one which he failed to account for; that he had made rash statements about getting money; had become angry at your uncle; had been in a generally unnatural and desperate frame of mind the day before, and therefore I started in to investigate him. This seemed to me the most logical way of going at it, for looming as big as he did among the surroundings, I must either concentrate upon him as the probable thief, or greatly simplify matters by getting rid of him altogether. You had told me of his entering a cab the evening before the crime, and so I went to a friend of mine who is an official in the cab drivers' union. They are practically all union men in this city, and he sent out a circular to every member of his association calling upon the driver who had conveyed the person described to come forward and receive reward. Within two days I was talking to the man who had driven Bruce, and in that way found out where he spent the night. The cabman drove him to a resort ten miles from this place, and Bruce spent the night of the robbery there asleep." I opened my eyelids with an expression of surprise.

"I did not know that Bruce went to such places," I muttered. LeDuc went on.

"Nor does he voluntarily. He had been drugged. But I will come to that in a moment. Having secured this information, which of course eliminated him as the active burglar, I went to him and told him uphill and down that he was making a fool of himself. When he learned that I had uncovered his whereabouts on the night in question he made a clean breast of it. While he had been plunged in despair by the crash, yet he had taken by two drinks that day, one being a cocktail with you in a cafe. Soon after the last drink he had been stupefied, which fact he attributed to the reaction from his highly nervous state, but I came to a totally different conclusion, although I said nothing to him about it at the time. With your assistance he entered a cab, and remembered mumbling a direction to the driver to take him to his rooms; yet when he awoke in the morning he found himself at a place where he had no desire to be. Fear of Miss Winton's displeasure had made him resolve to remain silent rather than hurt her by the confession that he had got drunk, as he imagined he had, and gone to such a place. I could not understand why the cabman had taken it upon himself to convey him to this resort against Bruce's directions, so I came back at the driver hard. By the dint of more questions, aided by a few judicious threats, I drew out the information that the change in address had been given by a certain party whom the driver knew to be a friend of his passenger from the fact of having seen them together, and who had stopped him and given new instructions as to where to convey the sleeping one inside. That explained the driver's peculiar actions, and things were becoming decidedly interesting. Although practically satisfied now that Bruce had had nothing even indirectly to do with the matter, I nevertheless went a little further in my investigations. I was very much interested to find out where he had secured the money which had enabled him to resume his operations on 'Change. When I had convinced him that I would keep the information absolutely secret, he told me that it was furnished him by a woman client who did not care to have her name mentioned in connection with speculative matters. I traced the story to its foundation and learned that it was absolutely true. That left only one matter to be explained so far as Bruce was concerned."

"I suppose you mean his possession of the key and his denial that he had it, coupled with the possibility that some one else had somehow come into possession of it," I said, breaking the moment's lull. LeDuc nodded.

"Exactly. I was almost certain from the time that Miss Winton announced the loss of her key that it had somehow got into the possession of her sweetheart; for its disappearance from her keeping convinced me that you had not been mistaken when you said Bruce had exhibited it or its duplicate. I had several talks with him and her on the subject, and they still insisted with a positiveness that I could not ignore that their original statements were absolutely correct; namely, she denied that she had ever loaned him the key, and he asserted that he had no knowledge of ever having it in his possession. I made them rehearse all their actions when together for some days previous to the robbery, and finally a thought came to her. She remembered that a short time previous, while she and Bruce had been strolling together, that she had slipped her pocketbook containing the key into his side coat pocket for a few moments while she was putting on her gloves. And that in turn suggested an idea to me. Had the pocketbook been partially unclasped, the key might easily enough have fallen from it into his pocket, and not having any occasion to use it for the next few days she naturally enough had not missed it. So we got the coat he had worn on that occasion and went through it. We found a small rip in the bottom of the outside pocket, and going further, discovered the key in the bottom lining. That solved the mystery. As for his having pounded on the table with it and afterwards denied it, that was easily accounted for by the fact that in his worriment he had unconsciously drawn it from his pocket and used it as you described and then replaced it mechanically without noticing what he had held or remembering the incident. I accepted this as the correct solution of the key incident, and then and there dismissed Bruce from all connection with the matter. For had he entered into collusion with anyone else and loaned him the key for the night, the other person most certainly would have been a professional who owned his own tools and knew how to use them, and that idea, as you know, I had already abandoned. Do you get me?"

"I think so. And having eliminated Bruce, whom I all along told you was innocent, you turned your attention to Richard Mackay as the next possibility." My companion smiled faintly, thrusting his hands into his pockets and leaning forward in his chair.

"Yes, for about ten minutes. At the end of that time I had reasoned him out of the case. The man who strangled your uncle was described by him as a large, strong man, who coughed peculiarly. That description fitted Mackay to a dot, and furthermore there was a possibility of his having been informed, through his more or less familiar connection with Mrs. Dace's establishment, of the money being in the safe at this particular time. Then, too, the incident of your having left your keys there for some days furnished a possible way by which he could have secured a duplicate through a conspiracy with one of the household. But that he did it personally was absurd. He is far and away above it. He is not a burglar; he is a boodler. He has a million dollars of his own, and would no more risk himself in an act like this than you would for a handful of silver. And having previously stricken out the professional cracksman because of the crudeness of the job, I was now compelled to eliminate Mackay and his friends because of the same reasoning that I had applied in Bruce's case. Had he turned the from the underworld, that person certainly would not have been a bungler. You see what that brought me to."

I arose in my chair with a mingled sensation of heat and cold climbing my spine and stiffening my hair. "Do you mean to say as the last remaining possibility you fastened your suspicions upon me?" I gasped. One of his hands fastened upon my wrist with the snapping grip of a steel trap; his fingers biting like teeth into my flesh. As in our school days I felt the piano wire strength of his tendons and clinched my teeth between the fierceness of the clasp.

"Tom Halliday," he returned sternly, "you stole your uncle's money." Glaring at him, quivering under an impulse to tear myself from him and strike him down, I first swelled my muscles for the effort, then letting them subside, sank back with an exclamation of supreme disgust.

"So that was your ultimate analysis!" I said, with bitterest scorn. "Of all the absurd, asinine idiots it was ever my misfortune to come in contact with, you are the most complete you, an alleged detective. But you might as well finish your dream. I will compel myself to listen." I turned my head from him contemptuously; became aware that something cold and metallic was snapped around the wrist which he held, and leaped to my feet, only to find myself handcuffed to the arm of the heavy oaken chair. Frenzied with rage, I made an awkward dive behind my back with my left hand for my right hand hip-pocket as he locked his arms around me. With the quickness of thought he had twisted a revolver from my fingers, and springing back, laid it on the dresser beyond my reach, as shackled to the heavy piece of furniture, I could only stand quivering in helpless passion. Realizing my physical impotence, I sat down sullenly.

"So you feared I would murder you," I sneered. He negatived.

"No, I did not think you would do that. But I feared that you might murder yourself. Do you wish me to proceed quietly, or shall I summon your uncle to hear what I have to say?" For a moment I hesitated as I calmed myself by a mighty effort.

"There could be no good in getting him excited. If you have anything more to say to me you may continue or not, as you choose. I can scarcely help hearing you, but you will regret this outrage when I am set free." He did not seem to become either alarmed or angry at the threat; on the contrary his voice was even smoother than before as he resumed his seat.

OPERATION HER ONLY CHANCE

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lindsay, Ont.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank Mrs. Pinkham for what her kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I wrote to her some time ago I was a very sick woman, suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the female organs, and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend this medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and think they are fine."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, Lindsay, Ontario.

We cannot understand why women will take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, without first trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Through Ontario With The British-Born

By ARTHUR HAWKES.

SAULT STE. MARIE.

Once more the Scotch accent; this time in a large man with the big broad head that gets things done—Peter Faulkner to wit. A Liberal of many years; about to cast his first vote against a Liberal candidate, and a glad Secretary of the Canada-British Association.

This was one of the men who happened to be at the station when I arrived. He was the only Scot. The rest were English. Harry Sargeant became Chairman of the Association—a man of substance who has been through poor times and with whom the good times have surely come to stay.

Across the river the Michigan Soo town, three parts full of expatriated Canadians and home of a newspaper that comes over daily on the ferry, and pays court to the Canadian Soo with abundant views of its doings. The border influence is a curious element in life here. On one street car one heard the sound of the fire-bell as they hear it in the States; on another the ticket-box—the coffee-pot of Toronto's peculiar affection—came around. The street, maybe looks a little more American than most Ontario streets, and you wondered what the atmosphere of the hall would be like.

Well, there was a bull-dog and a lumber Jack on the floor, alongside the speaker's table; and the bull dog kept silence as long as he could; but when the audience loudly resented the interruptions of a too spirituously-minded person, the dog joined the racket, and was led to a less exciting quarters.

They tell you that at the Soo things are very different from what they are "in the East." They like to think they are Western. There is flavour of the bush and mines, as well as of the unsalted sea about the place; and a quality of speech here and there that is breezy, after its own fashion. We met a prominent citizen, who was asked if he was going to the meeting—a grandson of Scotland, who has been in Scotland and liked it.

"You bet," said he, "I'll be there with lard in my hair and my ears pinned back."

This originality is said to extend to the Government side of electioneering. The candidate for whom the Minnie M. carried foreigners to poll where they gave fraudulent votes, is the Liberal candidate again. The Minnie M. has ended her political career, but the bush poll is a menace to the dignity of the ballot box. I do not pretend fully to understand the peculiar ethics of bush polling; but I do know that the Englishman who is standing for re-election in West Algoma only fears defeat through unscrupulous use of opportunities in the remoteness of the bush.

Mr. Boyce is a Yorkshireman; a lawyer with brains. His speech very gently bewrays him, for he comes from Wakefield. As far as I can learn there are no adventitious aids to his popularity, and the British vote will have no difficulty in cleaving to him.

The Welsh are quite abundant at the Soo. Many of them are in the Steel Works, where they don't lose their gift of song.

NORTH BAY.

I was only outside North Bay station a couple of hours; but long enough to give the "Globe" correspondent an opportunity to perpetrate one of the most perfect examples of garbling I have ever seen. The Secretary of the Sons of England very properly said that the Society would have nothing to do with the meeting. This was distorted into an official repudiation of the British-born movement. "A local barrister," who turned out to be the Mayor, was reported as entering the lists which led to controversy with me, and disorder in the meeting, and as being finally prevented from speaking. The facts were that the Mayor imputed untruthfulness to me, which the meeting as well as I resented and compelled him to withdraw. Then when he was called to order for irrelevancy I offered him an additional ten minutes, I to have five for reply. He refused to accept the offer.

A branch of the Canada-British Association having been formed, the Secretary of the Sons of England became its secretary.

BRAMPTON.

Brampton has less than three thousand population, but 30 per cent. of them are said to be British-born. The factories employ nearly all of them.

We were going away from the meeting where Canon Walsh had shown himself to be a Britisher through and through, and had said that he had been watching the movement and saying nothing for several months.

"Do you know Reading?" said the mechanic on my left.

"Through it many times, but only stayed off there once,' said I.

"I come from just over the river, in the other county," he said.

"From Caversham?" I hazarded.

"Yes," he said. "And I've been here five years, and I like it."

Another spoke: "Have you ever been in Hereford?"

"Never in the city, but once I bought papers at the station, and was called back for handing the bookstall clerk a bad two-shilling piece."

The Hereford man looked at me doubtfully, and I answered the question he didn't ask to his perfect content.

A little later we were drinking—oh, nothing worse than cider and ginger ale; for at Brampton they get their local option straight, when Secretary Akehurst observed that they were getting the effects of free trade in the Old Country, all right, all right. He had been reading of the railway strike.

Hereford made an interesting remark: "They don't get enough to buy good beer," he said, and further displayed a candid indifference to the cost of living, for there is more to live with in Brampton than there had ever been in the Welsh marshes.

I'm afraid they were both Tariff reformers in the Old Country.

FRANTIC WITH NEURALGIA

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" WILL ALWAYS CURE THIS TROUBLE

Neuralgia is really blood poisoning. To treat it with opium, morphine, cocaine, "headache powders" and other "pain-killers" is a crime.

The only possible way to cure Neuralgia is to purify the blood by making the Kidneys, Bowels and Skin do their proper work in nature's own way.

This is the way "Fruit-a-tives" cures Neuralgia. "Fruit-a-tives" prevents the formation of Uric Acid—keeps the whole system strong and active and will always cure Neuralgia, Rheumatism and Headaches due to poisoned blood.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—There is still no clue to the two men who escaped from the Central Prison on Saturday morning, and there is still no word from Warden Gilmour as to who they are or their appearance. Warden Gilmour is still reticent and refuses to disclose any information which would lead to their capture.

"BARGAIN" GLASSES ARE DANGEROUS GLASSES

This Editorial in the Ladies' Home Journal gives timely warning against these "Eye Destroyers" advertised as "Exceptional Values."

A woman who was hunting "bargain glasses" finally succeeded in "fitting" her eyes with what she enthusiastically declares was "just the thing" And immensely pleased with herself, this woman had brought about the gravest danger a woman could invest in, for she had bought two pieces of glass crudely ground, but magnifying strongly, and with them she can see "better to read"—That seeing better will mean an intense strain upon the her eyes, but she will not realize what the trouble is, nor the injury the glasses are doing. Some day she will be under the care of a Specialist, probably for the removal of a cataract, which will cost considerable, to say nothing of the suffering entailed, and she will be fortunate indeed if she does not suffer partial or entire loss of sight for the remainder of her life.

We have every qualification for giving your eyes a thorough examination. We fit you with the finest ground lenses, and at a very reasonable cost. Thousands of our citizens can certify to the care, skill and thoroughness of the examination, and the good results they had in wearing the glasses we prescribed. ALL WORK GUARANTEED.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Firth Buller, his brother.

Immediately after the ceremony all repaired to the home of the bride, where an elaborate and delightful luncheon was provided. About sixty guests were present, and the young couple received numerous congratulations.

GEORGE SIMPSON FELL OFF WHARF AND WAS DROWNED

Sunday Afternoon Accident in Otonabee—Four Year old Boy Lost his Life

The home of Mr. George Simpson, Harvey street, was plunged into gloom Sunday afternoon, George, the little four-year-old son being drowned, when he fell into the water off a small wharf just below the residence of Mr. Edwin Elcome, on Harvey street.

The little lad, with several companions, was playing on the wharf, and the accident occurred about three o'clock. The water is between five and six feet deep where he fell in. In coming up the first time, he clutched at a log, but the bark pulled off and he went down again, not to come up again alive. People in the vicinity were soon attracted to the scene and willing hands tried to locate the body. This was finally accomplished in about forty minutes, by Mr. Robert Pincher and others. While efforts were made at resuscitation, they were without success.

The funeral took place this afternoon at four o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

Dr. Greer being out of the city, Dr. Eastwood was called, and gave permission for the body to be removed, and Mr. Pinchin carried it to the home, only a short distance away.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

A PROTESTANT.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Will you please favor me with a little space in your journal for a reply to a communication from Mr. Burnham, that appeared in your issue of Friday 1st instant.

I am not a politician but a humble, and I hope, good citizen; and only with this in the interests of truth and fair dealing, to correct a mis-interpretation into which Mr. Burnham's peculiar zeal has carried him. Subject to this is my desire to re-assure Protestants; to show them that the fear of the calamities Mr. Burnham seeks to materialize, is unfounded; that Protestants are not in very grave danger of waking up some fine morning to find themselves burned at the stake, or disposed of in some similarly uncomfortable Torquemadian manner.

Mr. Burnham tries to clear himself of the charge, that he is guilty of 'having wrongfully, wantonly and maliciously'—his own version of the charge—"stirred up sectarian and religious strife in Peterborough," by assuming and asserting that it is not he but his Holiness, Pope Pius X, that is guilty of "stirring up strife," by his attitude to "modernism," which, Mr. Burnham declares is "the same thing as Protestantism."

He is wrong, he begins to argue, or rather, assert from false premises—to build upon a false foundation; and the resulting structure becomes an airy figment of his imagination—or malice. He declares that both Modernism and Protestantism deny the supremacy of papal authority and affirm the liberty of believers.

This denial and affirmation as applied to Protestantism are not "modern;" they are as old as Protestantism itself—its very foundation, etymologically and actually "modernism" is to Roman Catholicism, what its analogue, the "higher criticism" is to Protestantism—both things to be denounced and fought as striking at the root—the foundation principles and very existance of the respective ecclesiastical systems. The Pope, as visible head of the Roman Catholic church, and guardian of its interests and integrity fulminates against modernism as the thin end of the wedge, which driven deeply enough would topple the church from its foundation. The attitude of his Holiness is not so much directed against "liberty of belief" as liberty of unbelief, something which notably in France at the revolutionary period and to a lesser extent at the present day, led to the disposing of God and religion—moral anarchy.

The tendency of the Higher Criticism is the same—it is in essence a degradaunbelief; a contempt for, and denial of the interpretation of Holy Scripture, as accepted by Protestants since the dawn of Christianity and dear to true believers as the apple of their eye or the blood of their hearts.

Wherefore, for instance, the visible head of the Methodist church in Canada—the superintendent, who exercises the episcopal functions of a bishop fulminates as fiercely against the "higher criticism" as the Bishop of Rome as Protestants regard him, does against "modernism." Thus Rev. Dr. Carman, as well as the Pope, to use the language of Mr. Burnham, "denies the liberty of believers"—to become unbelievers.

It is a matter in both cases of ecclesiastical discipline. His Holiness the Pope, no more attacks the interests of Protestantism by urging his clergy to combat Roman Catholic "higher criticism," than Rev. Dr. Carman attacks the interests of Roman Catholicism by enjoining his clergy to fight against the dangers of Methodist "modernism." The 'thief' of Shakespeare doth fear each bush an officer. So does Mr. Burnham see lurking danger to Protestantism in every fold of a priest's robe. I can't see likewise—in regard to modernism especially, because, perhaps I have no ulterior purpose to sharpen my vision; and I am as good and true a Protestant as Mr. Burnham or any other of the self-ordained champions of Protestantism, who puts into the hearts of Protestantism the prayer, "save me from my friends."

I shall trouble you no more on this subject; I only wished to expose the truth as I see it and express my opinions, as I hold them. I shall enter into no controversy, for my opinions from my point of view, are as little subject to the appeals of sophistry, as are my religious convictions. I have simply wished to protest against the travesty of truth to cloak ulterior objects and can therefore consistently sign myself,

Yours very truly,
Protestant.

SPLENDID BILL OF ATHLETIC EVENTS AT RIVERSIDE PARK

At Trades and Labor Council Meet—Willis Won Mile and Five Mile Events—Harold Hill Won the 100 Yards—Immense Crowd Present and the Day Was A Success

The big Labor day celebration under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council of Peterborough, held yesterday afternoon at Riverside Park, was certainly a decided success, both from a financial standpoint and in the matter of attendance. It was estimated that not for a long time has such an enthusiastic and monster crowd turned out to patronize a holiday event in the city. The Trades and Labor Council of Peterborough are to be heartily congratulated on the excellent and able management of the entire affair. Not the slightest hitch occurred throughout, and the smoothness and promptness with which every event was run off was a feature that afford pleasure to participants and spectators alike.

The weather proved to be almost ideal for an athletic meet. While the sun shone brightly it did not produce such intense heat as to make things uncomfortable, nor produce discomfort to the athletes in their performances.

The sports were started shortly after the time announced. At three o'clock the ball game also commenced, and the attention of the spectators from then on was about evenly divided in the endeavor to watch two things at once. The two, however, did not interfere with each other in the least, in the carrying out.

Several surprises were sprung during the meet, one of which was the remarkable performance of Harold Hill, who captured the 100 yard open event, after running a beautiful race, nosing out Hy. Woods by inches, and traversing the distance in the fast time of eleven seconds flat. Wood was a good second, and it was neck and neck all the way. Joe Mahoney finished third very handily, and also ran a nice race.

The running high jump was a cinch for Mike O'Brien, who hopped over the bamboo rod at the five foot mark with the greatest of ease. Jimmy McMartin came next at a height of 4 feet 10. Hy. Wood was in this event, but poor condition told upon him, he going below his usual form.

The shot put came next with the $5 silver butter dish going "Mike" O'Brien's direction also His longest throw was 31 feet 10 inches. Policeman Kidd, who was on duty at the park, couldn't resist ringing in, and captured second place.

The base running contest was by far the most interesting event. This resulted at first in a tie between Fred Ashton, the Belleville pitcher, and Michael O'Brien and Rahmal. These three tried it over again and the honors avisted Ashton's way. His time was 15 3-5 seconds.

The quarter mile race was one of the fastest and prettiest of the day. An extremely fast field got away and the order that they crossed the home tape in was Hill, first; Joe Mahoney, second, and Harold Smith, third.

This event brought the grandstand to their feet and Hill was the hero of the hour. His time makes a record around here, being 52 4-5 seconds.

The hundred yard events for the single and married men were also most interesting.

The five mile event was started off with six men on the track Willis early led off, and maintaining a smooth, easy stride, he encountered no difficulty in holding it throughout. He was never overtaken. Worthley stayed with him for a brief spell, but soon fell back. Willis is a pretty runner and hardly turned a hair during the distance. He had lots of speed left on the final twenty-five yard stretch, and won handily from his nearest competitor, Leahy, a mere youngster, who stuck out tenaciously. Worthley was third.

Willis won the one mile event also. McMartin was second, but finished with the stitch in his side.

The following is a list of the events

Running High Jump—1st, Michael O'Brien, 5 feet; 2nd, James McMartin, 4 feet 10.

Pole Vault—1st, Harold Hill, 5 feet 3; 2nd, James McMartin.

Running Broad Jump—1st, Hy. Wood, 18 feet 3 in.; 2nd, Michael O'Brien, 18 feet.

Putting 12 pound shot—1st, Michael O'Brien, 31 feet 10 inches; 2nd, P.C. Kidd, 30 feet.

Base running contest—1st, Fred Ashton, of Belleville. Time, 15 3-5 seconds.

One mile race—1st, W. Willis. Time, 5.42; 2nd, James McMartin; 3rd, J. Northey.

Five mile race—1st, W. Willis. Time, 30.45; 2nd, F Leahy; 3rd, J, Worthely.

Quoit match,—1st, Edward and James O'Brien.

The grand drawing contest, the prize for which was a handsome rug, valued at $25, made specially by the Brinton company, went to the person holding card No. 1044.

The presence of the 57th regiment band on the grounds was a source of great pleasure to all. Their music was bright and enlivening and served to put all in a pleasant frame of mind.

The tug of war between a scratch team and the Quaker Oats was won by the scratch team.

The day altogether was one of unmitigated delight to all who were present, and was by far the most successful holiday event that has been held in Peterborough for some time.

The crowds not only filled the grandstand, but lined all around the field.

The officials were:

Timers—G. A. Ferguson, G. C. Brown.

Judges—Rev. W. C. Riddiford, Thos. Darke.

Starter—J. J. Thompson.

On Monday, the choristers numbering nearly forty, were entertained splendidly by Mr. and Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie at their beautiful summer home near the mouth of the Otonabee.

Big Holiday Game the Best Seen Here This Season—Locals Showed up Well.

"You've got to hand it to this man Bill Wylder," remarked one of the Pets' most enthusiastic fans during the game with Belleville Grand Trunks at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon. There were a whole lot of others who liked the work of the local backstop. He was there with the heady work at all stages and his jollying of the opposing batsmen went a long way in getting Quinlan and his fielders out of a number of bad holes.

Wylder's Ty Cobb stealing too, was some baseball. Bill also resembles to a marked degree, the one big man in the baseball game, and he behaved like the Tiger outfielder yesterday. The score was 3—0 for Peterborough, which by the way, is joyous revenge for that ten innings defeat when the score was 5—4. The Ashton Crew, had their chances, but failed to make the fourth station, because the local nine were out to stop them. The big crowd liked the contest. There was a mixture of everything. The fielding and battery work with clever twirling was all that could be desired. Mike O'Brien had a busy time at the first corner. He took them high, low or wide, they were all alike. Quinlan had it on Ashton in the heaving act, but the former had one of the best catchers ever seen in action before Peterborough fans, else the story might have been different.

The Belleville team was playing ball all the time, but the necessary swats, to hit in the basemen were not forthcoming.

The local end was:—Quinlan and Wylder, battery; O'Brien, Campbell, Rahmal and Murphy; infield, Shaw, Craig and McFadden, outfield.

The next ball game is billed for Saturday when Dufferins of Toronto will be seen here again.

GOTCH WON IT

Floored the Russian in Fifteen and Five Minutes

Frank Gotch retained championship honors at Chicago yesterday defeating Hackenschmidt with two straight falls in fifteen and five minutes. Gotch used the toe lock for the second fall.

A rugby meeting is called for tonight at the Oriental. Interested ones should be present.

Physical director Thompson of the Y.M.C.A. is deserving of much praise for his efforts on behalf of the sports program which met with such success at Riverside Park yesterday. Mr. Thompson has earned the reputation of doing things well and the results of yesterday speak out for him. Such a program requires a lot of work and hard work at that.

Canada Does Not Want to Share with U. S. Railway Conditions

San Francisco.—It was announced at the office of the Southern Pacific Company here to-day that 6,000 men would be dropped from the pay-rolls of the Pacific system of the railway before the end of September. Two thousand will be dropped this week.

The order to reduce forces was issued from the offices of Julius Kruttschnitt, vice-president and director of maintenance of operation of the Harriman system, and all seven of the Harriman roads are affected. It was explained that the retrenchment was made necessary by slack freight conditions, short crops in the Northwest having tied up a large number of cars, 166,508 of which remain idle.

This illustrates the condition of things in the country with which the Liberal party wish Canada to unite commercially.

How will it strike the man who is dependent for his living upon what he can earn from day to day?

How will it strike the merchant who depends for his business upon the purchasing power of the workingman?

How will it strike the farmer, the market for whose produce depends upon the purchasing power of the workingman?

Is it good Canadianism to tie ourselves up by a commercial agreement to a country where men are being discharged by the thousand, especially as in this country every man can get work at good wages?

Arguments may or may not be logical. We may all be mistaken in our conclusions as to the effect of any particular measure. But facts are facts, and six thousand men to be discharged from employment by one railway system is a great and tremendous fact.

We do not want in Canada such conditions as have led to this wholesale discharge of men on the Southern Pacific.

PREFERENCE FOR CANADA

Sure to Get It in England When the Unionists are Elected

The Toronto News says, in part: "At Eganville Mr. Hugh Guthrie, in answer to a statement of Mr. Lucas that preferential trade is making progress in Great Britain, declared that he was told by Lord Hugh Cecil, one of the leaders of the Unionist party, that he would oppose any taxation upon food and that if it were proposed it would divide the Unionist party in two. From the beginning Lord Hugh Cecil has opposed fiscal reform. He is now the only Free Trade Unionist in the House of Commons. Because he would not accept the policy of preference he was driven out of constituency after constituency until at last he found a precarious refuge in the University of Oxford. The truth is that except Lord Hugh Cecil every Unionist in the British Parliament is an aggressive fiscal reformer pledged to what is called the 'taxation of food' and all the rest of it. Moreover the Unionist party is now the most powerful single party in Parliament, and, with the constitutional issue out of the way, is certain to achieve an early triumph. Indeed, while Mr. Hugh Guthrie is telling us that tariff reform is dead in England its advocates are holding scores of meetings weekly in all the British industrial centres, and save Lord Hugh Cecil only, every member of the Parliamentary party and every Unionist journal in Great Britain makes tariff reform the first and supreme issue in the British constituencies. When tariff reform triumphs in England the Canadian farmer, if he does not involve himself in an entangling alliance with the United States, will secure a preference in the British market. Under preference he will get prices for all the products which he must export to the Old World largely in excess of those which will be received by the farmers of the United States."

TARIFF AGAINST ALL COUNTRIES

A Strong Agrarian Party in Germany Protects Farm Products

Germany now has a general tariff valid against all countries with which no treaties have been made. When a treaty granting concessions to another country is negotiated, then all other countries having a treaty giving them the rights of "the most-favored nations" thereby obtain automatically the lowest duties given to any one country. The general tariff is chiefly a basis for negotiation.

While Germany has made treaties with certain favored nations, it is noticeable that they have not opened the door to many countries which have any considerable export of Cereals to that country. In German politics there is a strong agrarian party opposed to such treaties, in so far as they apply to agricultural products.

HAUNTED BY FEAR

The obsession of a grim nameless fear, accentuated by the horrors of an all-night debauch, caused Edward Riordan, aged thirty-one, a native of Cork, Ireland, to end his life by suicide in Montreal. Riordan's only known relative is his mother, Mrs. Riordan, Cork, Ireland. He obtained employment with the Grand Trunk as freight handler. For two months he lived an exemplary life, but when he received his pay, he began to drink. Several times he communicated his fears of being arrested to the landlady, alleging that the monks were after him. He hinted at some crime he had committed for which the church—he was a Roman Catholic—was hostile to him. This obsession gained on him, although his companions tried to cheer him up. The deceased was a quiet, good-natured fellow, medium in height, dark hair, and rather handsome. On the other side of the water he was for a number of years a sailor in the British navy, and had his discharge papers.

UNION MEN MEET.

British Laborites Hold Annual Gathering at Newcastle.

Newcastle, Eng., Sept. 5.—There is an unusually widespread interest in the annual meeting of the Trade-Union Congress, which opened here yesterday. Five hundred and fifty-four delegates were present, representing 1,667,000 members, which is considerably in excess of anything heretofore known in the deliberations of labor.

Parliament is bound to be largely influenced by the upheavals during the last couple of months in the labor world, and President Mullin gave the delegates a lead in his presidential address. He claimed that the workers had won hitherto denied advances in wages and other advantages by the recent unrest, and the long-drawn agony of arbitration, he intimated, had about reached its limit. He denounced the railroads' policy of non-recognition of the unions and sharply criticized the Government for employing soldiers for strike duty. "Instead of laying down the law to commercial magnates, whose high-handed autocracy had involved public suffering and would not easily be forgotten."

The congress has a week of heavy work before it. One of the larger proposals to be considered is the fusion of the various organizations into one grand federation, to be called the labor congress, with the object of better furthering the solidarity of labor, and for the purpose of more speedily introducing drastic improvements in the labor world.

Girl Washed Overboard.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 5.—Reports of the drowning of Mary Morgan, a fourteen-year-old girl passenger, and Arthur Ballantine, third officer of the vessel, who went to her assistance when she was washed overboard, were brought in by the steamer Pretorian, which arrived here from Liverpool late Saturday.

The Pretorian ran into a hurricane Wednesday and during the blow the girl was washed overboard. Although the accident was not witnessed by anyone of the remaining members of the crew, it is thought that Ballantine dived over after the girl in the hope of saving here. Miss Morgan was on her way to this city with her mother to meet her father.

Two other passengers were knocked down by the rolling of the ship in the storm and were badly hurt.

Says He Did All He Could.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—Roy Stafford of Belleville, Ont., whose motor car ran over and killed five-year-old Richard Collis of 74 Rhodes avenue, near that street in East Queen street Sunday night, gave himself up to the police yesterday, having read in the morning papers that his conduct in the matter had been criticized by one who saw the accident. He was charged with criminal negligence, but was immediately released, upon two sureties of $500, to appear in the police court to-day.

Mr. Stafford said that he had done all in his power to avert the accident. He had seen the boy run out into the roadway, had shouted to him to go back, and had reversed his machine, but the boy was too close and was struck. The car was stopped with the rear wheels still upon the body.

Chief Coroner Johnson opened an inquest at the morgue yesterday at noon, which was adjourned till eight o'clock to-night.

The Moroccan Question.

Paris, Sept. 5.—The French Foreign Office was advised from Berlin yesterday that the French ambassador, M. Cambon, was received at 11 o'clock yesterday morning by the German Foreign Minister, Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter, to whom he presented France's written proposals for an adjustment of the Moroccan question.

The German Foreign Minister was unable, naturally, to indicate in advance what Germany's response would be to France's proposition. He said that the proposal would be examined with the greatest care, in a spirit of good-will, and with the hope that a full and satisfactory solution of the matter will be found in it.

No date has been fixed for Germany's reply, but it is presumed that it will be received toward the end of the week.

Struck Down Aged Man.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—E. C. Davis, 650 Dovercourt road, an elderly man, was struck by a horse driven by James Lynch, 131 Spadina avenue, an expressman, at 11 o'clock last evening and hurled to the ground with such force that he received a gash in his forehead requiring six stitches. Lynch was drunk at the time and driving at a reckless rate and failed to slacken the speed of his horse when approaching the man, who was so old and

PADDY SECURES A PRISONER.

After Charles O'Malley had been promoted to the lieutenancy of his regiment, he heard an officer say to his (O'Mally's) colonel:

"Ere I forget it, pray let me beg of you to look into this honest fellow's claim; he has given me no peace the entire morning."

As he spoke O'Malley turned his eyes in the direction indicated, and, to his utter consternation, beheld his own man, Mickey Free, standing among the staff; the position he occupied, and the presence he stood in, having no more perceptible effect upon his nerves than if were assisting at an Irish wake. On seeing his master, Mickey exclaimed, in a somewhat imploring tone:

"Arrah, spake for me, Master Charles, alanah, sure they might do something for me now; av it was only to make me a gauger."

Mickey's ideas of promotion thus insinuatingly put forward threw the whole party around into one burst of laughter.

"I have him down there," said he, pointing as he spoke to a thick grove of cork trees at a little distance.

"Who have you got there, Mike?" inquired an officer.

"Devil a one o' me knows his name," replied he; "may be it's Bony himself."

"And how do you know he is there still?"

"How do I know, is it? I tie him last night?"

Curiosity to find out what Mickey could possibly allude to, induced his master and a brother officer to follow him down the slope to the clump of trees mentioned. As they came near, the very distinct denunciations that issued from the thicket proved pretty plainly the nature of the affair. It was nothing less than a French officer of cavalry that Mike had unhorsed in the "melee," and wishing probably to preserve some testimony of his prowess, had made prisoner and tied fast to a cork tree the preceding evening.

"Sacrebleu!" said the poor Frenchman as we approached, "que ce sont des sauvages!"

"Av it's waking your sowl ye are," said Mike, "you're right; for maybe they won't let me keep you alive".

Mike's idea of a tame prisoner threw his master into a fit of laughing, while his companion asked:

"And what do you want to do with him, Mickey?"

"The sorra one o' me knows, for he spakes no dacent tongue. The-gium thoo," said he, addressing the prisoner with a poke in the ribs at the same moment; "but sure, Master Charles, he might tache me French."

There was something so irresistibly ludicrous in his tone and look as he said these words, that both the officers absolutely roared with laughter. They began, however, to feel not a little ashamed of their position in the business, and explained to the Frenchman that their worthy countryman had but little experience of the usages of war, and proceeded to unbind him and liberate him from his miserable bondage.

"It's letting him loose you are, captain! Master Charles, take care; begorra, av you had as much trouble in catching him as I had, you'd think twice about letting him out. Listen to me now,"—here he placed his closed fist within an inch of the poor prisoner's nose—"listen to me; av you say peas, by the morteal, I'll not lave a whole bone in your skin."

With some difficulty the officers persuaded Mike that his conduct, so far from leading to his promotion, might, if known in another quarter, procure him an acquaintance with the provost-marshal, a fact which it was plain to perceive gave him but a very poor impression of military gratitude.

"Oh, then, if they were in swarms forment me, devil receave the prisoner I'll take again."

THE LAUGHING FOUNTAIN.

A Persian Story for Canadian Children.

Althy was a dear little girl of six years old. Her mamma was dead, but her papa called her his star, and her old nurse Mermel loved her dearly, and looked after her with the tenderest care.

Althy's papa had made for his little girl a garden in which grew the lovliest flowers in the midst of which a tinkling fountain played. The fountain was the great delight of little Althy's heart; its spray was so pearl-like and the music of its falling water so light and happy. She would sit for hours watching it, and listening to her old nurse talking of her mother in paradise. One evening, when the moon hung in the sky like a great yellow pearl and the fountain tinkled even sweeter than usual, her nurse, who had also been her mother's nurse, cried: "Hark, I hear your mother laughing."

Althy listened. "It is the fountain, nurse," said she.

"Ah, yes," sighed the nurse. "It is the fountain!"

That night Althy, weeping sadly, awoke from sleep.

"What is it, heart of my heart?" inquired the nurse.

"I dreamt," said Althy, "I dreamt that my mother was dead."

The nurse, knowing not what tot reply, remained silent.

Through the open window could be heard the laughing fountain.

Althy brushed away her tears.

"Ah, no," said she. "It is not so. I can hear her laughing, laughing!"

Her head dropped. She was sleeping again.

POINTS ABOUT THE DEAL

TWELVE FAVORED NATIONS

Canada Extends to Them Tariff Advantages Which Are Not Enjoyed by Great Britain

By JOHN V. BORNE.

The twelve countries which under the Reciprocity Agreement are to enjoy precedence over the Mother Country, are Argentine Republic, Austria-Hungary, Bolivia, Colombia, Denmark, Japan, Norway, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Venezuela.

France also participates in certain classes of goods.

Countries like Bolivia and Colombia are not likely seriously to affect Canadian trade; but, the possibilities of letting down the bars to Argentina and Denmark, for instance, are considerable.

The Argentine Republic sends more wheat to the United Kingdom than Canada does. It is produced under conditions which offset its softer quality than the prairie-grown wheat.

Labor in the Argentine is very cheap.

Most of the Argentine wheat is grown near the seaboard, and its transportation is, therefore, very cheap. The best Canadian wheat is grown so far from the seaboard, and the cost of carrying it to the ships is considerable.

Argentine wheat can be dumped at a Canadian port at a cost of 5 2-3c. per bushel for freight, against a cost of 16c. per bushel for haulage from Western Canada to the Atlantic Coast.

Now, 50 per cent. of Canadian wheat is consumed in Canada. Whoever will benefit by free wheat from Argentina, the Canadian farmer will not. This is one of the branches of trade to which "Let well enough alone" most forcefully applies.

Denmark is a great butter and bacon exporting country. Intensive farming has been carried to perfection there, and labor is abundant. The Danes can make money on prices which would enable them to invade the Montreal and Eastern Canada market.. Whoever would benefit from an influx of this kind, the Canadian farmer would not.

"BETTER ORGANIZED INDUSTRIES"

Free Trade in Canada for Them, Asked by President Taft, Means Trust Domination

By JOHN V. BORNE.

The United States needs reciprocity because their manufacturers are looking for foreign markets. President Taft, commending the agreement to the citizens of Atlanta, said Canada refused to grant "free trade in everything" because "she was afraid of our better organized industries."

"Better organized industries" means two things—first, they manufacture on a larger scale because they have a larger market; second, they aim to control markets which they should only serve. "Better organized industries" means "trusts and combines."

The American manufacturer is always after control. He doesn't mind how he gets it. He has great difficulty in obtaining markets across the seas. His own market is easy. The Canadian market would be easy, too, if free trade could be made to apply to it, as it does to the inter-state market.

Years ago the Atlantic seaboard was supplied with salt by England, where there are immense deposits a few miles from the coast. The United States salt manufacturers got together, and slaughtered prices in the seaboard territory until the British shippers were driven from the ground. Then prices went up, for competition was killed. The thing has happened a thousand times since, in other lines of business.

There are unsupported assertions of "combine" influence in Canada. The Government assures us that there is ample and effective legislation against them—which is proof of the wisdom of retaining our commercial independence. Any trust evil must invade Canada from the United States.

The Canadian market is, on the whole, the best that the United States has—it is third in amount, and first in convenience of access. It is even better than the figures would seem to indicate—for it has furnished employment for vast sums of United States capital, thanks to the National Policy.

Three hundred million dollars of American money is known to be invested in branch factories in Canada, the conditions in which are under Canadian control.

The road which, avowedly, is to lead to Free Trade, is also the road to control of Canadian factories and Canadian prices by the American trusts.

There was a potato famine in Rosstand recently, and a few old spuds brought five cents a pound.

A bridge has been built across the Bulkley river at Glentanna.

WONDERFUL PROGRESS

Canada Now Consumes 80 Per Cent. of Her Own Produce

Under protection the country has made wonderful progress, our population has grown rapidly, our business with Great Britain has largely developed, we have built up an immense inter-provincial trade, national sentiment has strengthened, and all classes are prosperous and content, said Hon. Clifford Sifton. Our home markets have so increased that they are taking 80 per cent. of our total farm products, while 80 per cent. of the balance is being taken by Great Britain. Under those circumstances were there any valid reasons for our entering into any negotiations with the United States? We have been told that the very best of reasons was that both political parties in Canada for the last 40 years had strongly desired reciprocity in natural products and that, therefore, the proposition needed no consideration. The objection to that statement is simply that it is untrue. In the House of Commons in 1899, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said: "If we know the hearts and minds of our people at present, I think I am not making too wide a statement when I say that the general feeling in Canada is not in favor of reciprocity."

THEY LIKE PROTECTION

American Farmers Know Its Benefits, Hence Fight Reciprocity

The farmers of the United States have been given an opportunity through the present reciprocity agitation to show their real feeling on the subject of protection. An element in this country has been wont to set the farmers up against the manufacturers, to say that the tariff protection enjoyed by manufacturers was afforded at the expense of agriculture, and that the farmers were just waiting an opportunity to burst the chains with which they were bound. But what are the facts? In no country in the world has the principle of protection to industry been carried to such great lengths as in the United States. On many articles the tariff runs up to one hundred per cent. or higher. This has been the condition almost continuously for a generation, so that there has been ample time for the people to learn the merits or demerits of the system. Yet the reduction in the tariff proposed in the Reciprocity Agreement has met with practically unanimous opposition among the farmers of the United States. They want well enough left alone. They know the prosperity which they have enjoyed in common with other classes of the population under the present system, a prosperity which is based on full employment for all with an expanding home market. Such prosperity is not to be jeopardized lightly. The farmers of the United States know from experience that there is one outstanding test of the success of any system of economics. Give us a system, they say, which will afford the opportunity of work to every citizen, the opportunity of work presupposing a scale of remuneration which will be adequate to the service and to the cost of living. Providing all citizens are profitably employed, what is lacking for prosperity? Judging the protective system as in force in the United States by this standard the farmers are in no doubt as to its success. Therefore they have protested with all their force against a deviation from that system. We in this country should profit by the experience of the United States.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN?

The Canadian Farmer Would Not Get as Much for His Butter

As far as butter is concerned, the Reciprocity agreement would mean:—

(1) Lower prices for the Canadian farmer.

(2) The loss of what little export trade he now enjoys.

(3) The loss of what small revenue now is realized from imports into Canada.

(4) A general demoralization of the dairy industry in Canada due to the inevitable lowering of prices and mixing of foreign and home grades of butter.

Canada's export trade in butter is not so great at the present time that her farmers can afford to emperil their dairy industry by a tariff scheme that would, in all probability, make the country's imports in this article greater than her exports. In the year ending 1910 Canada shipped only 4,615,380 pounds of butter, worth $1,010,274. Canada's imports of butter on the other hand amounted to 887,454 pounds, worth $104,201.

WHAT THE DEAL AMOUNTS TO

A Big Loss in Egg Revenue to the Canadian Home

Do the farmers of Canada wish to give away their home market in eggs, and, by so doing, effect the following results:—

(1) The subtraction of at least 3 cents per dozen from the prices which their wives and daughters now receive.

(2) The disappointment among the women in the farm homes and the consequent lack of former comforts and bright adornments.

(3) The loss of that independent position of controlling one's own home market and the humiliation of having a fine economic position undermined by cheap foreign eggs.

(4) The loss to the national treasury of $70,000 per year, and the resultant reduction of that amount from expenditures on services of use to the farmer and others in the country.

AN ANCIENT GAME

Mrs. Rogers had the barrel of russet apples placed in the attic because they were not quite ripe enough to eat, and she warned her three boys, whose ages range from five to eleven years, not to touch them.

Then, one rainy day, when she sought the attic to get something from a trunk, she came full upon her sons, surrounded by apple-cores. At her approach two of the boys drew closer together; but the third, a little distance off, who lay on his stomach contentedly munching an apple, apparently paid no attention to his mother's entrance.

"Jack! Henry! William!" she exclaimed, reproachfully. "Whatever are you doing? And those apples! Didn't I tell you not to touch them?"

"Yes, mamma," replied Jack, the eldest, "but we're not really eating them; we're acting the Garden of Eden. Willie and I are Adam and Eve. Henry, over there, is the serpent, trying to lead us to our downfall by showing us how good the apples are."

"But," began the mother, as sternly as she was able, "you two must have been eating apples; Henry hasn't done it all. I see as many as ten cores around you."

"Oh, yes," returned Willie, the youngest, "we've all been taking turns being the serpent."

SETTIN'

A farmer was sawing wood, when it occurred to him that he ought to have the help of one or more of his five sons. Lifting up his voice, he called, but not a boy appeared. At dinner, of course, they all appeared.

"Where were you all about two hours ago, when I wanted and called for you?"

"I was in the shop settin' the saw," said one.

"And I was in the barn settin' a hen," said the second.

"I was in grandma's room, settin' the clock," said the third.

"I was in the garret, settin' the trap," said the fourth.

"You are a remarkable set!" remarked the farmer. "And where were you?" he asked of the youngest.

"I was on the doorstep, settin' still!"

A WEAK CHEST

"What's become of old Sammy Silk? I ain't seen 'im about for quite a long time."

"What! Ain't you 'eard? A two-ton block of stone fell on his chest and killed 'im."

"Ah! I always said he'd 'ave to be werry careful with that weak chest of his'n."

QUEER NAMES

An Englishman, coming by train to Glasgow for the first time, and passing Motherwell Junction, said to the gentleman opposite, with whom he had been chatting:

"Queer name, Motherwell. Is there a Fatherwell next?"

"No," was the reply; "but we come

OVER $3,000,000 FOR FARMERS

Extent to Which They are Assisted Every Year by Public Money—No One Has Objected

Taking the totals for the Dominion and the provinces, it is found that the people of Canada expend approximately the large sum of $3,300,000 per annum to bonus the farming industry, and that this sum is being increased very considerably each year. That the money is well spent, and that it is paid out ungrudgingly goes without saying. The increased productivity of the farms, the growing efficiency of the farmers, the improved quality of farm produce, the achievements of the agricultural colleges, and the experimental farms, all testify to the value of the work undertaken by the various Governments of the country in the interests of the farming community.

The point is, however, that all this vast expenditure of money and brains by the State in aid of Canadian agriculture should be taken into account before any final decision is made on any fiscal question affecting the interests of the whole country. The public are prone to regard the farmer as standing in a position of isolation, unconsidered heretofore when tariffs have been framed. On the contrary, there is no industry in Canada which has received such intensive and extensive financial treatment from the Government as this same farming industry. It has been bonused to an extent unknown before, and no one has objected.

Further, what effect will reciprocity in natural products have on this phase of the situation? Can the farmer or the people as a whole afford to have the country spend its millions to improve agricultural conditions, and then find its markets invaded by foreign producers, and all its educative work made of no avail? This is a possibility which should not be overlooked.

Here is the amount spent in 1910 on agriculture by the Dominion Government and various provincial Governments:—

Canada, nearly $1,000,000.
Ontario, $748,169.
Quebec, $294,860.
Nova Scotia, $75,000.
New Brunswick, $41,478.
Prince Edward Island, $8,846.

WHAT CHARLTON SAID

Reciprocity of Old Was to Substitute New York for Montreal

The late John Charlton, addressing the National Reciprocity Convention in Detroit, after explaining that the United States profited more by the old reciprocity treaty than Canada did, and after touching on its abrogation, went on as follows:—

"So we had to cast about for something else to do, and Uncle Sam, since August 12th, 1866, has been the great force for promoting British Imperialism. If he had advised us to become Imperialists, we might have disregarded it, probably would. But he has done worse than that—he has forced us in that direction. The Liberal party came into power in 1874, and we said: 'Now, one will go down into Egypt, and see what he can do; the friends of the United States are now in power in the Dominion, and we will go down and get a treaty of reciprocity.' We sent one of our foremost men, the Hon. George Brown, to Washington, and a treaty was negotiated with the State Department, and that treaty placed natural products on the free list. It made all agricultural implements free, and there was a list, in addition to that, of over forty manufactured articles that were free. It provided for the construction of a canal from above the Lachine Rapids to Lake Champlain—a canal having twelve feet of water, designed to connect the waters of the St. Lawrence and the Welland Canal with Lake Champlain and the Hudson—and it made stipulations that the United States should enlarge the canal from Whitehall to Albany to the same depth. That meant that Canada was considering New York for certain purposes, its seaport, and was making provisions to afford facilities for taking trade from Montreal to New York. The signs of the times could not be read by the United States Senate. The treaty was turned down, and the history of North America took on a new phase; the forces that would have irresistibly tended to make the two peoples one, were turned aside, and in place of the common-sense policy of freely trading with each other, a policy of repression was introduced; and may the forces that brought that curse upon America be ever held up to reprobation!"

That is, reciprocity of old was specially designed to substitute New York for Montreal as the seaport of Canada. It was expressly intended to abolish east and west trade and substitute north and south trade. Its purpose was to hurry our products over the border as quickly as possible, to give Americans transportation agencies the handling of them.

So John Charlton said.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

The paper read to the Veterinary Association by Dr. Dalrymple on foot and mouth disease proved of especial interest. Foot disease is caused almost entirely by dew getting on the horses' feet. "It is a significant fact that it is not found among horses where they are not let out to graze when the dew is on the grass, or where some substance is put on the horses' hoofs to keep them from getting damp," said Dr. Dalrymple. "It may, however, be caused by some sort of poisonous plants; but this is only surmise. No other animals except horses and asses suffer from foot soreness."

HUGHES GOES TO KINGSTON FOR TERM OF TWO YEARS

Requested That he be Not Sent to Central, as He Had Been There so Often.

Herbert Hughes, the young man who was found guilty last week of theft from an Aylmer street boarding house, and who has an unenviable police court record, was sentenced this morning by Magistrate Dumble to serve two years in Kingston penitentiary.

It was at the prisoner's own request that he be sent to Kingston instead of Central prison. His reason was that he has been to Central so often and having an uncle there, he preferred not to go back again.

After Hughes was found guilty of the charges against him here, the police sent to Ottawa to ascertain his criminal record, which was read to him at police court this morning. Terms of imprisonment served by him as far back as 1906 were recorded. They were all for theft and range from six months to sixty days, all spent in Central.

An extra charge against him was read this morning, one of stealing a grip valued at $10 from George McGowan, to which he pleaded guilty.

French Aviator Killed.

Chartres, France, Sept. 5.—The French aviator, Maron, was killed near here Saturday night. He was observed flying over the city, where he was to have participated in an aviation meet yesterday. Later came the news of a fatal accident to the aviator six miles away.

When seen Maron was flying fast at a height of about 600 feet. His motor failed and he attempted to plane to the earth. He dropped 200 feet and then the machine capsized. The aviator's chest was crushed in by the steering lever. He received other serious injuries and was dead when the peasants found him.

Killed at Level Crossing.

Brantford, Sept. 5.—James Keirl, a well-known floral gardener, was instantly killed by a west-bound T. H. & B. train Friday night at a level crossing a few miles outside the city. Keirl was riding a bicycle and did not notice the approach of the train. His body was thrown on the pilot, in which position it was brought to the city. Coroner Ashton deemed an inquest not necessary. A widow and grown up family survive.

HERE THEY COME

SENATOR JAMES McMULLEN

Senator James McMullen, who fought and won a valiant battle in the Liberal interests through four elections in North Wellington has decided to part company with the Government on the reciprocity issue. The announcement that such an influential and respected Liberal leader takes Mr. Borden's view of the trade agreement has caused a flurry in the Liberal camp of North Wellington and will have a wide influence throughout the Dominion. The Senator sent a message to Sir James Whitney, who spoke on Wednesday night at Mount Forest, that, although unable to be present he endorsed the speaker's attitude towards reciprocity and wished his cause every success.

MR. J. D. PENNINGTON

Mr. J. D. Pennington, a loyal supporter hitherto of Liberalism in Dundas, and through his personal qualities and his ownership of the Valley City Seating Company, a citizen whose opinion is respected, has split from his party and come forward to combat the so-called "Reciprocity" agreement. The agreement affects Mr. Pennington's industry not a jot: he views it on general business and national grounds and is giving his support to the local Conservative candidate, Mr. Gordon C. Wilson.

MR. R. F. DALE OF HARRISTON

Yet another "separated" Liberal is Mr. R. F. Dale, whom the people of Harriston elected Reeve for this year. Mr. Dale has been a Liberal all his life, but regards the agreement as an attack upon the farming interests of Canada. He is therefore giving his services in several ridings addressing audiences in the interests of the anti-reciprocity candidates.

ANOTHER COAT AND HAT FOUND

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 4.—D. A. Weese, a prominent business man of Kingston, and a supporter of the Laurier government since it came into power, in a letter to the Kingston Standard, comes out strongly against the reciprocity pact.

"Why," he asks, "throw open our doors to a nation which in our infancy scorned us, but to-day with hundreds of their factories closed down and thousands of unemployed, seek by the powerful influence of our deceived Liberal party to get free access to our minerals and other resources?

"This would close down our factories, thus building up their great centres to the detriment of Canada. Can we as Canadians close our eyes to facts and cleave to a political party trying to pass a pact which undoubtedly means the closing of our industries, the throwing out of employment of thousands of our artisans, and the crushing of our national pride?"

Canadians In Second Place.

London, Sept. 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It has been officially announced that the King's Prize for howitzer heavy batteries on Salisbury Plain resulted in a win for the 4th London, who secured 62 per cent.

The Canadians are placed second with 49 per cent.

Can the workingman afford to bolster up the cause of those who would take the bread out of his children's mouths-

EUROPE IS UNEASY OVER THE PROSPECTS OF A GREAT WAR

France and Germany Openly Make War-Like Preparations—Negotiations Still Going On.

Paris, Sept. 6.—The Minister of Marine, Theophile Delcase, at the close of Monday's review at Toulon said:—

"The vessels which you have just seen file past you are ready to be commissioned. Their powder magazines are full, and all of them could be mobilized immediately."

La Patrie, in headlines running across its entire front page, announces a movement of French troops toward the French frontier. Inquiries made at the Ministry of War elicited the information that this movement is connected with the manoeuvres of the French army, which, beginning yesterday, will last until Sept. 13.

In addition to the garrisons stationed in the district, 30,000 troops are now moving toward the eastern boundary for concentration at Belfort, the almost impregnable frontier fortress, which is the objective of the army.

Kaiser Reviews Fleet.

Kiel, Sept. 6.—The fleet that assembled here yesterday is believed by German experts to give Germany for the first time the rank of the second naval power of the world, the three great Dreadnoughts of the Ostfriesland class and the two Dreadnoughts, cruisers Von der Tann and Blucher, commissioned during the year, ousting the United States from the position which it held by a slender margin last year.

The total displacement of the great fleet gathered yesterday amounted to about 500,000 tons in round figures. Its engines were capable of developing 1,800,000 horsepower, while it was manned by 1,200 officers and 30,000 men. The armament consists of 188 big guns, 698 of middling calibre and 670 smaller cannon, without counting machine guns, while the vessels are fitted with 400 torpedo tubes.

Belgium Sharpening the Sword.

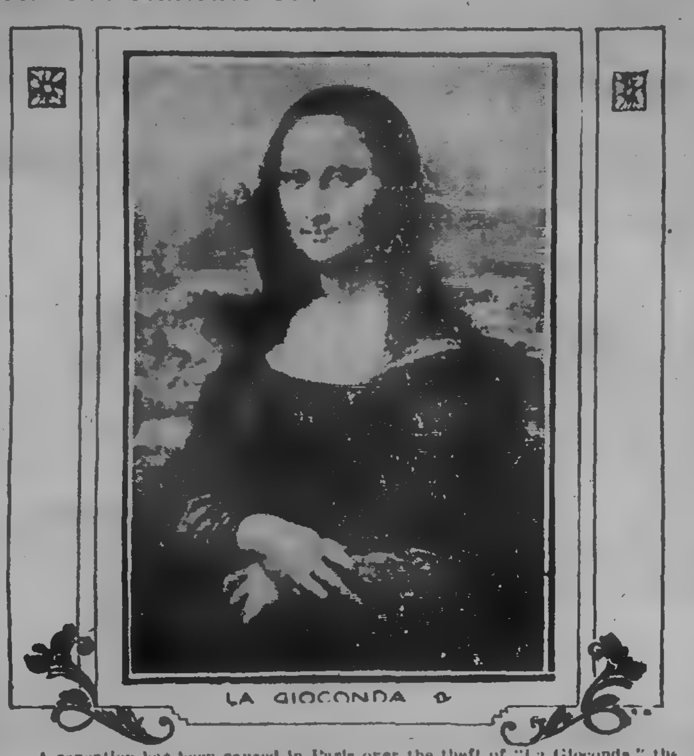
Brussels, Belgium, Sept. 6.—Thirty field pieces arrived yesterday at the fortified town of Namur, thirty-six miles from Brussels, from the National Arsenal at Antwerp. Last week two special trains arrived at Namur carrying sixty field guns, twelve Hotchkiss guns, and five carloads of ammunition.

Run on German Banks.

Berlin, Sept. 6.—Wild rumors are being circulated in the German provincial towns. At Stettin large sums of money have been withdrawn from the savings banks, this action on the part of the people being influenced by rumors that war was impending.

There was no meeting yesterday between M. Cambon and Herr Von Kidderlein-Waechter. It is possible another conference will be held to-day.

FAMOUS PAINTING STOLEN FROM THE LOUVRE



A sensation has been caused in Paris over the theft of "La Gioconda," the masterpiece of Leonardo da Vinci, which has disappeared from the Salon Carre, of the Louvre. "La Gioconda" is one of the world's famous paintings and is held priceless. It was reported that the British government offered $5,000,000 for the work, which was refused.

SIR WILFRID SPEAKS AT BIG MEETING IN COBOURG TOWN

Platform Caves in and Nearly a Panic, But Audience Finally Settles Down—Macdonald Platform.

Cobourg, Sept. 6.—For two or three startling moments yesterday afternoon it seemed probable that the great Laurier demonstration might end in a tragedy. Sir Wilfrid's address was over, and he had just risen to acknowledge the applause, when there was an ominous crack, followed immediately by a second, a frightened shout from the crowd, and the centre of the temporary platform on which the Premier stood collapsed. It was thronged with humanity at the time, and there was a precipitate scramble, which threatened further disaster. A couple of officers with presence of mind, however, stayed the incipient stampede, and the hundred odd occupants were conducted down from the ten-foot elevation one by one. Finally only the chairman, the Premier and Hon. Mr. Graham remained standing at the extreme edge supported by the corner wooden upright.

The Minister of Railways relieved the tension by commencing his address with the observation: "It is hard to dislodge the Liberal leader from his platform."

J. D. Hayden, president of West Northumberland Liberal Association, was chairman and spoke briefly. Short addresses were made also by J. B. McColl, Liberal candidate for West Northumberland; A. Weatherston, East Northumberland, and T. A. Kelly, Durham.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in pretty good form and spoke for an hour. This was his first visit to Cobourg in twenty years.

The Premier extended the heartiest welcome to those present, who did not belong to the Liberal party. If the Conservatives would remain true to the policy of their former leaders, Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir John Thompson, all disparities of party would be dropped and they would be one with the Liberals in this contest. The Premier said he was not here to do violence to any man's conscience, or to quarrel with anyone, but to advocate a measure of free trade that had united the best men, who had presided over the destinies of Canada. He reviewed the various attempts made to enter into freer trade with the United States up to the time that Canadian representatives were summoned to Washington by Mr. Taft. The United States, previous to a few years ago, had regarded Canada as a neglible quantity. He dwelt upon the circumstance that the last pilgrimage was not from Ottawa to Washington, but from Washington to Ottawa.

Canada was not much fifteen years ago, when the Liberal administration assumed power. "To-day," he said, "it is the magnet that is drawing population from all countries, who pack their trunks, and come to it as the land of promise. A new era had dawned for Canada. The American Government had come with an offer to trade. To refuse to enter into reciprocal trade relations with them would be a crime against civilization. He went into the matter of the twelve nation treaty, claiming that there was nothing that would endanger Canada's interest. Neither did he fear American competition. The leaders of the Conservative party to-day, he said, had gone back upon and trampled under foot all the traditions of their leaders in the past. He represented the party since the leadership of Sir John A. Macdonald, as being like a ship without a rudder or captain, and, while Mr. Borden might destroy his own platform it was not so easy to destroy the one made by Sir John A. Macdonald.

Conservatives In Waterloo.

Waterloo, Sept. 6.—A very successful meeting was held in the skating rink here last evening in support of the candidature of W. G. F. Maclean and others.

CAUGHT RUNAWAY TEAM BY CHASING IT WITH STREET CAR

Unknown Motorman Performs Brave Act in Toronto.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—"One of the bravest things I've known," said Mr. A. C. Lewis, who has a butcher store at Queen street and Woodbine avenue, referring to the skilful manner in which a motorman stopped a runaway team near that street about 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

A team of horses harnessed to one of Bredin's Bakery wagons, took fright while the driver was delivering near Bellefair avenue, and tore towards the city.

They overhauled a stranger driving a nice black horse in a light rig. Hearing the rattle behind him, the driver turned and saw the maddened team. With whip and voice he then urged his horse onward, and twice crossed to the other side of the street to give the runaways a clear passage, which they did not take advantage of.

The motorman on a King car going west, had seen what was happening and put on full speed. He passed the runaways near the fire station and, pulling up at Woodbine avenue, jumped from the car, and grabbed the bridle of the nearest horse, and quickly pulled them up.

No person was injured and the motorman was allowed to go on with his good work of taking car loads of people to the exhibition, without leaving his name and address behind him.

Night Watchman Run Over.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—Run over by a C.P.R. light engine at the Ryding avenue crossing, ward seven, Henry Hembert, aged 40, of 264 Ryding avenue, was instantly killed at 6 o'clock last night. He was riding a bicycle on his way to work. Some trees are thought to have obscured his view, for evidently he did not see the engine.

Hembert was a night watchman in the employ of the Campbell Milling Co., and he was on his way to work. He came out from England only a couple of months ago, and the widow and several children are over there now.

Coroner Rowe will open an inquest at Speers' undertaking establishment this afternoon at three o'clock.

SWAM CHANNEL

Feat of Captain Webb Repeated To-day

Special to the Review.

Calais, Sept. —William Burgess, a Yorkshireman, swam across the English channel this morning. He was twenty-three hours and forty minutes in the water. Burgess started at South Foreland and landed at the mouth of the Calais harbor. Capt. Webb was the first and only previous swimmer to accomplish the feat.

Drowned at Jackson's Point.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—While bathing in the lake at Jackson's Point on Sunday during the heavy windstorm, Margaret Creasey, employed at the Beach, was drowned.

The girl had gone out alone late in the afternoon, and before she was noticed to be in trouble she was seen battling for her life. Boats were put out to the rescue, but before they arrived on the scene she had gone down for the last time.

Yesterday morning the body was recovered in 18 inches of water in a badly battered condition. The girl had been out from England only about a year, and was 17 years old.

Two Drowned.

Rainy River, Sept. 6.—Dick Lepage of Saskatoon and Frank Howan of Barwick, Ont., were drowned in the Rainy River, just east of the town, about 7.30 Monday night. The two men were employed as log pushers and were paddling down the river for Beaudette, Minn., in a canoe, after their day's work, when the accident occurred.

About an hour later the upturned canoe and the hats of the two men were found floating in the river. Lepage was a strong swimmer, but probably lost his life in trying to save Howan. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

Four Dead, Forty Hurt.

Freemont, Wis., Sept. 6.—Four men are dead and forty passengers hurt as the result of a wreck on the Soo line early yesterday, when a limited passenger train from St. Paul for Chicago ran into an open switch. Engineer Kueser and two tramps and a passenger, names not known, are dead.

It was not for hours after the wreck that there was any help sent, for the first word of the disaster was brought by an injured brakeman. He was forced to almost crawl two miles from the scene of the wreck to this city.

Wants Our Woods.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 6.—Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson delivered an address at the Nebraska State Fair here yesterday advocating the reciprocity agreement with Canada, and dwelling on the beneficial results which he believed would accrue from the adoption of the agreement, which, he believed, would be to the advantage of both countries.

The most advantage to the United States, he said, would be access to the Canadian woods.

WHERE HUGH GUTHRIE WAS IN WRONG IN HIS BEEF FIGURING

Peterborough Butcher Shows Where Guelph Man Was Deceiving the Audience Last Thursday Night by Actual Figures

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Referring to Mr. Guthrie's remarks at the political meeting of Aug. 31st, 1911, regarding the middleman's, or butcher's profit on meats, I would like to make clear to the public that Mr. Guthrie's remarks were not correct, and his statements regarding the profits on meats were beyond all reason and cannot be proven. In the first place, nine-tenths of the people have no idea of the way beef cuts out, and many left the meeting that night believing what he said to be correct. Mr. Guthrie stated that a 1200 lbs. steer at 6 cents per lb. costs the butcher $72.00, and he has from this steer 720 lbs. of beef, of which he sells one third at 20 cents per lb., one-third at 15 cents per pound and one-third at 10 cents per lb., or an average of 15 cents per lb., making $108.00 for the beef. He also stated the butcher received $10.00 for the hide, $1.30 for the tongue (with a fancy paper wrapped around it), making a total of $119.30.

I have drafted a correct scale for the benefit of the people at our present retail prices, which has been endorsed by some of the oldest butchers in the county of Peterborough, using Mr. Guthrie's figures for the cost of the beef, which were the only figures correct. The scale is as follows:

In a 1200 lbs. steer we have 618 lbs. of beef, cut up as follows:

FORE QUARTER.

	lbs.	price per lb
Good rib roast	40	15	$6.00
Shoulder steak, shoulder roast	45	12 1-2	5.63
Boiling rib, boiling chuck	42	10	4.20
Neck	12	7	84
Brisket	8	7	56
Shank	12	2	24
Bone	3	2	6
Total	162		$17.63

HIND QUARTER.

	lbs.	price per lb
Sirloin steak, sirloin roast	20	20	$4.00
Porterhouse roast, Porterhouse steak	25	20	5.00
Boney st. roast	12	15	1.80
Best roast steak	30	17	5.10
Inferior roast steak	14	12 1-2	1.75
Rump roast	18	12 1-2	2.25
Good flank	7	7	49
Inferior flank	6	5	30
Suet	8	5	20
Shank	20	2	40
Total	160		$21.49

This scale covers one side of beef, showing a total for the carcass of 644 lbs., selling for $78.21:

Hide	$6.00
Offal	2.00
Total	$86.24

Making a profit of $14.21-100, or 20 per cent. But Mr. Guthrie stated that the butcher had from 80 per cent. to 100 per cent profit. If the butchers have to pay Buffalo market prices for their beef, they will certainly have to put the retail price of meats higher.

I remain your truly,

F. A. GRAY.

CONNAUGHT PRAISES THE CANADIAN ARTILLERYMEN

Commends Their Work in Winning Prince of Wales' Cups.

London, Sept. 6.—Last night's farewell banquet in the Connaught rooms, given under the auspices of the National Artillery Association to the Canadian Artillery contingent, who are homeward bound to-day, proved a brilliant spectacle, and one which will live long in military annals of the Dominion and the Motherland. The Duke of Connaught presided, and among the prominent guests were Lords Strathcona and Stradbroke and the Lord Mayor. At the cross table with His Royal Highness were Lieut.-Col. Renouf and Col. MacNachtan. The duke, in proposing the toast of the Canadian artillery team, said it was wonderfully creditable to the Dominion that they should have been successful in winning the Prince of Wales' Cup, the association's second principal trophy, and congratulated them in fitting eulogy on the many trophies they were taking back, including the King's Prize for coast defence, and the Canada and Londonderry Cups. He was delighted at their coming to England, as nothing could do more to promote comradeship than rubbing shoulders with the British soldiers. In conclusion the duke said he was sailing for Canada exactly a month hence, and hoped to meet them all on the other side of the Atlantic.

Earl Stradbroke jokingly said that while the association was not jealous of the Canadian artillery's prowess in taking back to Canada more than the lion's share, they did resent the carrying off of their president, too.

George H. Keys has been unanimously elected trustee of the Hume School at Nelson.

FRANCE AND GERMANY TO SETTLE MOROCCAN DISPUTE.

MONS. JUSTIN G. DE SELVES — MONS. JULES CAMBON — MONS. JOSEPH CAILLAUX

The dispute between Germany and France over the Moroccan question has reached an acute stage, according to advices from the French capital. Mons. Jules Cambon, the French Ambassador to Germany, has been in daily conference with Mons. de Selves, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the Premier, Mons. Caillaux, and are formulating terms which France will offer to Germany in order to reach a settlement.

WHAT IS A PUBLICATION

Puzzling Question Arises at Ottawa—Matter of Subscription Enters Into It.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—Just what class of matter is entitled to be called a publication and to receive publishers privileges is a point over which some friction has developed between the Postoffice Department and some societies which publish official organs.

A deputation yesterday waited on the Deputy Postmaster-General in regard to one of these publications, "The Co-Operator," issued by the Canadian Co-Operative Union. The Postoffice Department recently declined to grant publishers' privileges to it and this the union claims is somewhat unfair. The reason given for the Government's action is that as the magazine is not supported by individual subscription, but is bought by numbers by different local societies, it is not properly a publication. As opposed to this its publishers claim that different fraternal organs such as those of the Sons of England, are granted publishers' privileges, although not supported by private subscription.

Consideration was promised by the Postmaster-General.

MOTOR TURNED OVER ON BACK

Montreal, Sept. 6.—F. H. Anson, a prominent official of the Ogilvie Milling Co., met with a rather serious accident Monday evening when the motor car in which he was riding in company with Elwood Hosmer, overturned not far from Lacolle, Que.

Mr. Hosmer was thrown clear of the machine and escaped injury, but Mr. Anson was caught and pinned underneath, with the weight of the car on his chest. He was brought into Montreal and taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where it was found that his chest and back were bruised. He also received a painful cut on his head.

Mr. Anson is president of the Automobile Club of Canada.

Didn't Know Where He Was.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—While on his way from Toronto to visit his wife at Longueuil, James Gould, 80 years of age, suddenly became bewildered on his arrival in Montreal and was unable to give any account of where he came from and where he was going. The old man left his daughter in Toronto on Tuesday last to join his wife at Longueuil, and together they were going to Boston to visit a son.

He was held at the International Refuge and Monday's communication was received by Chief Carpenter from the Toronto police, which lead to his identity being established. He was taken to Longueuil by friends Monday evening.

Says Her Husband Eloped.

Kingston, Sept. 6.—Mrs. Hepburn has asked the police to locate her husband, Charles Hepburn, aged 23, who, it is alleged, has eloped with Mrs. Comper, aged 38, a widow. Hepburn until a couple of days ago was employed as chef in King's Cafe and Mrs Comper washed dishes. They are both missing and it is alleged they went to Toronto. Mrs. Hepburn says her husband not only deserted her, but also robbed her of all the money she had before he left. Mrs. Comper's husband committed suicide early this spring. Hepburn has a wife and child.

Five Inquiries Into Deaths by Accident at Toronto.

Toronto, Sept. 6—Five inquests were conducted in this city yesterday.

Roy Stafford of Belleville, Ont., was absolved from blame for the death of five-year-old Eddie Collis by Chief Coroner Johnson's jury. It was shown that the boy's approach had been hidden by a street car beside which Mr. Stafford's motor car was running west on Queen street, near Rhodes avenue. The car stopped and the boy was only five feet away when he came into view of those in the machine.

Coroner A. E. Morgan's jury added a rider to their verdict of accidental death in the case of Samuel Linton, whom they found to have been killed by a fall from part of a derrick while at work at the Dominion Bridge Co.'s plant Aug. 29.—They added that they were of opinion "that sufficient precaution was not taken in erecting the derrick."

Coroner Fred. Winnett's jury found that no blame attached to the motorman of College car 1,470, which struck Albert Charters at College and Marguerett streets Aug. 30. He had ridden from behind one car in front of another on his bicycle, so that he died in the Western Hospital.

Coroner R. J. Wilson opened an inquest at the morgue yesterday afternoon into the death of Joe. Hepburn, who was killed by a fall from the "Racer Dips" at the island on Labor Day. It was adjourned till September 11.

Coroner W. A. Young opened an inquest at the General Hospital yesterday into the death of Wm. Johnstone, who was killed by a street car in East Gerrard street Monday.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. Today I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

GETTING AFTER GUTHRIE

In another column, a letter appears from F. A. Gray, a practical butcher and one who knows what he is talking about, on Hugh Guthrie's remarks at the Graham meeting. Mr. Gray undertakes to prove that Hugh Guthrie didn't know what he is talking about when he made the assertions that the butchers and middlemen had a profit of 100 per cent or so in the cutting up of meat. Mr. Guthrie was trying to explain the anomaly of the cattle raiser getting higher prices for his cattle, and the housewife getting cheaper meat.

Mr. Gray shows that even with the very best management, and best of luck in selling his meat, without the customary losses, the butcher can make only a profit of $14 or so on a steer. The huge profit of 100 per cent, on the platform, dwindles down to under 20 per cent in the cutting up process. Many more of the economic arguments advanced by Mr. Guthrie and others of his like are being ripped up, by the practical men, who know hereof they speak.

Can Mr. Guthrie's arguments stand the test of actual practice? No, in this case, nor in many others. Cannot it be fairly assumed that if he was so far wide of the mark in this case, he was equally wide of the mark in others? It takes practical men knowing the business to tell these reciprocity quacks where they get off.

THE PRICE QUESTION

Last spring President Taft transmitted to the Senate a report from the Tariff Board giving amongst much other information on Canadian trade (especially pulp wood, wood pulp and news print paper) the current prices in Canada and the United States of wheat, barley, and food products of the farm, including meats, poultry and eggs, dairy products and vegetables. Prices in Canada run as high, and in some instances considerably higher than they do in the United States for dressed poultry, new laid eggs, milk, apples, beans, beets, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, hothouse cucumber, lettuce, parsley and tomatoes, onions, parsnips, spinach, squash, turnips, etc.

If farmers favor reciprocity because they suppose that higher prices will be obtained for the products of their farms, they are supposing something that has no foundation in fact. If anything happens in the way of change in prices the change is likely to be downward instead of upward. The wholesale price of beans at Ogdensburg, N.Y., last January was $2 per bushel; in Prescott, Ont., it was $2.50. American potatoes were $1.30 per barrel; Canadian, $1.45. In Buffalo, N.Y., apples sold at $5 per barrel wholesale; in Toronto the price was $6.00; onions were 14 cents a bushel higher in Toronto than in Buffalo; white hothouse tomatoes were 15 cents a bushel higher, and celery 25 cents per dozen higher; in Ogdensburg hay was selling at 17 a ton when in Prescott, Ont., it was $18; corn was 54 cents on the American side and 60 cents on the Canadian; oats were 3 cents per bushel higher on this side of the line.

It is very evident from the above figures that our farmers will have nothing to gain, but something to lose from reciprocity. But this question of prices is not the issue. Reciprocity is one of those dynamic issues that work political revolution. When it has bitten enough into the public conscientiousness, it will produce a nation-wide upheaval. The sentiment for reciprocity in Canada is feeble even amongst its most ardent advocates when compared with the sentiment in favor of fiscal independence and British connection. When the advocates of reciprocity in this country once get their eyes open to the fact that it is the beginning of the end of our own control of our own affairs, of our allegiance to the British empire and the breakup of all our traditions and time-honored customs; the price of peas and beans will appear a very small matter indeed to get excited about. The one hope for our age and country lies in a faithful allegiance to the Mother Land whence comes all that is best and most precious in our common life.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The workingman who votes for reciprocity is voting for the hastening of the day when he rubs shoulders with the American bunter for a job.

The Toronto News very pointedly asks why, if the market of 90,000,000 is so good, have half a million American farmers deserted it to produce for a market of 8,000,000.

It is really odd that all these years the Liberal newspapers found no fault with the "taxes on food" and just now have suddenly awakened that it is a crime worthy of the black hole for life.

That Centreville meeting held by Mr. Stratton ended in an uproar, almost, but of course the Examiner will have it as highly successful, etc., etc. It was in fact a Conservative meeting.

The success that Mr. Sexsmith is meeting in East Peterborough finds expression in the brand of cigar he is smoking. They are really very good class, and if the election laws did not prohibit, his constituents would be justified in asking him to show them a sample.

Don't let the spell binders bamboozle you with stories about higher prices for the farmer and lower prices for the workingman. There aren't enough middlemen to stand all the tolls, consequent on the removal of the "taxes on food." Of course the middleman gets the blame, but either the farmer or the consumer will be soaked in the end. And possibly both will get enough to make them wish—providing reciprocity goes through—that they had left it alone.

Lloyd George is quoted as saying that reciprocity is "an immense stride in the cause of free-trade." The brilliant Englishman is quite right. But do Canadians want free trade? Can they under our peculiar conditions, live as prosperously as they do under a moderate protective system? Not by a jugful. Free trade as they have it in England would ruin Canada, in five years time. Lloyd George is clever on problems of his own land, but he is certainly not qualified to judge of Canadian fiscal problems from such a distance.

There is a lot of poppycock being printed and spoken about this ninety million market. In the first place, freight rates and time, play an important part in trade transactions, and the freight rates will in many cases offset any advantage in price in either Canadian or American market. If eggs are 21 cents in Boston and 20 cents in Peterborough, would it pay to ship a carload to Boston with all the risk, to get an extra cent a dozen? The venture would be a loser. Only in cases where the difference in price is so marked that the addition to the cost, of those freight charges, still leaves room for some profit can there be any profitable trade. It is not the small farmer who is going to get the benefit of these differences—not the ordinary farmer seeking the best and most profitable way of disposing of his goods. The big American packing companies will get the benefit, and the Canadian farmer won't be richer, but will be poorer through being placed on an equal basis with his American competitor.

Hamilton, Sept. 6.—The debt on the First Methodist Church, amounting to $9,000, has stood in the way of the erection of a new church. One of the members of the congregation, Alanson Moote, to overcome this, has undertaken to pay the entire debt off himself.

ARTISANS WOULD SUFFER

Reciprocity Not in the Interests of the Canadian Home

A circular issued by Mr. W. H. Rowley, president of The E. B. Eddy Company, Hull, to the branch managers, says in part: "The Taft-Fielding reciprocity compact, apart from any question of politics, of religion or of race, is unpatriotic, uncalled for, unwise and unbusinesslike, and is sure to affect the best interests of Canada. The artisan, the agriculturist, and all the men and women who work with their hands and all the people who do office and clerical work in carrying on the business of the country, will surely suffer if the Taft reciprocity pact goes into effect in Canada. So far as our company is concerned there is no political sentiment or feeling for or against any government or for any political party. The late Mr. Eddy was, and Mr. Millen is, independent in politics, while I take only a passing interest in political matters, have never belonged to any political party or organization nor attended any political meetings for the last quarter of a century, but we all are interested, and intend to continue to be interested in the protection of our natural resources of Canada, and to try to prevent our forests, our farms, our mines, our fisheries, and all other national resources, from being wasted, as have been done in the United States, because our resources will be depleted and destroyed if the Taft-Fielding reciprocity pact carries. Wherefore, we want everyone of you, in the best interests of Canada, of our homes and of our home trade, to do all you can, wherever you can, to help elect members pledged to support the conservation of our natural resources and the protection of our lands and our laborers from being used for the benefit of the commercial competitors to the south of us."

BRITISH CAPITAL

Reciprocity Would Drive It From Canada to Other Countries

British capital is coming freely to Canada because there is plenty of opportunity to make safe and profitable investment here. We have great abundance and diversity of natural resources; our people are enterprising and industrious; our laws affecting property are sound and workable. But even these inducements might fail to attract capital if conditions in other countries did not contribute to the diversion of it hither, for Canada has plenty of rivals for the funds of British investors. Of these rivals the chief is the United States, whose demand for British capital would not be satisfied if all that comes to Canada were added to what goes to the United States. But British capital no longer favors the United States as it did.

Depression and panic are of such frequency in that country that many British investors will no longer trust any of their money there. Having lost confidence in the United States, they look elsewhere, and find in Canada the conditions they want. If the Knox-Fielding pact becomes law, the nervous system of the United States will become the nervous system of our country as well, and the panics of our neighbors will no longer stop at the border, but will run their quaking course over Canada as well. If we do not want to drive the British capitalists to other countries, we must keep out of this pact.

CANADIAN EGGS

Americans Would Flood Canada with an Inferior Product

A comparison of prices shows that for the past year the Canadian market for eggs has ruled from three to four cents per dozen higher than the United States market. During July and August prices paid by the United States dealers ruled from 12½ to 13 cents per dozen, while Canadian dealers were paying from 16 to 17 cents per dozen. Each year, when the new eggs from the south are expected, United States dealers with large quantities of eggs in store are willing to dump them into Canada at any price. With the duty removed, the Canadian market would become so unstable that Canadian dealers would either be ruined or forced out of business. Beyond the local storekeeper the farmer would have no trade outlet for his eggs, and the business would become as unprofitable as it was a few years ago, when eggs, during the summer months, ruled from 8 to 10 cents per dozen. With the elimination of the farmer as a steady factor in the supply of eggs, the Canadian consumer would be forced to depend on the fluctuations of the United States market, with all the attendant evils of uncertain quality. Reciprocity would not only kill the home market for eggs, but in the end would result in the consumer paying a higher price for an inferior product.

C.P.R. Coal Deposits

The Canadian Pacific Company is expending huge sums of money in rushing to completion extensions from the Pacific Coast and the northern boundary of the United States to its productive coal deposits in the Rocky Mountains. The Canadian Pacific lines already come within striking distance of the International boundary at several points, and with the other extensions that are now being built, the Rocky Mountain coal companies will be in active competition with United States mines for the trade of the Pacific Northwest.

The Lash of Circumstance

Harry Irving Greene

Author of "Yosonde of the Wilderness"

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"Tom," he continued, "I have always been your friend, and I wish to always remain so. When I have done telling you what I know about this crime we will talk about other matters, if you desire. But what I wish to tell you additionally is this: I had been compelled to eliminate everybody but you, and was therefore compelled most regretfully to start along your trail. As my first step I went to the hotel where you told me you staid on the night of the crime; looked at the register and ascertained the room that you had occupied. I engaged it, and went to it for the purpose of a thorough inspection. It was a back room overlooking an alley and the fire escape ran close by one of its windows. It at once occurred to me, therefore, that it would have been the simplest thing in the world for you, after having called up your uncle and after having left a request att he office for a morning summons in order to impress it upon the minds of others that you were in your room at midnight, and thus establish an alibi in case of suspicion, to have passed down the escape in the darkness, gone to any place you wished, and returned before daybreak. I therefore went down the ladder, as I assumed you had done, and at its bottom chanced upon what I consider to have been the only piece of pure good luck that came my way in the whole case. For, mind you, I insist that the rest of my discoveries were the result of experience in such matters, aided by close reasoning. Be that as it may, at the foot of the ladder I found your lost card case. I could only account for its presence there in one way; namely, that it had dropped from your pocket while you were either descending or ascending the ladder with your arms working above your head. That will perhaps remind you of the other night when you and I burglarized that office down town. You will remember upon that occasion I handed you your match safe after we had come down, and told you that I had picked it up at the foot of the ladder we had just left; mentioning the fact that climbing up and down under such codnitions was apt to work a smooth article out of one's vest pocket. There is nothing truer than that statement, and I have no doubt but that is exactly what happened in the original case of your lost card receptacle. Now, as a matter of fact, I extracted that match safe from your pocket in the darkness when you were occupied in pressing the putty against the window in order that I might try an interesting experiment. The experiment succeeded. My calling your attention to the likelihood of losing such articles under conditions similar to those you had just experienced, started a train of thought in your mind. I knew you were worried by the loss of your card case and were very desirous of regaining it. My stratagem of the restored match box made it occur to you that it was possible that you had lost your card case in going out of the window on the night of the crime, and that there was a bare possibility that it had not been picked up and that you would find it among the rubbish back of the hotel. Having as I hoped sowed this thought in your mind, I made an excuse and left you. You will recall that the pretext I made for departing was that I wished to make another experiment alone. I immediately made it, the experiment consisting of my going rapidly to the head of the alley passing the Pacific Hotel and waiting there for you. True to my reasoning, you went straight to the place where I had found the card case, and lighting a cigar, made a brief search of the premises by the light of the match, of course unsuccessfully. Then, as you came hurrying into the street, you popped into my arms where I had stood to watch if you would fall into the trap. I remember your expression of surprise and displeasure at unexpectedly seeing me there. As an excuse I told you that the criminal was downtown then and moving around considerably himself. I imagine that remark rather got you to guessing. Whether you admire my strategy or not, I think you will have to admit it was a rather clever performance on my part." I twisted in my seat.

"I have nothing further to say at present than to repeat that you will repent of your idiocy later," was my frigid comment. He laid aside the card case as having been disposed of, and began toying with the book maker's ticket.

"Being now thoroughly convinced of your guilt, I began worrying my head for good, tangible proof of it—proof that would convince twelve men who would be naturally prepossessed in your favor at the beginning because of your appearance and good record. I hated to believe you capable of a thing like this, but was forced to; and, as you know, when I tackle a man in any contest, friendly or other wise, I am going to down him if I can leaving the matter of what I will do to him after I have thrown him dependent a good deal upon his own actions. If he yells quits I am always inclined to help him up, but if he wants to fight it out to the end of course I am not going to give up. Now, your devotion to Mrs. Dace was well known about town, and when I became advised of it I began thinking hard. It went without saying that it was costing you money to court her, and I did not believe that your salary was sufficient for you to be able to keep up the pace long on that alone. Therefore I naturally wondered where you got the rest. When, in tracing you backward, I found out that you had been to the Derby, another bright thought occurred to me. You remember the mysterious man who came to your house with the forged note and got the suit of clothes you had worn on that day? Well, that was another artifice of mine. I wondered if there could possibly be any evidences in your pockets of a gambling transaction on that event. I know from personal experience how apt a man is to carry around expired passes and worthless truck of that kind for a considerable period before destroying them, so I sent an employe of mine to your house with an order written on one of the cards I had found calling for the Derby day suit, not knowing how else to describe it. He got it without trouble and I intercepted him on the way to the tailor and searched the pockets. In them I found your worthless ticket on Eagle Boy. You had bet $1,000 on that race in the hope of winning ten thousand; had lost and failed to destroy your good-for-nothing ticket."

"I suppose, in your infinite wisdom, you also know that I had money left me by my father which I was at liberty to use as I saw fit," I broke in cuttingly. He acknowledged that he possessed that information.

"Yes, I found out that you had something in reserve; but the most important fact it conveyed to me was that you had taken to secret gambling in the hope of winning enough to enable you to keep up your new life. And knowing somewhat of the nature of men, I knew it was improbable to suppose that having made a big loss you would stop without an attempt to regain it. There is no public gambling to any extent going on in town except on the board of trade and the stock exchange; so the chances were if you were doing anything along that line it would be at one of those places. By a few days' of shadowing you I ascertained that you went to a certain broker's office, and having found that out it did not take me long to learn what medium you were backing. It was the same stock that Bruce went broke on the day before the robbery, and I knew in the nature of things that you had gone broke at the same time he did. You were, therefore, as hard hit as he, but showed splendid nerve and never turned a hair or let a hint drop. I had now uncovered your sudden desperate plight at the exact time when you became possessed of the knowledge that your uncle had this large amount of money in an old, weak safe—the combination of dire extremity and sudden opportunity. It was your last hope, and you went after it as a drowning man goes after a floating oar. You got it, and for a time it buoyed you." I writhed in my helplessness.

"And you supposed I conjured burglar tools out of the air by a wave of my hand, together with the skill to use them." He smiled retrospectively.

"No; I still had that difficulty to overcome. For a little while it had me stumped, and then I chanced to recall that you went for a year or so to a technical school and learned a good deal about the use of tools. Now, I knew that many young men keep their kit after leaving such places, and I wondered if you had. I also remembered having noticed a sort of a tool chest in the basement on the day I examined the premises, and I now concluded that it was time for me to know what was in it. Therefore I burglarized your basement by forcing the back door, picked the lock of the chest, and examined its contents. Among the tools I found one of exactly the size of the one that had bored the safe, and upon closer inspection found that a bit of it had been broken off in the operation, and that bit of steel you now see on the table before you. I found it on the morning I went over the room. You will remember what a painfully minute scrutiny I made of everything—even using my magnifying glass." He gathered up the card case, the ticket and the bit of steel and placed them carefully in an envelope, which he deposited in his pocket. He then turned the piece of soiled paper and the lump of grayish matter.

"I had now the chain of proof connecting you with the crime forged with the exception of one link, which could I supply would make it practically unbreakable. On one of the mortgages which had been blackened by burnt powder was a fairly good imprint of a right thumb. I tore off the fragment of paper containing it, and by placing it under the microscope could distinctly trace the lines. Of course such lines are not the same on any two persons in the world; and could I get an imprint of your thumb and by comparison find that they corresponded, there could then be no further doubt as to your hand being the one that had rummaged the safe. But this was a difficult thing to do without arousing your suspicions. I finally got around it, however, by organizing our burglary for the double purpose of getting the print and calling to your attention the probability of your having lost your card case in your previous climb. I told you at the time that I expected to get the proof from one who would not suspect that he had furnished it until I denounced him, and I guess I was correct. I don't believe it entered your head that you were making the evidence as you went along by which I could send you to the penitentiary. Neither did you suspect that I meant you when I told you if I ever unraveled the knot it would be because of the assistance and clues you had given me. Incidentally I might say that the office we burglarized belonged to a friend of mine who loaned it to me for the purpose. I had you jamb your thumb against the ball of soft putty and got an excellent impression of it, which I have had experts compare with the faint lines on the blackened paper. They assure me that they were both made by the same thumb."

It was a good thing that LeDuc had possessed the foresight to render me helpless and secure my revolver. In the frenzy of the moment I certainly would have used it upon one or both of us. I turned upon him desperately. "Do you think any jury would believe such evidence as that and convict me?" I demanded huskily. He wrinkled his forehead.

"I am sure I don't know. One can never tell. Do you want to give a jury the chance?" I made no answer and we sat in silence, the coldness of death upon me, my companion unmoving, but lynx eyed. Then once more he addressed me, and through his tones ran the old familiar friendliness of days long gone by.

"I know that you are not a criminal at heart, Tom. I am sorry, very sorry for all this, and I should regret very much to see you go to the penitentiary. But if you wish me to assist you, you must make a clean breast of the affair. Have you any of your uncle's money left?" I could only groan. Despairing and helpless I threw myself upon his mercy.

"No. I used it for further speculation after I was wiped out the first time. I was away ahead of the game until to-day, but now I am wiped out completely. I am penniless and in debt. I can repay absolutely nothing—can offer no compromise. You will have to do as you please with me." LeDuc whistled.

"I wondered if you had got bitten to-day for the second time when I read that Underground had blown up. So that ends my prospects of getting any fees for a lot of hard work." He looked quite downcast for a space, then brightened up and continued more cheerfully.

"But really that does not matter so much after all, for I can worry along without it. If I could only have found that some one besides an old friend had done this thing I would not be dissatisfied with my job. But there is a thing or two which I don't understand. I don't believe you had a duplicate key, for I don't believe you ever contemplated such an act until you were driven desperate by the calamity. I have gone upon the assumption that you quarrelled with your uncle the day before the robbery on purpose that you might have an excuse for throwing down the key and absenting yourself from the house during the night. That being the case, how did you enter?"

"Dearie, that was awfully good tea we had at the 'bridge' last night. Do you know what kind it was?"

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. COST OF TUBERCULOSIS

E. F. McSweeney's Estimate is $100 Per Family a Year

"Preventable disease, the greatest item in which is tuberculosis and the other expenses which grow out of it, costs each family on this continent at the minimum $100 a year." This is a verdict of a most thorough and cautious estimate by expert statisticians, and it errs, if anything, on the conservative side. It is a sentence, the nugget of the discourse; taken from an address on "Tuberculosis as a factor in the increased cost of living," delivered at Denver by Mr. Edward F. McSweeney, chairman of the board of trustees of the Boston Consumptives' Hospital. The guess that preventable disease has been a large share of the growing weight of living expenses is not a new one, but the thoroughness with which the proofs have been searched out by Mr. McSweeney is novel and convincing. The nations have searched and found five major causes of this increase, namely, waste, extravagance, armed peace, inefficiency and the burden of crime, pauperism, accident and disease. By the most cautious estimate the yearly money cost of tuberculosis alone in the United States is $622,513,904, and on the present ratio of deaths annually from this disease, as compared with the deaths from all other causes, 10,000,000 of people now living will eventually die of tuberculosis. The constructive part of Mr. McSweeney's discourse deals with the proof that the treatment of incipient cases is a failure, because returning to bad conditions, they relapse; and that the prevention of contagion from the advanced cases is where the resistance must be focussed. New York is following this lead, and it has now been recognized by Germany. The rigid medical inspection of school-children is one means of prevention and "we will solve the tuberculosis question when we settle the problems of child labor, city congestion, long hours and bad factory and housing conditions." This critic is emphatic that the crusade is not one primarily for physicians and charity workers: "This is essentially a business man's crusade, and should be led by the Chamber of Commerce."

Hamilton Fireman Rewarded.

Hamilton, Sept. 6.—The heroism of City Fireman Thomas Fitzgerald, who rescued five patients from the asylum fire on the night of August 1, last night received official recognition at the hands of the fire, police and jail committee of the City Council, by his being promoted from the ranks to the position of lieutenant of hook and ladder truck No. 2. This action was taken as a result of the recommendation of Fire Chief Ten Eyck. Fitzgerald's new position has been created especially for him. Ald. Anderson mildly protested against the fireman's promotion on the grounds that there were other men in the department who were probably as brave as Fitzgerald. The alderman thought conspicuous bravery among the city firemen should be recognized by medals rather than by promotion.

"WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT IT ?"

That's what a customer asked us recently about a patent medicine we had sold for years, and we were forced to admit that in reality we knew nothing more than what appeared on the label, wrapper and advertising.

Some of the claims made were so extravagant that, of course, we could not take them seriously. This is the reason why we strongly recommend our own preparations.

Nugent's Family Remedies are manufactured by the Nugent Drug Co. These preparations have a reputation of over a quarter of a century. We manufacture over forty remedies (one for every ill).

GOING TO THE WEST

Mr. J. E. Hodgson to be Principal of Lethbridge High School

His Faithful Services to the Board are Appreciated

Another of Peterboro's best school teachers has answered the call of the West, and at a meeting of the Board of Education last night, his letter of resignation was read. The teacher is J. E. Hodgson, science master at the local Collegiate institute, who has most ably filled the position he has occupied for the past six and a half years. Mr. Hodgson was offered the position of principal of the Lethbridge High school at a salary of $2000 a year. His resignation was received with great regret by the Board, who wish to place on record their faithful appreciation of his services. Mr. Hodgson leaves Peterboro on Nov. 1st and the Board must secure a successor by that time. It was remarked at the meeting that there appears to be a demand for Peterboro teachers as they are being constantly enticed away by flattering offers.

There were present at the meeting of the Board last night, Messrs. John Crane chairman; T. H. Adams, Vincent Eastwood, Robert Fair, Colonel Miller, L. M. Hayes, Dr. Morrison, W. H. Hill, and Dr. Burnham.

ODDFELLOWS SPECIAL MEETING.

At the Board of Education meeting last evening, H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate presented a detailed report of the examination results for the year 1911, as follows—

Faculty entrance, Part 1—8 tried, 7 passed or 87.5 per cent.

Faculty entrance, Part II—8 tried, 7 passed or 87.5 per cent.

Normal entrance—15 tried, 15 passed or 100 per cent. 5 Of these obtained honors.

Honor matriculation—6 tried, 6 passed or 100 per cent.

Junior matriculation—30 tried, 27 passed or 87 per cent.

School of Pharmacy—1 tried, 1 passed or 100 per cent.

McGill University matriculation—2 tried, 2 passed or 100 per cent.

Royal Military College entrance examination—2 tried, 2 passed of 100 per cent.

There were 93 candidates from all parts of the Dominion in these exams. Fifty three of these were successful. Harold Matthews was first and Vivian Fessenden third.

The exceedingly brilliant showing of the local collegiate pupils will be amply shown by the fact that 25 per cent of all the pupils who passed took honors. This is a remarkably fine showing and speaks volumes for the efficiency of the faculty, and the Board of Education wish to have the teachers know what a source of gratification it is to them.

SIGNET RING CUT FINGER

Painful Mishap to Visitor at Toronto Exhibition

Miss Lessie Stillman of Cressman's office staff, had the misfortune to have a finger painfully lacerated while visiting the Toronto exhibition.

The accident occurred on Saturday night as Miss Stillman was on her way to the station to take the train for Peterboro. In jumping from the motor bus which had conveyed her to the station her signet ring caught on the bus in some manner, inflicting a deep cut along the back and front of it. She had just time to have it hastily dressed in Toronto before her train left, and on her arrival at Peterboro Dr McPherson found it necessary to have two stitches put in the wound. While not serious, yet the injury is painful and will be rather an unpleasant souvenir of Miss Stillman's visit to the Exhibition.

VOCAL TEACHER AT CONSERVATORY

Miss Mary G. Chalmers of Toronto is Appointed

The faculty of the Conservatory of Music, has been further strengthened by the appointment of Miss Mary G. Chalmers of Toronto, on whose work, a recent number of Musical Canada, has the following flattering reference

"At the Conservatory of Music, a vocal recital was given by Miss Mary G. Chalmers, pupil of Miss H. Ethel Shepherd, with conspicuous success. Miss Chalmers has a voice of sympathetic timber and considerable compass and her manner is free from self consciousness or exageration. With ease and fluency she gave three artistic short songs in English, which were received with hearty applause the young artist bowing her acknowledgements over a handsome offering of roses.

In a totally different selection, the grand aria from Wagner's "Rienzi" she rose fully to the occasion and displayed dramatic power, and a surprising degree of force and abandon. Upon her third appearance she gave a group of compositions by Strauss, Debussy and Schubert, in which both French and German characteristics of tone color were well suggested. The final number consisted of the Song-Cycle: "A Dream of Egypt," by Amy Woodforde-Finden, most enthusiastically received by the audience, and forming a brilliant conclusion to a striking demonstration of great talent.

NOT IN FAVOR OF RECIPROCITY

Ald. Brown Does Not Think Farmers' Will Vote for It

Ald James B. Brown, who is on a trip through Saskatchewan, in writing to a friend states that he does not think reciprocity will carry in the western provinces. He says the feeling is strong against the pact.

In conversation with farmers at the Dominion Fair held at Regina, he ascertained a vast majority intended voting against reciprocity.

The business man who is looking to the farmer's best interests, claims that he will not support the pact as it will be detrimental to the farmers and will therefore be ruination to the business man.

Ald. Brown also thinks that there will not be a very large vote polled for when the western farmer gets busy with his harvest, he has neither time for friends nor politics.

The Standard of Piano Construction

The question of quality is the only one which should be considered when buying a piano.

The beauty and permanency of tone—delicacy of touch—superiority of materials and workmanship—are synonymes of quality.

OBITUARY

Alexander Armstrong

At the good old age of eighty-three Mr. Alexander Armstrong, for a number of years a farmer in Cavan township, passed away yesterday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. Armstrong, 480 Sherbrooke street.

Deceased came to the city about four years ago. He was a member of Knox Presbyterian church and a regular attendant while he was physically able.

Those left to mourn his loss are his daughter, Mrs. W. Armstrong, city, and two sisters, Mrs. J. Hamlin, Toronto, and Mrs. G. Benson, Bewdley.

The funeral will take place at eleven o'clock to-morrow morning to the Presbyterian cemetery at Millbrook. Rev. H. J. Keith will officiate at the house and Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Millbrook, at the grave.

George H. Brown

The death occurred in South Qu Appelle, Sask., last week, of George H. Brown, a former resident of Cobourg, who has been in the west some time. His daughter, Mrs. H. T. Foote, who resides in Peterborough, went down yesterday to attend the funeral, which was held in Cobourg.

PERSONAL

The wedding of Mr. Claude Rogers takes place this evening at Toronto.

Ald. and Mrs. Anderson left this afternoon for a trip to eastern points.

Miss Bessie Gardner, of Meaford, is visiting Miss Mildred Brighman, on Stewart street.

Mrs. R. H. Reid left the residence of her sister, Mrs. Brown, yesterday to join other members of the family at Vermilion, Alta.

Miss May Trombley, of Cressman's mantle department, left on Monday for Hamilton, where she will reside in future.

The wedding is announced to take place in Hamilton this evening of Miss Olive Simpson, and Mr. Frederick Myles, both of Peterborough. They will be absent about ten days and on their return will reside on Weller street.

Miss Maud V. Bradley, concert directress, Brockville, was in the city yesterday arranging for a concert to be given by her company headed by Aptommas, the world's great harpist assisted by first class vocal and elocutionary talent.

Mr. J. H. Simmons, president of the Simmons Publishing Company, New York, left this morning for home. After a week's visit he returns greatly pleased with Peterboro and its summer resort, and with Canada and Canadians generally.

TAKES POSITION OF LECTURER IN PROVINCIAL UNIVERSITY

Mr. Stanley Fife Back From Trip to England—Left for Home in Edmonton.

Mr. Stanley Fife, son of James Fife of Edmonton, Alta., and formerly of this city, has been spending the last few days in East City, the guest of Mrs. Wright, 154 Hunter street east, and left this morning, accompanied by his sister, Miss Marlie Fife, for Edmonton. Miss Fife has been the guest of friends in the city and vicinity for the past couple of months.

Mr. Stanley Fife has been attending Oxford University, England, having won the Rhodes scholarship, some three years ago. He has had a particularly brilliant scholastic course, and is now en route from England to Edmonton. He has accepted the position of Lecturer in History at the Provincial University in Strathcona, Alta.

Mr. Fife, when interviewed by the Review this morning, chatted most interestingly on conditions in the Old Country. Regarding the strike he stated that his sailing was delayed three days owing to the complete blockade and tie up of traffic, and among sailing vessels. There were hundreds of others in a similar plight at Bristol, from which part Mr. Fife sailed. The boat on which he came over had a large passenger list.

Bristol was the most peaceful of the strike centres stated Mr. Fife, much worse conditions prevailing in Liverpool and London.

When asked about reciprocity as viewed by people in the Old Land, Mr. Fife had little to say. "It all depends like everything else, he replied, on the way the person you talk to over there looks at the question. On the whole however, I think the newspapers in England present the matter in a much better style than they do in Canada."

When asked about his plans for the future, Mr. Fife said he expected to stay in the West for perhaps one year and then return to Old England, but he could not say definitely about this.

"Something that strikes me forcibly in Peterboro" said Mr. Fife, "is the muddy state of the streets, and the absence of paved roads. He considered it would be a splendid innovation in the city if all the streets were paved and particularly better streets laid in East City."

AUTUMN MEETING OF THE LOCAL DISTRICT METHODISTS

Arrangements Made for Various Anniversaries and General Evangelistic Campaign.

The Methodist Autumn meeting of the Peterboro District was held yesterday in the Charlotte Street Church. There were two sessions presided over by the chairman of the district, Rev. Geo. W. Henderson. Nearly all the circuits and missions on the district were represented.

Arrangements were made for the Missionary, Educational and Temperance and Moral Reform anniversaries throughout the district.

The delegates were entertained at a luncheon, given by Mrs. Henderson in the parsonage, and before leaving the table an hour of most profitable conversation and prayer, led by the chairman, and Rev. Geo. Brown of Millbrook, was spent. As the outcome of this quiet hour, arrangements were made looking to general evangelistic campaign during the Fall and Winter months.

A committee of four laymen of which Mr. H. E. Hawley is convenor was appointed to arrange for a district convention of local preachers, class leaders and other lay agencies to be held at such a time and place as may be determined by them.

The meeting which was of unusual interest and profit was brought to a close, the Rev. H. M. Manning offering prayer and pronouncing the benediction.

RUGBY ENTHUSIASTS GET TOGETHER—THE PROSPECTS

Team May be Organized by the West End A. C. — Practices on Saturday.

At a preliminary meeting of some of the local rugby enthusiasts, held in the Oriental parlors last night, it was decided to hold a meeting next Tuesday evening, in the West End club rooms, when the same important business will be transacted.

It is likely that a team will be entered in the Junior O.R.F.U. series as there seems to be an abundance of material available. It has not been decided under what name the team is to play, but most of the ball fathers are in favor of running the team under the W.E.A.C. auspices. All players will have equal chance to try for a place in the line.

A formidable fourteen can easily be gathered together in theory. It is not decided whether the locals will play Junior or Intermediate rugby.

Among those who would be available are L. Johnston, who played centre half for Parkdale Canoe Club seniors last season, H. Smith, from R. M.C., last season's Inter-Collegiate champions, "Bill" Landry from McGill, George Hogan, "Skim" Gilbert, H. Eastwood, J. Harstone, Holland Hill and J. Phee, of last season's P.C.I. team; Davidson of W.E.A.C., Corkery Ackerman, Dr. McPherson, F. D. Craig and several others.

The opening practice will take place on Riverside Park, after the Peterboro Dufferin game on Saturday next. Everyone who intends to get out this season is requested to be on hand. After the meeting Tuesday night regular practice nights will be arranged

ATHLETICS WON FROM SENATORS

Collins Had Good Day With the Willow

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—Bunched hits off the deliveries of Cashion and Becker gave the home team an easy victory over Washington yesterday by 10 to 4. Krause was invincible after the second innings. Collins' batting featured, he making three singles and getting a base on balls in five trips to the plate.

Bert Murphy, the stellar third baseman of the Petes, left this morning for his home in London. Murphy has been a creditable acquisition to the local lineup this season, and has played consistent baseball throughout.

The Leafs will be back in Toronto to-morrow, with Rochester as their opponents.

A SELFISH PURPOSE

The United States Wants to Do Our Milling and Exporting For Us

We are told that the United States will soon be unable to raise all the wheat that it requires. At present, with a population of 90 millions of people, the States are producing enough wheat for 120 millions. In 1907 the United States exported 76 million bushels of wheat against Canada's 26 millions. In other words, on an average in the last three years, the United States has exported exactly three times as much wheat as Canada. Where is the demand for Canadian wheat, except as a pawn in the game of the manipulators of the Chicago wheat pit; or, as raw material for Americans who would do our milling and exporting for us? Then take flour. In 1907, the United States exported 16 million barrels and Canada one million; in 1908, 14 millions against Canada's two millions; in 1909, 11 millions against Canada's two millions. This shows that on an average the United States has in the past three years exported ten times as much flour as Canada.

Where is the threatened exhaustion of the wheat supply that is to afford Canada such an opportunity? The official agricultural statistics of the United States show that of all the farm lands of our neighbors less than one-half is cultivated, the other half is in reserve. Thus, the United States can double its wheat production by simply doubling the wheat area. With the economic methods of farming practised in Europe, the United States, which has a superior climate and superior soil, could raise its production of wheat from an average of some 12 bushels to the acre to 30 bushels, and thus quadruple its supply. In fact, students of economics declare that it is capable of raising enough for 900 millions of people—and its population is 90 millions.

What has been said of wheat applies with equal force to meat and to dairy and fruit products.

Where, then, is the attraction of the American market for the Canadian farmer? America is the greatest competitor in agricultural products that Canada has—the keenest and most jealous rival. Not in America, but in the overseas markets which he himself has won, and in the markets of Canada's own industrial population, growing so rapidly under the tariff which is building up so many large industries in this country, lie the hopes of the Canadian farmer.

DEFEAT CONTINENTALISM

Reject the Pact and Save Canada From the Enemy

President Taft had the extra session of Congress for the accomplishment of two objects. The first was the passing of the Act to give effect in the United States to the Knox-Fielding pact. The second was to prevent the enactment of any measure of general tariff reduction. By frustrating tariff reduction he enabled Continentalists on this side of the line to assure our voters that there would be no lowering of the United States' duties on Canadian products unless compensations were given in Canada's markets. In spite of repeated hints to Congress that he wished it to give a wide berth to general tariff revision until Canada should be drawn into the meshes of his Continental scheme, a Farmers' Free List Bill and a Woollen Schedule were presented for his signature.

He vetoed them both, giving as one reason for disallowing the Farmers' Free List Bill that it did not exclude this country from its privileges.

Canada can now square matters with Taft, and at the same time assert its national dignity, by rejecting his pact of Continentalism, for the defeat of that scheme will be the deliverance of our country.

WOULD KEEP THEIR CASH

Americans Do Not Want Their Money Invested in Canada

That our neighbors look upon the movement of American capital to Canada in branch industries as a distinct loss to be remedied by Reciprocity with Canada, is shown in the following extract from a speech recently delivered by Senator Beveridge, of Indiana: "There must be reciprocity with Canada. Our tariff with the rest of the world does not apply to our northern neighbor. That policy already has driven American manufacturers across the Canadian borders, built vast plants with American capital on Canadian soil, employing Canadian workingmen to supply trade. That capital should be kept at home to employ American workingmen to supply Canadian demand. We should admit Canadian wood pulp and Canadian paper free in return for Canada's admitting our agricultural implements, our engines, pumps, and other machinery free. We should freely admit Canadian lumber to American planing mills in return for Canada's freely admitting other American manufactured products to Canadian markets."

Hon. Eugene N. Foss, Governor of Massachusetts, stated that the policy which has been in force for many years in the United States "has resulted in sending approximately $300,000,000 American capital to Canada, to build up branch industries which compete with our own in foreign markets. It has also resulted in stifling the growth of Massachusetts and New England industries and kept us out of the business and commerce which belongs to us by every right. It has kept the great Canadian railways from our ports. It has ruined our coastwise shipping interests and made our wharf property of little value."

Chest Inflammation

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

ENIGMA OF GROWTH.

Reason Why Persons Do Not Keep on Growing.

Six pounds and a half is the weight of the average child at birth; at the end of the first year the average weight is eighteen pounds and a half, a gain of twelve pounds; and at the end of the second year the weight is twenty-three pounds, a gain of only four pounds and a half. And with each successive year the gain is less and less until maturity is reached. Why is the gain less each year? And why does it finally cease altogether?

The reason is that the absorbing surfaces inside the stomach and intestine do not, and in the nature of things cannot, grow proportionately to the growth of the body as a whole. During the first year of growth the child's body becomes approximately three times as large as it was at birth, but the interior of the stomach and bowel of the child at the age of one year is not even twice as large as it was at birth, let alone three times as large. Yet all the nourishment which supplies materials for growth has to be absorbed by the membrane which lines the inside of the stomach, and especially the small intestine. It is therefore, plain that growth of the body as a whole must gradually subside as the tissues to be nourished gradually approach a size at which their demands balance the utmost supply of nutrition taken up by the stomach and intestine.

QUEEN MARY FROWNS.

Order about Hobble Skirts was Disobeyed.

Queen Mary's order about hobble skirts was disobeyed at the two courts by all except the actual court ladies. All the rest wore tight skirts, but their trains covered them. They say they didn't see why they should make themselves unfashionable because the queen herself is abnormally large around the hips and unsuited to tight dresses.

Nevertheless everyone was staggered by the costume of the Marchioness de la Vill Urrutia, the wife of the Spanish ambassador. Her dress was so tight that her whole figure was sharply outlined and she had great difficulty in walking. As she belongs to the diplomatic circle she is independent of the queen's wishes and fortunately had no courtesy to make with consequences which might have been indescribable.

The queen only smiled when she saw her trouble and seemed wisely obvious of how her order was generally obeyed. Indeed, the queen was the surprise of the court, she was so smiling and bright, with a word for everybody.

ABOUT COREA.

Corea is the land of queer customs. One is that the children in school use sand boxes instead of slates. They use the difficult Chinese characters and have to learn them as early in life as we do the alphabet. They make the character in the sand with a stick and then shuffle the box and make another.

There are many "little mothers" in Corea, for babies are mostly given over to older girls to be cared for. A broad sash or strip of cloth is tied around the waist of the little mother, and the baby is tucked snugly within its folds. It keeps its place during all the games of the children and seems as contented and happy as possible.

President and Secretary Knox Agree That Important Concessions Have Been Made to United States Manufacturers

By JOHN V. BORNE.

But it is objected that the Agreement does not affect manufactured goods, except to a negligible extent. President Taft does not think so. Secretary Knox does not think so. Shrewd-minded newspapers of the front rank, like The Minneapolis Journal, which sits at the gate of the Western Canadian market, do not think so.

It is an erroneous idea that Mr. Fielding and Mr. Paterson went to Washington with adamant faces that silenced the United States negotiators immediately "Free manufactures" was said. The President's message tells a story that is born out by Secretary Knox.

The President said:—

> The policy of encouraging the development of home industries by protective duties within reasonable limits has made it difficult to extend the principle of reciprocal rates to many manufactured commodities, but after much negotiation and effort we have succeeded in doing so in various and important instances. That the opening of the timber resources of the Dominion to our needs, that the addition to the supply of raw materials, will be limited to no particular section does not require demonstration.

And Mr. Knox at Chicago:—

> Some of the greatest of our manufacturing industries, employing large numbers of workmen, for which the growing Canadian market offers opportunities, are located in the middle West. We obtained very material reductions of duty on all classes of agricultural implements. We secured important concessions for the rapidly developing motor vehicle industry. We obtain remissions of duty which will benefit numerous other industries.

And The Minneapolis Journal:—

> This is an agreement between two countries on which a future policy is to rest. The principle of give and take must first be established before the next step can be taken. The next step will be the removal of duties on manufactured products. Why should that barrier exist any more than one between Minnesota and Dakota?

COMMERCE AND NATIONALITY

The Allegiance of the Newcomer Necessarily Grows Out of His Material Prosperity

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Some friends of Reciprocity ask "What has business got to do with Nationality? How can loyalty be a mere question of potatoes and hay?"

They really seem to think that they have disposed of modern Canadian history with two questions like these.

Business has everything to do with the sense of Nationality. What is the first thing that causes the immigrant to be willing to take the oath of allegiance? His business prosperity. The United States has developed a virile national sentiment by allying business and patriotism.

That is right, for a country that is good enough to flourish in is good enough to give your heart to. But, if lines of trade were cultivated so as to make a man feel that his business is dependent on a strange power, just across the border, he will weaken in his regard for the land in which he lives, and will want to be a part of the land which dominates his business interest.

A nation is strong with its own people just so far as it has an individuality that appeals to the instincts which are expressed in the management of public affairs—if you like, in public property.

Why, for instance, should a province spend a million dollars on a legislative building, when six hundred thousand dollars would secure just as much floor space without costly frescoes and façades? Why shouldn't that building be like any other building with a big board room in it? Why should it be in a park, and get a sort of semi-religious atmosphere about it?

Because every citizen, however humble, likes to feel that he is part of a great big organism that makes history; that levies taxes, that moves with all the attributes of power. That confers honor where honor is deserved. That is the immemorial sign of nationhood. It is the spirit which brought forth the boast, "Civis Romanus Sum,"—I am a Roman citizen. It is what has made Canada.

The building of coke ovens still continues at Passburg.

IMPERIALISM: ITS PROBLEM

By Dr. Andrew Macphail.

(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd.)

For many years Imperialism was a word of dark and unintelligible meaning. Lurking in it was a suggestion of aggrandisement and ruthless expansion. For its fulfilment it required proconsuls on the one hand, and on the other a humble, willing, and obedient people. It implied subjection, and in the large word fearful spirits heard the rattle of chains and slavery.

The next stage through which the word passed was one of altruism. It came to mean that we should do something for some one else, for the British tax-payer, for the old country, the representative of true imperialism in Canada.

EARL GREY,

for the old flag. It seemed to convey an intimation that we should interfere in affairs that were none of our concern, that we should wantonly abandon our comfortable status of receiving everything and doing nothing in return and move aside from our vocation of growing rich.

Eventually we came to understand that a nation no more than a man can live to itself, that entire pre-occupation with personal affairs ends in meanness and corruption, and that selfishness is the destruction of self. The path by which nationality is attained lies quite otherwise. It is only by doing its work in the world that a nation is justified; and it governs itself best when it makes the larger duty its first concern.

England exists as an Empire not because she provides good government for herself within the narrow seas, and confers the privileges of self government upon the various Dominions which have somehow grown up under her flag, but because she has gone into the dark places of the earth and helped the helpless to help themselves, because she has contended successfully with the spirit of pestilence and murder which for ages stalked unafraid through the Sudan, and holds three hundred million Indians subject lest they should destroy each other.

England attained to greatness not by adjusting the relation between Episcopalians and Nonconformists in England, but by preventing Hindoos and Mussulmans from flying at each others' throats in India. In the face of this larger issue the minor one solved itself. By dealing with pestilence in the dark places of the earth, England achieved good health at home. By dealing with fevers on the west coast of Africa she learned to deal with fevers in England, until to-day England is the healthiest spot on earth, with a death rate of 11 per hundred thousand from typhoid, whilst the rate in Canada is 35, and in the United States it is 46. If we in Canada had become accustomed to the large matter of ridding the tropics of malaria, yellow fever, and the plague we should not allow our own citizens in Ottawa, Toronto, and Montreal, to perish of typhoid by drinking their own and their neighbours' sewage.

So long as the United States were willing to remain in that isolation which the Fathers of the Republic considered so desirable a thing, they wallowed in their own corruption, and ended up with one of the bloodiest wars of history amongst themselves. They crossed the seas because they were driven by an ideal, namely, to make of that fag-end of the world something good and great; to create a new earth; and they fervently looked for the coming of the Lord amongst the rocks of New England. But they learned, as the early disciples had to learn, that "immediately" had a new meaning, and that one day is as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day in the sphere of political accomplishment. Isolation from the evil which is in the world was their dream. But they quickly found that evil also was present with them, and that in the war against it there is no retreat and no discharge from the service.

There is in that country a revival of public conscience, such as has not been experienced since 1860, and its origin is traceable to the time when they abandoned their isolation and came out into the world, doing world's work in Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines. From cleaning up Havana and Manila they proceeded to clean up Brooklyn and New York. When they extended their care over Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines and the semi civilized communities of Central America a new spirit was born, which in time, we may well hope, will regenerate the parent republic itself.

England content to occupy herself with her growing trade and the riches which flow in from investments in every quarter of the globe would soon fall into the situation of Holland whose great seamen were left to themselves, whilst her great merchants absorbed their minds with the contemplation of pictures and tulips. Without the care of India and Egypt, without the self-imposed task of governing helpless races so that they may eventually be able to help themselves, England would quickly descend to the level of a trade competitor with Germany.

When England declines to help others, then she will be unable to help herself. Apart from world-service there can be no Empire. That is the reason why Germany is not an Empire and never will be, until she ceases to think of expansion in forgetfulness of the obligations which expansion brings.

In time we have come to see that Imperialism does not mean aggression, that it does mean a resolution to remain free, and to confer the blessings of freedom upon others. With that goes the determination to enforce justice by strength upon which all freedom, justice, and order ultimately depend. The world is never left long without a witness, and unless we do this work some other power will, and will do it worse. And we have become Imperialists just because we are resolved that we shall not be charged with the infamy of having abandoned the task which our fathers performed in their day and then handed down to us. Three things are bound up in one: the good of the world, the good of ourselves, and the good of the Empire upon which the other two depend.

Up to the present we are not really in the Empire, but we are fast drawing within, not because the Empire needs us irreparably and irretrievably, but because we need the Empire, unless we are content to sink to the level of Greece, and live upon the bounty of England or the sufferance of the United States. Strange as it may seem a condition of helotage is not favourable to the development of the individual character. Unless a nation is master of its own affairs, existing by right and not by the goodwill of its neighbours, the individuals which compose that nation inevitably develop the qualities of the servile, and servility is worse than barbarism, though a people may be servile and barbarous too. In the Empire we are masters of our own affairs. Out of it, we shall be called upon by the world to defend our title.

Happy as we are, or happy as we shall be, when our ardent young men have coopered together "an aggregation of 'equipollent' bodies-politic within the magic circle of the Crown", with a 'symmachy" and a "hegemony", each bound and each free, who can tell that this contraption, when contrived, would appeal to the humour of the Japanese for example? Political institutions are not precisely like a theological formula; and an Empire which is united in peace and automatically divides when the trumpet sounds is likely to have a short shrift in this cruel world.

Against those who protest that old things have been made new, that amongst the nations of the earth there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, there is no use contending. A whale cannot strive with an elephant because they have no common standing place. Yet we are bound to ask them what are the grounds of their assurance, for we cannot fail to remind ourselves of another prophecy directed against a complacent community, "that the sound of the millstone shall be heard no more at all in it". And that was a community like our own, in which "the merchants were the great men of the earth".

For the evils of war international amity is put forward as the sovereign cure; but possibly there may be some power which will pretend that it had lating of the various parts of the Empire for purposes of peace is a difficult task. The organization of the world will be harder still. The one is preliminary to the other, and as "A Briton" declares, the true Imperialist is the most far-sighted seeker after peace.

Arbitration is the next remedy. But who will enforce the decree upon a recalcitrant? To secure peace we must again plunge into war. In private life there are certain questions which the law itself considers are matters of private honour, and cannot be adjudicated by a court. Nations as well as individuals have their whims; and the various races have not yet freed themselves from those antipathies which began in the childhood of humanity. If we in Canada were resolved to make our western provinces an abode for white men alone, that resolve might receive scant consideration before a tribunal composed, we shall say in part at least, of South Americans whose own European blood is intermixed with African strains. Upon such a question a Japanese or a Chinaman could not be expected to render an unbiassed judgment. Would Germany be prepared to admit that the status quo was the best possible arrangement; and would she heed the voice of a company of lawyers, if they said even with one voice, "Thus far shalt thou come, and no further"? They might as well talk to the sea.

Nor would weakness be a bar to aggression. Armies do not fight because they are nearly equal. In the game of war handicaps are not given. The financial and numerical inferiority of Spain did not save her from the United States; and Canada is a much more desirable land than Cuba or the Philippines. The Philippines were patient and humble enough; but that did not alter their fate. Nor is poverty and ignorance a safeguard, as the late Mr. Kruger found to his cost. Those who find the path of safety in strict attention to our own business and a proper humility in the face of the world, would do well to call to their minds the fable of the lamb and the wolf. An era of universal peace may come, but those who do not in the meantime make arrangements for their own safety are not likely to be there to usher it in.

Isolated, we are at the mercy of any chance marauder; and so long as we retain any vestige of connexion with Europe, we are at war when England is at war, whether we like it or not. Even if we refuse to assist, our poltroonery will not save us, as an invader might well plead that he had no information of our ultimate intention, and was not especially concerned about our political aims. In 1775 Canada was attacked because our fellow subjects in the Thirteen Colonies choose to become disloyal. We were attacked again in 1812, because France and England had irritated the United States by the "Berlin Decree" and the "Orders-in-Council". Canada was invaded again in 1866 because certain citizens of the United States were dissatisfied with the treatment which England accorded to Ireland. As we are at present, we are subject to all the perils of the Empire, and are denied many of its advantages; and even if these advantages are moral more than material, they are none the less important.

However we feel about the reservation which ought to be made in any agreement for mutual defence England has always understood that the safety of all was the safety of each member, and that a hostile touch thrilled through the whole fabric. On July 20th, 1895 Mr. Richard Olney, then Secretary of State for the United States, sent a dispatch to Lord Salisbury, demanding that a dispute in which Venezuela was involved with England should be submitted to arbitration. In that dispatch Mr. Olney allowed himself to express the opinion "that distance and 3000 miles of intervening ocean make any permanent political union between a European and an American state unnatural and inexpedient will hardly be denied". To this Lord Salisbury made the prompt reply: "The necessary meaning of these words is that union between Great Britain and Canada is 'inexpedient and unnatural'. His Majesty's government are prepared emphatically to deny it on behalf of both the British and American people who are subject to her Crown. They maintain that the union between Great Britain and her territories in the Western Hemisphere is both natural and expedient". In the language of diplomacy there is only one meaning in the term "emphatically to deny".

The genius for organization has not yet deserted the British peoples, and the present problem is difficult only because it is new. The best minds in the Empire are at work upon it, and a solution will be found, because a solution must be found. The newness and the difficulty were well stated by Mr. Balfour at the Imperial Press Conference June 10th, 1909 in the words: "Remember that no statesmen have ever had before them the task which lies before the statesmen of Great Britain and the self-governing colonies. No other Empire has ever been based upon the foundation upon which ours is and must be based — namely, the common action of different members, none of them subordinate, all of them equal, but in their very equality ready to co-operate for a single object. No political theorist has ever contemplated, so far as I know, that problem in the past. It has never been accomplished or begun to be accomplished at any period of the world's history. It is our business to see that this great experiment shall in our hands succeed".
not heard of the pact. The co-re-

There is need for a man to arise, who will do for the various parts of the British Empire what Alexander Hamilton did for the scattered states which went to form the Union, to induce the various communities to neglect their differences and achieve a means of co-operate existence and perpetuation. Consciousness of nationality is a subjective sensation inherent only in the minds of those who feel it. Unless it makes itself known to the world by an assumption of obligation and a bearing of responsibility, no one will be aware that a new nation has arisen.

It is not, and never was, a question, what England will do. It is a question, what England can do. England will not lay down the burden so long as it can be borne, even if she fall in bearing it. To her will be the glory: to us the shame, that we did not put forth a hand to save ourselves.

Such then is a plain statement of the problem of Imperialism.

CANDA'S WEST; ITS PROGRESS 'SINCE FRASER

By W. D. McBride.

(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd.)

The Cession And After.

When Canada in 1869 bought the sovereign rights of the Hudson Bay Company in the West for £300,000 sterling, and one twentieth of the land south of the big Saskatchewan river she forgot a most important matter, and one that Canadians should have remembered. This was that others had established an interest in the country and its fate besides the Company, namely the Colonists, and the large number of half breeds or Metis, who had been born in the Colony and possessed rights there which they had forced the Company to recognize. The Metis had grown from servants of the Company to an important element of freemen, hunters and traders. The Government in Ottawa appears to have recognized only the sovereign rights of the Company. Looking back it seems strange now that this course should have been followed by a Canadian Government in view of our own history. The rebellion of 1870 is far enough in the past to allow the passions it aroused to cool. It was comparatively unimportant except for the danger it made only too real of our losing the whole West. Sir John Macdonald's Government took the ground that it was the duty of the Company to hand over peaceable possession of the country. The fact is that, though the Company's sovereignty was not disputed legally, it was not capable of doing so, in opposition to the colonists, if they wished to resist. The Company's moral power with the people had been weakened by coming in conflict with them over questions of trade and by the work of agitators. Politics in small, isolated communities seem to engender particularly bitter rancours. There is no doubt now that Louis Riel who raised the standard of revolt was inspired by men of greater intellectual power, and the trouble was fomented by interested foreigners possessing means, and having sinister ends to serve. Fortunately they could not control the tool they had selected, and fortunately also the great bulk of the people were loyal to the British Crown. The rebellion as such was a wretched affair of small moment, but it had dangerous possibilities. The work done at this time by Sir Donald Smith, now Lord Strathcona, in frustrating these dangerous designs will be more highly appreciated in years to come than it is today. The situation was a difficult one indeed. The sovereignty of the Company had ceased, and the thing to avoid was the necessity of forcing upon the country the sovereignty of Canada by force of arms. Wolseley's expedition was made one of peace and not of war, and in 1871 responsible government was set up. The first Manitoba Legislature passed 47 Acts mostly to provide machinery for carrying on the government. The grievances of the half breeds were redressed handsomely, but much harm was done by the disturbance of the country and the ill feeling caused. The muddle over the transfer of the West to Canada might have the effect of enabling Canadians to reach a more sympathetic comprehension of the vastly intricate and difficult problems which the British Government has been called upon to solve in all parts of the World. Too often in Canada there is a lofty assumption that we could have done these things better, but a scrutiny of our own history does not make for self complacence of this nature. A little forethought and diplomacy would have rendered Riel and his American abettors powerless for harm.

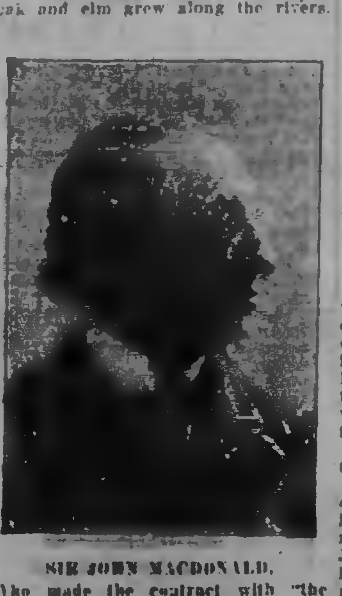
It seems strange at this day that there should ever have been any question in Canadian minds about the fertility and resources of the West. Yet many were the strenuous debates on this score. The adventurous men of the East took the "Red River fever", but the wiseheads of the rural districts shook sagely over their foolhardiness. Many of these pioneers came in during 1872 by the Dawson trail from Port Arthur, called Prince Arthur's Landing by Colonel Wolseley in honour of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught. At this time Winnipeg was a village, and settlement only extended along the Red River in the old Selkirk settlement and as far west as Portage La Prairie on the Assinaboine river. Fate conspired to aid the Eastern croakers, for the grass-hopper plague ravaged the land up to 1875. In that year the chief crop was potatoes, and the country was on the verge of starvation. The immigrants in these years who came up from Fargo, Dakota, where the rail ended found conditions hard. The plague of grasshoppers disappeared in 1876, and for some years immigration by way of St. Paul and Fargo was large. The enterprising Yankee land agents persuaded many to turn aside with their tales of the horrors of the land and the riches of the American plains only a short distance to the south. Still the pioneers flocked in and spread over south western Manitoba to the Pembina Mountains and westward toward Brandon and up the little Saskatchewan to Rapid City and Minnedosa. Steamboats were placed upon the rivers, and in 1879 the railway from the south reached St Boniface opposite to Winnipeg. In 1880 the first settler came as far west as Brandon then called Grand Valley, and in this year Sir John Macdonald made the contract with "the syndicate" as the C. P. R. company was called. The contract was ratified by Parliament in 1881 and in September of that year the road was in operation as far west as Brandon, 145 miles west of Winnipeg. Thus a new day dawned upon the fortunes of the West with the coming of the railway. The enthusiasm culminated in the disastrous boom of that year in Winnipeg real estate and in "cities" all over the plains where was no city. This, however, was only a passing harmful phase of the new born faith in the West. The men who made the west were the hardy poineers who went out upon the plains to bring them under tillage. They proved the country, and it proved them by trial and hardship. They were poor, mostly, and knew nothing of plains conditions. The prairies are bare of trees, that is the bald headed" prairie. In other parts are "bluffs" of poplar and scrub oak and elm grew along the rivers.



SIR JOHN MACDONALD.
Who made the contract with "the syndicate" as the C. P. R. company was called.

This timber or sods from the prairies provided material with which to build houses. Often fuel had to be drawn great distances. There were no roads, and the winter storms made travelling dangerous to newcomers especially. Neighbours were few, and the settler had to make his fight alone, amid new, hard conditions. The soil yielded bountifully under proper tillage, but this was just where eastern farmers were stubbornly deficient in agricultural knowledge. They had much to unlearn. All sorts of stories were set afloat to the detriment of the country. One may suffice as an instance. During the reign of the Company it made many expensive experiments in agriculture. Mostly they were failures, and the Company's detractors attributed this to design on their part to injure the country. They might have reached the same end more cheaply. The Company tried sheep farming, purchased a flock of 1500 in Kentucky and had them driven in overland, only 250 reaching Red River. The story that did service until recent years to prove that sheep could not be raised was that they were killed off by the "sphere" grass. This is a grass with a pointed spire or barb which when lodged in the wool of the sheep will cause their death by penetrating into the flesh. The fact is the sheep were destroyed by the brutality of the drovers, though many died from the sphere grass trouble, when crossing Dakota and before they reached Manitoba. The census of 1845 shows that the Red River colony owned over 4000 sheep, yet I have heard it stated as a fact within recent years that sheep could not be raised in Manitoba.

The late John Macoun fought a valiant fight in making the resources of this great land known and in combatting libels. Travellers came from eastern Canada who had never seen any province but their own, and because they found new, strange, conditions foreign to their limited knowledge they wrote and spoke ex cathedra against the land. Macoun quotes one instance where he refuted the statement of a reverend gentleman from Nova Scotia that Manitoba was a bog, and the Souris plains "a sandy, barren desert." In rejoinder it was averred that Mr. Macoun was paid by the Government to write falsehoods to deceive settlers. A farm on the Souris plains today is a fortune to a farmer. Mr. Macoun has been handsomely vindicated, but we have not reason to congratulate ourselves upon the charity and broad view of much of our political writings, let us say for peace sake a quarter or a half century ago. A fiction which has been hard to down is that of the "dry belt". Gradually settlers have pushed it westward, and in the real dry belt irrigation is being introduced. Some timid people have ventured the opinion that the C. P. R. in introducing irrigation was injuring the good name of the country. This class also are fearful lest any writer should mention the cold. Gruesomely false tales have been told about the climate, but as a fact it is only at times colder in winter than in Ontario and Quebec. It is preferred on the whole, however, by many people to that of eastern Canada. On its real merits the climate of the West will bear comparison with that of any country. "Don't mention the cold" is the counsel of cowardice and false standards.

After the coming of the railway settlement rapidly moved westward to Indian Head, Regina, and Moose Jaw. Ranching held the land westward to Calgary. The York Temperance Colony made an effort to found settlement at Saskatoon in the eighties, and around Prince Albert and Edmonton land was taken up. Regina was founded in 1882 and in the next year selected as the Capital of the West. Unbelievable as it may appear in these days homesteads in this district were abandoned in the eighties as worthless which are now selling at [illegible] per acre. In those years settlers did not know how to work this heavy land. The nineties brought prosperity to the West, but it was not till this century that the world heard the Call of the West. The hard work, earnestness and unquenchable enthusiasm of the people of the plains made an impression on the world, and the opportunities they had shown to exist were eagerly availed of. In election campaigns the immigration policy of the Government is given the whole credit. It deserves much credit, but the result was the cumulative effect of three decades of pioneering progress. Settlers from Britain and Eastern Canada, mostly from Ontario, proved the West beyond peradventure to be a fruitful land offering opportunity of vast scope to industrious husbandmen. These men laid solidly the foundations of British institutions and ideals. If growth was slow in these years it was solid, and upon sound lines. This point is worth considering in another article. However when one reads in an American magazine that the present truly marvellous growth of the West is due to its discovery by Americans it is well to remember what was done years before by the hardy pioneers from Eastern Canada who spread their settlements all over Manitoba and along the lines of railway throughout Saskatchewan and Alberta. One by one they disproved the fictions spread abroad to the injury of the West. Despite this great progress two provinces each the size of Germany were crying out for men to fill their waste places, and Canada offered every man a farm therein ready for the plow. Today the end of this free land is in sight in these provinces, and in advance of railways the pioneers are invading the Peace River country. The West will increase in wealth in the years to come. This is a matter assured. The problems that confront Canadian statesmanship concern its growth in true civilization and the best attribute of nationhood. The comforting assurance may be drawn that sound foundations have been laid by those who opened up this land for the fruitful labour of mankind.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

AN ORIENTAL REBUKE

Must Have a Waterfall to Wash Out a Graft Proposal.

Inscriptions upon Oriental ware, vases, jars, fans, and textiles are often examined with an amused but baffled curiosity. What can they mean? It is certain that they mean something. Even on the cheap halfpenny fans there are curious and grotesque faces which could not have been painted for their beauty. Only the initiated can read their story, and even among the Japanese themselves probably these specimens of pictorial rebus require classical knowledge for their interpretation. History and fable and myth must be understood and a Japanese who can understand must be [illegible] in imagination to a commentator of Shakspeare. A recent traveller in Japan gives the story of one of these riddles. It is as good as any Egyptian hieroglyph. A Japanese of historic renown is represented as washing his ear in a water-fall. No basin would answer and no placid stream suffice. He must have the full force of a cataract to cleanse the ear into which an improper proposal had been spoken. At a pool below the fall a cow is drinking, but her owner, standing near her, glowers with anger at the ear-washer who is contaminating the stream. If individually people took to cleansing their ears from scandal and other unpleasant inpourings, no "waterworks" would suffice. Lady Macbeth's query would be in order—"Will all great Neptune's ocean do it?"

A CURIOSITY OF TRADE.

A writer tells the following curiosity of trade. He has lately been travelling in that paradise of smokers, Mexico, where tobacco is very cheap, there being no Government duty on it. "At Nogales," he informs us, "a border town, there is an international street, one side of which is in Arizona and the other in Sonora, North Mexico. On the south side of his street a tobacco store sells an excellent cigar of a certain brand for [illegible] cents. Across this street, on the American side, the identical brand of cigar is exposed for sale at 13 cents. To bring the Mexican cigar across the narrow street and make a profit the American dealer must sell the Mexican product at nearly three times its original value.

Switzerland, with a population of only three and a half millions, can put 500,000 men into the field. Her army costs her only $1,000,000.

"LIFE'S LULLABY"

Man is a Hypocrite from Birth to Death.

Man comes into this world without his consent, and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstandings by the balance of his species. In his infancy he is an angel, in his boyhood he is a devil, in his manhood he is everything from a lizard up; in his duties he is a damn fool; if he raises a family he is a chump; if he raises a small cheque he is a thief, and then the law raises the devil with him. If he is a poor man he is a poor manager and he has no sense; if he is rich, he is dishonest but considered smart; if he is in politics you place him as he is, an undesirable citizen; if he goes to church he is a hypocrite; if he stays away from church he is a sinner and damned; if he donates to foreign missions he does it for show; if he doesn't he is stingy and a tight wad. When he first comes into the world everybody wants to kiss him; when he goes out, they all want to kick him. If he dies young there was a great future before him, if he lives to a ripe old age he is simply in the way and living to save funeral expenses. This life is a funny road, but we all like to travel it just the same.

SELF-DEPRECIATION NOT ALWAYS GENUINE.

Partakes of the same Character as Self-Assumption.

Self-depreciation partakes of the same character as self-assumption. Both come from over-thought of self, and both vanish when self is merged in something else. Just as soon as we are earnestly anxious for some result we begin to work for it, without stopping to gauge our powers or to think anything at all about them. The mother who ardently loves her child and desires his best good does not spend her time in bewailing her unfitness to take care of him. She begins at once, and does her best, and her power grows with every effort. The business man with a family depending upon him does not delay providing for the members because he distrusts his ability to do so; he forgets to consider that, and simply pursues his work as well as he can. So in every instance, if the self-depreciative will cease thinking about themselves at all, and devote all their thought and energy to the duty in hand, they will find their strength and fitness for the work grow with exercise, and the fears which have stood in the way of success will melt away.

The chairman expressed his appreciation of the keen interest in Omemee school evinced by the doctor and intimated a feeling of deepest gratitude for the beautiful gift. Mr. W. TO BREAK OFF CANADA

Trade Agreement the Penetrating Force That Will Do It — Danger Greater than Possible Benefit

Captain Cecil Battine writes, in the Nineteenth Century Review: "If the reciprocity opponents are right the dangers they foresee are far more important than the advantages claimed by its supporters. The character of Canadian nationality will perhaps be threatened, even if Canadian independence is really secure. While it is probably true that no attempt will be made to annex Canada forcefully, the danger seems to lie in the peaceful penetration of their grasping neighbors, backed rather by money than by force.

"Americans believe they can buy anything. If they secure reciprocity their convictions on this point will be powerfully fortified. A student of politics must be blind who does not discern that separation, final and complete, between the British and Canadian Governments, is consciously or unconsciously the darling plot of the Washington and Berlin Cabinets.

"The principal obstacles at present are the Royal Navy and the Canadian tariff. Should one of these hindrances be removed the strain may become unduly great on the other."

PERTINENT QUESTIONS

Sir James Whitney Gives Electors Four Pointers

Sir James Whitney gave his hearers at Mount Forest four questions upon the reciprocity issue to answer for themselves or to have answered by others:—

1. What does the proposition mean 2. What results are likely to follow its adoption? 3. What are the intentions of the people to the south of the border? 4. What do they expect to get out of it? And Sir James added pointedly, "If you settle the last question you have reached the bottom of the whole question."

Harking back to his own experience in the days of reciprocity between 1854 and 1866, the Prime Minister declared that in Eastern Ontario at that time every farmer had a mortgage on his farm and paid ten per cent. interest. And out of all these trials and financial tribulations, he added, the lusty infant called Canada grew up and hardened into maturity until she occupies her present proud position to-day among the nations of the world.

"President Taft," he said, "is a highly talented man. I believe a thoroughly honest and good man, but when he casts across our land the shadow of an evil we have got to pay some attention to the shadow or we'll lose the substance."

What is likely to be the result? Isn't it reciprocity with a vengeance to make a farmer sacrifice protection on everything he sells and pay duty on everything he buys?

ONE PEOPLE, ONE FLAG

That is What Madden, of Illinois, Says is His Ideal

Representative Madden, of Illinois, says: "My hope is that if we can have closer commercial relations with the people of Canada, some day this relationship may blend the two peoples into the harmonious whole; and that the territory lying north of us may become a part of the United States, as it should be. I have always believed we should be one people, under one flag, and under one form of government; and it will be better for us when such a thing happens, if it ever does."

RECIPROCITY AND ANNEXATION

The Representative of Illinois Gives Canada Fair Warning

Representative G. W. Prince, of Illinois, gave his version of reciprocity as follows: "I say to our neighbors on the north, be not deceived. When we go into a country and get control of it, we take it. It is our history, and it is right that we should take it if we want it, and you might as well understand it. The Speaker has so said; the party back of him has so said, and it does not deny that that is its desire. Now let us see if the people of Canada believe in reciprocity and annexation."

"ONE FLAG SHALL FLOAT"

Governor Bates, of Massachusetts, speaking at the Intercolonial Club, Boston, said: "We recognize that these Maritime Provinces are bound to the American nation by ties that nature and history forged in the days long past; and the link which binds these countries to us is stronger even than the link which binds them to old England. We do not know that the time will come, but we suspect it will, when it shall be recognized, with the consent of the Motherland and the approval of the people of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, that the welfare of all requires that but one flag should float over this whole country."

This style has given satisfaction wherever used.

VOL. LXIII., No. 56 | PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1911 | TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

The Peterborough workingman who votes for reciprocity is walking hand in hand with the western grain growers who demanded at Ottawa only last December the abolition of protection on manufactures, and direct taxation. Can the workingman afford to bolster up the cause of those who would take the bread out of his children's mouths-

OLD TACTICS BEING USED IN NORTH BY LIBERAL MACHINE

To Bring About Defeat of Conservative Candidates For Algoma.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 7.—The efforts to defeat A. C. Boyce and W. R. Smyth, candidates for East and West Algoma, are being evidenced daily. Last week the bush polls on the Algoma Central Railway were concluded, and in many instances boys from 14 to 16 years of age struck from the lists upon strenuous objections being entered by F. J. S. Martin, Conservative counsel. The tactics being employed by Liberals are of the nature of the famous "Minnie M." trip.

The board of revision have accepted and sustained lists brought in by men of ill-repute. In one instance, about 190 names were brought in by a man now serving a term of five years for burglary.

Messrs. Creswicke and Williams, representing the Conservatives, left court at Blind River yesterday in disgust.

Borden at Sussex, N.B.

Sussex, N.B., Sept. 7.—Despite the heavy rainfall, a large crowd attended R. L. Borden's meeting held in the rink here last night. The Conservatives of King-Albert were out in force and a number of prominent Liberals were also observed in the audience.

Col. H. H. Campbell presided, and the principal speakers besides Mr. Borden were J. A. Murray, M.P.P., and George W. Fowler.

Mr. Fowler dealt chiefly with local issues, claiming that the announcement of Hon. Wm. Pugsley, of the Liberal policy of taking over the Albert Railway was merely an election dodge.

Mr. Borden was the next speaker, and seemed in better voice than at any time during his tour of New Brunswick. After dealing with the reciprocity issue, he took up other planks in the Conservative platform, laying especial stress on the pledges of assistance for permanent highways and for the improvement of agriculture knowledge for the farming class.

This is the last appearance of Mr. Borden in New Brunswick on his present tour, as he leaves for Prince Edward Island to-day, accompanied by Premier Hazen.

VOTED DOWN THE CITIZEN ARMY

Trades Union Congress Strongly Rejected Proposal.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng., Sept. 7.—By half a million votes to 93,000, the Trades Union Congress, now in session here, yesterday rejected the proposal for the organization of a citizen army. The subject was introduced by the London Glass Blowers' Society, in the form of a resolution, as follows:—

"This congress, realizing that militarism and the existence of a regular standing army constitute a menace to popular liberty, is of the opinion that the time has arrived for the institution of a real citizen army, free entirely from military law during times of peace, officered entierly by the selection of the rank and file. Such citizen army to be used for defensive purposes only."

Will Thorne, Labor member of Parliament for West Ham, was the principal advocate of the proposition. He declared that if the principle of the Right to Work Bill was granted, it must be accompanied either by conscription or by a citizen army; otherwise, if everyone were assured work there would be no army.

Opponents of the measure twitted Mr. Thorne with being a "comrade" of Lord Roberts, who is such an ardent conscriptionist.

Lightning Works Havoc.

Chatham, Sept. 7.—Lightning struck the barn on the farm of William Crafts, north of the village, yesterday afternoon, burning the barn and all the season's crop, also the horse stable. Threshing was going on at the time and a new separator belonging to Sanford Hart was destroyed. The men were partly stunned, and it was only by great efforts that a valuable hog pen was saved.

BOMB FOUND WITH ITALIAN

"The Fox" Had it Hid Under His Coat.

New York, Sept. 7.—With a dapper young Italian, believed to be one of the country's master criminals in their hands, the police yesterday spread their nets for the gang of bomb throwers, black mailers and kidnappers that have terrorized the Italian settlement here for the past four years. Giuseppi Castabile, who was arrested Tuesday with a dynamite bomb under his coat, will be arraigned under the new law which makes the mere possession of a deadly weapon a felony, but the police hope to prove against him far more serious crimes in connection with the numerous bomb-throwing in the Italian colony. The prisoner is known as "The Fox."

Twin Brothers Shot.

Aberdeen, Wash., Sept. 7.—The bodies of the 19-year-old twin sons of Henry Beauer, a farmer, were found covered with leaves by deputy sheriffs in a lonely spot, twenty miles from Montesano and near the shack of the boys' uncle, John Turner. Bullet holes in the heads of both boys indicated the manner in which they met death. A posse is in search of Turner, who is missing. The boys had killed a bear, which was also found.

Knocked Down by Steer.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—An escaped steer from the Wild West Show exhibiting on the Midway at the Exhibition grounds, knocked down Mrs. Telfer, of Milton, yesterday morning, and she had to be taken to the emergency hospital. She was struck on the chest by the horns, and had the back of her head cut.

Some of the cowboys chased the steer and lassoed it near the grand stand entrance.

NATIONS MAY AGREE

Report is That French Proposals Are Accepted.

Paris, Sept. 7.—Tension over the Moroccan situation, regarding which negotiations are now going on between France and Germany, has been somewhat relieved by impressions derived both from Berlin and from official quarters in Paris that an agreement is more likely since the French proposals have been read by the Emperor and the Imperial Chancellor. The anxiety, however, has by no means disappeared, but a certain confidence has been inspired by the published statement of sober-minded journals, such as The Temps, that the probabilities of an accord being reached have sensibly increased.

The Foreign Office maintains a complete [illegible]lence regarding the progress of [illegible] negotiations.

Berlin, Sept. 7.—M. Cambon, the French Ambassador, and Herr Von Kiderlin-Waechter conferred yesterday evening for forty-five minutes, during which the German reply to the French proposals was delivered.

According to The Cologne Gazette's semi-official despatch, the German counter-proposals demand a full guarantee on important economic interests in Morocco, concerning which technical advice must be taken before the conclusion of the agreement. This will require care and time. Much preparatory work, however, has already been accomplished in the details of the guarantee and territorial compensation, so that with good-will on both sides an early result may be hoped for.

N. Curry, C.M.A. President.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—The time for the nomination of candidates in the Canadian Manufacturers' Association expired Tuesday.

Mr. N. Curry, of the Canadian Car & Foundry Co., Ltd., was the only nominee for president, and his election will, therefore, stand by acclamation.

The annual meeting of the association will be held on October 10th.

Gave Life For His Brother.

London, Ont., Sept. 7.—Several weeks after giving cuticle from his body that a terrible wound inflicted on that of his brother by an enraged stallion might be healed, Wm. Coward died Tuesday at his home near Exeter as the result of his self-sacrificing act, blood poisoning having developed following the operation.

Rev. R. J. Campbell Coming.

London, Sept. 7.—Rev. R. J. Campbell, pastor of the City Temple, will sail for New York on the Adriatic on October 19.

The evangelist said he would make a tour across the American continent preaching in the important cities and towns.

Has Jewels Worth $800,000.

New York, Sept. 7.—Miss Emily Grigsby, ward of the late Charles T. Yerkes, who has made her home in Europe for several years, arrived on the steamer Olympic Tuesday night. She brings jewels valued at $800,000.

R.M.C. CADETS ARE SUSPENDED

College Prank Cost Them Two Months Punishment.

Kingston, Sept. 7.—Seven cadets of the second class of the Royal Military College were on Tuesday suspended for two months for the part they took on the night of the college closing last June, in playing a prank upon Cadet Henri A. Joly de Lotbiniere, a member of the graduating class.

The party of cadets secured an automobile, and after running about six miles or more, dumped Lotbiniere on the road side, and started back for Kingston without him. He reached the college early in the morning. The sentence of the commandant was not announced until the cadets assembled for the new term.

EXAMINER DODGES THE ISSUE

Page 7 of the Examiner, Wednesday evening contains all the abuse of Mr. Burnham, the Review and the Conservative party, which could be very well put on a small sheet like the first page of the Examiner.

Mr. Stratton tries to make out that Mr. Burnham toadied to the Roman Catholics because he was friendly with them. Well, if that is the case, he must be still toadying, because he is still friendly with them. Mr. Burnham has no quarrel with the Roman Catholics.

The [illegible] little panel, beginning "I don't care a ——," and attributing to Mr. Burnham, a desire to blacken Stratton and no more, is absurd. If anybody thinks that Mr. Burnham's life work is simply to destroy Mr. Stratton, he has another think coming. Mr. Burnham does not think any more of Mr. Stratton or any less of him than 99 per cent. of the people of Peterborough.

But the fuss on the seventh page of the Examiner is made no doubt, with a view of turning aside public attention from the challenge contained in the Examiner to Mr. Burnham to appear on the stage of the Opera House and make good his charges regarding the Farmer's Bank swindle. Mr. Burnham stands ready as he said in his reply, after this week, to make good his charges, anywhere or at any time, and Mr. Stratton will have nothing to complain of in that particular.

It will be advisable for Mr. Stratton to remember, that whatever he may think himself, he stands on trial before the people of Peterborough and had better get busy and try and back up some of his bluff and bluster.

The Examiner seems to ignore the Pope and his decrees altogether. For that paper's information we may say that the Papal decrees are very recent.

BURGESS HAD HARD TIME CROSSING ENGLISH CHANNEL

Met With Adverse Tides and Took Sick Twice—Given Great Ovation.

London, Sept. 7.—William Burgess, a Yorkshire man, yesterday successfully swam the English Channel from Dover to Cape Grisnez.

The swimmer landed at Cape Grisnez at 10.30 yesterday morning, almost exactly 24 hours after leaving Dover.

Burgess started from South Foreland, Dover, at 11.15 o'clock Tuesday morning. He landed at Le Chatelet, a little village two miles east of Cape Grisnez, at 9.50 o'clock yesterday morning, accomplishing the passage in 22 hours and 35 minutes. A motorboat accompanied the swimmer, and it is estimated that Burgess, owing to the zigzag course he was compelled to take because of the baffling tides, covered sixty miles.

Soon after the start a dense fog settled down over the channel and no further tidings of his progress were received until the announcement was made that he had successfully accomplished the task and landed on the French side.

Throughout the trip Burgess was favored by a calm sea, but a strong tide was running and a severe strain was put on the swimmer to get past the Goodwin Sands. Twice he was attacked by sickness and several times was only held to his task by the strongest will power and the encouraging words of the men in the boat. He remained on French soil just long enough to telegraph word of his success to his wife and partake of refreshments in a bathing box. Then he returned by motorboat, to rest and sleep.

When he landed at Deal last evening Burgess received a tremendous ovation and with difficulty made his way through the cheering throng to a hotel. Speaking of his great achievement he said:—

"In the time the swim occupied I should have been able to cross the channel twice but for the adverse currents. Against these I had a terrific fight and again came within an ace of failing. When approaching Cape Grisnez the strong outward set of the current forced me to alter my course three times. I was held up for some time, but when I had rounded the corner I found slack water and then knew that I was assured of success.

"I was severely stung several times by jellyfishes, and while in mid-channel, after a sick spell, I felt heartbroken. For a while I was almost delirious, but my pilots began to sing, and this gave me fresh courage to persevere."

It was seven o'clock in the morning when the swimmer sighted Grisnez semaphore. He was then two miles to the west-south-west. In these two miles it was a battle with the currents, but when Burgess got within the shelter of the cape he swam easily ashore. He stumbled for two or three steps, then walked steadily without assistance. He looked remarkably fresh, considering his long immersion.

It is thirty-six years since Captain Webb performed the feat.

THE GOVERNMENT WILL WITHDRAW

From Food Fisheries Treaty Signed at Washington in 1908.

Ottawa, Sept. 7.—It is semi-officially stated that the Canadian Government will withdraw from the Food Fisheries treaty signed at Washington April 11, 1908. Regulations affecting fisheries in contiguous waters were drawn up by Prof. Prince for Canada and Prof. Starr Jordan for the United States. After these regulations were drawn up, they were strongly opposed by the United States interests on Lake Michigan and the Pacific coast. An attempt was made by these interests to have further changes made for their benefit. The Canadian Government refused. Since then the treaty has been hung up and Canada will now, it is said, withdraw altogether from it.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

A Model City.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—Mayor Guerin announced that a branch of the Civic Improvement League was now committed to the project of establishing a model town or "garden city" in Montreal, and that he intended shortly to call a meeting of those interested in the project. The aim of the promoters is to buil houses where all modern sanitary precautions will be taken and where the people will live under the best possible conditions.

Van Horne Against Pact.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 7.—Sir William Van Horne at a meeting at St. Andrew's addressed the gathering as follows:

"I am neither a politician nor a speaker, but I am glad of this opportunity to saw a few plain words on reciprocity, which I regard as the most important and far-reaching question that has come to Canada since confederation. I am opposed to reciprocity."

Seized American Boat.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept 7.—The Canadian Government has seized the Gloucester schooner Arbutus at Louisburg. The Arbutus put into Louisburg on her way to Gloucester, Mass., and there took on a consignment of fish destined for her owners in Gloucester. This constituted a violation of the treaty of 1818 under which United States fishing vessels may put in at Canadian ports only for supplies of water or shelter. The Canadian authorities promptly seized the vessel and will confiscate her with her cargo. It is the first seizure ever made under this part of the treaty.

Murder at Montreal?

Montreal, Sept. 7.—The body of a man, which had lain unidentified at the morgue since the end of last week, was yesterday morning identified as that of Walter Allare, a lumberman, who arrived here with six companions about the middle of last week. The finding of the body and the subsequent identification has led the police to place credence in the story told by a barge captain last week that one night from the deck of his barge he saw a number of men mixed up in a drunken row, one of whom was finally thrown into the river by his companions.

Burglars Were Quite Peeved.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—"Why don't you leave some money about?" This question was scribbled on a piece of paper and left in the branch postoffice at Yonge street and Woodward avenue, North Toronto, by burglars Tuesday night and was found there yesterday morning by Postmaster J. B. Whaley.

Nothing was taken, but a screw-driver used to open the till of the cash register was left.

TWO FATALITIES MAKE BIG TOTAL

German Aviator and Passenger Killed by Fall of Machine

Special to the Review.

Strassburg, Germany, Sept. 7.—Lieut. Newmann, the German army aviator, and a passenger named Leconte, were killed by the fall of their aeroplane today at Bilzheim. The total aviation fatalities now number 77.

STORM ON BIG LAKE

Harbor is Filled With Wreckage —Boats Go Down

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 7.—The worst gale of many years swept the Southern Lake Michigan to-day, filling the harbor with wreckage. Fifteen yachts were dashed to pieces and sent to the bottom. All passenger boats due to-day arrived safely, but were hours late.

"NO WAR BETWEEN ENGLAND AND GERMANY," SAYS BERESFORD.

LORD. DESBOROUGH AND LORD CHARLES BERESFORD

"It is lamentable to think of the idea of war between England and Germany. It is my belief that there is no ill feeling between the people of the two countries, and, at any rate, diplomacy always will intervene to prevent a collision between these nations."

Such were the sentiments expressed by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford on his arrival in New York aboard the Olympic. His views were in distinct contrast to those attributed to him by a correspondent of the Berlin Press Central Agency a few weeks ago.

Lord Beresford was accompanied by Lady Beresford, the Duke of Sutherland, Lord Desborough, who before he was made a peer was "Willie" Grenfell, a noted athlete, and the Hon. Arthur Stanley.

Lord Desborough won fame in this country twenty years ago by swimming the pools of Niagara twice, an extremely difficult and hazardous feat.

ANGLICANS VOTE FOR THE HOUSES TO SIT SEPARATELY

Rev. Canon Powell Selected as Proculator of the Lower House at London Synod.

London, Ont., Sept. 7.—The discussion on the motion made by Canon Welch at the last session of the general synod three years ago that the two bodies—the house of bishops and the lower house, meet together, occupied last evening's session of that body almost in its entirety, Mayor Beattie's official address of welcome being the only other event of the evening.

The final vote, though it gave an overwhelming majority of the lay vote and a straight majority of the clergy for the motion was insufficient to meet the two-thirds requirement of each party of the house of delegates on questions touching on changes of constitution.

At the afternoon session nothing save the election of the executive officers was finished, following the conclusion of the presentation of the primate's charge.

After three ballots Rev. Canon Powell, principal of King's College, Windsor, N.S., was selected prolocutor of the lower house in succession to Bishop Farthings, whose elevation to the house of bishops occurred since the last meeting. Canon Tucker of St. Paul's was a close second.

Dr. Davidson, LL.D., of Montreal, was the unanimous choice for temporary chairman and he presided over the election of the head of the lower house.

The primate's address was a lengthy one. On bible teaching in public schools he said: "If this synod represents the thought of the Church of England on this subject, let it express that thought, and also appoint a well-selected committee to confer with the highest councils of other Christian bodies with a view to some joint action in a matter, which concerns most vitality the whole future of your country."

With reference to church union, his lordship advocates the calling of a conference such as has been already recommended and leaves the matter in the hands of the synod. "Some important results," he adds, "would ensue, I believe." His lordship deals vigorously with the need for church extension in the Canadian Northwest, urging that present opportunities be not neglected, but that a strong foundation be laid.

BROOKS COMET NOW VISIBLE

Can be Seen at Night With Naked Eye.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 7.—Brooks' comet, on which the astronomers of the world are focussing their telescopes, is now visible to the naked eye and is increasing in brightness. A bulletin just issued by the Harvard Astronomy Observatory states that the comet may be easily followed, notwithstanding its rapid motion, due to its proximity. On Sept. 17 the comet will be at its least distance from the earth, at which time it will be only 45,000,000 miles away.

Inspecting Ontario's Roads.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—W. A. McLean, provincial highways engineer, and E. A. James, the York good roads engineer, are inspecting the road built under the Good Roads Act in western Ontario, and when they have completed their trip, will motor through Ohio to look over the roads in that state, which have been aided in building by state aid.

Engineer James has been instructed to arrange for the letting of contracts for the Don Mills, Lake Shore and Vaughan Plank roads. The price of crushed stone has dropped during the past month, and this will mean a great saving to the good roads commission.

New Mining Stampede.

Ashcroft, B.C., Sept. 7.—Something like the feverish activity of the early mining days seized Ashcroft at daylight yesterday morning when stampeders started for the Spring House to stake claims on a silver, lead and gold ledge recently located by a prospector named Perkins, who reached town Tuesday with news of his strike. It is declared the ore, which is reported to come off an eight-foot ledge, is 70 per cent. pure, and it is estimated that it runs $250 to the ton. Spring House is in Cailleotin County, northwest of Clinton, and about 250 miles from Ashcroft.

Vaudeville Engagement for Binford at Big Salary

GAME MUST BE REPLAYED

If Standing of Nationals is Effected by Mondays Contest

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—President Murphy announced this morning that in the event of Monday's National—Montreal game affecting the standing of the Nationals at the end of the season, the game must be replayed.

LAURIER AT COLLINGWOOD

Sir Wilfrid Failed to Inspire Any Great Enthusiasm.

Collingwood, Sept. 7.—To a gathering of between 5,000 and 8,000 people from all sections of the Counties of Simcoe and Grey, Sir Wilfrid Laurier carried his message yesterday. The town was filled with people.

The Liberal leader's address inspired little enthusiasm. He spoke for an hour, but it was noticeable that half the audience listened with stolid indifference to his plea for reciprocity.

John Birnie, K.C., was chairman. Sir Wilfrid, he said, was "the leading statesman and most central figure in Canadian politics," and reciprocity the goal so long sought by Liberals and Conservatives alike.

Addresses were then given by three Liberal candidates in this district: C. W. Hartman, East Grey; F. W. Harrison, North Grey; Leighton G. McCarthy, North Simcoe.

Mr. McCarthy said he had met the statement on the sidelines that because Laurier is a Roman Catholic, he should not be supported. This was the insidious campaign being conducted by his opponents.

The offer of the United States was for reciprocity in manufactures as well as natural products. "We were not willing to give them reciprocity in manufactures, because we believed that in manufactures they had too much advantage over us. Our policy has been to have stability in tariff with regard to manufactures, and we would not change our tariff until we have had opportunity for examination."

Mr. Borden and Mr. Foster, he believed, were not good judges of human conscience and human traditions or they would not oppose the pact.

Referring to the 12 favored nations which will come in under the agreement, Sir Wilfrid said the argument of the Conservatives would be serious if we were afraid of their competition. The products we got from those countries were in no way affected by the agreement.

Mayor Hugh A. Currie read an address from the mayor and corporation; Dr. McFaul presented an address from the Liberal Association of North Simcoe; and David Williams read one from the Collingwood Liberal Association.

TREASURES OF ANCIENT FRIARS

Found in the Vaults of Portuguese Cathedral.

Oporto, Portugal, Sept. 7.—Agents of the Government, while taking an inventory of church property, have found in the underground vaults of the cathedral here a great amount of treasure, the property of ancient friars, most of the existence of which the authorities of the church had little idea existed.

The accumulations of wealth dates from centuries when Portugal was a rich colonial power. The chests discovered are filled with gold ingots and plates, and gold ornaments studded with enormous rubies. The altar furniture is of pure gold. The treasure will go to the state.

An Organized Gang.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 7.—After Krakier Anerdussean, a Galt Armenian, had been fined $100 yesterday by Magistrate Fraser for assisting fellow-countrymen to enter Canada, Chief Immigration Inspector Goodsir admitted to the press that he believed a well-organized gang was systematically smuggling undesirable aliens into Canada. The authorities hope soon to have the chief of the gang under arrest.

His Gun Exploded.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—A man named Chartrand died Tuesday at the Hotel Dieu following an operation for shot wounds in his arms. A few days ago he was out on Lake Nipissing hunting, when the gun exploded, driving the pellets into his arm. He bandaged his wounds as best he could and came down to Montreal, going immediately to Hotel Dieu.

Took Carbolic Acid.

Windsor, Sept. 7.—The body of Daniel Mayville, 45, bachelor, of Amherstburg, was found in a cornfield near his home here yesterday. He had taken a large dose of carbolic acid. Mayville was last seen alive on Sunday.

SAVED FROM THE GALLOWS BY POEM

Governor Was Influenced by "They Hung Bill Jones."

Salem, Ore., Sept. 7.—Frank L. Stanton's poem, "They Hung Bill Jones," saved the life of Jesse P. Webb on Tuesday, so Governor West said.

Webb, who was convicted of the murder of W. A. Johnson, a ranchman, instead of being hanged at noon, was the guest of honor at a convict dinner in the penitentiary. Webb's sentence was commuted by Governor West five minutes before the time appointed for the hanging. The governor said he was influenced to grant the commutation by reading the poem.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, SEPT. 7, 1911.

WANTED, 200 MEN

The campaign in West Peterboro is developing some features of more than ordinary interest. There is evidence being brought forth nearly every day that where Mr. Stratton received support in 1908, he will find a sorrowful vacuum in 1911. In a city like Peterborough, and a country surrounding such as the Peterborough townships, a man who has some wealth can, if he chooses, with the assistance of good generalship make a strong impression on the public. The man with money in a small community is a big man, no matter what he may be personally, or how that money may have been obtained.

Mr. Stratton has achieved more or less success in the accumulation of this world's goods. He is entitled, perhaps, to credit for business perspicacity, seeing that many years ago he was on a level with the rest of toiling humanity in making ends meet. But the tendency to-day in modern thought and practice is not to honor man for wealth's sake, but to search behind the scenes, and ask "where did it come from?" Any man who cannot show a straight and honorable record in the accumulation of money may enjoy the fruits of the wealth, but he cannot command the intimate respect of the honest toiler.

Peterborough has, as Mr. Stratton says on the platform, seen fit to return him for 25 years, without a defeat. But that result has been achieved through several circumstances, perhaps the least of which is the popular conviction that the Liberal candidate is entitled to the people's suffrage on personal grounds. Mr. Stratton could if he chose, write and publish a very entertaining article on "the Power of Money in Politics," but we do not think that literary efforts will be forthcoming. But there is a time when even the worm will turn. There is an indication now from every quarter of the riding that the power of the "boss" is being broken, and that on September 21, the electors of the riding will vote according to their convictions, and Mr. Stratton will find that he came back once too often.

Reciprocity is not popular with Peterborough workingmen. They realize it's dangers to them; and they won't be beguiled by specious promises of lower cost of living, while the farmer gets higher prices for his produce. It needs but the determination of two hundred men, who have hitherto supported Mr. Stratton to vote for principles and for Canada's best interests, in order to make the turnover. Will they put the shoulder to the wheel—these two hundred? It is time for a change.

THE BALANCE OF TRADE

Many people shake their heads and refuse to think when someone earnestly suggests that Canada or any other country has too much balance of trade against her. But the balance of trade theory is easily comprehended by even the man who has had no education in political economy, and it makes a big difference in the end, to the country and every individual in the country.

If Brown buys from Jones $100 worth of goods in a year, and sells him only $50 worth, to straighten accounts Brown will have to pay to Jones $50, or there is an adverse balance of trade against Brown of $50. Similarly if a country like Canada buys from the United States $100,000,000 worth of goods, and sells to the United States only $50,000,000, it must pay the balance of $50,000,000 in cash or securities as good as cash, for the barter stops with the amount of Canadian product sales to the United States. A most advantageous deal is that were two countries to exchange an equal quantity of products, balancing up accounts in produce, because instead of paying full value then for what they buy, the actual cost is only the cost of the goods they have sold. In other words for every dollar's worth that Canada sells of her products to the United States it is ahead the profit on that dollar's worth, when it squares accounts for the purchase of United States products.

Now Canada's adverse balance of trade with the United States has steadily been growing since 1902. In 1902 we sold to the United States $210,000,000 and we bought from the United States $197,000,000. In the fiscal year ending June, 1911, we bought from the United States $461,000,000 and sold to the republic only $274,000,000. So that nine years ago we had a favorable balance of trade of $13,000,000, while to-day in order to equalize accounts we must pay in cash to the United States $187,000,000. This is a serious problem.

We are buying from the United States $100,000,000 worth annually of manufactures that might be made in Canada. But the imports in this line are increasing at an alarming rate. If the present tendency were to be followed to its logical conclusion, we would cease to be a manufacturing country altogether, and we would pay for the manufactures we import in our natural resources. These, being rapidly depleted, would leave us actually in the intolerable position of being hewers of wood and drawers of water to the United States and all because we did not have enough gumption to keep out the American invaders.

We can go on forever, paying $200,000,000 or perhaps considerably more to the United States without either drawing on a favorable balance of trade with Britain, or selling off natural resources that should be conserved to meet the obligations of the future. Reciprocity may enable us to sell more to the United States. It probably will. But it will also enable the American to sell to Canada much more in proportion. President Taft has pointed out that the United States sells to Canada three dollars worth of goods for every one that Canada sells to her. Is it not a logical supposition that under reciprocity trade will increase in that ratio?

The wider market looks good, and alluring. So is the mahogany and plate glass bar-rooms, and you are welcome within. But all is not so serene as one supposes.

MARKETS AND DEPRESSIONS

Toronto News.

The United States is suffering at present from a financial and commercial depression. These depressions are periodical. The result of such depressions upon the markets and general prosperity of the people is very marked. The farmer of the United States suffers from these recurring disturbances. He is obliged to face a period of comparative hard times every few years. Is it any wonder that hundreds of thousands of American farmers are seeking homes in our Northwest.

With our stable form of government in Canada we are not subject to such such depressions. Even a general election in this country has little or no effect upon the market. The Canadian home market has increased steadily from year to year, as our towns and cities have grown and prospered. There have been no marked fluctuations in prices except those arising from conditions of supply and demand. Our form of government ensures a stability which the United States never has enjoyed. That stability has attracted and is attracting large amounts of capital to this country. With capital, new industries are being established, and these in turn attract immigration. Large centres of population give an increased home market, which in turn adds still greater stability to the nation.

These are facts which should not be overlooked in a consideration of closer trade relations with the United States. Under a reciprocal tariff every depression in that country will have the effect of reducing prices on the American market and a flooding of the Canadian market with American products. In other words, our Canadian market will experience a depression every time there is a Presidential election in the United States.

MAGISTRATE CURED OF PILES & ECZEMA

One of the latest prominent gentlemen to speak highly in Zam-Buk's favour is Mr. C. E. Sanford of Weston, King's Co., N.S. Mr. Sanford is a Justice of the Peace for the County, and a member of the Board of School Commissioners. He is also Deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick. Indeed it would be difficult to find a man more widely known and more highly respected. Here is his opinion of Zam-Buk. He says:—

"I never used anything that gave me such satisfaction as Zam-Buk. I had a patch of Eczema on my ankle which had been there for over 20 years. Sometimes also the disease would break out on my shoulders. I had applied various ointments and tried all sorts of things to obtain a cure, but in vain. Zam-Buk, unlike everything else I had tried, proved highly satisfactory and cured the ailment.

"I have also used Zam-Buk for itching piles, and it has cured them completely also. I take comfort in helping my brother men, and if the publication of my opinion of the healing value of Zam-Buk will lead other sufferers to try it, I should be glad. For the relief of suffering caused by Piles or Skin Diseases I know of nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk cures ulcers, abscesses, blood-poison, ring-worm, festering or running sores, bad leg, varicose ulcers, salt rheum, prairie itch, cuts, burns, bruises, baby's sores, etc. Purely herbal, 50c box, druggists and stores. Refuse imitations.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Out in Vancouver the Liberal stumpers are saying that "Canada is not in the empire, because Canada is a separate nation." We wonder why the Duke of Connaught is coming to Canada in October?

Reciprocity was good enough when Canada was in the dumps of poverty and depression. But reciprocity now that Canada is doing better than the United States is foolish.

If Canada is not in the empire, as the Vancouver Liberals are asserting it is not much wonder that they feel free to advocate a policy that must ally us with the United States as against Britain.

In the twenty years from 1880 to 1900, only fifteen thousand farms in New England were abandoned. They had an acreage of 5,000,000. How was it that these farms were actually abandoned, when the 15000 farmers had free access to the market of 90,000,000?

The prospects for the return of C.A. Munson, the Conservative candidate in West Northumberland, are particularly bright. With the return of Burnham and Sexsmith, Munson and Thornton, this section of the banana belt will be well represented in parliament.

Sir John Macdonald in 1891 and before was the target for the bitterest shafts the Liberals could find, but in 1911 old Sir John is the daddy of 'em all. Surely Sir John must turn in his grave, in that Kingston cemetery, when so many of his old time traducers are now pouring out their adulation. Time's whirligig brings its revenges, and its mockeries, and there is none more striking than this.

SOME SAMPLES OF HALL'S ARGUMENTS

Here is a choice gem from the speech of the excellent Mr. R. R. Hall, made at Bensfort meeting. Abusing Mr. Burnham, he said:

> "He doesn't discuss reciprocity," said R. R. Hall, "because he doesn't know much about it. Figures bewilder his poor head. Like the little boy, he says, the rule of three, it puzzles me, and multiplication drives me mad.'
>
> "His wits are always wool gathering. You say to him, "Let's go into the trade figures," and he answers "Baby soap is good for the skin." You say, "Tell us something about wheat and barley and horses." and he says "Isn't that rainbow just too lovely."
>
> "I don't think," said Mr. Hall, "that you want a representative who is forever chasing butterflies up side paths. Mr. Burnham's placid personality would't feel at home in the hustle and bustle of politics at Ottawa. Those hard-headed fellows would put it all over him down there, just as they would over any other man who thinks that life is all jelly cake and ladys' fingers."
>
> But I mustn't go any further amazing with J. H. Burnham," said Mr. Hall, getting back to his reciprocity talk."

At Charlottetown, P.E.I., fire in a telephone exchange destroyed a switch board valued at $8000 and put out of commission all the city business.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—The foreign demand for old and new crop Manitoba spring wheat was quieter and closing prices bid were ½c to 6c per quarter lower than yesterday. Considerable business is being worked over the cable in American corn and hard winter wheat, consequently the demand for ocean grain freight is good and rates are steadily advancing. Owing to a further advance of 1c per bushel in prices for oats in Winnipeg the market here was much stronger and ½c per bushel higher with a good demand. The foreign demand for bran is brisk and prices equivalent to $24.00 per ton here were bid for round lots and some sales were made for future shipment. A good business continues to be done in flour for local and export account. The market for dressed hogs is 25c per cwt. higher. An active trade is passing in eggs. Cheese and butter are quiet.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—A record shipment of eastern cattle, together with sixteen cars of northwest cattle, consigned to Mr. G. B. Losier, made the receipts of the East End Stock Yards the largest of the year.

There was a better grade of cattle on offer, but with few buyers present, cattle prices dropped from 10c to 25c per cwt. Receipts of cattle, 1100. Market easy, opened slow with only a fair trade. Only a few of the northwest cattle sold. A car load of mixed northwest sold by Mr. Louis Delorme brought $5.55 and a few steers at $6. Eastern steers, choice, $6; good, $5.65 to $5.75; medium, $5.25 to $5.50; grass bulls, for canning, $4 to $3.50. Cows, best butchers, $4.65 to $4.75; good, $4.25 to $4.50; poor to medium, $3.50 to $4; canners, $2.50 to $3.

There was a small run of milkers on offer, with only 50 head on the market. There was no demand, and the sales which were made were chiefly to Mr. Cardinal from Quebec, who bought a carload for shipment to Quebec customers, for some of which he paid the following prices: Eight, at $62.50 and 6 at $60 each.

Receipts of sheep estimated at 1300. Old sheep, easy, at $3.75 to $4 each; lambs were away off, at $5 to $5.25; bucks and culls, $2.75 to $3.

Receipts of hogs estimated at 2000. Market, fairly active at easier prices. Select hogs, $7.25 to $7.50; heavy fats, $6; sows, $5.50, and stags, $4 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Receipts of calves estimated at 300; market, steady; prices, $3 to $10.

The Lash of Circumstance

— BY —
Harry Irving Greene
Author of "Yosonde of the Wilderness"

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"When I left the house after the quarrel I threw the catch which prevents the door from locking. Of course it would snap shut as usual, but could then be opened from the outside by the knob. I had no idea that anyone would think of looking to see that the door locked itself when it was shut on that day any more than any other, and of course no one did. I was therefore enabled to come in without a key, and when I went out after replacing the tools, and with the money in my pockets, I restored the door to its usual condition, leaving it locked." LeDuc looked at me with a frown.

"That was a thing I never did puzzle out to my own satisfaction; yet it was the simplest thing of all. When I think how rudimental it is, it makes me disgusted with myself to think that I didn't solve it. All of which goes to show what blunderers we all are when we think we are doing something extremely clever. Another thing along that line which I should like to know is this. Did you put that half burned cigarette where I found it in the hall?"

"I did not; I know nothing about it." The detective drew it from his pocket and looked at it reflectively.

"I showed it to you that day downtown merely to create the impression in your mind that I had Bruce under suspicion and had not thought of you in connection with the matter. He probably threw it there thoughtlessly in his trouble as he entered the house on the morning we were all there together. Now I am satisfied that you drugged the poor devil, and I know that you had the cabman send him to that resort. That was bad enough in itself, but when I remember also that you tried to fasten suspicion upon him I am inclined to lose all sympathy for you which I might otherwise have. To my mind your treachery in that respect is by far the worst element of your offense. I can understand how a man's infatuation for a woman may sometimes lead him to dishonesty or even bloodshed, and under those circumstances I am liable to have a lot of charity for him. But when he attempts to put a friend whom he knows is innocent into a felon's cell and thus destroy him and the happiness of a sweet woman, he does an act unworthy of any one who possesses the semblance of humanity or decency." His tones had grown sterner, and under his stinging accusation all that remained of manhood in me leaped to the surface.

"LeDuc," I cried brokenly, "whatever else I say you may believe or not as you see fit, but when I tell you this I want you to believe me implicitly. I had absolutely no idea of trying to fasten it on Bruce. I told you and everybody else from the beginning in the strongest language that I could command that I did not for an instant believe that he could be guilty. Neither would I have permitted him to be punished for the crime. If he had been tried and convicted I should have confessed, come what might. But I knew he would not be convicted, because I was certain if he had no other alternative he would tell where he spent the night. I did not know how he came in possession of the key, and simply told you of having seen him have it, because I wished to appear as telling you all that I knew, and having no idea but that Bruce would immediately account for it. I admit that I dropped a drug in his cocktail and that I was the one who told the cabman where to take him after he fell unconscious upon the seat, but that was for an entirely different purpose than to try to incriminate him. I made him unconscious merely out of fear that he would return to my uncle's house in another attempt to borrow money and possibly roll into my bed for the night, as he has sometimes done, thus interfering with my plans. And I had him conveyed to the place he was taken to instead of to where he was known for the reason that I did not wish his friends to see him in that condition and think he was intoxicated. I had no idea that he would be suspected of this affair, for I did not know he would be so obstinate about refusing to tell where he had been, nor did I know that he would deny having had the key; while as for the cigarette I had nothing to do with it. Therefore I supposed he would awake in the morning, come away, and that no harm would have been done. And when I feared that by reason of several accidents he was in danger of being suspected, I said everything I could to clear him except to acknowledge my own guilt. Neither did I use any more force on my uncle than was necessary. While I am a thief, I stole from a man who is an extorter and usurer, and who never would have come to want because of the loss of a sum of money which, insignificant to him, meant almost life and death to me." LeDuc's face cleared up wonderfully.

"I am glad that you have explained that the way you have. I like you a whole lot better for it. But how about your mentioning the fact of the money to Mrs. Dace, and why did you cough as you choked your uncle? Was that an attempt to implicate Mackay?"

"You may look at it in that light if you choose. I utterly despised the man; knew that he would do me all the harm that he could by fair means or foul, and did not care what happened to him. I did it with the idea that it might possibly furnish a false clue for you to tire yourself out on. I remembered that I had left my keys in her possession for several days and that he was sometimes at her quarters. Therefore it was a possible thing that the maid might have said something in his presence about my uncle sometimes keeping money in the safe, and that he had either by the consent of the maid, or otherwise, secured my keys long enough to have a duplicate made for use in an emergency. I mentioned the fact of this particular amount being there in quite loud tones in Mrs. Dace's apartments the day before the robbery in order that it might possibly be thought that Janet had overheard me, and thus been able to communicate the fact to Mackay if she were in his employ secretly. Following out this idea I coughed as nearly like him as I could to further strengthen the clue. Knowing that his reputation is thoroughly bad and that he is none too good to do such a thing, I carried the thought through as offering a possible solution of the mystery. Of course I wanted to mislead anybody who might work on the case."

"Anything more?" he urged, as I paused. Utterly within his power, I made this last appeal.

THE HOME MARKET

It Means Higher Prices for Farm Produce

Does the home market mean more to me than a foreign one?

First of all, what does the "Home Market" exactly mean? It means the opportunity to supply at least seven millions of thriving people. It means that such trade shall contribute directly to the prosperity of Canada, without ruinous interference from foreign producers. It means the political control of conditions under which one's business is conducted. It means the limitless opportunity of the British markets. It means safety and progress. Last and most emphatically it means higher prices for farm produce. It is inconceivable, on any sound business grounds, that by admitting a well-stocked rival to trade in our territory on equal footing prices are to be raised or even retained. It is equally inconceivable that against a nation of thirty million farmers, long practiced in the arts of farming and having every advantage that a magnificent climate can give their crops, a comparative "handful" of Canadian competitors can wage a successful war.

INJURY TO CATTLE TRADE

A Western Dealer Gives His Views on Reciprocity

"I have been in the cattle business all my life, both in Ontario and Western Canada," said Mr. H. A. Mullins, ex-M.P.P., Russell, Manitoba, "and I think I am fairly well qualified to judge of the effect reciprocity would have on the Canadian cattle business. One of the main points in regard to this business, and which has been largely overlooked, is that cattlemen in this country expect to get free entry into the British market providing there is no intercourse between Canada and the United States, such as is now suggested. This is of great importance to Canadian farmers and Western ranchers, allowing, as it would, Canadian cattle to be taken into the Old Country, fed there, and then sold along with the home-raised cattle at a much higher price than is now paid for Canadian cattle. If reciprocity comes into effect I am satisfied that American cattle, which are now kept on the other side of the line, will be shipped across into Alberta, Manitoba and other provinces, fed on Western Canada grasses, and taken back across the line with no particular benefit to the Canadian farmer and rancher. With regard to prices: Stock cattle for feeding purposes were selling in Winnipeg last year for much higher prices than the same class of cattle brought over on the other side."

Another example of the prices the Canadian farmer in the West is getting was cited by Mr. Mullins, when, just before leaving Winnipeg, he sold a mixed car of hogs for $9 per hundredweight, when the price in Chicago at the same time for this class was only $6.50 per hundredweight.

"The more the Western farmer thinks about reciprocity the less he likes it," he said. "I was talking to a friend of mine the other day who is raising horses. He said: 'I have been studying out this question for some weeks, and the more I study it the less favorable do I view reciprocity. I have now got twenty horses, and if reciprocity comes into effect I shall have to write off $50 per head, and the minute the pact becomes a fact I shall lose $1,000 thereby.'"

FARMERS ARE PROTECTIONISTS

Germany's Policy is Adequate Protection of Agriculture

In Canada the strongest protectionists perhaps are to be found among our manufacturers. In Germany the leading protectionists hold their principles in the interests of agriculture. They wish to retain their own market. They are all in favor of increased duties on agricultural produce in order to help the landowners and the farmers. Professor Wagner, who speaks most authoritatively for them, says: "An adequate protection for agriculture, higher than the present, would be in the general interest of the whole community, even if by its means the industrial development of the State and possibly also the growth of population should be, not entirely stopped, but certainly slackened in the general interests of the workers and of the economic organization of Germany. The maintenance of a capable German agriculture means the maintenance of the German people now and for the future." This is in strong contrast to the position in Canada, where our farmers are apparently willing to sacrifice largely the results of the agricultural development to the ultimate interests of the United States. In Canada, as in Germany, it is vitally important that we should create, maintain and retain capable agriculture.

AFTER SUFFERING YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fox Creek, N.B.—"I have always had pains in the loins and a weakness there, and often after my meals my food would distress me and cause soreness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better, and I can walk with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it, as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers." — Mrs. WILLIAM BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N.B., Canada.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

WHY OPEN OUR DOORS?

D. A. Weese, Kingston, Says Reciprocity Will Close Our Factories

Mr. D. A. Weese, a prominent business man of Kingston, in a letter to The Kingston Standard, comes out strongly against the reciprocity pact. "Why," he asks, "throw open our doors to a nation which in our infancy scorned us but to-day with hundreds of their factories closed down and thousands of unemployed, seek by the powerful influence of our deceived Liberal party to get free access to our minerals and other natural resources. This would close down our factories, thus building up their great centres to the detriment of Canada. How can we as Canadians close our eyes to the facts and cleave to a political party trying to pass a pact, which undoubtedly means the closing of our industries, the throwing out of employment of thousands of our artisans, and the crushing of our national pride?"

WHEAT PRICES AND THE DUTY

American Paper Does Not Think That the Canadian Farmer Would Get Higher Rates for Wheat

The Pioneer Press, of St. Paul, Minn., does not think that the Canadian farmer would secure any material advance in the price of wheat through a free trade agreement with the United States. It says editorially:

"The removal of the duty on wheat will not affect the price of wheat in this country at all. There is a duty of 25 cents a bushel on wheat, and some people think that therefore wheat is worth 25 cents a bushel more in the United States than in Canada. The fact is that the outside actual difference is about 5 cents, less than the freight charges obtained for bringing Canadian wheat to Minneapolis or other American markets. There is no tariff between Chicago and Minneapolis, and yet wheat persistently rules higher in Minneapolis than in Chicago. The tariff has nothing to do with the higher price paid in Minneapolis."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

EASTERN CANADA, EASTERN STATES

Uncle Sam's Shrewd Hand Never Plainer Than His Grab for Canadian Produce

It has been proved over and over on both sides of the line that farm lands are worth less in the Eastern half of the United States than in the Eastern half of Canada, and that farm stuff brings less in New York State than in Ontario. Under such conditions how is access to the American market going to help the Canadian farmer? Is Buffalo and surrounding territory afraid of the injury to its farmers? In the Buffalo "Times" we read: "Buffalo expects to receive a great benefit and impetus if reciprocity goes into effect." Of course it does, and at the expense of Welland, St. Catherines, Hamilton and Toronto, and every foot of arable land that lies between. The same situation faces every Canadian city, town or village supporting a consuming population, and every farm good enough to grow a crop. The delight of nearly every class of workers in the United States, with the exception of a few political cliques and class factions is not to be mistaken as an anthem of joy over Canada's future, but rather as the cry of a victor contemplating a new conquest. Uncle Sam's genius for "putting over" a shrewd business deal is never shown better than when he pleads for free trade in farm produce. Not that he wants the produce, but he does want access to the prize he has so long coveted, the vast natural riches, the high markets, and the stable demand for which the Dominion of Canada is noted far and wide.

THE BEST CONSUMER

Dangerous to Injure or Destroy the Home Meat Market

In the matter of butter, cheese, poultry and other direct and indirect products of the farm, no official figures are available as to the total production of the country later than the census of 1910. Yet, with the exception of cheese, Canada is becoming an importer instead of an exporter. "The market of ninety millions" looks good on paper, but it does not exist in fact. Our farmers are producers and the home market constitutes the best consumer. Statistics of certain industries of Canada were taken officially in 1906. The figures are instructive. In slaughtering and meat packing, and slaughtering without packing, the production was something over $29,000,000. Our total export of meats of all kinds that year was only a shade over $2,000,000, and this included poultry and game. In 1909, we sold to the whole world outside of Canada only $1,900,000 worth of meats. Thus, it will be seen, something of how important our home meat market is, and how dangerous it would be to allow it to be destroyed.

FEW RICH, MANY POOR

That is How the Beef Trust Operates and Wants Free Entrance to Canada

Dressed meats and meat products of different kinds came into Canada from the United States last year, ending March, 1911, to the extent of over $3,000,000. The great proportion of these imports come from the Beef Trust, and in face of the duties. Reduce the tariff on packing house products, as Reciprocity proposes to do, and give the Beef Trust free access to our natural products, and you simply perpetuate and aid a gross evil as well as imperil the best interests of Canada. It was Oliver Cromwell, the Great Protector of England, who said: "If there be anyone that makes many poor to make a few rich, that suits not a commonwealth." The "Beef Trust" of the United States is such an one, and its mark on the Republic South of us is sufficient to show that any cession whatever to such a power would not suit the Commonwealth of Canada.

WHAT BOSTON SAYS

Gives Statistics of the Abandoned Farms in New England

A most reliable Boston publication, whose columns are exclusively devoted to financial and commercial news, and the discussion of economic questions, says:—

"The farms abandoned in New England in the past decade aggregate 875,000 acres out of 20,549,000 held as farm land ten years ago, a loss of 4.3 per cent. In Massachusetts the abandoned farms represent 277,000 acres out of 2,147,000, or a nine per cent. loss.

"Considering only the improved acreage, the decline is still greater. The owners or tenants evidently gave up hope the past ten years on 11 per cent. of cultivated ground in all New England and in Massachusetts on 10 per cent. The burden of the loss fell chiefly on the traditional home of the abandoned farm—New Hampshire and Vermont; the former losing 14 per cent. of its tillage, and the latter 28 per cent."

Reciprocity vs. Preference

The farmers have to choose between reciprocity with the United States and competition with thirty million American farmers, or a preference in British markets and prices from five to ten per cent. greater than can be obtained by American farmers for the bulk of their exports.

There is no reason why a man's wife shouldn't be assisted to him.

"WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT IT?"

That's what a customer asked us recently about a patent medicine we had sold for years, and we were forced to admit that in reality we knew nothing more than what appeared on the label, wrapper and advertising.

Some of the claims made were so extravagant that, of course, we could not take them seriously. This is the reason why we strongly recommend our own preparations.

DOCTOR SAID SHE WOULD DIE

"Fruit-a-tives" Saved Her Life

RIVIERE A PIERRE, QUE., May 9th 1910

"I look upon my recovery as nothing short of a miracle. I was for eleven years constantly suffering from Chronic Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Constipation. The last two years of my illness, I was confined to my bed nearly all the time. I was so thin I weighed only 90 pounds, and I vomited everything I ate. Even water would not stay on my stomach.

The doctors gave me up to die as the stomach trouble produced heart weakness and I was frequently unconscious.

At this time, a lady friend strongly advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives" and how thankful I am that I did so. When I had taken one box, I was much better and after three boxes, I was practically well again and had gained 20 pounds.

I have taken thirteen boxes in all and now weigh 150 pounds and am absolutely well—no pain—no indigestion—no constipation—my heart is sound and complexion clear".

BOARD HEARD APPEALS; SOME NAMES STRUCK OFF

Number of Italians to Appear Before the Board Hearing to Continue To-night.

The Board of Appeal, with Judge Huycke presiding, sat for two hours and a half last night in the committee room at the city hall, during which time eleven appeals, in connection with the registrations received attention.

The number of appeals to come before the Board is between fifty and sixty. Of this number, some twenty are Italians. Included in the list also are inmates of the House of Providence.

Mr. R. Redds, K.C., and Mr. E. A. Peck acted in the interests of Mr. Burnham and Mr. G. N. Gordon and Mr. W. S. Davidson for Mr. Stratton.

The Board is composed of Judge Huycke, chairman, and Magistrate Dumble, George J Sherry and Bernard Morrow.

The hearing will be continued to-night at eight o'clock.

The name of Courthope Pousette was struck off the list, the evidence failing to show in the mind of the Board that Peterborough was his domicile.

Fred Taylor, 533 Sherbrooke street, stated that he was improperly placed on the list, he being three days short.

J. J. Breen, Mr. J. R. Stratton's groom and a boarder at the Oriental Hotel, was contested. This case was adjourned.

John Fred Reed, 184 Perry street, and W. H. Dunsford, Dennistoun avenue, registered by affidavid. Mr. Gordon held these to be ineffective and both cases stand over till the affidavits are produced, it being impossible for the Board to secure them last night.

Ralph C. Hillier, 161 Park street, returned to Peterborough June 23rd, and failed to produce the evidence giving him the right to vote.

John R. Eastwood's name was allowed to remain. The service on the notice of appeal was too late.

Samuel Barnes, it was shown, had not been twelve months in Canada, by several days. He was struck off.

Joseph O'Donnell, Stewart street, Joseph Collins and Elzie Letellier satisfied the Board that they were qualified to vote by reason of their age.

MR. BURNHAM HELD BIG MEETINGS IN NORTH COUNTRY

Major Johnston and Mr. Burnham returned yesterday from a trip to Galway and Cavendish. They held a meeting at Silver Lake and at Union Creek, in Galway, where, in spite of the very stormy weather, there was a packed house, and then went on to Kinmount.

Proceeding again, the speakers went on into the heart of Cavendish and held a meeting at White Lake, which was most successful.

Galway and Cavendish are hard hit by the Farmers' Bank smash and can never recover, because the timber is is now all gone, and only a certain amount of wood is left. The soil is not conducive to grain raising.

As one man said, the only thing left to do was for the Government to reforest the whole thing, buy out the people and let them go some place else. The Farmers' Bank took all their earnings of a lifetime.

Mr. Sexsmith and Mr. Burnham will be at Buckhorn to-night.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir—The Examiner is trying to make out that Mr. J. H. Burnham uses a wide unparliamentary language about Mr. Stratton.

If the Examiner wants to hear what Mr. Stratton said about Mr. Burnham, I can give it to the King's taste but it is not fit for publication.

I don't believe that Mr. Burnham ever used the language anyhow, but I know Mr. Stratton did.

WESTERNER IS ON VISIT HERE

Mr. W. H. G. Armstrong Talks of Political Situation

Mr. W. H. G. Armstrong, formerly of Peterborough, and now Provincial Grand Organizer for the Loyal Orange Association of Saskatchewan, arrived in the city to-day on a two weeks visit.

Mr. Armstrong, when interviewed by a Review Reporter, regarding the political situation in the Western provinces, stated that the Conservatives would gain three or four seats at the least in Saskatchewan. The people in the cities and towns will go strong against reciprocity, and the farmers are so busy that there will not likely be a very large vote polled.

The crop is the best in years.

Regarding the progress of the Loyal Orange Association in Saskatchewan Mr. Armstrong states that there were thirty new lodges organized last year in the province. That is seven more than any other province in the Dominion accomplished.

The work of the organizer is very difficult in the sparsely populated country. Mr. Armstrong covers an area of 270,000 square miles in his work.

AN APPEAL TO THE ENGLISHMEN

St. George's Society Doing Good Work in City

The St. George's Society is doing a great amount of missionary work in the city. Many cases have come to hand where strangers have been helped, as in the case of two Englishmen who arrived but a few days ago. By good fortune they observed the card in the waiting room showing the addresses of the officials, and they at once got into communication with them and received a hearty welcome with some good advice. A boarding house was found for them and they were directed to where they could find work and are now quite settled in the city. The St. George's Society appeals to every Englishman in Peterboro for their support.

MISSED HIS SHOT AND BROKE MIRROR

Richard McBride in Court on Disorderly Charge

Richard McBride appeared in police court this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly yesterday in a local bar. He was remanded.

Richard went into the bar yesterday and according to the evidence of the Chief of Police, became drunk. He then commenced to interfere with the other patrons by asking them to buy him a drink. A quarrel grew out of this apparently between him and the bartender, for Richard grabbed up a tumbler and hurled it at the bar tender's head, missing him however, but shattering a mirror behind the bar.

A police officer was called, and Richard was placed behind the bars at the police cells.

"I would not hurt anybody for the world," said Richard this morning.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR LINDSAY

Proposition From Promoter of Malleable Iron Establishment

Lindsay, Sept. 6—A number of the business men of Lindsay assembled in the Hotel Benson this morning to hear a proposition which was submitted by Mr. McComb, re the establishing of a new malleable iron industry in this town. Briefly Mr. McComb wished the town to subscribe stock, while the balance of stock necessary to secure the industry for Lindsay would be forthcoming from outside parties.

Mr. McComb explained that it was proposed to organize a company with say $75,000 paid up capital. The equipment of the plant will cost complete approximately $26,000. That will give the plant a capacity of ten tons per day, and will give employment to forty or fifty men, all at good wages. The building will cost approximately $16,000 and any additional buildings will be built with a capacity of twenty tons per day and give employment to from 70 to 80 people. The working capital required for ten tons capacity will be $25,000 to $30,000, the buildings would be approximately 50 feet by 200 feet, one story. The cost given of the equipment will include the very highest grade of equipment and of the greatest possible efficiency. In view of the standing high freight rate on coal they will be able to make malleable castings from one dollar to two dollars cheaper than other places for the reason that they would have better equipment, as the equipment will be the very highest and best possible to be bought, therefore reducing the cost of the manufacture to the minimum. There would be a profit to the shareholders in the neighborhood of ten dollars per ton. The idea of building the buildings larger than the equipment is on the belief that the industry will naturally grow and the expenditure of $20,000 more will double the capacity of the plant without putting in any more money in the buildings.

REFORMERS LOOK FOR A SMALL MAJORITY

The Examiner of Wednesday night prints the following summary of the situation and probable results. This is tremendously at variance with the statements of results predicted by that paper.

Toronto, Sept. 6—"With the Canadian general elections just two weeks off, there is considerable speculation as to the probable result. It is admitted on all sides, that owing to many generally Conservatives supporters going over to the Liberal side and vice versa, because of private business interests that this is probably the most difficul telection in Canada's history to speculate on, as a result of Bourassa's admitted influence in Quebec and reciprocity's great favor in the West, are also factors that upset the calculations of the election forecaster. Considerably strong Government supporters are of course quite sure that Laurier will be returned with a good working majority to put through the reciprocity pact, while old-time Conservatives are gambling strong on a Conservative sweep. However, concensus of opinion here of those who look on the situation with really experienced but politically impartial eyes, and who have received reliable information, and have figured it all out say that the Government will go back with such a small majority that the Nationalists will hold the balance of power and force another election within a short time."

IS IT ALL SUCH BOSH, AFTER ALL?

It is all very well for the advocates of the reciprocity pact to cry "Bosh!" when they are called on to answer the charge that the pact is the beginning of annexation. That portion of the United States press which is not muzzled discusses the subject very frankly. For instance, the Saratogan, of Saratoga, N.Y., on August 23, said in part, editorially:

"In the course of time annexation may become an issue, but it is not at all improbable that when that time comes Canada itself will take the initiative. * * * Children are probably here now who will see the Stars and Stripes waving over the entire Dominion, with the consent of Canada and England. * * * If the reciprocity treaty of 1854 had continued till this time it would probably have brought Canada into the Union."

PETERBORO FAIR NOTES; OPENS WEEK FROM TO-DAY

Steel Grand Stand Will Be Ready for First Day of Exhibition.

Another meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Industrial is called for next Monday night and the president would like to see a large attendance.

Everything is running along smoothly and with a fine brand of weather on September 14th, 15 and 16, the success of last year will see a repetition.

Work on the new steel grandstand is progressing and the structure, which is sure to be appreciated by the thousands of friends which the fair has made, is to be ready for use on the opening date.

Secretary Hall is a busy man these days. Beginning this Saturday afternoon and continuing till Wednesday, he will have his office at R. Denne's store on George street.

Two night performances are to be given this year, and the program looks like a big winner. High priced acrobatic artists will be seen, Bandmaster Glidden and his popular band will be there and the finale will be brought about by the best fireworks spectacle ever seen here.

Some improvements are being made to the exhibits building which promise to be filled with everything of interest. This department of the exhibition is sure to be well worth a visit.

For those interested in turf events, the racing program gives every indication of eclipsing former records. An endeavor will be made to secure the horses from the Belleville and Oshawa Fairs. Peterborough steppers should do some good work.

The officials ask for the co-operation of the public. They ask only their due and it is up to the people to turn out and send up the attendance to a point never reached before.

TAKES POSITION AT ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE, TORONTO

Mr. W. J. O'Brien Resigns as Principal of St. Peter's School—Will Be Greatly Missed.

Mr. W. J. O'Brien, son of Mr. Michael O'Brien, Separate School Inspector, who has been for the past three years, principal of St. Peter's school has resigned that position and leaves the latter part of this month for Toronto to take up new duties at St. Michaels College, he having accepted a position on the teaching staff.

The new position will be much more advantageous to Mr. O'Brien and Peterboro friends of which he has won a host will wish him every success at Toronto.

He has been successful at St. Peter's school and popular with his scholars, in whom he has always taken an interest, not alone during school hours, but with them in their sports.

He was educated in the Peterboro schools and completed his course at Ottawa.

With athletic organizations he has been a valued officer and player and he is sure to be missed.

NEW STREET CARS EXPECTED IN TIME FOR THE FAIR

Addition of Three New Cars to the Street Car Service

Mr. J. H. Munro, manager of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company is making a strenuous effort to have three brand new cars constructed on the latest and most up-to-date style, ready for placing on the car line for Peterborough exhibition transportation purposes. The three cars have been shipped by the Ottawa Car company, and are expected in the city at any day. They are about thirty-two feet in length, slightly longer than the present cars, and the platforms, which are larger and roomier, are adaptable for the Pay As You Enter system. It is the intention of the company to adopt this plan on the new cars when they arrive. The motors and other fixings which go with the cars were made by the Canadian General Electric company, who will install them when the cars arrive. The new cars will be painted yellow, the seats will be crosswise and be made of ratan.

Another improvement the company is making to the line is the building of a "Y" at the northern terminal of the car line. When this is built the cars will run as formerly to the end of the line, then branch off on to the Auburn dam, and out again to the main line. This will be a very convenient feature.

BRIDGE TO BE REPAIRED

Order Given for Temporary Repairs of Pigeon Lake

The Pigeon Lake bridge will be temporarily repaired and the order for the work being proceeded with was given yesterday, when a committee from the Victoria and Peterboro county councils and Peterboro city council met.

Ald. Metheral and Ald. Graham made up the local committee.

It was decided that a new bridge should be constructed and the three councils will take this very important matter into consideration.

SOME SAMPLES OF STRATTON'S ARGUMENTS

Here is a sample of Mr. Stratton's abuse of Mr. Burnham, as reported in the Examiner, of the Bensfort meeting. Says Mr. Stratton:

> "This man Burnham will not talk reciprocity. He has no head for it. When he quotes figures he gives you the wrong figures. I am surprised that the fate of Ananias has not overtaken him before now. Ananias was only half as bad as Burnham, for he held the truth out just once. Burnham holds it out from you and also from the Peterborough Review when he reports his own speeches."

BISONS TOOK FINAL GAME; O'TOOLE WON FOR PIRATES

Leafs Were Too Handy with Misplays at Buffalo

Buffalo, Sept. 6.—The Maple Leafs bid Buffalo fine good-bye to-day for 1911, but left the final game in Buffalo's keeping. It had been intended to make a bargain day of it, but heavy rains spoiled that arrangement, and the teams were considered very fortunate in being able to wade through one. Hard work on the part of the ground-keepers was needed, and about 3 o'clock, sponges, pails, spades, sawdust, and dry earth were replaced by bats and balls.

The Bisons proved the better mudders. The Maple Leafs did not appear to take to the going as did the Bisons. Their usual ginger was lacking. It may have been the weather, and again it may have been the fact that Brennan was pitching. It was errors undoubtedly that lost for the Toronto nine. Every one of the three runs brought home by Buffalo was assisted along its way with an error, while the lone score secured by the Maple Leafs came to them as the result of Smith's single and Shaw's triple, one of the grandest hits ever seen at the old ball park.

Pittsburg, Sept. 6.—Cincinnati and Pittsburg split a double-header here to-day. Pittsburg took the first game by 4 to 3, and Cincinnati the second 6 to 1. The second game was called by agreement, and only six innings were played as Pittsburg had to catch a train for St. Louis. O'Toole twirled for the Pirates.

FOOTBALL

If any football teams in the county wish to compete for R. R. Hall trophy, emblematic of the championship of the county, it is up to them to send in their entry to the secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, Mr. F. J. A. Hall, as early as possible, as the games will be played during the progress of the exhibition.

The C.G.E. teams won it last year when the defeated Havelock. The team that wins it three years in succession keeps the trophy.

If there is only one challenge the game will not take place until Saturday afternoon, Sept 16th, but if there is more than one game to be played the first will be on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 14th.

P.C.I. TEAM FOR THE CITY LEAGUE

Central Park Fourteen Getting Ready for Season

The Collegiate Athletic Club has signified its intention of trying for city league honors, should a league be formed.

The Kennerites had a formidable fourteen in line last season, and though several of the older players have left the school, there are some promising youths to take their places. The team organized rather late last season, and they only played three games. Their decisive walloping of the Lindsay aggregation by a 22 to 0 score testifies as to their abilities. It should not be a difficult matter to get three other teams to enter for the city championship.

Everyone interested in rugby in the city should attend the open meeting on Tuesday evening next in the West End Club parlors, George street.

Y.M.C.A. SPORTS

The Y.M.C.A. aquatic sports, which will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2.30, if the weather is suitable, promise to be most successful. A splendid collection of prizes have been arranged for, including two medals and eight paddles. The sports will be held in the canal just above the lift lock. The live saving exhibitions no doubt will prove of interest and instruction, while the fancy diving will be also worth watching. All that is desired now is warm weather.

The Tariff Is a Practical Friend of the Working Man

As the result of some investigations conducted by The Monetary Times (Toronto), it is known that at the present time at least 200 United States manufacturing companies are operating branch factories in Canada, representing an aggregate investment of $226,000,000. For this influx of capital, with all the benefits accruing to the Dominion therefrom, we must thank a tariff which made it worth while for those who hoped to sell us goods to come to this side of the line to manufacture. Had that tariff not been a protective one, those United States manufacturers would probably have enlarged their home factories to take care of Canadian business instead of building on this side, in which case we would now be using goods made from United States material with United States labor, instead of goods made from Canadian material with Canadian labor.

That our neighbors look upon this movement as a distinct loss to be remedied by Reciprocity with Canada is shown in the following extract from a speech recently delivered by Senator Beveridge, of Indiana:—

"There must be reciprocity with Canada. Our tariff with the rest of the world does not apply to our northern neighbor. That policy already has driven American manufacturers across the Canadian borders, built vast plants with American capital on Canadian soil, employing Canadian workingmen to supply trade. That capital should be kept at home to employ American workingmen to supply Canadian demand. We should admit Canadian wood pulp and Canadian paper free in return for Canada's admitting our agricultural implements, our engines, pumps, and other machinery free. We should freely admit Canadian lumber to American planing mills in return for Canada's freely admitting other American manufactured products to Canadian markets."

In this connection it is worthy of mention that certain wealthy United States concerns that recently acquired sites in Canada with a view to the immediate erection of extensive shops have suspended operations pending the outcome of the present negotiations, presumably in hopes that our tariff on the goods they manufacture will be so reduced as to make such a move on their part unnecessary.

FARM WAGES

Higher in Canada than in Other Agricultural Countries

The average wages paid on the farms of the following countries over periods as nearly co-incident as possible are as follows:—

Canada	$24.00	a week.
United States	24.00	"
Argentina	15.40	"
Russia	13.86	"
Hungary	13.33	"
Roumania	13.32	"
Bulgaria and Servia	13.33	"
Sweden	10.60	"
Denmark	10.04	"

All these figures are naturally approximate, but for the purposes of nearly accurate as necessary. Wages vary from month to month. In harvest time they are higher than in springtime and in springtime they are much higher than in winter. Moreover, a difference is made where the farmers include board in the contract. But generally speaking the above table indicates the difference between the cost of labor to the Canadian farmer and what it costs his competitors in the other great agricultural countries of the world.

The fellow who patronizes the races doesn't always go broke, but he is apt to come home that way.

Some people have such a dread of taking something that doesn't belong to them that they won't even take a hint.

POINTS ABOUT THE DEAL

THE TARIFF SAVED CANADA

Without It the Country Must Have Become an Outer Fringe of the Republic

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Canada was compelled to climb painfully into nationhood against three almost overwhelming disadvantages, all of them closely concerned with the United States.

She was handicapped by climate conditions.

She had few people.

She lost population to the United States.

In early days, the more rigorous winter made settlement on the land more difficult, and prevented Canadians reaching the sea for nearly half the year, except through the United States. The whole country was looked upon as a sort of backyard to the United States. It would still be so regarded but for the combined influence of the boundary line, and the tariff which the United States was the first to build upon.

It was the tariff that enabled Canada to turn the disadvantage of her climate into a glorious asset.

If a tariff had not been raised against United States manufactures, those goods would have poured across the border and prevented the growth of industrial cities and towns in Canada. In everything Canada would have been to the United States as the northern parts of Canada are to the rest of the Dominion. What are now her great cities would have been small provincial towns, tributary in the great affairs of business to the manufacturing cities of the United States, which would control the Canadian market for manufactured goods.

And if, in business, Canada had been a tributary, a mere feeder of the United States, pride in her destiny would have languished and few would have gloried in her citizenship; her sons and daughters would have been driven southward, and the feeling that she was an outer fringe of a vast, populous, imposing Republic, to whom she must look for finer sustenances of life and for careers for her children, would have borne its logical fruit.

Without the tariff the southward tide could not have been stayed.

THE POISONING OF THE PEOPLE

By Dr. Andrew Macphail.

(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd.)

The first business of a community, civilized or uncivilized, is to provide itself with some arrangements, primitive or complicated, by which it shall avoid the necessity of eating, drinking, or re-breathing, its own excretions. This is the end and aim of all hygiene and sanitation.

The easy device which savage people practise is to move away from a locality which has become so defiled that existence is no longer bearable or even possible. But so soon as they erect habitations for themselves they become indisposed to pursue this migratory policy and endure as well as they can the evils which they created. Pestilence and plague are the results, until a merciful fire sweeps away the whole abomination, and allows a repetition of the offence.

But as these habitations become more durable, and brick and stone replace straw and wood, the remedy of fire is less generally applicable, and the pestilence goes unchecked. To abandon the sites of Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, and Toronto, for example, would be inconvenient, and the edifices are too well built for us to hope much from the salutory fire.

A better way had to be found. Accordingly sewers were constructed to carry off the refuse, and pipes were laid to carry water. But the indiscretion was committed of drawing the water from the receptacle into which the sewage had been discharged. By a rare feat of ingenuity, however, the intake for the water was placed at some little distance from the discharge for the sewage. Under the best conditions this merely meant that a community was satisfied if it did not consume its own sewage. It was still content to poison a community lower down the river, and to be poisoned by a community which had its habitation higher up.

Cities in Canada may be divided into two classes, according as their inhabitants are poisoned by themselves or by their neighbours. Toronto and Kingston fall into the first class; Montreal in the second, and Ottawa in both; but all four poison their neighbours indiscriminately.

The difficulty has arisen out of our failure to understand that a river is designed to drain a country. It always lies at the lowest level of the land through which it passes. Its very excellence as a drain is precisely the quality which makes it the worst possible source of supply for water which is to be drunk. In Europe the people have made the discovery that this drain may be used to sail boats on; it never occurs to them to drink of its water.

The Romans made the same discovery. They employed the rivers for legitimate purposes and sought their water supply at the proper source. In all the regions which they occupied there yet remain the ruins of these splendid aqueducts by which they brought water from the clean hills. We are content to bring our drinking supply in an open ditch from a polluted river.

The degree of civilization to which a community has attained may be judged by the number of deaths which occur from typhoid fever. It is an index of the regard in which cleanliness of living and even life itself is held. Before setting forth in all its enormity the death rate from typhoid, which prevails in the cities of Canada, it will be advisable, for the sake of erecting a standard for comparison, to cite the rate for European countries. In Scotland the deaths from typhoid during the years 1901-05 were 6.2 per hundred thousand of the population; in England and Wales, 11.2; in Germany, 7.0; in Belgium, 16.8; in Austria, 19.9.

According to the latest returns the death rate in Canada is 35.5, which is higher than that in Hungary, where it is 28.2; in Italy, where it is 35.3; and only lower than in the United States where it is forty-six per hundred thousand of the population.

Let us now consider the state of affairs in the various cities of Canada in the light of statistics supplied by Dr. Charles H. Hodgetts, medical officer to the Conservation Commission, in his address on "Pure Water and the Pollution of Waterways". When it is considered what Scotland has achieved, and that a death rate from typhoid of over twenty per hundred thousand of the population is evidence of gross carelessness, the full significance of the figures will be appreciated. In Edmonton, from 1901-09, the death rate from typhoid fever per one hundred thousand of population, was: 75.4, 20.0, 32.3, 37.5, 30.0, 254.3, 190.0, 110.0, 78.0. In Winnipeg the rate was: 113.3, 95.0, 83.8, 248.2, 175.0, 103.8, 49.2, 40.5, 38.4. The figures are not to be obtained during all of these years for Fort William, but such as are given disclose the following state: 88.6, 200.2, 132.6, 646.9, 98.5, 94.0. In the province of Quebec the highest rates, in the cities quoted, are those given for Sherbrooke: 476.6, 227.0, 80.8, 60.8, 30.7, 53.3, 21.6, 108.0, 131.4, 78.4. Of the two largest cities fronting on the chain of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence, Toronto has a comparatively low rate, though during the years 1906-09 the figures have risen to 34.0, 19.4, 19.5, 25.7. During 1900-09, the rates for Montreal were: 42.8, 44.4, 30.9, 31.4, 31.8, 18.1, 37.0, 32.2, 33.1, 53.8 per hundred thousand of the inhabitants.

These figures have been selected as showing the highest rates. Other cities, such as Vancouver, Victoria, Hamilton, Quebec, Halifax, and Charlottetown, have figures, as a rule, well under the 20 per cent. danger mark. But it is worth remarking that in Charlottetown where the lowest rate is given as 8.3 the water supply is drawn from springs; in Halifax, where the rate was 4 per hundred thousand, the water is drawn from a series of well guarded lakes; and in Quebec, where the rate was 5.3 the water is drawn from the Laurentian Hills.

If now, the chief cities of the United States, which border on the Great Lakes, be considered, it will be found that the death rates from typhoid are higher, and vary less, than those of the cities quoted for Canada. Niagara Falls from 1900-08, has the following high rates: 107.9, 143.9, 136.4, 126.9, 139.8, 181.6, 147.3, 126.8, 98; and Sault Ste. Marie has: 132.9, 92.9, 172.9, 115.9, 62.4, 68.6, 58.9, 16.5, 72.9. Of the twelve cities from which returns are available, only two, and those curiously enough, Chicago and Milwaukee, have rates which would suggest care and supervision of a water supply.

What has been brought about in the way of reform in Great Britain has not been the result of a day. It was not until 1858 that pollution was prohibited in England. In 1861 an Act was passed requiring sewage to be purified and freed from putrescible matters before being discharged into streams. From then until to-day, the question has been dealt with by many Acts and considered by many commissions, and although all difficulties have not yet been overcome, one most important precaution has been taken, namely, the purifying of the whole of the sewage before discharging it into any water course.

In Canada, the matter is complicated by the fact that many of the sources of water supply are not only interprovincial but also international. The great Lakes, for example, receive a portion of their waters from Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, as well as from the contiguous Canadian provinces. So that to take steps to ensure cleanliness in the water supply of the country will demand that the Federal Governments of the two countries deal with the matter. The restrictions imposed at present against polluting water ways are, largely municipal, and, as such, each community is concerned chiefly with attempting to keep pure its own particular water supply, without considering whether or not the disposal of its sewage will contaminate the supply of others. Fortunately there are now means by which this joint control can be undertaken by the governments of Canada and of the United States, under a Treaty which was signed on January 11, 1909, and ratified on May 5th, 1910. The main object of this Treaty was to prevent disputes regarding boundary waters, but incidentally provision was made to prevent their pollution by communities dwelling upon either banks. Under this treaty it is provided that all questions and matters of difference arising between the two countries involving the rights, obligations or interests of either in relation to the other shall be referred to a commission for examination and report. Such commission has now been appointed and is at work upon these problems.

R. S. LEA, C.E.
Chairman of Committee formed to investigate sanitary conditions of Canada.

The death rate from typhoid in Canada is 35 per 100,000 of the population. Accordingly about 3,000 persons die every year from the disease. How, as only about ten per cent. of all patients affected die it follows that thirty thousand persons are attacked in Canada every year. In addition to the suffering and grief caused by the disease the drain on the efficiency of the community is enormous by the withdrawal of so large a number of the people from useful employment.

By combining the life value of individuals at different ages with the age distribution of persons dying of typhoid fever, the resulting average value of persons dying from typhoid fever is found to be $4,634. If to this be added cost of nursing, attendance, and loss of wages the cost will easily reach six thousand dollars. According to the census of the United States for the last year for which complete returns are available, 35,379 deaths occurred from typhoid fever. If it be assumed that each of these represents a loss to the community of $6,000, the total amount is found to be $212,000,000. Of these deaths probably three-quarters could have been prevented: that is, the needless loss of vital capital was about $150,000,000; and the same loss is repeated every year.

To demonstrate what can be done to reduce the death rate, the experience of two adjacent cities in the United States may be appealed to. For four years in Albany before an efficient water supply was secured the rate averaged 104 per hundred thousand. In the next four years it decreased to 26. In Troy where no alteration was made in the water supply the rate remained identical during the two periods.

When we reflect upon what has been done in Europe the shame for our neglect will be the greater. Here we are practically free from the poverty which oppresses Europe. Our population is scattered over an enormous area, whilst in Europe a population of 178,000,000 is crowded into an area little greater than that of the Maritime provinces, Quebec, Ontario, and Manitoba, which contain fewer than seven million people.

Strange as it may appear, the discovery of methods for the purification of sewage has harmed rather than helped, since they have confirmed people in their habit of discharging sewage into the rivers from which they drink. The real object to be attained is to prevent rivers from becoming offensive, since no method had been discovered for reducing sewage to such a point of purification that it may be drunk. The plants which are being erected at enormous cost to filter water and the sewage farms which are being built are merely postponing the time when we shall have pure water to drink. Instead of working towards a supply which has always been pure we are wasting our time in purifying water which has already been hopelessly polluted. The proper method is to obtain the purest supply and then purify it still further by filtration. Liverpool has shown us the way. Its water is obtained from a stream rising in the mountains of Wales, the watershed of which is owned or controlled by the city. This circumstance is not, however, depended upon to ensure the entire safety of the water, for it is filtered through slow sand filters before being delivered to the consumers.

The necessity of the purification of sewage has harmed rather than two points of view, first, with regard to the organic matter which it contains, and, second, with regard to its germ contents. The inevitable fate of the organic matter is to pass through certain processes of decomposition and oxidation whereby it is ultimately reduced to harmless mineral forms. Under natural conditions, this may cause nuisances and conditions offensive to the senses. The main object of sewage disposal, as at present understood and practised, is to prevent this, and to cause the oxidation changes to take place under controllable conditions, quickly, inoffensively, and to such a degree as will at least produce a stable effluent, incapable of undergoing further changes of an objectionable character. All modern methods of treatment are capable of accomplishing this, but without greatly diminishing the number of bacteria present in the raw sewage, therefore, for the purpose of destroying the germs which cause typhoid nothing is effected. A false security is created by guarding only against visible pollution and the people continue to be poisoned.

The Canadian Society of Civil Engineers by means of a Committee has just completed an important survey of the sanitary condition of Canada and the committee of which Mr. R. S. Lea is Chairman has submitted a most valuable report to the Annual Meeting of 1911. The following facts are taken from the Report of the Society as published: For the purpose of obtaining definite information the list of questions was sent to all places in Canada with populations of 1,000 or over. This list was sent to 327 places and replies were received from 166. Only 18 places reported any kind of purification and in twelve of these it is limited in its nature. Of the 166 places reporting 145 have waterworks. Of these only 36 have supplies from under-ground sources, 44 obtain their supply from small lakes and streams in practically uninhabited watersheds; 25 from the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers; and 40 from other lakes and streams which are liable to contamination by sewage. From the information furnished by these replies, the Committee reports "that not much has yet been done in Canada in the way of purification of either water or sewage".

After a complete analysis of all the replies received and a general consideration of the whole question, the committee summarized its conclusions as follows:

1. None of the methods of sewage disposal, which are feasible and economically applicable on a large scale, can be relied upon to effect complete purification.

2. The distinction between the general surface drainage of a populated district and its urban sewage is one of degree only, and such is itself may render the water into which it discharges unwholesome, and dangerous for drinking purposes.

3. Since much of the surface drainage cannot be even collected for treatment and since sewage disposal processes in the present state of the art cannot be depended upon to effect complete bacterial purification, it follows that the raw water of rivers and lakes in populated districts can never be considered entirely safe, and fit for domestic supplies.

4. Experience has shown that water of even a considerable degree of pollution can be rendered pure and wholesome by filtration, and, for practical purposes this is the only reliable means of ensuring the safety of surface supplies from unprotected water-sheds.

5. Towns and cities which take their supplies from suspicious sources should not depend for their safety upon the efforts of others, but should themselves adopt such precautions as are available.

6. In Canada up to the present time practically nothing has been done in the way of purifying the sewage of municipalities, except in the case of less than half a dozen places in the Province of Ontario.

7. The Public Health Acts of the different Provinces provide in a general way against the discharge into bodies of water of matter which would cause nuisances, or which would endanger the public health. Such laws lack definiteness, and are therefore generally ineffective.

The meeting of Dominion and provincial public health representatives with the members of the Committee on Public Health of the Commission of Conservation, which was convened at Ottawa last October, and at which Dr. Hodgetts delivered his address, is an indication that this subject is being considered by public health authorities. If, as Dr. Hodgetts suggested, the Commission on Conservation collect all available data to estimate correctly the character, quantity, and variety of the various pollutions at present existing, and ascertain their exact point of discharge and their bearing upon the present sources of water supply of towns and cities, both near and remote from the point of discharge, an important step will be taken. It will then be for the Federal Government to deal effectively with the whole matter.

"INSOLENCE NICOTINA."

A New League Been Organized To Abate Public Smoking.

The "Non-Smokers' Protective League" has been organized with the avowed purpose of abating public smoking as a nuisance.

Of course the bare announcement of the organization of such a league is the cue for all smokers to break into derisive laughter. The smoking fraternity simply assumes that smoking is here to stay and that the unfortunate non-smoking public must either learn to smoke or grin and bear the fumes of tobacco.

It is true of course, that the smoking public is considerably in the minority, counting men, women and children, and that the folks who smoke in public places do so because they dare to, not because they have any logical right to, but even when cheerfully admitting these truths, the average smoker will keep the even tenor of his way. "What are you going to do about it?" is his only defense, if indeed he thinks it worth while to offer any defense.

This attitude is a manifestation of a peculiar sort of insolence, that, for want of a better term, may be called "insolence nicotina." All smokers have it. Even the most gentle and considerate of them have it. Even those who still go through the form of prefacing their smoking by asking others if smoke annoys them, assume that no non-smoker will be so ungentlemanly as to tell the truth even if smoke does annoy him dreadfully.

It is this calm assumption that the non-smoker has no right at all in the common air that particularly annoys that individual. Smoke is unpleasant, of course, to many non-smokers, but not so unpleasant that they won't choose to bear it rather than make others uncomfortable and anyway by denying them the indulgence of their little vice. But when the smoking world calmly exhales its smoke in his face without giving a thought as to whether he likes it or not, he begins to wonder just where patience ceases to be a virtue.

And we dare say that the Non-Smokers' league will accomplish something if the smoking public doesn't curb this insolence and begin to think once in a while of the comfort of those who don't smoke but live in the same world with folks who do.

THE CANADIAN MINT.

The place where money is made or what is perhaps more accurate where it is created has always appealed as most seemingly mysterious things do to the general reader. In Canada the Mint is located in Ottawa. Here are made our gold and silver coins — the real money of the country. The paper medium of exchange is in the hands of the engraving firms and one does not see any trace of it in the Sussex Street establishment.

The Mint is open to visitors after certain formalities have been complied with. The essence of these, as with every thing connected with the institution is punctuality.

Unless the workman arrives exactly on time he finds himself locked out. It is necessary for him to telephone in and get a written order, before he is allowed to enter. Prior to the worker beginning his day he must change his clothes, put them in a locker which is locked and donn special garments supplied by the Mint. The employees are not permitted to leave for dinner, therefore each department has a kitchen of its own, which supplies the midday meal to the staff. The metal to be used for the day's work is weighed out in the morning and no employee of the Mint is allowed to leave the building till the weight of the coins made and the material left over tally exactly with the weight of gold and silver handed out in the morning. Aside from all this, each member of the staff is locked in his or her department and is not permitted, even in case of illness to leave without a written permit. Thus, in the Mint chances for dishonesty are reduced to a minimum.

The concluding process of weighing and automatically packing the coins into packages requires the most finely adjusted machinery of all.

In this department is a scale so delicate that it had to be mounted on a concrete pier, sunk in the ground down to bedrock.

This machine automatically weighs the coins, throwing them into three different compartments, to the centre go the perfect ones, those under or overweight are deflected to the other two.

In The Name of Charity.

Nearly all the giddy youth of the neighborhood attended the charity bazaar, and one by one they drifted to a stall where a tiny, shapely, scented, gray kid glove reposed on a satin cushion. Attached to the cushion was a notice written in a delicate feminine hand, which ran:

"The owner of this glove will, at 7:30 this evening, be pleased to kiss any person who purchases a twenty-five cent ticket beforehand."

Tickets were purchased by the score, and at 7:30 a long row of sheepish, not to say doggish, young bloods, assembled outside the stall.

Then, punctual to the moment, old Tom Porson, the local pork-butcher, who weighs two hundred and twenty pounds, and is almost as beautiful as a side of bacon, stepped to the front of the stall.

"Now, young gents," he said, in his best "Buy, buy, buy," tones, "this 'ere glove belongs to me. I bought it this morning. Now, I'm ready for you. Come on! Don't be bashful! One at a time!"

But nobody came on.

Love is a wonderful wizard and nothing keeps life so clean as conjugal affection.

CANADA'S WEST: ITS PROGRESS SINCE FRASER.

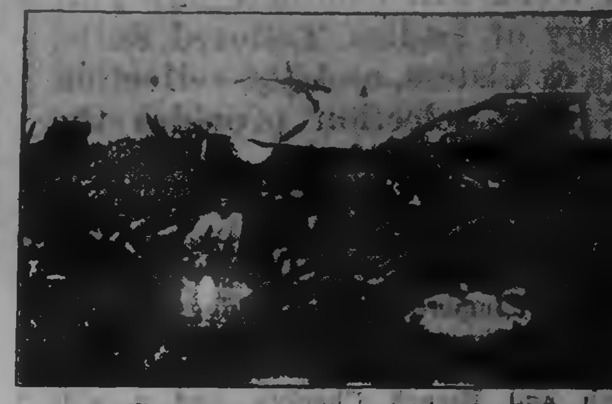
(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd.)

The buffalo herds during the year swung round in immense elipses from south to north and back again. They kept to well watered land with good pasturage all of which has proved to be good farming country. The settlers in the West drove a wedge across the prairies along the line of the railways. The heft of the wedge was in Manitoba, and in May 1882 the thin edge penetrated as far as the Regina plains and the Last Mountain Lake country. Near where the railway was planned to cross a small stream was a small hill or bute which had been for years the camping ground of the buffalo hunters, and here the settlers pitched their tents calling it Pile of Bones; Indian Wascana. It was 9-0-clock of the 23rd of August in the same year before the railway was opened to this point. The then General Manager, now Sir William Van Horne, brought up a party in his special car, among them Lieut. Governor Dewdney and Donald A. Smith (now Lord Strathcona) to the end of the rail to christen what was shortly selected as the new capital of the North West. Even in those days the settlers preceded the railway. A gentleman, still a resident of this city, who came in on a Pullman car in November told me his partner took him to the shack he had just erected as their home, it being fourteen by sixteen feet. The shavings had not been swept out yet. At the same time they had a tent store containing all sorts of goods, the stock being worth $50,000. Then they adjourned to the Criterion Hotel for breakfast. It was necessary that he should first be introduced as the Criterion was kept by Colonel Granville and the waiters were two nephews of the Duke of Bedford. The food and service were good, but the plate was of tin. They had been attracted by the glamour of the new land and looking about for an opening set up an hotel in a tent. Many men of this class came out in those years, but the ranching country of Alberta proved a greater attraction to them than the farming plains. At another hotel, the Dominion, the waitresses had been brought in from Chicago, and dressed in silks and satins. Mr. Nicholas Flood Davin, who was early on the scene, often commented on the entire absence of any "rough" rowdy element in those days. With a vision and faith that only earned him ridicule then, Mr. Davin wrote in 1884:—

SIR W. VAN HORNE
Who took the first train out west.

"A pleasant city on a boundless plain,
Around rich land where peace and plenty reign,
A legal camp, the province wisdom's home,
A rich cathedral, learning's splendid dome;
A teeming mart, wide streets, broad squares, bright flowers,
A marble figure whence a fountain showers
What city's this? a gentle princess, famed
For happy genius, it Regina named."

Nearly all these changes have been or are being worked in the plains near which the first white men pitched their tent so short a time ago as May, 1882. But this is not a city's history. A homesteader who went out on the plains in the eighties illustrated the hard times by saying that he had seen at the Post Office quite an interest taken in a lucky dog who produced a ten cent piece to buy a stamp for his letter. In 1886 he could not cut his crop of wheat with a mower, and next year seed had to be supplied to the farmers by Government. Fortunately it produced a good crop. During the summer a child was born, and a friend in England sent him out a note for twenty pounds in a letter of congratulation. "I do not think" he said, "that anything that was ever done for me in my life could equal the relief and satisfaction caused by that twenty pounds". This man "made good" as did others who had the necessary character despite the difficulties. Some lacked method, he said, some muscle, many both. Poor seeding also was often the cause of a loss of half the crop. North of the Qu'Appelle River I once stayed a night with a worthy couple who had been Cumberland miner folk, and who lived in a comfortable stone house set in the midst of a square mile of their own farm lands. They told me the second two years they had been on their homestead they never tasted meat except that which was the spoil of their shot gun. Their sight had been gladdened for the first time in twenty five years by seeing a kinsman's face when a brother's family came out to join them. The old lady rather surprised me by saying she would not go back to England if she had a million dollars. They had taken root, and had established for themselves an enviable social and financial position in the new land. This, I take it, is the explanation of her attitude. But it was not achieved without hardship, work and persistence. But what must have been the feelings of the Selkirk settlers who were brought out by Hudson's Bay, up the Nelson river, and on to the present Winnipeg where there was neither house nor shelter for them at first nor implements to work their land? The conquering of a new territory is not accomplished without heart break, and it is the women who suffer most. The instinct of a boy is to wander, of a girl usually to cling to the old home. A young man cares naught for the "old familiar faces", but hearkens to the call of the sea, or the spell of the romance of strange new lands. Thus has the British race spread over the world. This was the class that pushed on beyond the railway to the waste places seeking adventure, and gold if it was to be found, and gathered herds of cattle and horses upon the buffalo ranges of the far west up to the Rockies. The homeseeker from Eastern Canada and from across the sea moved forward in more orderly fashion beyond the last tent or shack and pitched his tent where he had decided to make a home. The old timer was innured to hardships by a long voyage beyond the rail end in wagons dragged by oxen. The tenderfoot comes out today in a Colonist or parlor car, and grumbles if he is a few hours late in arrival. The multitudes in English cities, who know nothing of the soil of England even, crowd out to the prairies, and are appalled by their vastness and foreign aspect. Nothing is as it was at home and nothing is right. The old timer who loves England grows impatient with the English and wonders aloud if England has indeed become decadent and produced a race of incompetents and "quitters". It is one of his cherished ideas that the English are a colonising race, and are the faint hearts then the colonizers. But the winds of the West quickly winnow the chaff from the wheat, and the old timer comes to admit in time that even much of this unpromising material is sound at the core. I have given two cases in proof. The Englishmen, however, never ceases to maintain that many things are not as they should be because not as they are at home. In moderation it is an attitude of mind that has its good features. If it were not too dangerous a point to dwell upon one might insist that the chief limitation of the West is a realization that it has many things to learn yet. However, while it has so many things to teach that tenderfeet must learn for their own and the country's welfare this is a realization that will come slowly. Things are going on fairly well now. The new comer and the newer comer understand each other fairly well and the newcomer is being gradually changed by efflux of time into an old timer with the right to lay down the law to tenderfeet. There is so much to be done at once that it is better to do than to grumble.



THE EVOLUTION OF PRAIRIE TRANSPORTATION.
THE OLD WAY

The tenderfoot today comes to spy out the land; thousands of him on harvest and land seekers' excursions. In the Spring following he is bound West looking out of the door of the car in which his horses munch hay with many an enquiry glance at the unfenced fields. Carlo looks up at his master betimes in a bewildered way or busies himself barking at saucy small boys on the station platforms dotted across the prairies. The tenderfoot's family meanwhile are crossing the continent in a crowded train, making new friends and comparing notes as to their destinations, with perchance an occasional backward glance. A few months later they are settled on their land, and getting their land broken, and find to their surprise that they have already many friends about them. Thousands flock into one district in a season, and social organization is complete in no time. Steel is laid on a new railway in the Autumn. Even before its advent a new town has sprung up, unpainted and littered it is true, but debonair and busy and hopeful. Next spring the cars of hundreds of settlers are being unloaded at the siding, and by Autumn one or two elevators are receiving the grain of homesteaders who came in possibly years before. One railway put some thirty five such towns on the market in Saskatchewan alone last year.

One class of new comer is no tenderfoot. His father had their feet hardened on the plains of the American West in the early years of last century when there was in reality a "wild and wooly west". They have been spying out this last Great West for some years, and half a million of them, nearly all English speaking though often, European descent, have come in to possess a share of its riches. They came to farm with steam plows, and see that every pound of power is used. They have startled old timers with their estimate of the value of time and business methods. A man on one of their threshing "outfits" who would allow the machine to run idle for ten seconds would be "fired", for this farmer knows just how much money it costs to run the machine idle for ten seconds. Needless to say they are prospering, and have done much to bring the waste places of the West into productivity. There are mere land speculators and "sod skimmers" among them, but there are thousands of skilful, instructed agriculturists also, the great majority in fact. When the Populists were stirring up Kansas and distrubing the politics of the whole United States William Allan White of the Empria Gazette startled the country by this piece of advice, "It would be better for Kansas to raise more wheat and less hell". This appears to be the idea of the American farmers in Canada. Some are the men and the sons of the men who brought law and order to the lawless plains of the Western States, and one thing that pleases them greatly in Canada is that Canada is a country of law and order and where a man may get "a square deal". At the outset this patent fact impresses them favourably and to a great extent determines their attitude to our political and social ideals. This is a fact of great moment to Canada, in short one of our greatest national assets. The foreigner, from Austria in great part, adopts himself to the new conditions with remarkable rapidty. He is prospering, and therefore as a rule contented. Occasionally he gathers in numbers and is noisy in his beer drinking, but he has in the whole a salutary respect for the redcoat and for the law.

FEED THE BRUTE

Are Man's Affections Ruled By His Stomach? Preacher Says "Yes"

Brides must learn to bake if they expect to make their husbands happy, says Rev. John A. Belford, pastor of the Roman Catholic church of the Nativity of Brooklyn, who explains his views this way:

"When a young man vows to love and cherish for better or for worse he never dreams that she will forget the salt in cooking or bake bread that will be soggy in the center and armor-plated on the outside.

"It is all right to let looks and dancing and clever talking have a share in the attractions that lead a man to the jewelry store for a ring but he finds her beauty is somewhat changed without the usual makeup, that dancing is a poor substitute for lunch, and, as for talking, there will come a time when he will [illegible] minutes on an hour of perfect quiet."

LINDSAY CITIZENS AFTER CHIEF MAGISTRATE OF TOWN

Mayor Begg is Charged with Being an Obstructionist.

Lindsay Post.

Is the Chief Magistrate of Lindsay an obstructionist?

There are a great many in town who are firmly of the belief that he is, and that he has been proven such time and time again; they claim that whenever any matter of importance comes up before the town fathers for discussion (and if necessary for adoption) that the mayor is always too prone, too ready to find fault; that he sees matters through bedimmed glasses, and that as a result the town suffers. Of course, the ratepayers will remember that during the elections last January, the Warder stated emphatically that Lindsay did not want a chief magistrate who would be too radical, too ready to frown down any proposition that might be of benefit to the town just because it came from influential citizens who held different views than the mayor.

This morning a proposition to erect a large industry in Lindsay was presented to a body of influential citizens, including the mayor, and the latter gentleman scorned the same because it happened to come from a gentleman who has been connected lately with the Seymour Power people. In fact he discredited the overtures of the gentleman referred to above, and insinuated that the new proposition was simply a red herring scheme, which would be dragged before the eyes of the ratepayers of Lindsay by the people who were interested in having the power by-lay passed granting a franchise to the Seymour company.

BRIEFS FROM BENSFORT

Mr. John Deyell Had His Knee Dislocated

Special Correspondence

Bensfort, Sept. 6.—A harvest home festival was held at Fraserville under the auspices of the Methodist church. Some of our residents enjoyed the entertainment.

Mr. Geo. McLelland, of Peterborough, takes some spins in his auto visiting friends.

Two of our farm hands have left their employers in this neighborhood namely, Mr. J. Duffy, who was engaged with Mr. H. Perrin and Geo. O'Neil, Mr. Chas Hicks' faithful servant, whose words and works do follow him.

Mr. Burnham had quite a successful meeting at Bensfort, on Friday night.

Mrs. Fallis, of Fordwich, Ont., was visiting friends during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. James, of Whitby, were the guests of Mr. Thos. Mimms a short time ago.

Miss Wright, of Toronto, was the guest of Mrs. J. Kerr for a few days during the past week.

Quite a number of our residents are spending the week end at the Toronto Exhibition. Among those are Messrs. Reg. Perrin, H. W. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor.

At a certain home in our community they are in the habit of introducing their guests under assumed names is this a scheme or a put up thing to catch people to make them a laughing stock for the amusement of others.

In looking over the Lakeview items it may be noticed that the correspondent is blessed with considerable literary abilities, which he should cultivate, the day of the dime novel is fast dying out, but there may be other fields of work for our worthy contemporary, as his imaginative powers are quite large.

Mr. John Deyell had the misfortune of having one of his knees dislocated a few days ago. It is very sore and will keep him quiet for some time.

Threshing has been the order of the day for the past week or two, grain is not doing as well as was expected being under the average.

Many of our local sports are looking forward to the 15th of September for the shooting season to commence. Some are under the impression it commences on the first. They had better be aware as the inspectors are on the watch to see whom they may devour.

MR. J. A. SEXSMITH'S APSLEY MEETING

Town Hall Was Packed and the Speakers Were Heartily Received

Special Correspondence.

Apsley, Aug. 29.—A public meeting was held in the town hall here this evening in the interests of the Liberal Conservative candidate for East Peterborough, Mr. Sexsmith, M.P. The hall was packed with a crowd of enthusiastic adherents when Mr. Thompson, M.P.P., who was present to assist Mr. Sexsmith, rose and called the meeting to order. Mr. John Walden Haire, of Peterborough, agent for the Edison Phonograph Co., who happened to be present, was elected chairman.

Omitting the chairman's speech, Mr. Thompson was called upon to address the meeting. After a word of welcome to the fair sex, who had, through an error of the printer, been missed in mention on the notice of meeting. The speaker reminded his hearers how faithfully they had been represented in the past terms by the present candidate, Mr. Sexsmith. Then he proceeded to deal with the great issue of the day, "Reciprocity," and pointing out both by reference and anecdote the great mistake any farmer might make by voting for this measure.

The next speaker called was Mr Sexsmith, who was greeted by hearty applause as he moved forward to his place of speaking. He began by expressing the pleasure that he felt on seeing so many ladies present and reminded them that he was largely dependant upon them for support He then proceeded to give an account of his stewardship and laid special emphasis on the importance of a measure, which he had brought forward in the house, for having stock foods stamped so that the public might not be deceived as to what they contained. Taking up the reciprocity question he explained at some length the disadvantages to the Canadian farmer under such an act. As the speaker took his seat, amid a hearty applause, he received a shower of bouquets from the front row. A vote of thanks, moved by Mr Wm. Hales and seconded by Mr. Norman Lane, was then carried and the meeting broke up with cheers for the King and the candidate.

VOL. LXIII., No. 57. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1911 TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

The Peterborough workingman who votes for reciprocity is walking hand in hand with the western grain growers who demanded at Ottawa only last December the abolition of protection on manufactures, and direct taxation. Can the workingman afford to bolster up the cause of those who would take the bread out of his children's mouths-

SOME QUIBBLES: AND THEN SOME

What the Stratton organ has to say about the Review's account of the Centreville meeting, when there were interruptions and Farmer's Bank questions, and when Joseph Clark was refused permission to speak for Conservatives, is all right, except that it is not the truth.

The facts of the case are these. Thomas Donaldson was chairman. He (not Mr. Stratton, as the Examiner denies) was asked by Joseph Clark before R. R. Hall spoke, for an opportunity to say something. Mr. Donaldson went over to Mr Stratton, and whatever the conversation was, Mr. Clark was refused the opportunity he wished. Later on Mr. Clark got up, and announced to the audience that he had been refused permission to speak.

It is a fact that an elector shouted, "What about the Farmers Bank?" and also true that Mr. Stratton took considerable time to explain his side of the affair. The Examiner says that "the Liberal speakers were never once interrupted by a gentleman in the audience." The men who did the interrupting were either, then, not part of the audience, but spoke from afar, or they were not gentlemen, in the Examiner's opinion. But the interruptions were made, whether from in or out of the audience, by gentlemen or merely men—it doesn't matter much.

The Stratton organ's statement is based on quibbling such as is ludicrous and also disgusting. Those at the meeting know the facts. How can they stomach the petty quibbles and evasions of the organ? Why should Stratton work so hard to hide the truth?

LAURIER IN MINING TOWN

Premier Speaks at Sudbury to the Miners.

Sudbury, Sept. 8.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke in Sudbury yesterday.

President Allard of the Liberal Association occupied the chair, and Mr. A. J. Young, the Liberal candidate, spoke briefly. He declared for reciprocity as a benefit to both producer and consumer. Short addresses were also delivered by Messrs. Z. Magean, provincial candidate for Sturgeon Falls, and J. L. Regan, federal candidate for East Algoma.

"I thought I was an old man," began Sir Wilfrid, who was received with long continued acclaim. "It is true, according to the calendar, that I have reached the end of the span of life allotted to man, but whatever the effect of advancing years, I feel as young as ever. God has blessed me with good health, and I rejoice that I can carry on this campaign to victory.

"I asked the miners," he observed, "where they secured the market for their ore, and they told me it was marketed in the United States. Every pound of metal goes to the United States. Let me ask of you if there was a duty of twenty-five percent. on this metal, such as exists on agricultural products, would it be well for you in Sudbury?"

Cries of "No, no."

"That is as I believed," said Sir Wilfrid, "and there you have in a nutshell the policy upon which we come to you. For it I take no credit. I am but the expression of the will of the Canadian people."

"Forward is our watchword," said Sir Wilfrid, in dealing with the let-well-enough-alone doctrine.

Ambushed and Murdered.

Pottsville, Pa., Sept. 8.—Dead in their carriage, the bodies of Joseph Zeyner and Samuel Hopkins, of Lansford, were found on the top of a mountain yesterday afternoon. Both had been shot, evidently from ambush.

A box containing about $3,000 to pay about 60 hands employed at the coal strippings was gone.

"YOUR ROYAL HIGHNESS" NOW

"Your Excellency" Wont do For Connaught.

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—According to an official notice issued by the Secretary of State's Department, Canada's new Governor-General will be known, while in the Dominion, as "His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada."

It has been the custom to address the Governor-General as "His Excellency," and as many enquiries were received from cities and towns throughout the country desirous of presenting addresses of welcome to the duke, official notice has been promulgated.

The duchess will be known as "Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Connaught."

"CANADA RISKS HER VERY SOUL" SAYS KIPLING OF RECIPROCITY

Odds Against Canada are Too Heavy--Why Should She Ask for Reciprocity Now?

Ottawa, Sept. 7—Rudyard Kipling is the latest recruit to the anti-reciprocity cause. The Montreal Star got him to write a letter to the editor, and it was cabled to the Star to-day and printed this afternoon. This is it—

"I do not understand how nine million people can enter into such arrangements as are proposed with ninety million strangers on an open frontier of four thousand miles and at the same time preserve their national integrity.

"Ten to one is too heavy odds. No single Canadian would accept such odds in any private matter that was as vital to him personally as this issue is to the nation.

"It is her own soul that Canada risks to-day. Once that soul is pawned for any consideration, Canada must inevitably conform to the commercial, legal, financial, social and ethical standards which will be imposed upon her by the sheer admitted weight of the United States.

"She might, for example, be compelled later on to admit reciprocity in the murder rate of the United States, which at present, I believe, is something over 150 per million per annum.

"If these proposals had been made a generation ago, or if the Dominion were to-day poor, depressed, and without hope, one would perhaps understand their being discussed, but Canada is none of these things. She is a nation, and, as the lives of nations are reckoned, will ere long be among the great nations.

"Why, then, when she has made herself what she is, should she throw the enormous gifts of her inheritance and her future into the hands of a people who, by their haste and waste, have so dissipated their own resources that even before national middle age they are driven to seek virgin fields for cheaper food and living?

"Whatever the United States may gain, and I presume that the United States proposals are not wholly altruistic, I see nothing for Canada in reciprocity except a little ready money which she does not need, and a very long repentance.

(Signed)
"RUDYARD KIPLING."

Found Body of Boy.

Montreal, Sept. 8.—The body of a boy about 13 years of age was picked up from the river at about noon yesterday, in front of the King Edward Ferry pier. It was removed to the morgue pending identification.

It is believed that the body may be that one of the Liveray brothers, who left their home at Maisonneuve on Sunday last to attend mass, and have not been seen since.

Chief of Police Marsheau has been informed that two boys were seen in a rowboat on Sunday last opposite Longueuil. They were drifting with the rapid current and did not seem able to control the boat properly.

Silver Strike In B. C.

Hazelton, B. C., Sept. 8.—Mining circles here are agog over the reported rich strike on Hudson's Bay Mountain, south of here.

A prospector arrived yesterday from that locality, bringing in about ten pounds of ore, which runs 20 per cent. native silver. Native leaf silver, weighing up to two ounces to the leaf, has been taken from the specimens brought in here.

There are also reports of lead already traceable for 400 feet. A large number of prospectors and mining men here are preparing to leave immediately.

NEW ROUTE FROM CANADA SOUTH

Line to Mexico Projected by Promoter.

New York, Sept. 8.—A new through route from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, which is expected to rearrange the railroad map of the west in important particulars, is provided for in plans made known yesterday by Newman Erb, who, with Edwin Hawley, is actively engaged in the undertaking.

The first step in the project is to be the leasing of the Iowa Central Railroad to the Minneapolis & St. Louis. Arrangements also have been made to extend the Iowa Central to St. Louis, and the Minneapolis & St. Louis to the Canadian border, thus giving the Hawley-Erb group of railroads the through route from the wheat fields of Northwestern Canada to Galveston.

It is expected that both the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific will connect with the new extension of the Minneapolis & St. Louis. The new route also will afford an entrance to Minneapolis and St. Paul to the Canadian Northern.

LIBERALS DESERT FIELDING

Halifax, Sept. 6.—Finance Minister Fielding certainly seems to be fighting a losing battle in Shelburne Queen's. H. W. Putney, local Liberal candidate in Queen's in June, and secretary of the Liberal party for his county, is out strongly against Fielding and reciprocity. The latest defection is reported to-day from Shelburne. E. M. Bill, a prominent barrister, and secretary for the Liberal party for Shelburne, is stumping against reciprocity and appearing at McCurdy's meetings. He is one of his most active supporters. Fielding is in such a panic over the situation that he decided to hold meetings in every hamlet in the riding. Other prominent Liberals in both counties are known to be against reciprocity, and are either openly working for its defeat or taking no active part in the campaign.

"WHAT GOOD WILL GEORGIAN BAY CANAL BE," ASKS WHITNEY

Premier Deals With Reciprocity Questions at North Bay – Receives a Great Ovation.

North Bay, Sept. 8.—Premier Whitney's visit to North Bay last evening was a notable occasion, and people turned out en masse to give an enthusiastic reception to Sir James, whose visits here have been few and far between. Stalwart citizens insisted on taking the horses of the Premier's carriage and substituting themselves instead, drawing the distinguished visitor through the streets from the railway station to the Royal Theatre, followed by a large crowd of cheering people. Twelve hundred people crowded the theatre and many were unable to gain admittance.

Sir James spoke one hour and ten minutes, devoting the time almost entirely to the reciprocity agreement. Premier Whitney prefaced his address with an outline of the growth and prosperity of New Ontario.

Taking up the question of reciprocity, the speaker touched on a very warm local topic, when he asked what early use would the Georgian Bay canal be if reciprocity was adopted.

The Dominion Government seemed to have a fancy for canals, Newmarket being an instance of their attempt to make water run up hill. The people of Canada were the most happy, contented and prosperous people on the face of the globe, a condition achieved after times of suffering. The law of compensation decrees that nothing is obtained without giving something in return. The hard times following the abrogation of the former treaty of reciprocity with the United States and the bitter feeling which remained should not be forgotten, reminding us that our neighbors always had the long end of the whiffletrees.

A New Industry.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 8.—E. C. Hill and E. M. Preston of Toronto are in the city negotiating for a location for the plant of Gas-Electric Motors, a new motor car company, here. The City Council will consider granting concessions to this million-dollar corporation.

Museum Cracking Again.

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—The famous crack in the walls of the new Victoria Museum has again broken loose and is now beginning to cause some real alarm on the part of the employes in the building.

The fissure, which extends in the form of an ellipse across walls, ceiling and floor, inside the main entrance, was, a week or so ago, patched up afresh, as has been done almost a score of times since it first developed. It has now opened, however, wider than ever, and is large enough to permit of an index finger being inserted in it, in some places.

A new evidence of the stress at work within the building has developed in the breaking of the plumbing fixtures in a few of the offices.

Drowning at Huntsville.

Huntsville, Sept. 8.—In twenty feet of water at the tannery, shortly after noon yesterday, Joseph Draper, a well-known citizen, lost his life. Draper was unloading a scow of bark when he fell, unnoticed. His hat, floating nearby gave rise to suspicions, and grappling soon recovered the body. He was an employe of the Navigation Company and well known and respected.

BELLEVILLE HAS FIREBUG

Three Fires Within Short Time Kerosene Was Used

Special to The Review

Belleville, Sept. 8.—Citizens are very uneasy over the operation of a fire bug. Following the destruction of Ray's stables, fires occurred at the Lucas stables and McCarthy's foundry last night. It has been found out that kerosene was used. Ray's stable was a large brick building and the loss was in the neighborhood of $3,000. Ray is a brewer. Three horses were taken out of the stable in safety.

ANGLICANS FOR CHANGE

Want New Province of British Columbia.

Will Make a Third Province in Canada.

London, Sept. 8.—Legislation for a third ecclesiastical province of the Anglican Church in Canada was inaugurated at the general synod meeting yesterday, when the recommendation of the House of Bishops for the establishment of the Province of British Columbia was placed before the house of delegates.

The recommendation of the upper house, which outlined the proposed organization of the province was by vote of the lower house sent on to committee of canons, who will present their report prior to the general discussion over the new province.

This, according to the outline of the house of bishops' recommendation, will comprise the dioceses of British Columbia, Kootenay, Caledonia and New Westminster.

It is likely that this third province, if it be established at this synod, will be different from the two present provinces—Canada and Rupert's Land—for there is now before the synod a notice of motion by the Bishop of Caledonia that in the event of the establishment of the Province of British Columbia, the two houses, bishops and delegates, will sit together. It was for the establishment of just such a system that the long fight of Wednesday was waged.

Further than this, the same bishop has a second notice of motion that there be no archbishop of the new province and that its metropolitan cannot assume the title of archbishop until there at least five diocesan bishops within the province.

First on the order was the debate on the proposed canon on missionary dioceses and bishops. The question was whether the bishops of the new diocese in foreign mission fields, outside of Canada, should first be nominated by the house of bishops or the board of management of missions.

Dean Crawford's amendment to the original motion, that the board of management first nominate the missionary bishop, changed the selection from the board to the house of bishops.

Put to a vote the amendment of Dean Crawford was defeated, 97 to 45.

After other amendments had been put and lost, the original canon was returned and the battle, whether the bishops or the board would select the missionary bishops, was decided in favor of the latter.

On the question of what would constitute a quorum of the board of management of missions, 50 was finally accepted as the prescribed number.

Then arose the question of the return of the bishops from their foreign dioceses and a limitation of five years following their consecration before return was inaugurated. A probation of five years was also passed.

Just who could be consecrated a missionary bishop was something that necessitated lengthy debate and much reference to the church canons, but it was finally accepted and passed that a "bishop or other clergyman" could be appointed, thus leaving the way clearer for the appointment of a bishop from another diocese.

CANADIAN MISSIONARIES IN CHINESE TROUBLE ARE SAFE

Reports at Home Office Assure People of Their Safety—May Have to Move Later On.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—There is little occasion for anxiety as to the lives of the Canadian missionaries in West China, despite the alarming reports that have been published as to unrest and disturbances occasioned, it is said, by the Government's railroad policy. Rev. T. E. Egerton Shore, general secretary of foreign missions of the Methodist Church of Canada, is of the opinion that as the demonstration of native feeling is not against the foreign missionaries or foreigners at all, the missionaries are in no immediate danger, unless the Chinese should become seized with an idea that the "foreign devils" have some connection with the Government's plans or policy.

A cable message received on Wednesday said: "Excitement. Hopeful." Another came yesterday morning, however, from Rev. Dr. D. L. Kilborn, the corresponding secretary of the West China Mission Council, which, when translated out of the code read: "Situation alarming. Fear we shall be obliged to leave the work. If we do, shall take refuge at Chungking under protection of foreign legations. Think it best for you to postpone departure of party." This refers to a party including seven men and their wives and one or two young women under the general synod, and six young women under the W. M. S., who were to start next month.

Remember the big Burnham Saturday night rally at the Conservative central Committee Rooms to-morrow night. Addresses by the candidate and other speakers. All electors are invited to attend the gathering. Victory for Burnham on September 21st is in the air, and you can boost along the good cause by turning out to-morrow night.

Spoiled Their Game.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 8.—Immigration Inspector Carter yesterday arrested John Lao and Angelo Stinto of Newark, N.J., on charges of violating the immigration laws as they were preparing to board the train for Toronto. Questioning on the part of Carter brought out the fact, reluctantly admitted by Lao, that he had received a night telegram from Stinto asking his aid in coming into Canada. Lao was fined $50 and Stinto was deported.

A Modern Enoch Arden.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 8.—The little American village of La Salle, opposite here, is agog with excitement over the modern Enoch Arden case that came to light yesterday, when Frank Stevens returned home after an absence of seventeen years, to find his wife married to Clarence Baker. His daughter, a baby when Stevens left home, is also married. Stevens says he has no idea of separating his former wife from her present husband.

THE WORKER AND FREE TRADE

The Peterborough workingman may be depended on to vote against any candidate who is supporting a free trade measure. Mr. Stratton himself was totally against reciprocity in natural products, or in any other manner, until the party whip was laid on the backs of the Liberal members of the house of commons, and on him also. So now he supports it, but his chief plea is that if it does not work out satisfactorily, it can be done away with. That is a poor argument. If the workingmen of Peterborough want to get back to free trade days,—when Canada was sunk in the depths—let them start the good work by voting for reciprocity and Stratton. Canada cannot afford to have free trade even in natural products, because success in that will lead to still further efforts to widen the scope of the free trade measures. Taft wanted free trade in manufactures. The government could not grant that, though in sympathy with the lower tariff propaganda, because of its fear of the manufacturers and business men. The government knew that it could not afford to entertain all at once a proposal which would mean the total industrial wreck of the Dominion—so they went half way. But the workingman has labelled the proposal and so has the farmer.

The Examiner says that Laurier has "re-arranged the protective tariff so as to make it protective in fact instead of in name only." How much more "re-arranging" will be done? If free trade in natural products, leaving our resources open to the gourmand appetite of the American trusts, is a "re-arrangement" of a protective tariff, when may we expect a little more of the same medicine? If free trade in natural products makes the tariff actually protective instead of in name—but pshaw! isn't it silly? The truth of the whole business is that Peterborough, a manufacturing and industrial city, cannot afford to endorse in any manner, shape or form a free trade measure, that opens the way to deadly American competition. There is one safe way for the working man to vote, whereby he will secure a clean government, a stable tariff policy, a policy of Canada for the Canadians and not for the Americans. That way is to vote for Burnham, and a vote for Borden. Borden will be the next premier, and Canada, we hope, will then be saved from the consequences of Fielding's folly.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Burnham and a boost for Canadian business.

Stratton and Struggles for the Workingman.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt may be over the border, but some of the crowd remain in Canada.

Whose generous pocket was it that concealed the Farmers Bank certificate when it left the office of Finance Minister Fielding at Ottawa?

Borden and a clean Government; Canada for the Canadians, and continuance of our effort to have closer relations with Britain and the empire.

May we ask Mr. Stratton who carried away from the office of Finance Minister Fielding the certificate that enabled the Farmers Bank to do business? Who carried that certificate away?

So Mr. Stratton has suddenly discovered that there is $25,000 or $30,000 to be spent in Peterborough at an early date. Why so suddenly? Does he need still another prop to keep himself up? What must common-sense people think of a government that hands out big chunks of pap to doubtful constituencies, in order to help out the government candidates? Could anything be more disgusting?

The Liberal platform speakers backed up by the "smut-machine" may try their best to insinuate, assert, declare, vociferate, or scream their denunciations of Mr. Burnham, but they cannot get away from this fact;—That J. H. Burnham is a man personally honorable and above reproach in every way; That he is a man of his word and of strictest honor. Can the same be said of his political opponent?

Mr. Stratton does not tell his audiences any more what Liberals and Protestants have done for Peterborough. What on earth has it to do with his candidature anyway, one way or the other? Stratton has a right, if he thinks the Peterborough people can stand it without putting clothespins to their noses, to flaunt his own record in their faces. That is part of his public career. But what private people have done in Peterborough, be they either Liberal or Conservative, is certainly no argument for or against Stratton. He must stand or fall on his own record—and if 'the people choose to endorse the man of whom W. R. Travers said under oath on the witness stand, "That he was a particular friend of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt,' well, there is something decidedly wrong with the morals of this community.

All these attacks against Mr. Burnham may be set down to the natural desire of hard up Grit campaigners to make some show of a fight. But as we have said more than once, there is no comparison between the two men on grounds of personal probity and straightforwardness. But the campaign issues are not altogether the merits or the demerits of the candidates themselves. There are big issues involved. The effort of Stratton Hall et al to side-track the election into a discussion of little personal matters, such as what church Mr. Burnham attends, and how often he is found in his pew, etc., etc., is to blind the workingman and the farmer to the fact that a vote for Stratton is a vote for Laurier and his anti-British and anti-national policy. Protection and not free trade for Peterborough and district!

POINTS ABOUT THE DEAL

KEEP EAST AND WEST TRADE

Routes on Which Millions Have Been Spent are to Canada What the Nile is to Egypt

By JOHN V. BORNE.

Nobody supposes that north and south trade should cease. But there is all the difference between that and encouraging it to be the dominant feature of Canadian commercial life, to the injury of east and west channels which are of the very essence of our nation-building.

To understand the vital significance of the north and south diversion you have only to consider what the position would have been if no Canadian railways had been built around the north shore of Lake Superior to the Western Provinces.

What are now the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta would have been settled entirely from the South, all the trade would have been across the border. All the railways would have been built in from Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana. Members of Parliament and all persons transacting public business would have been compelled to travel for hundreds of miles through a foreign land to reach the capital of their own country.

Obviously, whatever the geographical name of Western Canada, that vast immeasurably rich territory would have become so identified with the United States that even the severest free trader would have admitted that nationality and trade are very much intertwined.

If United States railroads had begun numerously to cross the western borders, and there had been no Canadian railway in sight, a cry would have arisen for an east and west railway across Canada, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier's prayer would have been anticipated: "Heaven grant that it may not be too late."

There would have been no metropolitan city in Western Canada any more than there would have been a Toronto or a Hamilton in Eastern Canada.

Whatever aspect of Canadian growth you investigate, you reach the clearest proof that east and west trade routes are to Canada what the Nile is to Egypt.

VIII.

Running Ottawa From The Country

By ARTHUR HAWKES.

Governments are the strangest institutions on earth. They act for the nation, but they represent a party. Sometimes they are bigger than their party, sometimes they are not. Woe betide the country whose Government is no bigger than the party that makes it into a Government.

Happily, in British countries, the spirit of independent freedom is such that most Governments serve the country pretty well. That is especially true in their early years. New Brooms sweep clean. New Governments try, as a rule, to sweep clean. It is an exhausting enterprise, especially where many of the functions of government are bound up with the industrial development of localities.

Public offices are meant for pure-minded patriots—a scarce breed. The custom of rewarding with public office men who have worked for party ends is a bad custom—but it is inevitable in a worldly world. For, if there be two men equally fitted for a public office and one has worked in an election and the other has loftily held aloof from the turmoil of a disputatious episode; who should get the office?

The best you can do is to do the best with available material. What is the use of a high-minded man, against whom nobody can say a word, complaining that the country is run by indifferent politicians if he refuses to turn a hand to make political contests clean and honourable. We need the best men we can get in public life. We need to treat them decently. Ottawa is only the reflection of the rest of the country. A clean country means a clean Ottawa, and vice versa.

I have been preaching the doctrine that, up to the limit of his capacity and opportunity, every voter is his own Prime Minister. If his voting is the sole active exercise of his political duty it is as important to him as a decision to bring in a great bill is important to the Prime Minister. He is the ultimate authority for the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister is his servant; not his master.

Governments tend to become arrogant when they have comfortable, obedient majorities.

We need not imagine any moral superiority on our part merely because we are not in any Government. Human nature is pretty much the same in Grit and Tory. Heaven save us from becoming perfect political Pharisees.

How can Governments be saved? They should die young, lest they forget. Take Sir Wilfrid's Government. It shows too many signs of autocratic decrepitude—a phrase that is not as paradoxical as it sounds.

Is it decrepit? Sir Wilfrid isn't. Some of his Ministers aren't. But, as an entity, it has lived its day. It gives no signs of originating policies. It does what it feels obliged to do—and it does it in that kind of a way. Take an example:

The Grain Growers demanded certain things which were never dreamed of when the Government came into power. Some of those things are conceded because—well because they had to be conceded, or power in the West would flee. But other things solemnly declared years ago to be vital to respectable government in Canada remain untouched, and apparently will remain. The Senate was to be reformed, because it had become a party refuge. The Senate is as strongly House-of-Lordsly partisan now as it was in the days when Sir Wilfrid condemned it. It is Liberal now; it was Conservative then. The creditors of a party in power are apt to increase, and senatorships are convenient.

So much for decrepitude. What are the signs of autocracy—I mean the signs that everybody can see without taking a trip to Ottawa? They are abundant enough. They are found in the way little things are magnified and big things are minimised. Take two:

The Navy. The decision to build a navy was taken without reference to the people, and without that amount of general discussion by the country which we allow on occasions to take the place of a general election. The impression has gone abroad that the Navy is neither fish, flesh, fowl, nor good red herring—that it is founded more on party expediency than in national wisdom. However wrong the impression may be, it is the direct fruit of the Government's assumption that it is the master of the people.

An earnest Liberal told me it was one of the things that had to be undertaken without reference to popular discussion, because of the unreasonable nervousness of Quebec. But it hasn't done any good in Quebec. The penalty of autocratically assuming things on behalf of Quebec is already being paid.

Reciprocity. An ex-Cabinet Minister has said that the Reciprocity Agreement was never discussed by the Cabinet until it was completed and the whole thing, by arrangement with Washington, was ready for immediate submission to Parliament. The Government had not "caucused" on the subject with its supporters, whose only alternative was immediately to obey or to slay the Government.

Those who were directly responsible for the Agreement were the Elder Brethren of the Cabinet, who, to judge by the sequel, had no real conception of the change that had come over Canada since they were enamoured of good words from Washington. "Autocratic decrepitude" exactly fits the situation.

Canada is neither autocratic nor decrepit. The people in the country cannot afford to be less vigilant towards a Government merely because it has been in office a long time. They must run Ottawa from the country, and not be run from Ottawa.

NOTHING TO GAIN MUCH TO LOSE

How the Canadian Producer of Butter Would Suffer if Reciprocity Went Into Force.

What would be the results if Canada enters into free trade in Butter under the proposed Reciprocity Agreement?

Her farmers would be confronted with the competition on her own markets of such producing countries as Denmark, Russia, Australia, New Zealand, Argentine Republic, Sweden and Norway, as well as the United States.

Would this competition amount to anything?

At present the export demand from Great Britain is the controlling factor in the Canadian butter market, and it is interesting to note that the average prices realized in Great Britain during the year 1909 for butter imported from Russia, Australia, New Zealand, United States and Argentine Republic were lower than those obtained for Canadian butter. In the matter of prices, then, these countries would be prepared to undersell Canada on her own market as they do now on the British market.

Great Britain in 1909 imported 455,034,944 pounds of butter, worth $109,134,815, from the following countries:

Denmark	$51,671,648
Russia	14,325,256
France	11,292,185
Australia	9,770,655
Sweden	7,170,748
New Zealand	7,164,799
Netherlands	3,879,999
Argentine Republic	1,907,301
Norway	797,481
Canada	585,913
Other countries	568,393

The above is sufficient to show that Canada, under the Reciprocity Agreement, would be open to a deluge of butter from countries whose production and exportation of that product are the largest in the world to-day.

Moreover, under Reciprocity, if Canada's market should be inundated at any time, there would be no relief, no outlet back to those countries who had sent us their product. The following comparison of tariffs on butter, if Reciprocity becomes law, shows that Canada gives free entrance to all her competitors, but must pay duty to all of them, except the United States, if she wishes to send butter back to them.

Canada—Free from Favored Nations and British Possession, including Denmark, Russia, Australia, Sweden, New Zealand, Argentine Republic, Norway and United States; otherwise 4 cents per lb.

Australia—6 cents per lb.

New Zealand—General Tariff 20 per cent. ad valorem. British Preferential Tariff, 20 per cent. ad valorem. (Canada is entitled to the B. P. Tariff).

Denmark—In hermetically sealed vessels, 4 7-8c. per lb.; otherwise, free.

Argentine Republic—4 3-5c. per lb.

United States—From Canada free; otherwise, 6c. per lb.

Sweden—2 2-5c. per lb.

Norway—Minimum Tariff, 1 4-5c. per lb. Maximum Tariff, 3c. per lb.

Russia—1 7-100c. per lb.

Canada's export trade in butter is not so great at the present time that her farmers can afford to imperil their dairy industry by a tariff scheme that would, in all probability, make the country's imports in this article greater than her exports. In the year ending 1910, Canada shipped only 4,615,380 pounds of butter, worth $2,010,274. Canada's imports of butter, on the other hand, amounted to 687,454 pounds, worth $104,301.

These imports into Canada last year are given below, with the rate of duty that had to be paid on coming into the country, and also with the changes in that rate which would be effected under Reciprocity. By these changes Canada would lose her revenue on all foreign shipments into the Dominion.

Country	Quantity (lbs).	Value.	Rate of Duty.	Rate under Reciprocity Agreement
Great Britain ...	45,887	$11,573	Brit. Pref., 3c. per lb. Gen. Tar., 4c. per lb.	B. Pref., free Possibly free
Australia	547,149	63,754	4c. per lb.	Free.
Newfoundland	3,820	763	" "	"
New Zealand	21,840	4,971	3c. "	"
Norway	1,000	200	4c. "	"
Turkey	240	65	" "	4c. per lb.
United States	67,548	13,078	" "	Free.
	687,454	$104,301

As far as butter is concerned the Reciprocity Agreement would mean:

(1) Lower prices for the Canadian farmer.

(2) The loss of what little export trade he now enjoys.

(3) The loss of what small revenue now realized from imports into Canada.

(4) A general demoralization of the dairy industry in Canada, due to the inevitable lowering of prices and mixing of foreign and home grades of butter.

The Lash of Circumstance

Harry Irving Greene

"Only this. Knowing that I am a criminal and by all law should go to prison for many years, probably to die there, I have this to say in justification of myself. Until I committed this crime I had always been an honest man with no thought of being otherwise and with no desire to harm a living thing. But because of my love for a woman for whom I would this moment gladly give my life, and because I could see no other way of gaining her except by speculation, I fell into temptation as many a better man has done. Driven onward by a love at whose command I would have faced hades itself, I used my own money first, losing $1,000 upon the race in the attempt to win a large sum, and the rest in the first break in that stock. In my desperation I committed this crime as the only means of getting more funds with which to win that for which I would have staked my life as readily as I did my liberty. Had I succeeded, I should have married this woman and lived an honest life thereafter; having lost I will bear whatever punishment comes to me without whimpering; and should I live through my imprisonment will seek to atone for my crime in my after life. I would like to have you believe what I say." His hand fell upon mine as softly as a woman's.

"I believe you, Tom, and would trust you this minute with every cent I have in the world. As you know, it is one of my theories that it is better to save a naturally honest man who has gone wrong, and make a good citizen out of him again, than to wreck him by the disgrace of his having been a convict. You have learned your lesson, and I have no fear of your ever becoming a rogue again. But you have resigned your position, forfeited all claims to consideration upon the part of your uncle, and ought to keep as far away from him in the future as you reasonably can. It seems to me as if there is but one thing for you to do, and I want you to do it. Go away and make a new start somewhere else where everything you see will not be a reminder of this period in your life. You will be able to do better work, and more hopeful work, among other surroundings. Your secret will be safe with me. I will tell your uncle that I have been unable to recover the money and will throw up the case. Will you agree to do as I have suggested if I release you?"

It was my only way of escape, and the wisdom of the advice seemed to be beyond doubting. With my bosom almost bursting, and staring straight ahead through dimmed eyes, I assented. "I will go almost immediately. But there is one thing which I must do before leaving. I must first see Matie—Mrs. Dace, I mean—and have a long talk with her—perhaps several of them—and that may delay me for a few days. I love her better than all else in the world, and if she really cares for me, maybe she will give me another chance to recover myself financially. Of course, she will never know that I did this, and perhaps—perhaps—" My voice broke and I choked as I vainly attempted to finish my sentence. I heard the click of a lock and felt the handcuff fall from my wrist.

"You have something more to learn which it hurts me to tell you, but which you must know. I have taken it into consideration in deciding to let you go. It is a part of your punishment, and while it will be bitter, you must bear it like a man. You will hardly see Mrs. Dace again. Richard Mackay has left the city for parts unknown, deserting his family and taking Mrs. Dace with him. The yellow evening papers are full of it."

With the floor beneath me heaving like the deck of a reeling ship, I staggered and fell upon my knees before the bed, burying my face in it. Under the horror of that moment all my strength left me, and I sobbed brokenly.

CHAPTER XVII.

There is little more to tell. In the few following days I managed to scrape enough together to take me to the foreign country where I am now beginning life over, and have probably weathered the storm as well as could reasonably be expected. But of course I will never again feel just as I used to, and I don't believe that I will ever fall in love with another woman. In a business way I have done fairly well, having worked conscientiously for the last three years, and being once more on the road to moderate success. I have never seen or heard from Mrs. Dace since the time I left her shopping in the store upon the day when I stepped from paradise into hell at a single stride. She is probably floating down the Nile or yachting on the Mediterranean with Richard Mackay; enjoying herself to a greater or less extent, and I have no doubt thinking quite often of me. The thought of it still gnaws me most of the time, but of one thing I am confident to this day. And that is that she was really very fond of me and would, as she herself said, have preferred to spend her life with me rather than anybody else, had I possessed sufficient money. Therefore she wanted me to succeed and encouraged me to desperate chances, knowing as I myself did that it was the only chance of achieving fortune quickly; she not being one of the kind that is content to wait for what they want indefinitely. Therefore she goaded me on with the determination to make me and have me, or break me and discard me without losing any time in finding out which it was to be. As she partially confessed, luxury was her price, and the means to that end meant a man of means. Had I won I have no doubt that she would have married me and that we would have been happy had the money lasted. And I also believe that she was upon the verge of consenting to our immediate union when my disaster came. Neither have I any doubt but that Mackay was infatuated with the woman, saw that I was winning her, and started out to get rid of me. He probably learned of my speculations, and knowing that if he could wreck them it would effectively dispose of me so far as she was concerned, ruthlessly tore down the fortunes of many that I might be crushed in the crash. And he succeeded perfectly. Mrs. Dace, being convinced by him that I was ruined, and probably having been wavering somewhat between us; preferring me, but being tempted by his wealth, hesitated no longer when she became satisfied that I could not give her what she had made up her mind to have. Realizing as I did all along that we never could have been happy without considerable money, I would not have blamed her particularly for making the choice that she did had not Mackay been a married man. Even as it is, I bear her no ill will, and do not believe that she was an immoral woman. There was a great deal of good in her, but she was selfish and cared little for the sufferings of others provided she gained her own pleasures. The only fear I have of ever again committing a crime is in case I should happen to run across that black scoundrel Mackay. If I should see him I am afraid I might run amuck.

Bruce and Clare are married, and are happily spending the money of dead Uncle Abner, who cut me off with a shilling. And that brings me to the reason for writing this confession. Uncle Abner having passed into the great beyond, I no longer have any fear that I will be prosecuted, and I never would be able to feel that I had made my fullest reparation unless I cleared Bruce. For in some way a few things leaked out, and while his friends have clung to him with the greatest loyalty, there are others who have always looked upon him with more or less suspicion since the night of the robbery. And I know that the consciousness of this is a cloud that forever hovers upon the horizon of their otherwise bright lives, and it is, therefore, my moral duty to dispel it. As for myself, it makes little difference if the truth is now known, as none of my former acquaintances know where I am and I shall never return to my old home.

Nor do I ask forgiveness or make apology beyond this statement. I was not a thief by nature and am thoroughly repentant. But I was young and madly enraptured with the most beautiful woman I have ever seen, and took desperate chances to gain her. And my love for her, though passion filled, was pure. I wanted her for my wife. As I stole for her, so would I have slaved for her; fought for her; died for her. Therefore I only ask that you judge me as you would be judged had you been in my place. Caught helplessly in the maelstrom of love and gaming, I went down in the vortex.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—There was a good demand for old crop Manitoba spring wheat from foreign buyers for September shipment and as bids for such were in line, a good business was worked, but bids for new crop wheat were fully six cents per quarter out of line. The demand for oats was also fairly good, but the prices bid were below exporters' views. The local market is very firm at the recent advance. The foreign demand for flour continues good and sales of round lots of spring wheat grades were made and 24s was paid for 90 per cents. The local market is firm and fairly active. The demand for bran for export account is good and now that France has suspended the import duty on fodder it will no doubt increase. Some millers have advanced shorts to $25 per ton. In dairy products and provisions there is no change to note.

First Grain Shipment.

Fort William, Sept. 8.—The first shipment of the season's new crop, 13,000 bushels, was shipped out yesterday on the C.P.R. steamer Athabasca. It was shipped, as has been usual for several years, for James Richardson, Sons, Ltd., Kingston, to Owen Sound. There is a general impression from inspections up-to-date that the average grain of this season's crop will be on a parity with No. 2 Northern.

IF YOU ARE SICK
YOU CONSULT A SPECIALIST
WHY?

Because he has made a special study of the disease you are suffering from, and from the knowledge gained by years of experience knows just what treatment you require.

If you are going into a law-suit, you do the same—consult the best lawyer you can get, and find it cheap in the end.

Now, when you are considering taking Life, Fire or Accident Insurance, do you not think it would pay you to consult one who has had many years experience in that profession, and whose knowledge would be of use to you in enabling you to get the best value for your premiums, with the most liberal policies and absolute guarantees?

If you want what is best in Life, Fire or Accident Insurance, you can get it by calling at, or phoning to

"WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT IT?"

That's what a customer asked us recently about a patent medicine we had sold for years, and we were forced to admit that in reality we knew nothing more than what appeared on the label, wrapper and advertising.

Some of the claims made were so extravagant that, of course, we could not take them seriously. This is the reason why we strongly recommend our own preparations.

WEDDING BELLS

MANN—VANNORMAN.

Toronto Star.—At seven o'clock last night the residence of Mr. C. W. VanNorman, in Carlton street, was the scene of the marriage of his daughter, Madeline Estelle, to Dr. Robert William Mann, son of Mr. G. W. Mann, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Thomas in the low window of the drawing room, which was banked with pink roses, gladioli, lilies of the valley, and palms. To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding music, played by an orchestra, the bride was brought in and given away by her father. She was wearing a graceful gown of white satin duchess with rose point lace. Her veil, which was of tulle, was caught with a bandeau of pearls. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley, and wore the groom's gift, a sunburst of pearls. There were no attendants, and during the service Mrs. Holway sang "The Rosary."

Later in the evening Dr. and Mrs. Mann left to spend their honeymoon in the north, the bride travelling in a grey tailor-made, with black hat.

HICKSON—ENGLISH.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday morning at St. Paul's church, when Miss Katherine English, one of Norwood's most popular young ladies, became the bride of Mr. Robert Hickson, of Ennismore. The bride, who looked charming, was given away by her brother, Mr. Edward English, and was attended by her cousin, Miss Josie O'Donnell, of Peterborough, while Mr. John Kimon, of Ennismore, supported the groom. Rev. Father Keay performed the marriage ceremony.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride where a dainty repast was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, attesting the esteem in which she is held by her many friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold watch and fob; to the bridesmaid a beautiful ring set with emeralds and pearls, and to the groomsman a gold pin.

After receiving the congratulations of their friends the happy couple left on the 356 train for Toronto where the honeymoon will be spent, after which they will reside in Peterborough.

The bride's going away suit was a navy blue ladies cloth with a black velvet hat with willow plumes.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. M. Fee and daughter, Miss Josie, of Winnipeg, Man., Mrs. W. Cowhey, of Chicago, and Miss Julia O'Donnell, of Toronto.—Norwood Register.

YOUNG LAD IS RETURNED HOME

Went to Toronto Unknown to His Mother Here

A young lad named Jones, whose erratic actions indicate unsound mental balance, boarded a train here for Toronto the other day and visited the exhibition, unknown to his mother.

The police found him in Toronto and as he had nowhere to go, they handed him over to the Children's Aid Society. They communicated with the local authorities and his mother was notified that he was in Toronto. She left to-day for Port Hope to meet him and bring him back to Peterboro.

Young Jones, who is about eleven or twelve years old is a well known character around town. He seems to have a mania for travelling, no matter what kind of vehicle is used.

MINOR CASES IN DIVISION COURT

Grocer Seeks to Recover $23.55 From Customer

A sitting of Division Court opened this morning at ten o'clock in the court house with Judge Huycke presiding. The following members of the bar were present, W. J. Bennett, L. M. Hayes, K.C., G. N. Gordon, O. DeLaplante, W. J. Greene, Crown attorney Wood, W. D. Dumble, K.C., A. E. Dixon and E. A. Peck.

An unusually large number of cases were before the court, mostly consisting of actions taken to recover minor sums of money.

The first one heard this morning was the case of W. J. Byers, of Bycraville versus Mrs. Chapman of the same place, suing her for $23.55 being the amount of a grocery bill owed by her at the grocery store of which Mr. Byers is proprietor.

Mr. Byers did not have all his books of entry in the court, hence the case could not be proceeded with until he produced them, which will be done this afternoon. Mr. Dumble appeared in the defendant's interests, and Crown attorney Wood for the prosecution.

J. T. O'Connell the real estate merchant on behalf of his father took action against Mr. McCallum, a tenant of one of his houses to recover some rent. Mr. O'Connell, sr., rented a house to Mr. McCallum at $6 a month. The tenant got behind in his rent and according to the plaintiff he was willing to reduce the rent $1 a month if the arrears were paid.

Mr. Bennet acted for the defendant and A. E. Dixon for Mr. O'Connell.

PETERBORO INTERESTED IN WELFARE OF MISSIONARIES

Gilmour Street Lady Has Daughter in China — No Danger it is Said.

In view of the political revolution which is brewing in the Chengtu district of China, thereby endangering the lives of many missionaries stationed there some alarm may be felt by those in this city, who have friends in the danger zone. Rev. T.E.E. Shore, secretary of the Methodist Foreign Missions is the authority for the statement that the lives of Canadians are not in danger. The Toronto Star publishes a list of names of the Canadian missionaries, who are in the district where the rebellion is dominant. Among the list is the name of Rev. H. D. Robertson, who with his wife, who was formerly Miss Vieva Hunter, daughter of Mrs. Dr. Hunter, Gilmour street, resides in the troubled district. Mrs. Robertson accompanied her husband to China about five years ago. Mrs. Hunter, her mother, was asked to-day by the Review if she had heard from her daughter in regard to the trouble, and replied in the negative. She received a letter yesterday however from Rev. Mr. Robertson, which, owing to the length of the distance and delay, was two months old. The letter stated that in case there was an outbreak, they and the other missionaries would not be exposed to any bodily harm, as they would be ordered by the British Consul to take shelter in the consulate.

Mrs. Dr. Love, formerly Miss Lena McMillan, well known in Peterboro, but now of Lindsay, was to have sailed with the party of Canadian missionaries who leave Vancouver on October 4th. Mrs. W. J. Green, a close friend of Mrs Dr. Love, was asked to-day if she had heard whether Mrs. Love intended to sail, in view of the serious state of affairs in China. Mrs. Green however, heard some time ago that her intention was to leave about Sept. 1st, but had heard nothing further from her.

Miss McCalla, secretary of the Y. W.C.A. has two sisters, who are missionaries in China, but in the northern part and not in the troubled zone. They are Mrs. Harvey Grant, and Mrs. Dr. Ratcliffe.

Rev. A. J. Brace, better known as Trooper Brace will likely be among the party of Canadian missionaries who sail for China from Vancouver on October 4th.

The Standard of Piano Construction

The question of quality is the only one which should be considered when buying a piano.

The beauty and permanency of tone—delicacy of touch—superiority of materials and workmanship—are synonymes of quality.

BAD ACCIDENT AT BURNT RIVER

Workman Used Drill and Dynamite Charge Exploded

Harry Major, an employee of the Britnell Quarries, Burnt River, had a very narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon about 1.30 p.m. while working. It appears that Major was engaged in drilling and blasting some rock and when one charge refused to go off, he proceeded to drill it out again. The result was that the concussion of the drilling acted as a fuse and the charge went off while the unfortunate man was bending over the drill. He received the whole of the terrible blast, and the wonder is that he was not killed outright. His face and arms were literally peppered, while it is feared that he will lose the sight of one eye.

The drill which the young fellow was operating was blown to atoms. Drs. Graham and Johnson, of Fenelon Falls, were summoned and attended to the man's injuries, after which he was brought to Lindsay and taken through to a Toronto hospital.

Major was married and his wife resides in England. He has been working at the Burnt River quarries for two years.—Lindsay Warder.

ELECTION NEWS FROM WARSAW

Mr. Kerr Didn't Make Very Good Impression

Special Correspondence.

Warsaw, Sept. 6.—Mr. Kerr held a political meeting in the town hall here on August 29th. Dr. Munroe filled the position of chairman ably, and his wit and humor added greatly to the enjoyment of the meeting. Mr. Kerr gave quite a long address, but it did not amount to much as it was chiefly composed of what he thought was smart sayings, slurs on the opposite party and his loyalty to Britain, although his position in this campaign speaks far louder than any words of his can do of his loyalty. He spent about half an hour trying to find out the difference between teedle-dee and teedle-dum.

One of Mr. Kerr's supporters on the platform quoted a lot of prices from a newspaper he held. It must have been the Examiner or Globe, as it came so far from being correct, according to the government report given by Mr. Sexsmith. Some of the Grits are circulating a story through the country something about a horse Mr. Sexsmith bought about twenty years ago, but we don't see what that has to do with reciprocity, unless they think he should not have bought it until after this election, so that he could have got it cheaper if reciprocity passed.

Allow me to say a word to those who are anxious for reciprocity, and especially those who are engaged in Sunday school work. If they would read up some of the American papers, a New York paper called the "Truth Seeker," for instance, and become better acquainted with the American people, and see how totally depraved they are morally, their loose ideas on the marriage question, a complete disregard for the sacredness of marriage. The Ne Temere decree would suit very well in a country where they are getting married one day and divorced the next. If people would only stop and consider for one moment the influence such a country would have on the future generations of young Canadians, the influence of a country peopled with Mormons, infidels and socialists, who are striving with the Government to induce them to pass laws that will abolish the Sabbath as a holy day, and observe it only as a day of rest (those who did not want to rest could do as they liked), to abolish Bible reading in the schools and chaplains in the army and navy. I asked an American what church he belonged to and he said: "If you had asked me what theatre I attended I could tell you more about it." This is the sort of people we are expected to have commercial union and social union with; because if we have commercial union and we derive the prosperity and benefit from it, that the Grits say we will, social union is sure to follow, because where our treasure is, there is our hearts also.

One of the greatest arguments against reciprocity is the fact that nearly all the Canadians living in the United States are death on the pact, and are so loyal to Canada that they do not want her to get sold.

NAMES OF THREE ITALIANS STRUCK OFF VOTERS' LIST

Six Others Left On—It Was Italian Night at Court of Appeal — One Chinaman Will Not Vote.

The hearing of appeals in connection with registrations was resumed last night at eight o'clock in the City Council chamber. Up till nine o'clock the Italian complaints held the boards, during which period some nine cases were disposed of, three by being struck off the voters' list and the other six being left on. Legal clashes over some technicalities in connection with some of the disputes were quite frequent last evening, which tended to liven proceedings that would otherwise have been rather tedious.

R. R. Hall, W. S. Davidson and G. N. Gordon were present in the interests of J. R. Stratton and Robert Ruddy and W. H. Moore for Mr. Burnham.

Thomas Minicola was very important and necessary at the inquiries in the capacity of interpreter.

Two of the Italians, whose names were obliterated, had no naturalization papers, hence they were not entitled to vote. Mr. Minicola said that it was difficult to get them to understand that this was necessary, and what it meant.

One dispute arose over a name. The notice of appeal had been addressed to a man named Hubert D. Swanston, and his real name was Hugh D. Swanston. The matter was left over till this morning, when a peronal appeal was served.

Joseph Minicola's name was contested. The interpreter explained that there are two Joseph Minicolas in the city. As the one appealed was born in Italy his name was struck off.

One lonely Chinaman, named Tom Hong, was on the list. He was not present in court. His name was struck off.

The hearing will be resumed to-morrow night.

CORONER'S JURY SAY DEATH CAUSED THROUGH NEGLIGENCE

Evidence Heard as to Fatal Accident When Francis LeFave Met His Death.

"We, the jury sworn to inquire into the death of Francis LeFave, who was killed on Sept. 1, 1911, on the premises of the C.G.E. Co., find that the said Francis LeFave came to his death through the neglect of the C.P.R. co. in moving one of their cars having a defective car door and through the neglect of the C.G.E. Co., in not moving their table back far enough to clear the car door."

The adjourned inquest to inquire into the death of Francis LeFave, who was killed on the C.G.E. premises last Friday, was concluded last evening, the jury bringing in the above verdict.

The inquiry was conducted in the police court before the coroner, Dr. E. N. Greer. Crown attorney, R. E. Wood, examined the witnesses for the crown, and the other members of the bar present were, Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C., in the interests of the C.G.E. Co., Mr. McMurchy, K.C., for the C.P.R. Co, and G. N. Gordon for the family of the deceased.

The witnesses examined were Mr. N. King, Drs. Carmichael and Eastwood, Messrs. W. A. Elliott, J. Cassils, Fred Thomas, and James Milne.

A summary of the evidence submitted to the jury was as follows—

YARDSMAN'S EVIDENCE

Mr. W. King, a yard man in the employ of the C.P.R. was present at the time of the accident which caused the death of Francis LeFave, Friday, Sept. 1st.

His duty was to couple the cars which were to be taken out, and when he did that on the day in question, he gave the signal to the engineer, Mr. J. Chambers, and the engine moved up. There were two loaded cars to be taken out and one to be placed on the siding again.

As he described the surroundings, the building alongside which the siding was laid, runs East and West, and there was about three feet between the building and the cars. There was a loading table projecting from the door of the building with a space on either side, wide enough for a man to pass.

Mr Wood—"Where was deceased at the time you gave the signal?"

"Before coupling the cars I went into the building to get a drink of water and spoke to deceased at the end of the table. Deceased told me that I had better watch out or I would get caught. That was the last I saw of him until he was crushed between the table and the door frame." Witness answered.

"Did you see the car catch the table."

"I saw the handle of the door of the last car catch the slot in the end of the table. I gave the signal to stop the engine."

"How was LeFave caught?"

"He was caught about the abdomen and when the engine stopped, the slacking of the brakes allowed him to drop forward."

Mr. King judged that the table was six or seven inches from the car. The door, he said, was hanging out a little at one corner, and he thought that, had the door been closed, the handle would have passed the table.

"Did LeFave move or speak?"

"No."

To Mr. Hayes, witness said that whoever seals the car usually closes the door.

To Mr. McMurchy.—"Mr. Milne and I had little difficulty in closing the door of the car on Saturday after the accident."

MEDICAL TESTIMONY

Dr. Carmichael was the first physician on the scene and after ascertaining that the injured man was dead, he made an external examination of the wound. He did not have any doubt as to the manner of death.

To the coroner—"I did not think a post mortem examination necessary to ascertain the cause of death.

Dr Eastwood next called, agreed with Dr. Carmichael. He measured the distance from the side of the car to the outside of the door after the accident, and it to be 7 inches.

To Mr. Wood—"The handle was lower than if the door had been closed."

W. A. ELLIOTT

To Mr. Wood—"I am foreman of the shipping department of the C.G.E. Just before the accident I was standing with deceased beside the table. I saw Mr. King put out his hand to clear the door of the table, but it swung back and the handle caught the notch in the table. I jumped out between the cars but Mr. LeFave was caught when the table swung next the door frame. I went to help deceased and left him in charge of some other while I went to the telephone to get help."

To Mr. Hayes—"Two of my men had attempted to close the door previously but could not."

To Mr. McMurchy, witness said that the east end of the door was splintered. When he saw the defective door he did not give orders to have the table pulled farther back.

To Mr. Hayes—"The bill of lading was given to the C.P.R. men the night before."

MR. CASSILS

Foreman Cassils said that when opening the car in question, he broke the seal and shoving the door back it fell down on the corners. He thought the hook must have been broken at the upper corner.

CONDITION OF DOOR

Mr. Thomas, checker in the C.P.R. freight sheds said that the car in question had been in the freight sheds previously and he had opened and closed it several times. He did not notice anything wrong with it, but would not swear that it was not defective.

The yard foreman for the C.P.R. who closed the door with Mr. King, could not say whether there was anything the matter with the car or not.

LEAFS' HEAVERS FORCED THREE IN

Rochester Hustlers Had it Easy With Kelly's Men

Toronto, Sept. 8—One large and juicy inning—the fourth—saw the downfall of the Leafs yesterday in the first game with the Hustlers, the latter annexing seven counters in this spasm and three of these were gifts by the two Toronto heavers, who forced in the trio of runs with the bases full. Ten to three was the final verdict and the story of the slaughter of the afternoon. Two games were supposed to have been played, but the Bluebell got stranded on the way over with a majority of the players on board, and the first contest did not get started till near 3 o'clock, and as it was not over till after 5 o'clock, the second contest was postponed until to-morrow.

Captain Matthew Webb, the first man to swim the English channel, performed his astonishing feat on Aug 24th, 1875 after one unsuccessful attempt twelve days previous. Webb was born in Dawley, Shropshire, England, in 1848, and after several years spent in the mercantile Marine service, became a professional swimmer in 1875. He was killed while attempting to swim the rapids and whirlpool at Niagara in 1883.

The players in the Canadian Ball League must have bad tempers. The Guelph Mercury says:

Cursing and the use of foul language on the field by the players should be stopped. In Friday's and Saturday's games it grew so bad that the umpire had to overcome his delicacy and request them to refrain from using it.

John Cusack, of Brooklyn, who was John L. Sullivan's backer when the former champion was defeated at New Orleans in 1892 by James J. Corbett, is dead at his home in Brooklyn. He is said to have lost $60,000 on Sullivan in that fight. Cusack's wealth was at one time estimated to exceed $300,000. Cusack was well known as a wrestler in his youth. He took William Muldoon off the police force and taught him wrestling until his apt pupil became world's champion. Cusack gave away a small fortune in his palmy days. His pocketbook was always open to needy sportsmen.

A FREAK BIRD

A peculiar freak of nature can be seen at Mr. Joseph Thomson's livery stable. It is a rooster-duck. The bird is white with a rooster's head and comb and a duck's wing and back. It stands like a duck, straight up with its body hanging low. It crows like a rooster, and its comb is a peculiar shape, being over an inch in width at the top and about 3 or 4 inches long. It finds difficulty in getting about on its legs. Its feet are also partly webbed. It was raised at Atherley. Mr. Thomson says its the greatest curiosity he has ever come across and he thinks its a cross between a rooster and a mud-hen.—Orillia News-Letter.

Reduced Cable Rates.

London, Sept. 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The representative of the Pacific cable board states that negotiations for the establishment of a reduced rate for unurgent messages gives promise of a satisfactory outcome. The postmaster-general thinks the advantage of the reduction will be such as to make it highly desirable to adopt it throughout the cable service of the empire and between the British dominions and external states. He said he had approached the British and American cable companies, and, after obtaining their approval, had negotiated with foreign Governments. There was now every prospect that within the next few months it will be possible for messages in plain language to be sent at half the existing rates, the charges being subject only to the conditions that the transmission must wait for a period not exceeding 24 hours.

Murder or Suicide?

New York, Sept. 8.—Finger-prints on the revolver with which she was shot to death yesterday are relied on by the experts of the local detective bureau to determine definitely whether Mrs. Edward Hart, formerly a dancer known to the stage as Irene Hart, was murdered or took her own life. The woman's body, bearing four bullet wounds, was found in the kitchen of the rooming-house she purchased recently, with the revolver lying beside it.

Hart, who called the police, declared that his wife had shot herself. He said he found her body on the floor when he got up yesterday. When he was arraigned in the police court a detective who investigated the case testified that in his opinion the wounds could not have been self-inflicted, and Hart was held for the coroner without bail.

Accidentally Shot.

Fredericton, N.B., Sept. 8.—A young English boy was seriously and perhaps fatally wounded in a shooting accident, which occurred at Maugerville Wednesday evening. About dusk Murray Gilbert, with whom the boy lived, saw a large owl alight on the top of his barn, and rushed into the house to get his shotgun, hoping to have a shot at the owl. The young English lad heard Mr. Gilbert preparing to go out to shoot the owl and went to the verandah. He was just passing through a screen door leading to the verandah when Mr. Gilbert was snapping the breech-loading shot gun together, after having placed a cartridge in the proper place. Suddenly there was a discharge and a number of the shot lodged in the boy's arm and side.

Burglars at Chatham.

Chatham, Sept. 8.—On Tuesday night thieves attempted to gain entrance to the residence of Sheriff Gemmill, Victoria avenue, by placing a ladder to an upstairs window. They purloined the ladder from the yard of Richard Knight nearby, but it had a defect in it and broke, when they attempted to climb it. They evidently feared detection at the noise and ran away. The police are mystified, though they are working on the case. This is the third attempt which has been made recently by unknown parties to gain entrance to the sheriff's house.

Barn Burned.

Cobourg, Sept. 8.—A serious fire in the property known for years as the Hoskin farm, now owned by Edward Budd, destroyed a fine barn and all of its contents, excepting two valuable horses, which were fortunately rescued. Threshing was completed there and a large quantity of fall wheat and oats were burned, as well as hay and straw, and all of the farm implements. Mr. Budd's loss is heavy. There is some insurance.

THE PERIL TO DEMOCRACY

By Dr. Andrew Macphail

(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd.)

The worst foe of democracy is democracy itself. Its peril comes from within. It has made way against king, noble, and ecclesiastic. From these it has nothing to fear so long as it remains true to itself. But against stupidity the gods themselves are powerless.

The absence of danger is the worst of all dangers; and the sense of security is the prelude to disaster. Bismarck himself the inveterate foe of democracy, was in the habit of saying in his contemptuous way that parliamentary institutions were yet on trial.

The work of democracy has been to civilise what was military, to laicise what was clerical, to popularise what was regal; but democracy unrestrained is worse than soldier, priest, or king. No power has ever existed long, which yielded to its own will, and felt itself free to disregard the eternal principles of human liberty and earthly justice. Democracy can never rise superior to these restraints. It is bound as straightly as ever tyrant or autocrat was bound.

In all government there is a power which draws to the centre, and it draws the more strongly as the people are careless of their liberties. When the restraining influence of the Roman Empire was at an end, and the barbarians were pressing hard, the people were only too willing to shelter themselves in the shadow of the feudal keep, and surrender their lands and their liberties to the overlord for the price of protection. The barons, for the sake of organisation, were content to range themselves around the king.

At the same time the people lost their spiritual life, and yielded to the authority which the ecclesiastics had usurped. Sunk in ignorance, they looked upon one who could read, and had had skill in letters, as a pillar of light and a miracle of illumination. Then the bondage was complete. This phenomenon is not singular. We have witnessed in our own day the democracy of New York fall under the sway of Tammany Hall, which was as much more ruthless than king, noble, or priest, as a machine is more ruthless than a man.

The achievement of liberty is the end of all human striving, — freedom, first from the hardship of a savage environment, and again from the oppression of strong men who prefer to live upon the industry of others rather than to exist by their own labour. In English-speaking communities recent generations have been born free. They have not been obliged, like their fathers, to achieve their liberty at a high price. Now they accept that great gift as if it were automatic, and as much a matter of course as electric light, a water supply, or travelling by railway. Liberty must be assiduously guarded, else it will be filched away and private interests substituted for the public good.

Democracy will do very well for a company of philosophers in which all are striving to be wise, and none are compelled to devote their every thought to the problem of how to avoid starvation. The Greek democracy succeeded because the philosophers had slaves to work for them. It failed for exactly the same reason. Government, it was understood, was the business of wise men; but we proceed upon the assumption that a man who may know nothing about anything else knows all about government.

In life there are two factors, the environment and the character of the individual. The fault of democracy is that it makes everything of the environment and little or nothing of the character. If, it says, men are only allowed to vote freely enough then all will be well. But men have voted, and things are not well. The remedy now proposed is that women as well as men shall vote, as if at the mere spectacle of a woman pausing in her domestic duties for such time as is necessary to cast a piece of paper into a box all the forces of self interest and evil would run backward and fall to the ground like dead men.

Voting is merely a method of expressing an opinion. The result is good or bad, depending upon the correctness of the opinions which the voters entertain and their ability to enforce them. The method has worked well in certain cases namely, those in which communities had discovered the true principles of public policy by long ages of experience in public affairs, by living a life of freedom, resolute to maintain it even at the cost of sacrificing the individual life. Certain tribes from the shores of the North Sea which afterwards developed into the Anglo-Saxon race earned their freedom by remaining free. Every man voted. The reeve with four men from each township appeared at the hundred-mot to enforce an opinion which was in reality a derivative from the need and art of fighting. Other communities seized this weapon without paying the price and it broke in their hands. The negroes of the United States had the duty of voting thrust upon them; and one would be naive indeed who should say that their condition was improved thereby, or that they brought any great accession of wisdom to the public councils.

All democracies in the beginning were served by the wisest citizens. It appeared as a law of nature that the best men in the community would be eager to serve it, and that the people would be swift to demand their services. The rebellion of the Thirteen Colonies which afterwards grew into the United States, was conducted by the best men, by men of character and prominence, who had in some way lifted themselves above the crowd. The right they demanded was the right of filling their offices with the most competent men who had proved their ability in the various vocations in life, either by holding true to the traditions of their birth, by intellectual achievement, or even by the acquisition of property. But under the influence of the theory, that all men are equal, a new principle arose, that one man can fill an office as well as any other, and that the opinion of one man is as good as the opinion of anyone else. Offices in time came to be filled by men who had inherited certain opinions rather than by men who had proved their competency to discharge the duties of them. Spoils for the victor, was the cry, which is always the cry of barbarians.

In the beginning these best men went to the assemblies not as the delegates from trades unions go, to register the vote which had been entrusted to them, but as representatives of the whole community whose business it was to consult, and confer, and give judgment according to the needs of the case.

There is a principle of commerce, known as Gresham's Law, which applies as closely to-day as when it was propounded by the financier of Elizabeth's time, whose name it bears. According to the terms of this law, when two media of different value circulate on equal terms, the baser inevitably drives out its more precious rival. This principle applies with equal cogency to political life, and explains the automatic and progressive degradation of all popular assemblies.

When a popular assembly no longer offers a seat as a mark worthy of the highest ambition, and when it is no longer attractive to decent and civilised men, then indeed democracy is in peril. One single member can do much to make the company distasteful, and he is the worst enemy of the people. He drives other champions from the field by the disgust which he inspires, and accomplishes by baseness what no amount of courage even in a bad cause, could effect. Bad manners under certain circumstances are even worse than bad morals.

In democracy at its best the representatives are answerable to the people. They feel bound to explain, reason, and persuade; to give advice and instruction; to carry on a continual campaign of education, rather than attempt to stay a tide of public folly after it was near full flood. In democracy at its worst a politician is answerable to the boss who selects him and gives him permission to enter public life. It is then the boss who puts one up and thrusts another down. He is the master who must be placated and appeased; and that is the direct cause of corruption in public life, that the people have surrendered their liberty into the hands of a tyrant. No representative can serve two masters. The power which gave him his place, and can take it away, is the master whom he seeks to serve in the way that master prefers.

The most elaborate democracy, of which we have any knowledge is the United States. The framers of its constitution devised an electoral college for choosing the chief magistrate. It was "composed of the most enlightened and responsible citizens"; and it was presumed that "their votes would be directed to those men only who have become the most distinguished by their abilities and virtues". These men were expected to exercise an independent judgment. If such an elector were now to use his own judgment, it would be considered an act of the basest treachery. Indeed the system broke down as early as 1804, when Burr for President, and Jefferson for Vice-President received an equal number of votes, showing that party alignment was complete even at that time.

Until the recent up-rising of insurgents the bondage was complete. No citizen was allowed to share in the selection of a candidate unless he had voted with one party or another upon a previous occasion. If he exercised the alienable right of independent voting he was excluded from the primary selection and this made the organization of those who remained, the more complete and their power the more tyrannical. The best then that could happen would be that one party was replaced by another without any alteration in its character.

Consequently the course of all the legislators was one of automatic degradation, as self-respecting men forsook them, designing to sit with other legislators who had attained to their high place, no one knew how or why, although they suspected that it had been by secret favour and intrigue. This is the main peril to democracy, the withdrawal from the legislature of men of independent mind and independent means.

As an inevitable effect the assemblies fall into the hands of men who are both ignorant and poor, and it is amongst the poor and ignorant that the corrupter finds his readiest clients. A rich country then comes to be governed by poor men, whose first business appears to be to make themselves rich. Alexander Hamilton was the father of modern democracy, and he proceeded upon the assumption that "no man can be a competent legislator who does not add to an upright intention and a sound judgment, a certain degree of knowledge of the subjects on which he is to legislate. Democracy is doomed to failure when the intelligent and wealthy men withdraw themselves from government, when the "best men" turn aside to follow their own pleasure, and allow "the worst men" to seize the reins.

In America — and Canada is in America — where an elaborate "experiment in freedom" has been made, and its effect observed for one hundred years, democracy, is not so cocksure of itself. The United States has been derived because it designed to follow the experience of older countries. England is now proceeding to the limit of democratic government without taking heed of its consequences elsewhere.

Where it has been completely tested, democracy is beginning to distrust itself. Where it is seen closest, it is most suspected. In municipal government in America it has failed; and if it fails in so small a matter, how, it may well be asked, can it succeed in national affairs which are of vast extent and great complexity. The failure of democracy to supply a government of cities which might be tolerable to civilized men, has become notorious in Canada and in the United States. The instrument has been tried by the people and it has broken in their hands. Right and left they are casting away the remnants and they are seeking a better way. Unable to govern themselves they are now hiring men to govern them. They are resorting to Government by Commission and appointing as commissioners men who, in the Greek cities were called tyrants.

The new system works well. The peril to democracy lies in the fact that it does work well. Democracy has stretched out its neck, and is now only waiting for some tyrant to set his heel upon it more ruthlessly than ever before. The reason why the new system works well is because the newly elected commissioners are good men. When bad men gain control of the electoral machinery, as they did before, and will do again, in the absence of unceasing vigilance on the part of the people, the last state of democracy will be worse than the first. The sovereign remedy for all the evils in democracy is more democracy, in which good men will take their part, and not abandon it, as they have done in the past, to men whose sole guide of conduct is self interest.

So notorious has it become that men of independent means will not serve their country, the general experience now is that they must be paid for their services. The financially poor man has always been considered as a person of great value in the councils of the nation against whom no bar should be set up. A man is poor because he has no money, and if he receive twenty-five hundred dollars for attending a session at Ottawa, or, as is proposed, six hundred pounds for a session at Westminster, he is poor no longer. The efficacy of his poverty will then have passed away and parliament be deprived of the virtue inherent in it. In view of our own experience I think that the value of poverty in a legislator as a guarantee of ability and security against corruption has been over-estimated. A paid member is a hired man bound to carry out the behests, real or assumed, of his pay-master. The man who gives it at his own charge is free to express an opinion and register a vote according to his own mind and conscience, that is, if he is equipped with these two important qualities of a valuable legislator.

The truth is that a man who enters parliament becomes thereby a member of a great council, to consult and advise upon great problems in which all have a part. He is not merely a delegate who is sent to record an opinion which some, or even all, of his constituents may have for the [illegible]. If this narrow view of his function prevailed, then a piece of paper would serve as well as a member, or a mechanical apparatus might be devised for registering a vote after the principle of those machines which one may observe in a butcher's shop which will weigh some meat and calculate the price at the same time.

When constituencies were small and composed of only a few voters — in certain cases of not more than three — it was easy for a representative to carry with him the collective opinion of his electors as a delegate to a convention from a labour union still does. With the enlargement of the franchise to embrace as many as ten thousand voters this narrow theory of delegacy has entirely broken down. The representative is no longer a delegate appointed irrespective of his own opinions to carry a "mandate". There is no means of discovering what that mandate might be; and he is left to his own resources in legislating for the good of all the people at large.

How then, if members are not paid, shall the people provide themselves with legislative wisdom? It is a poor, low, and false assumption that the love of money is the root of all public service. A man who puts his wisdom at the disposal of the community is in the same category as the soldier who offers his courage in the service of war. The estimation in which the proper soldier is held is based on his willingness to risk his life in defence of his country, not for pecuniary reward, but in sheer devotion to duty, because it is fine and noble to serve one's native land.

So long as the impression prevails that a country discharges its whole obligation to its legislators when it has paid their wages or indemnified them for their loss of time, just so long will that country be deprived of the wisdom of members who find in other considerations than money the justification for spending their lives in the public service. When members come to believe that they ought to be paid, they will soon conclude, like all wage earners, that they are not being paid enough. Then they will be in a frame of mind to help themselves from the treasury which they are paid to guard.

Within their respective spheres the various legislatures of the British Empire are supreme. What they can do, they can undo, and there is none to stay their hand. The danger which lies in the possession of supreme power is the temptation to use it in an arbitrary fashion, to take short cuts towards a desired end, to avoid the law's delay, and refuse to submit to those rules of justice which have grown up in the slow evolution of a thousand years.

Several of the Canadian legislatures have set out upon this dangerous course. Examples of this tendency to proceed to the extremity of their powers have recently been furnished by Ontario and Alberta. In 1908 an act was passed by the legislature of Ontario by which certain contracts entered into with the Hydro Electric Commission were declared valid. The Courts were restrained from passing upon their validity, and any actions that were then pending were directed to be forever stayed. In short the Courts were declared closed against persons who felt themselves to have been aggrieved.

In the second session of the Alberta legislature, an act respecting the bonds guaranteed for the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway Company, was passed in 1910. The ultimate effect of this law was to provide that the proceeds of the sale of the bond issue of the railway should be taken from the Company and converted into a portion of the general revenue funds of the province.

The third example may be quoted from the records of the Imperial Parliament. On February 21st, 1911, a Bill was introduced to make provision with respect to the powers of the House of Lords in relation to those of the House of Commons and the duration of parliament. The conclusion of the third clause reads: "and shall not be questioned in any court of law". The declaration of a legislature that the courts shall be closed has a sinister sound. It means that the legislature has done something, or is about to do something, upon the legality of which it is unwilling that the tribunals of justice should pass upon.

Although the legislatures are supreme that supremacy can be maintained only so long as it is exercised in accordance with the common sense of man-kind; for there is, after all, the final argument of physical force. When democracy becomes tyrannical it too will learn that it has a bone in its neck for the ax to feel. The peril to democracy in short, is, the withdrawal of the best citizens from the service of the state. That is the source and origin of all political evils.

Andrew Macphail.

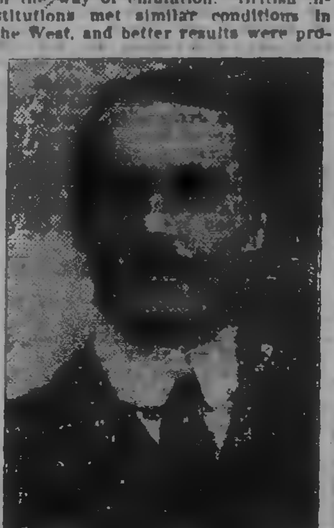
CANADA'S WEST; ITS PROGRESS SINCE FRASER

By W. D. McBride.

BRITISH INSTITUTIONS

(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd.)

The governing of a territory of over half a million square miles, a portion of which was partly settled, and the larger part inhabited by nomadic savages, and people of mixed blood, hunters and wanderers like the natives, and into which was pouring a stream of settlers, presented peculiar difficulties. It is a matter of notoriety how such a state of affairs worked out in the United States; too often in riot and lawlessness tempered by vigilance committees and private vengeance; in native wars and alternate massacres of whites and natives. Even when more settled conditions were brought about the old order left the legacies of hate and disorder and false standards which have been enshrined in the national literature under the guise of romance. Any person who has read attentively current American fiction cannot but be impressed with this spirit of lawlessness that pervades it and that we are called upon to admire as American. It has its effect upon Canada also but fortunately not in the way of emulation. British institutions met similar conditions in the West, and better results were produced. The comparison forces itself upon one, and it would be mock modesty and foolishness to disguise that we can make the comparison with satisfaction. Let us be specific. Include the period from 1821, when the two Companies united, down to 1870 when the sovereignty of the Company ceased, and further from 1870 to 1911, under the rule of Canada, and these facts stand out. There has never been a lynching in the West, and bad men were never allowed to flourish "guns". There has never been a massacre except one for which we are not responsible, of Indians by Whites; or of Whites by Indians, except one during the rebellion of 1885. A homesteader has never been driven out by ranchers nor have rival ranchers, sheep and cattle men, ever been allowed to molest each other with impunity. Cattle thieving has been repressed; settlers have slept in peace on their grants of land. Never have white women in a century or more been molested by Indians or whites except in a few exceptional cases. Peaceable settlers in short could come and go at will none daring to make them afraid. This was explained to me by a thoughtful American settler. The secret was the diverse theories of government. The theory of the British monarchial form is that all power proceeds from the Crown. Hence the majesty and authority of the Sovereign extended to all his Dominions everywhere. Hence also his officers carried his rule into unsettled parts wherever his subjects might penetrate. In fact the law proceeded them into the waste places, and there was no escaping from it within his realms. The Canadian government made this theory effective by means of the Royal North West Mounted Police. They were the visible, strong, long arm of the Sovereign's law. They were a military, a civil, a police and a judicial force in one. Also they stood between the white men and the Indians, and the latter came to trust them as their protectors. In the Republican theory of the United States all authority proceeded from the people. Until there were people there could be no organization for law and order, and the men in the frontier had reasons often to avoid law. Turbulent, lawless men on the frontier had more power than peaceful, law abiding men. From all this it followed that disorder was inevitable for a time until the forces of law an order could gain control. Some of the ablest publicists of the United States have written books that prove no more than the conclusions of this settler upon the plains of the West. A young German American who has a homestead near Maple Creek told me "My father often told me many things were done better under a monarchy (Prussia) than in a Republic"; and since he had lived in Canada he had realized this as a fact. The thing that impressed him most in Canada was the administration of law and particularly the execution of a man [illegible] at Edmonton for murder. This man an American prospector, murdered his companion away up in the wilds of Athabasca and buried the body. Could crime be more securely concealed? An Indian brought him to justice, travelling many miles to tell the police, the "King George man", that where two white men went into camp at night only one came away the next morning. Be it known, as this shows, the Indian has a great respect for the white man's law in the Canadian West. The police pursued the murderer over thousands of miles of winter wilderness in the north, and drained a lake to get the evidence hidden at its bottom. This one event gave this young German American a higher opinion of Canada and British institutions than any other thing could. Being a law abiding man it commanded his loyalty. I have heard similar views from many Americans.



F. W. G. HAULTAIN,

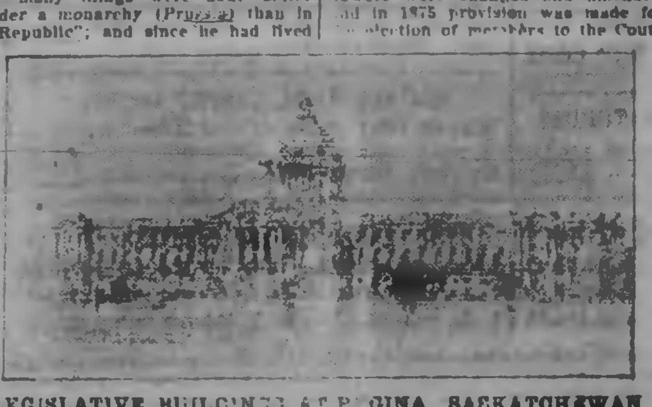
Who succeeded Viscount Boyle in 1886 as member for MacLeod district in the Provincial House of Representatives, Saskatchewan. He is ex-premier of the Province.

An eminent Canadian writer has said that in British constitution is no finality; change and growth is its portion. It is this adaptability that made these institutions so peculiarly valuable in the West. In the early seventies the Lieutenant Governor of Manitoba as head of the Council of Assinaboia was given sway over the North West, outside of Manitoba. Stipendiary magistrates were sent into the country, and H. B. C. men were made Justices of the Peace, while the Mounted Police did duty of all sorts both civil and police. Its first meeting was held in Winnipeg in March 1872, and Chief Factor Christie travelled in 55 days from Port Simpson on the Pacific Ocean to attend the meeting. This example of public spirit and devotion to duty was such as was shown by many of the Company's officers and by other men in the West in those days. Hon. James McKay, who did good service for Canada in treating with the Indians, succeeded at this time in placating the American Sioux who had fled to Canada and who feared they were to be exterminated and as a result were in a warlike mood. The Council was given certain legislative as well as administrative powers, and in 1874 prohibited the manufacture or sale of liquor in the territories. This undoubtedly made for peace. From time to time its powers were changed and amended, and in 1875 provision was made for the election of members to the Council and as soon as the elected members reached the number of 25 the Council as such should cease and the Legislative Assembly of the North West Territories by that fact came into being. In October 1876 the North West Territories Act was proclaimed and Lieutenant Governor Laird and his council took up their duties, and held its first session at Swan River in March 1877, later in the year the capital was established at Battleford. A notable effort of this Council was to regulate the killing of buffalo in order to conserve the herds but as it excited discontent and as the worst slaughter was done south of the line where it had no control the effort did not succeed. The Governor and his Council had no sinecure at this time in dealing with the Indians who were suffering from the decrease of the buffalo herds; and as immigration was also active many demands were made upon them for roads and school and a thousand and one things that were needed. One of the first things that the settlers did was to establish schools and churches. In August 1882 the railway reached Pile O' Bones Creek, Wascana in Indian, and this spot was selected by Lieutenant Governor Dewdney as the Capital of the North West in 1882. Regina, as it was christened by the Marquis of Lorne, was unfortunate at the outset in being made an issue in the insensate rancour of politics of those days; and as a result was defamed all over Canada. It has lived it down, however, though it took twenty years for it to come into its own. Here the legislature of the North West met until the two new provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were created in 1905. Since then magnificent public buildings have been erected at Regina and Edmonton as the meeting places of their Legislatures. In 1886 Viscount Boyle having resigned his seat Mr. F. W. G. Haultain was elected for MacLeod district to the legislature, and later became premier of the Government, an office which he held almost continuously until 1905. Since then he has been leader of the Opposition in Saskatchewan. At the Coronation banquet of King Edward in 1902 Mr. Haultain sat beside Sir George French, Commissioner of the North West Mounted Police until 1876, who had been virtually autocrat of the whole West before 1878, and yet Mr. Haultain had been premier of the responsible Government which directed the affairs from 1887 onward until their meeting. This little fact brings out in a strong light the certainty and just celerity with which British institutions develop in an orderly manner in a new British land. During the session of 1886 provision was made for a wholly elected legislature, with an Executive Council, or Cabinet of four ministers to advise the Lieutenant Governor in carrying on public affairs. In 1887 members from the North West sat for the first time in the Dominion Parliament, the member for West Assiniboia being Nicholas Flood Davin whose reputation as a wit, author and orator shed a lustre upon Regina which it has been slow to appreciate at its proper value. Responsible government was gradually achieved. The North West did not attain it without effort and labour on its part. Nor was autonomy for the two new provinces altogether a free unsolicited gift of an enlightened Parliament at Ottawa, but the point is that when the pressing need for these changes was made apparent to the people of the Dominion they could not be delayed long by any Government. The terms of autonomy in respect to the public lands seem certain to become an issue in Dominion politics. However, our concern is with this fact that under British institutions properly administered no class of the people need suffer long from a grievance which is capable of being remedied by law. Since the King can do no wrong and his ministers are directly responsible to Parliament and people, public opinion can make itself effective. Some Americans realise this with satisfaction and not a little surprise. Since the beginning we have been influenced by American crusades for the this and that reform. Though the supreme folly of making law officers and judges elective has cost the United States dear it was advocated in Ontario in the fifties. A Philadelphia millionaire who wishes to convert the world to single tax assured Western Canadian audiences that to obtain this boon we must first achieve the Referendum, the Recall and Direct legislation. This is a sad outlook for Single Tax. Yet at the session of the Saskatchewan Legislature which was sitting when he spoke cities were empowered to bring their taxation to a single tax basis within four years' time. At the same session farmers were empowered to own and operate a chain of grain elevators co-operatively, the government lending them 85 per cent of the funds necessary. The Conservative Opposition contended that the farmers were betrayed as they had been led to expect government ownership as in Manitoba. We are not concerned with this issue here, except to point out that farmers have means of making their voice count without direct legislation. A companion speaker told of the gratifying triumph of the people of Oregon in winning direct nominations, direct primaries as they call it. This is a right which was theirs by [illegible] inheritance and out of which they took pains to legislate themselves. Canadians have possessed it always. In short in the West as everywhere else under British institutions whatever is the considered will of the people must prevail for good or for ill.

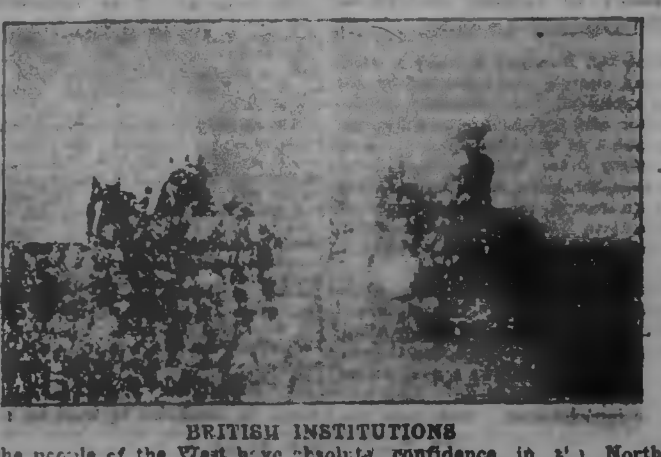
The liberties all British peoples enjoy took ten centuries to develop and are worthy of being jealously guarded even against zealous but ignorant reformers. Often we seek short cuts that show simply our impatience and short sightedness.

The late Lord Salisbury with wisdom and grim humour told the Imperial Preferentialists that all they had to do to induce his Government to help on their scheme was to go out and convert the people of Britain. Many modern reformers will not stand such a test, and desire to enforce their so called reforms on an unwilling people.

NORTH WEST MOUNTED POLICE. THE VISIBLE, STRONG, LONG ARM OF THE SOVEREIGN'S LAW.



LEGISLATIVE BUILDINGS AT REGINA, SASKATCHEWAN



BRITISH INSTITUTIONS

The people of the West have absolute confidence in the North West Mounted Police.

NORTH WEST MOUNTED POLICEMAN ESCORTING NEW SETTLERS.

Proof Positive.

A farmer returning home late at night found a man standing beside the house with a lighted lantern in his hand. "What are you doing here?" he asked, savagely, suspecting he had caught a criminal. For answer came a chuckle, and — "It's only me, sur."

The farmer recognised John, his shepherd.

"It's you John, is it? What on earth are you doing here this time o' night?"

Another chuckle. "I'm a-courtin' Ann, sur."

"And so you've come courting with a lantern, you fool. Why, I never took a lantern when I courted your mistress."

"No, sur, you didn't, sur," John chuckled. "We can all see you didn't, sur."

CONSERVATIVE SPEAKERS HAD SPLENDID HEARING BEFORE ELECTORS OF HARVEY

Mr. Burnham and Mr. Sexsmith Spoke at Burleigh, Dealing With Reciprocity Question to Highly Satisfied Audience—How the Pact Will Destroy Canada.

Mr. J. H. Burnham and Mr. J. A. Sexsmith made a winning team at Buckhorn last night, when they addressed a large attendance of Harvey electors, in the L.O.L. hall.

It was a successful meeting for the Conservative candidate for West Peterborough in every way. The plain and straightforward remarks of the two speakers, together with their sound arguments were most effective, the impression made by the audience being one of general satisfaction, and it is safe to predict that the vote for Mr. Burnham on September 21 will be very flattering.

The foremost issues of the day were discussed both by Mr. Burnham and Mr. Sexsmith, and the reciprocity question received particular attention.

In Mr. H. J. Crowe, the well known shoemaker, the meeting had a splendid chairman. In introducing Mr. Burnham as the first speaker, he remarked that it gave him great pleasure to take the position in such a worthy cause.

That Mr. Burnham is popular with Harvey electors was evidenced by the fine reception he received. The speaker said that he agreed with the expression of the chairman. It was a worthy cause, because there was an endeavor being made to ward off the attempt of the United States to appropriate Canada. Quoting from a Minneapolis journal, he showed that the United States was fearful lest Canada would supply all the English needs in produce and United States with her vast exports of farm produce would be left out. Then, too, Canada was growing rapidly—a nation within the British empire—to form one great confederation. This gave the United States the cold chill. It would take away American trade. United States recognized that England was her best trader, and Canada came third. Such were the conditions that induced United States to attempt to bring about reciprocal trade.

It was Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself who had said, "Thank God the day of reciprocity is over." Canada at that time was only at half of its present strength, in its resources. Across the line conditions were better, but United States turned down commercial union. Now that Canada was prospering and had captured the British market, the American wanted to break us up. They wanted to divert Canadian trade into American channels and build up their industries at our expense. It was their hope to break up the British band of supremacy and development around the world.

"Everything is growing with such rapidity as to frighten the Americans," said Mr. Burnham. "This pact, so far as I can see, has not one leg to stand on. The Liberals are offering you everything, but they are unable to give you facts and figures. The Conservatives are showing the immense danger in countenancing any such treaty. Under reciprocity, the farmer near the northern Canadian line would be asked to compete with his American neighbors, whose crops are ready for the market much earlier. They would be up against this competition when least able to do so. Again, the Canadian farmer would be compelled to treat on free trade, and at the same time would have to buy in the Canadian protected market. Laurier has said there will be no lowering of the tariff on our manufactured goods.

SOMEONE WAS DECEIVED.

Why was this pact assented to by the government. The reason is they were deceived. They did not understand trade relations. They didn't know the real feelings of the Americans and what they were driving at. Fielding and Patterson went to Washington in secret, without the proper information, while on the other hand, President Taft had the report of his board of experts. Fielding and Patterson bit, and the government would have, had they been allowed, gone on without consulting the people if Canada and leave us to the mercy of the United States. "How exceedingly stupid they were, and how amazed when they found the people were against such a pact. Members of their own party were against it. Big railway men were against it, for it was plain to be seen that this department of Canada's development, transportation, would be of no use, with trade going to the south.

WANT OUR PULPWOOD.

United States wanted our pulpwood, and realize that they must have it soon. With a great show of generosity they say we will let it come in free. But the people of Quebec and Ontario say, "No, you don't. If you want our pulpwood bring over your capital here. Build up your industries in Canada."

Unrestricted reciprocity had been voted down, and there were no regrets. Canada has lept in bounds since then. Now United States, realizing their condition, want to smother us. What would there be left for us to do if they got into our country? "We can go into the woods and make our living by fishing and shooting," remarked the speaker. "I don't see what else there is to do." Taking the question of horses, Mr. Burnham read the statements of the president of the Buffalo Board of Trade, a horse buyer. He said Buffalo was one of the largest horse markets in the United States, and world horses were sold in Canada despite the duty. With reciprocity, he held, Canada and the Northwest would be heavy buyers.

NO INCREASED PRICES

"You are told," said Mr. Burnham, "that if you export to United States you will add the duty to your prices, which is idiotic. They must have something to talk about. The real truth is that the importer will save the duty and we won't get any more. The speaker said it was quite true that proximity to market is better for producer and consumer, and admitted that in some small sections reciprocity would be beneficial. But why should the whole of Canada suffer for the sake of these.

THAT BARLEY MARKET.

Taking up the question of barley, Mr. Burnham stated that 200,000 bushels of barley were coming into Peterborough every year, and the Quaker Oats company could import and pay the duty and still get it cheaper than in Canada. "If some one will rise up and tell us about the Canadian barley trade with United States I'll give him the floor," he said.

In malting barley, Russia grows six times the amount of all the countries put together and under reciprocity could come into Canada, but not into the United States and Russia and these other countries are ready to dump their barley into Canada, the very minute reciprocity comes in force and free of duty. Where is the Canadian farmer going to come in? At present he has the finest market in the world, the home market. Make these inquiries yourself urged Mr. Burnham and you will find things just as I have told you.

THE FARMERS BANK

Turning to another phase of the campaign, he said that there had been a good deal of heat and mud slinging but he could not allow such to go on without giving some explanation. "If I am not a fit and proper man I have no right to set myself up for your suffrage?"

Mr Stratton has said unfairly and untruthfully that he had nothing to do with the Farmers Bank. It had to do with Conservatives. Mr. Burnham frankly admitted that there were thieves on both sides, who were making fools of both parties. But Mr. Stratton's statement was false, he said. He is under an indictment and charged with attempt to defraud in connection with the Farmers Bank. He (Mr Burnham) had been charged with making libellous statements and it had been said, he should be arrested.

"I defy J. R. Stratton to arrest me" said the speaker. He went on to show that he had been challenged to discuss the matter at the Opera House and had accepted. Had Mr. Stratton accepted it? No and he won't dare to. He was bluffing. He has to face the charge at the criminal assizes in Toronto. The penalty is from one to seven years in the penitentiary.

Mr. Burnham spoke of his visit to Galway and Cavendish, where the people had been victimized and stripped and not a hand had been lifted to help them. It was up to the Government he held to make good their losses. Why should the grafters get it? Some $10,000 had been lost in the bank establishment at Kinmount and the people were being laughed at by the scamps who formed themselves together, and got a fake charter, in order to plunder the people.

Mr. Burnham concluded his address by taking up an article in Leslie's Weekly of New York, which explained what reciprocity would do for the United States and he gave a clear explanation of how the pact would be all to the benefit of the Americans and on the other hand detrimental to Canada and the Canadians.

MR. SEXSMITH.

Mr. Sexsmith followed with a clear cut address. He expressed his pleasure at meeting Harvey electors, and said that he was pleased to speak on behalf of Mr. Burnham, who was worthy of their support. He was a man who should do honor to West Peterborough and Canada.

The reciprocity question now before the people was, he said, the greatest since confederation, and he wished to give an absolutely straightforward address. "We have absolute facts to stand on," said the speaker, as he criticized the Minister of Agriculture for misrepresentation at a recent meeting. Mr. Sexsmith took up the position of Hon. Wm. Patterson, who with Mr. Fielding went to Washington for the conference on the reciprocity arrangement. His is the name across the soda biscuit, and he states that he is not directly interested in the manufacture of biscuits, but admits his sons are. He says he only has some money invested. What did he do but take the position as a sort of godfather to the institution. Despite the offer of a 90,000,000 market, he said, "I don't want that, I want 25 per cent protection." He looked at eggs and butter and saw that they were cheaper in the United States. A bright idea came to him. He said the farmers don't fear competition, but my sons will use butter and eggs in confectionery. Wouldn't it be great if I took off the duty and they will be doubling in profit. That's the position he took. He and his followers are going out from place to place telling the farmers there is nothing to fear. As a farmer himself, the speaker said that he sympathized with the farmers. They were the people who created the wealth. Last year the value of field crops in Canada was $600,000,000.

JUG-HANDLED PROPOSITION.

Mr. Kerr will say let us send our coal to United States and let them fashion it into finished product. Canada will then get it back from the States.

There are twelve other foreign nations producing the same as Canada, and they will come in and compete in our home market, which consumes from 80 to 85 per cent. of all we produce. Stratton and Kerr and others will tell you there is nothing to fear. But we have no right to go up against such a competition. It is not justifiable. Its a jug-handled proposition.

On September 14 last year, the Minister of Agriculture in discussing the resolution asking for assistance to Alberta for the establishment of a cold storage system of a beef industry, he said that Canada couldn't compete with Australia and New Zealand in raising beef. He said conditions were entirely diferent. There it was continually summer. Cattle were at large all the time.

When reciprocity came on he took just the opposite side in some respects. He held that there was no danger from foreign nations and sent out speeches which did not deal with the question in a fair manner.

Referring to the tumbling down of the price of butter and eggs last spring, Mr. Sexsmith gave trade figures which showed that we imported from Australia and New Zealand 400 tons, and from United States 336,000 pounds of butter at from 18 to 20 cents per pound. Was it any wonder that prices fell down, asked Mr. Sexsmith, and went on to show how the farmer was getting the small end of the deal.

Mr. Guthrie had stated that hogs were cheaper in United States that in Canada. By a comparison of figures taken from the trade records, the speaker showed that during the past ten or fifteen years, the average price was better in Canada. The prices in wheat, too, were a trifle higher, and the same in other lines. As to a better price for horses, as Mr. Kerr had predicted, Mr. Sexsmith explained that the United States had more horses per capita than Canada. To find this to be true all that was needed was a look at their exports. Telling of his visit to the States, Mr. Sexsmith said that he saw one carload of horses which came from the Western States and sent to Prescott. He selected the best one, an eight year old, weighing 1500 pounds. It sold for $200 while the same horse in Canada would bring $250. Talk about higher prices for the Canadian farmer with reciprocity. The prices of farm horses was greater in Canada. The average price in 19 States in 1910 was $198.19, while in Canada in eight provinces, not including British Columbia, it was $133.

As to the price of hay, Mr. Kerr was reported in the Examiner as giving the price at Cobourg to be $13 while at Rochester it was $27. With the duty off, there remained a difference of $14. Where would the Canadian farmer come in there?

In dairy produce the farmer was enjoying better prices to-day. At the Ogdensburg Cheese Board cheese sold at 10 1-4 cents, while just across in Canada the price was 10 1-4 and 11 1-2. In the Ogdensburg and Oswego districts there are no hogs, and the farmers give as an explanation that they have no market and tell of their severe hardships. At one store there was nothing but meats with the brand of the Beef Trust. Such corporations didn't look out for the farmer, and the speaker went on to show the great injury these trusts do to the country. One cold storage plant was to be seen at Havelock. The cars of beef sent out are going to the farmers in the States who are under the thumb of the trusts. Clifford Sifton had said that the provinces of Canada would be the backyard of the United States if reciprocity went through. Where would the Matthews Company and others be? They would be under the same conditions as exist in the northern states. The very market at our door would be stolen away. Mr. Sexsmith gave authentic figures which also showed that the value of farm lands in Canada had increased while in the United States States there was a decrease. As the speaker continued he gave facts and figures to show the real reason why the pact should be thrown aside by Canadian people, and he was heartily applauded as he took his seat.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King, Mr. Burnham and Mr. Sexsmith.

If we take down that wall we will benefit by it, for we shall sell more agricultural products to Canada than she will sell to us. We do now, and we shall sell her even more after reciprocity becomes a fact. I am not arguing---I am merely stating my conclusions. If I did not believe this I should not have taken the responsibility of doing what I have done to put this reciprocity treaty through.--Taft

R. H. LEARY'S HORSES ARE STILL WAITING TO BE SOLD.

American Horses Capturing the Western Market In Spite of the Present Duty.

Robert Leary returned yesterday from his western trip, and not very well satisfied with the condition of the western horse market.

Some two or three months ago Mr. Leary took a carload of horses west, as has been his custom. He found the market in Winnipeg very slow, and putting the carload of horses in charge of a sales stable, went on to Edmonton and the far west.

When he came back to Winnipeg a month later, he found that only three of his horses had been sold, and that there was a bill amounting to nearly $250 against him for their keep. The sales stable people told him, according to what Mr. Leary told friends in Peterborough on his return, that even in spite of the present duty on American horses the American horses were being brought in, and were capturing the market.

Mr. Leary says that reciprocity will take away, most assuredly, the western horse market from the east, and that the only market for Ontario horses will be in the eastern states. Ontario could not hope to compete with the American west in the Canadian west horse market.

Mr. Leary has also said that he is going to return west prior to the election. His horses are still in Winnipeg, it is understood, waiting to be sold.

CANADIAN SYNOD TAKES THE JOB OF LOOKING AFTER JAPAN

A Missionary Bishop Will be Appointed for the New Diocese of the Anglican Church—Indian Matters.

London, Ont., Sept. 9.—The formal decision to establish a diocese of the Canadian Anglican Church in Japan was arrived at yesterday.

At the general synod meeting, on motion of Chancellor Worrell of the diocese of Toronto, seconded by the Hon. S. H. Blake, that the district of Flowery Kingdom assigned to the Canadian Church be that of Japan, was accepted.

The motion was put to both the house of bishops and the house of representatives, sitting together as the board of missions, and was passed unanimously.

It is possible that the new missionary bishop for the latest diocese of the Canadian Church will be selected at the present sitting of the general synod.

It was a missionary day at the Synod and the presentation of the board of management of the missionary society of the church to the board of missions occupied the day in its entirety. Both morning and afternoon sessions, which were presided over by the primate, were occupied by the reading of this comprehensive report by Canon Gould of Toronto, the general missionary secretary.

The Indian, his past, his present and his future occupied much of the debate of the afternoon, a debate that culminated in a memorial being drafted for presentation to the Dominion and Provincial Governments, that in the opinion of the general synod, the Indian's right could be profitably employed in the conservation of the national resources of the country.

Archdeacon Robison of Moose Factory, who introduced the resolution to the House, started the debate on the Indian question.

There should be a change in the educative system in handling the original inhabitants of Canada, he declared, for to coop them up in schools was the equivalent of condemning them to the undertaker. Their natures demanded something different, and school buildings on the pattern of sanatoriums, where as much air and light as possible could be obtained were what he suggested.

Outdoor occupation, such as fire ranging and kindred pursuits, were further suggested as his life work. His physical constitution demanded work of this nature, not the confining restricted life of factory or shop.

G. B. Nicholson of Chapleau, Ont., said the extension of the railways through the north country was slowly driving the Indian out of his present sphere of life, and that unless something were done in order that the Indian might be taken up the problem would be serious. He suggested the matter be taken up with the Government.

This was the idea of many of the delegates and in addition to the resolution to memorialize the Government a second was passed appointing the Archbishop of Rupert's Land and the Bishops of Mackenzie, Moosoone, Keewatin, Algoma, Saskatchewan, Qu'Appelle, Athabasca, Yukon and Kootenay a committee to investigate the secular, the religious and the educational welfare of the Indians, the Indian school question, the application of the funds from the sale of reserves.

ELEVEN ARE DEAD AT NICE

Restaurant That Collapsed Caused Many Deaths.

Nice, France, Sept. 9.—The restaurant connected with the Eldorado, the largest theatre in Nice, collapsed yesterday morning, burying a number of workmen in the debris. Late last night eleven dead and sixteen severely injured persons had been taken from the ruins by the firemen and soldiers, but it was feared that other persons still remained beneath the wreckage.

The building was in course of reconstruction, and while the cause of the disaster has not yet been definitely ascertained, it is alleged that the work, in which reinforced concrete was used, was being hurried by the contractors, who were liable to a heavy fine for each day they exceeded the contract time for finishing the structure.

The collapse occurred at 10 o'clock yesterday morning while the work was in full swing. A few of the workmen near the windows heard the first rending of timbers above them and leaped to the street, escaping with slight injuries. Those in the interior however, had no chance to get out, as the entire roof collapsed and carried them down beneath it. Several of these men were taken out shortly afterwards, but died after receiving the last rites of the church by a priest who chanced to be passing.

Youthful Desperados.

Montreal, Sepet. 9.—"Such cases as these make the juvenile court imperative," said Judge Bazin yesterday when disposing of Francois Therrien, 11 years of age, and Thomas Duperre, 9 years of age, who stood charged with numerous thefts.

The little lads, imbued with the spirit of the wild west, following visits to moving-picture shows, had armed themselves with knives and pistols and were caught working the "hold-up" game in the east end of the city.

Thursday night they saw Miss Juliette Shears of 247 Jollette street and, with one of the boys pointing a gun at her head and the other holding a knife and shouting: "Hands up! Money or your life!" Miss Joliette parted with her handbag, but followed the little lads at a judicious distance and gave information to Constable Cabana, upon which he took them in charge.

The boys were allowed to go on the parents' promise that they would be better looked after in the future.

Missing Seven Year Old Girl Found in Lake

HE SHOT GIRL THREE TIMES

Cigar Maker Attempted Assault on Domestic.

Under Arrest on Charge of Attempted Murder.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—With three bullet wounds in her body, Juliette Van Mal, a domestic, aged 22, lies in a critical condition in the Notre Dame Hospital, while Nicholas Hayes, a cigarmaker, aged 35, is held at the Central Police Station on a charge of attempted murder.

Miss Van Mal is employed in the boarding-house of Jos. Duval, 22 St. Elizabeth street, and while in her room yesterday afternoon heard some-one approaching. Hayes, who had come in by a back door, and whom she says she had never met before, entered and attempted to assault her. She resisted and he drew a revolver and shot twice, wounding her in the breast, abdomen and thigh. She managed to crawl through a window and struggled to a store across the road, whence she was taken to the hospital.

Meanwhile Hayes, still holding the revolver in his hand, stepped out on the street, coolly lighted a cigarette, and proceeded towards his boarding-house on Sanguinet street. The police, who had heard the shots, noticed him and took him into custody after a short struggle.

Hayes had been drinking heavily. His home is believed to be in Quebec.

LAURIER AT STRATFORD

Premier Addresses Audience of 2,000 People.

Stratford, Sept. 9.—Sir Wilfrid was given a good reception at Stratford yesterday, over 2,000 people having gathered at the Victoria Park, where the meeting was held.

"Although, arithmetically, I am old, it is true, yet I feel that I have a young heart, with the vitality to lead the Liberal party to victory at the coming election." Such was the opening message of the Premier to the meeting yesterday afternoon, his second last before he returns to Quebec. The idea of reciprocity, he said, was not new. Nearly forty years old, but this was the first time it has been presented to the people. He rejoiced that Providence had given to him in his old age the task of introducing such an agreement for the Canadian people. Both parties were divided on confederation, and on the idea of the building of the transcontinental railways, and both parties, if the Conservatives followed their former leaders should be in favor of this reciprocity and if they followed the instructions received at the feet of Sir John A. Macdonald should vote on the 21st in favor of reciprocity. Dealing with the cry of "Let well enough alone," the Premier stated if that was to be the cry, then let the present Government alone, "but we are not prepared to clog the wheels of prosperity that God has bestowed upon us."

Speaking of horses, the Premier stated that when our horses were to be shipped to the United States, we have to pay up to Uncle Sam's tax collector. "That would be well enough, but it would be better if the money paid in that manner remained in your pockets." The speaker prophesied that after the 21st of September, things would be better.

Speaking of Monk, Bourassa and Borden, the speaker asked if they believed that the people can forget the teachings of Sir John A. Macdonald, in whom they had great confidence.

Premier Speaks at London.

London, Ont., Sept. 9.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was given a hearty welcome by an audience of four thousand people at the Princess Rink here last evening. Although this city was not on his original itinerary he was prevailed upon to assist the fight on behalf of John M. McEvoy, the Liberal candidate, who is opposing Major T. Beattie, former member of Parliament. The gathering remained closely attentive, although there were several outbreaks of heckling. The Prime Minister's speech was entirely on the Government's reasons for bringing the reciprocity agreement into action, and he spent some time in ridiculing the position of Mr. Borden in the present contest.

WHAT W. R. TRAVERS SAID

W. R. Travers on the witness stand, under oath, at Toronto police court hearing before Magistrate Denison, charge that of conspiracy. Crown Attorney Corley prosecuting.

Travers—I approached Mr. Warren some time about the end of September or first of October, and told him I had about $100,000 worth of good farmer notes that had been taken on account of subscriptions and asked him if he would discount them for me, or make a loan on them, and he said that he would consider the matter and let me know later.

Q—Did you tell him at that time, Mr. Travers, for what purpose you required the money?

A—I told him that the provisional board had depleted the funds by the payment of commissions and other expenses $40,000 or $50,000. I think, if I remember right, something to that effect, and that I would require about $80,000 to complete my deposit.

Q—Did you tell him at what time you would have to have it, Mr. Travers?

A—I can't remember whether I stated the time, but we only had six months in which to do it from May first, I think.

Q—What was the result of the interview?

A—At that time?

Q—Yes.

A—There was nothing done then.

Q—Did you have subsequent interviews with them?

A—I had another interview with him a day or so later, I think, yes, I know I did.

Q—Do you know what happened at that interview?

A—He said that he thought he could put it through for me.

Q—Tell me what happened the best you can, after that.

A—I brought the notes down to him.

Q—Was anyone else present at that interview?

A—At the second interview I met Mr. Stratton.

Q—Was the matter discussed with him?

A—No, not fully.

Q—Can you tell me whether anything was said?

A—Mr. Warren introduced me to Mr. Stratton. It was the first time I had ever met the gentleman, and he said I had some good farmers' notes I wanted to make a loan on; and Mr. Stratton said whatever I arranged with Mr. Warren would be all right.

Q—Was there any remark of Mr. Warren in that interview referring to a private conversation between himself and Mr. Stratton whom you have just mentioned?

A—I think if I remember right he said that he had mentioned it to the president. I cannot say whether he mentioned Mr. Stratton's name.

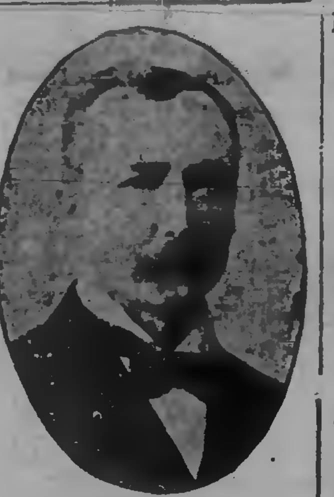
Q—Mr. Stratton is the president of the company, is he not?

A—He is the president, yes.

Did you have any farther interviews with Mr. Stratton about it?

A—No I didn't speak to Mr. Stratton I don't think again, about the matter. I don't remember doing so.

HON. CLIFFORD SIFTON TELLS OSHAWA PEOPLE OF THE EVILS



HON. CLIFFORD SIFTON.

Lost Her Leg.

Barrie, Sept. 9.—Miss Marian Wilder, 16 years of age, of Toronto, while visiting friends near Thornton recently, was the victim of a serious accident, in which one of her legs was caught in a cutting box and so badly mangled that it was necessary to amputate the limb. The young women was brought to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where the operation was performed Thursday. The patient is doing well.

Reciprocity His Subject—And He Makes a Tremendous Impression on the People.

Oshawa, Sept. 9.—The biggest and most converting political meeting in the annals of this industrial town was held last night in the big rink to hear Clifford Sifton discuss reciprocity. Fully 5,500 people, men, women and many children, listened attentively for an hour and a half to his calmly reasoned speech, readily grasped his arguments, applauded often and cheered at times, and at the close appeared to be won wholly to the orator's view. The audience was not all Conservative.

Prominent men from various parts of the riding occupied seats on the platform in the big rink. Dr. John and Dr. Jim Moore of Brooklin, Arthur Johnston of Brougham, John Bright of Myrtle, Albert W. Jackson, Major Rutledge, Donald McKay, John Smith of Whitby, T. C. McAvery and Fred Jones of Balsam, John Cowan, John Schofield, Sam McLaughlin, Fred. Bull, president of Williams Piano Co., were among those present.

They had been told not to put their trust in princes, Mr. Sifton said during his address. He would say, "Don't put your trust in Ministers or Prime Ministers." Sir Wilfrid had promised early in the last session that there would be no tariff changes, but he could not keep his promise. This reciprocity pact was a tariff change. Sir Wilfrid now promised that if reciprocity carried there woul dbe no reduction in duties on manufactured goods. But circumstances would be too strong for him to prevent agitation for free trade in manufactured products after free trade in natural products was obtained. The protection to farmers could not be taken away and the protection to manufacturers maintained. We shall have commercial union if this treaty goes into effect.

Famous Sleuth Coming.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—David Russell said yesterday that Donald McMaster, K.C., had come from England especially to represent him in his case against the Pinkerton Detective Agency, and would remain until after the trial. Wm. J. Burns, the famous detective, is coming to Montreal direct from San Francisco on Saturday, when an important conference will be held with regard to the alleged asylum plot.

TEN YEAR OLD UNDER ARREST

Little Girl Got Groceries Under False Pretences.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—"Have her arrested," is what several witnesses told Judge Lanctot Mrs. Mallard told them, when they complained to her that her daughter had been obtaining money and groceries from them under false pretences. The little girl, only ten years of age, was yesterday morning sentenced to three years in the reform school.

According to Mrs. Trudeau, the youngster would watch for children about her own age leaving grocery stores and would approach them, and after finding out if they had an account, would draw on it in that person's name, making believe she was a daughter of the family she victimized.

BEATTIE IS SENTENCED TO DIE IN THE ELECTRIC CHAIR

Pestilence Follows Flood.

Peking, Sept. 9.—Only meagre reports have reached the capital from the walled towns in the region of the Yang-Tse valley, where disastrous floods have hemmed the missionaries and other foreigners.

Travelers arriving by steamboat at Hankow, from the upper reaches of the river, report that many coffins, of a huge Chinese type, were encountered floating in the Yang-Tse, which indicates that the waters are robbing the graves of former years.

From Chang-Teh, in the province of Hunan, comes word that the receding water is being followed by pestilence.

Inaugurated New Service.

Ottawa, Sept. 9.—The Department of Trade and Commerce in its weekly report publishes a statement from W. A. Beddoe, trade commissioner in New Zealand. Mr. Beddoe says that the Marama sailed from Auckland on Aug. 4, inaugurating the new direct service between Canada and New Zealand, and carrying 130 crates of lamb and mutton, 19 crates of poultry, 5 cases of rabbits, 75 cases of jam and a quantity of hides and wool, destined for Vancouver.

Jury Was Out Less Than One Hour on the Case.

Chesterfield, Va., Sept. 9.—Henry Clay Beattie, jr., last night was found guilty of murder in the first degree. The jury had been out but 58 minutes, when it came into court with a verdict of guilty. No degree of guilt was specified, however, and Judge Watson declared that the jury retire again to decide this matter. It seemed but a minute or two that the jury was gone. When they re-entered the foreman announced that the jury held Beattie to be guilty of first degree murder in putting his wife to death on the night of July 18 last. The penalty is electrocution.

The defence asked for 90 days to file a petition for a writ of error to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia. Attorney Wendenburg for the state asked that the defence be restricted to within a few days of the meeting of the Supreme Court in November. Judge Watson decided that the request of counsel for the accused was reasonable and granted a stay of execution for 90 days.

Catarrh and Bronchitis

The Bane of Thousands, and has Hitherto Baffled the Skill of Medical Science.

Catarrhozone

What stomach medicine has ever been known to cure Catarrh or Bronchitis?

Catarrhozone is not a stomach medicine, but an air medicine, that carries to the remotest parts of the throat, lungs, and air cells little drops of healing so curative that whenever it touches germ life it kills and eradicates them from the system.

Thousands of doctors and patients have been disappointed by using stomach medicines for coughs and colds. Have you not found it a rather roundabout way to reach the diseased portion of the throat and lungs?

Why not use Catarrhozone, which is breathed to the very root of the disease and heals so quickly and perfectly that every spot is rebuilt with new healthy tissue?

Catarrhozone is the only medicine that will cure. Thousands have testified.

Think for a moment: Is it not sense? Little drops of healing—the air carries them just where disease exists. That is why

The Daily Review
SATURDAY, SEPT. 9, 1911.

The Farm Journal of Philadelphia, with a circulation of 750,000 says: Free trade between the two countries will inevitably follow the enactment of the present measure, and that will mean, ultimately, peaceful annexation.

AMERICAN INTERFERENCE

Occasion has already arisen in this campaign to draw attention to the offensive interference of Americans on behalf of the Laurier government. One feature of this interference is the bland assumption that we are an inferior people, who have no feelings to be hurt. An American preacher, invited to occupy a Toronto pulpit, utters annexation sentiments in what purports to be a prayer addressed to the Almighty, and sees no bad taste in the performance, says the Toronto News. What would he have said if a British citizen whom he had invited to occupy his own pulpit had improved the occasion to utter expressions of regret at the success of the American Revolution? But we are only Canadians, and things which would affront Americans are quite inoffensive when applied to us.

So, too, with regard to newspapers. The New York Herald has made itself an offensive partisan of the Laurier government. The Buffalo Express has been busy with the Liberal party in Welland. Now these journals are joined by Hearst's band of newspapers. That admirable person's Boston American has got a "Canadian Edition," which advocates the cause of Laurierism and reciprocity in the orthodox Hearst way.

Can anything be more insolent than this interference with our political Canada is not an appanage of the United States. The arguments of fellow Canadians for the agreement we are prepared to discuss. But for American interference we have nothing but indignant contempt. Canadians who set store by the independence of their country should mark this impudent intrusion. It should be enough to decide many a vote hitherto wavering.

Observe the nature of these enthusiastic allies of Laurierism. The Herald is intensely anti-British and a professed enemy of the empire; the work of its Ottawa bureau has been conspicuous for its efforts to discredit British connection. Hearst, apart from the moral aspect of his newspapers, is a clamorous annexationist. Here are two or three Hearst newspaper utterances:

"Eventually, of course, Canada will come in. That will happen when we want her. Meantime she is, so to speak, keeping herself for us in colonial cold storage."

"Intelligent Americans will favor this treaty; intelligent Congressmen will vote for it. Eventually, beyond question, the whole North American continent will be one nation."

"In ratifying this trade agreement we should understand, therefore, that we are settling a world problem, and settling it right. British Imperialism will wane in consequence. But American free trade routes will run along lines that were ordained by nature. And the prosperity of the Western Continent will receive an immense impetus through a definite, a final disentanglement from the intrigues of European politics."

"The day that reciprocity becomes a fact, the chief interests of Canada will be here in the United States."

"Should we not with reciprocity be far more important in the eyes of Canadians than the imaginary 'Empire of Great Britain,' which they look to now?"

"The ideal condition, of course, would be a political as well as a business union of all this North American continent. A political union, however, cannot be brought about suddenly or by any act on our part. It must grow out of the good-will and the friendship of the Canadians if it is to come at all."

"Is it not a fact that reciprocity, bringing the people of Canada and the United States closer together every day, will do more than anything else to promote, eventually, the complete political and business union of the United States and the great territory north of us?"

Reciprocity means annexation. Therefore we favor reciprocity. Therefore we favor reciprocity. Therefore Laurier must win. It is with that message that the "Canadian" edition of The Boston American has the effrontery to approach us.

Observe again. If these things are done in the green tree what shall be done in the dry? If before reciprocity is passed Americans swarm over to help Laurier what will follow ratification? We shall be overrun with them. Their conviction that they own us will be strengthened.

MEAT PRICES

The Liberals are telling the workingmen that reciprocity will mean cheaper living for them. Only the other night Hugh Guthrie, K.C., of Guelph told a Peterborough audience that the Canadian butchers were making close to 100 per cent. profit on their meat, holding down the price to the farmer and cattle raiser, and putting it up to the consumer.

If the Canadian butchers or middlemen are getting 100 per cent. as per Mr. Guthrie's statement, what must the United States middlemen or meat trusts get. Here is a table showing the retail cost of meat in Peterboro as compared with Chicago, the latter being the biggest live stock and meat centre on the continent. Chicago is the object point of many men who think that the opening of the American market will be of benefit to Canadians

	Peterboro	Chicago
Prime roast rib	15	20
Fine roll roast	18	14
Porterhouse steak	28	30
Sirloin steak	18	22
Tender per roast	10	15

If as the Liberal newspapers are persistently asserting, cattle on the hoof command a slightly better price in the big American markets than in Canada, how does it come that retail prices are so different? The Chicago figures are taken from the last issue of the National Provisioner. Is not the correct explanation this, that the middlemen of the United States meat trust gets that big difference. Assuredly the Canadian butcher who buys cattle and cuts them up here in Peterborough does not, as Mr. Gray's letter a few days ago showed. If we have reciprocity with the United States, opening our doors to the American trusts, shall we not also pay the American retail prices, without our farmers getting any higher price?

WHO ARE THEY ?

The reciprocity organs say, "The reciprocity agreement will save the people from those who would monopolise their food supply."

Isn't it rather peculiar that this awful danger never seemed to obtrude itself on the people until this summer, when an election campaign was brought on! How was it we lived peacefully and comfortably in in 1910, in 1909, in 1908, in 1907 without danger from these terrible monopolists?

Who are they who would monopolise our food supply. Right round Peterborough who are they? Do not the farmers bring in their produce to the market here, and sell it to the people, and to the grocers and to the merchants? The Matthews Co. is here, and it takes hogs, and turns it into bacon and hams. Does the Matthews company monopolise our food supply? Does the Quaker Oats company monopolise our supply of meat, or of potatoes, or of cabbages and cauliflowers? Who are the monopolists who are harboring such awful designs on the food of the people of Canada?

If you let down the bars at the border, and give free play to the American trusts that really do have a monopoly in food distribution in the United States, reciprocity is not only not saving Canada from the plague, but is inviting it. Reciprocity is the means whereby the American food trusts will make their bow to the Canadian public, and then proceed to do in Canada what they have already done in the United States.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Liberals are at their old game. They are playing both ends against the middle-man.

Will Mr. Stuart please tell us who carried away from the office of Finance Minister Fielding in Ottawa the certificate that enabled the Farmers' bank to do business?

Is it any cure for the little combine evil in Canada to open the door to the big American trusts to replace a terrier with a mastiff?

Thomas J. Storey vice-president and general manager of the Canada Carriage Co., is stumping the Brockville riding against reciprocity. He says that Canada will not under reciprocity be master of her own destinies.

30,000,000 American farmers supply 90,000,000 people and export $500,000,000 worth of farm products annually. How long will it take them, under reciprocity, to cut a big swath in the home market of 2,000,000 farmers?

The Fletcher Manufacturing Co., Toronto has issued a big poster which says: "This firm is opposed to reciprocity or to any measure that will injure British connection or the industries and farming interests of Canada." Surely this is plain enough.

If the market of 90,000,000 is so good, how comes it that 500,000 American farmers have left it to come to Canada, to the market of 8,000,000? And how comes it that there are 15,000 deserted farms in New England, and 5,000,000 acres of land? Surely that boasted market of 90,000,000 was some inducement!

It is a very popular pastime for the reciprocity press to make onslaughts on the millionaires, and on the classes on behalf of the masses. But isn't it peculiar that the people who are doing this on behalf of those masses, belong to the classes themselves, and some of them to the near-millionaire class. Some of them even have fine automobiles, fancy horses, and are presidents of trust companies and vice-presidents of banks.

If the market of 90,000,000 people is so good, why have 500,000 American farmers left it to come to Canada and a market of 8,000,000.

"If You Were Sir Wilfrid"

By ARTHUR HAWKES.

After we left Madeira, on the way to South Africa, before the wireless news services were being given to ocean liners, a journalist who was on board issued a daily paper that was full of alleged Marconigrams. The first number explained that he was going to run the world, for once in his life. He succeeded, as far as we were concerned, for he gave us news every day that might really have come through Fleet Street.

The man who votes in a general election is just as much Prime Minister, to the limit of his capacities, as Sir Wilfrid himself, and he ought to take as much interest in the questions that are involved in his approach to to the ballot box as my journalist friend did in arguing out the problems of the world for the edification of the passengers of the Dunottar Castle.

The obvious answer to the suggestion "If you were Sir Wilfrid?" is that you would do as Sir Wilfrid does. But I do not mean to be as precise as that in the heading I have given to this article. What I really mean is, "What would you do if you were in Sir Wilfrid's place?"

It is pretty hard, of course, to put yourself in the place of a man who lives an entirely different life from that of practically all of his fellow-countrymen. Sir Wilfrid is a statesman, which is infinitely more than a politician. Every statesman is compelled to make a politician of himself; but all the King's horses and all the King's men could not make a statesman out of most of the astutest politicians who keep their eyes on public opinion, in the hope that they may get their hands on the public purse.

One of the many disabilities of the statesman, I am sure, is that he can very seldom do as he would like to do. When an ardent young spirit begins to get interested in politics because some great question appeals to his mind and conscience, he draws mental pictures of an ideal Prime Minister—a veritable two-edged sword of righteousness—cleaving his way to everlasting honour; destroying the evil; despising the mean, and generally deserving a high place among the apostles and idealists of the race.

Unhappily, that view of things cannot survive a long experience of this damaged world. Most of us are not highly idealistic persons. The spirit of public service for the sake of public service does not too widely abound. One of the first things you have to learn is that the people who do not take an exalted view of public duty are citizens just as much as those who would die for their country, and starve for it—a much more serious sacrifice.

I came across what struck me as fairly a perfect illustration of this in the conversation of an excellent citizen of Brockville the other day. The Minister of Railways is a Brockville man, and my friend was roundly abusing him because his department had put men to work in Halifax just about election time on jobs which had more relation to the necessities of the election than to the needs of the Intercolonial Railway. I ventured to suggest to him that probably the Minister would far rather not do that sort of thing, but that he might feel himself obliged to do it because of long-established custom; because of certain obligations which have been incurred in the past; because of half a dozen reasons, not one of them good in the highest moral atmosphere, but all of them cogent in practical politics—that is fact a Minister might be very much in the position of one who, while he feels that the tipping system in hotels and other places is essentially wrong and under some circumstances iniquitous, still submits to the custom; and so far perpetuates something which in its way is as bad, if not worse than tempting of men to vote through giving them a temporary job.

I am not excusing the evils of political life. They disgrace politics far too often. They will continue to disgrace politics until more and more people understand that politics is the science of Government, for which the highest-minded amongst us have a special responsibility, whether we recognise it or not. The people who sneer at politicians ought to do their duty and go into politics.

Imagine what Sir Wilfrid's position must be when he contemplates the last fifteen years from this point of view. I hazard a guess that Sir Wilfrid would like to make it impossible for any Government in Canada to remain in office more than ten years. But the habit of holding power becomes as strong with him as the habit of holding tips becomes incurable in the waiter. It is much easier for us to tell Sir Wilfrid what he ought to do than it would be for Sir Wilfrid or for ourselves, if we were in his place, to do it. But that does not free Sir Wilfrid from criticism or the results of criticism. He himself will tell you that the statesman who is not furnished with abundant criticism will soon become like a man on the prairie without a trail; without the sun; without the stars.

Even with abundant criticism premiers have a knack of losing their way and not knowing that they are lost. Alexander Mackenzie on the night of the election of '78 expected to hear that a new lease of power had been given him. He was amazed when the election went fatally against him. Mr. Balfour, in London, had a majority of over 100 in the House of Commons when he resigned in December, 1905. When the new House assembled it had a majority of 350 against him.

Sir Wilfrid has been for so long the absolutely dominating force in the Canadian Government that he too seems to have mistaken the trend of average Canadian opinion. In his youth and prime reciprocity with the United States was the ambition of the Canadian people. But now we have realised that Canada was more than capable of becoming fiscally independent of the United States and of achieving a powerful position in the commerce of the Empire and of the world.

He himself announced about the time the twentieth century came in—the century that he claimed for Canada's own—that the old-time ambitions were dead and that the only way in which to maintain proper friendship with the United States was to be absolutely independent of them. He implemented these declarations by a commercial policy in the shape of the National Transcontinental—Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, which means a capital expenditure of at least thirty dollars for every man, woman and child in Canada—as to which you must never forget that though the money for the enterprise may be borrowed in London the burden of it has fundamentally to be carried by the country itself.

Sir Wilfrid has exhibited the defect which is apt to come with advancing years, with the detachment from popular conditions which seems inevitably to belong to the protracted management of a party in Parliament, and with the adjustment of individual claims to notice and preferment in the Legislature and all over the country.

Reciprocity seemed very sweet to Sir Wilfrid years and years ago. It was a political sweetheart of his from whom he parted with a reluctance that he too well concealed. It was thought to have been buried at Washington, but it was evidently left around the corridors of the Capitol, there to acquire the Washington accent and the Washington way of regarding things. When it was returned to Ottawa with many compliments Sir Wilfrid did not realize that though it was the old sweetheart come back it was an entirely different creature from that which once found favour in the eyes of Canada so many years ago.

So that if you were in Sir Wilfrid's place you would be in a very awkward place, and you would want to get away from the altar where President Taft is waiting to play the part of best man.

THE BACKWOODSMAN

By Acton Seymour

(Copyright by Publishers Press Ltd.)

Love laughs at others than locksmiths! He mocks the plans of sober business.

The Great Trust Co. said: "Go!"

The girl pleaded: "Stay."

The Great Trust Co.'s command imposed months of exile in the shadows of the big woods. The girl asked only for a few hours before that exile was begun.

The Great Trust Co. was impersonal and curt; a corporation with tentacles so far-flung that, though the soul of it was hot where its mighty schemers wrought in secret, its extremities, that did its will in execution, were cold and callous.

But the girl was not impersonal. Tears were in her eyes, though her lips pouted when he strove against her urgings. And she was so cozy and small that he could have hidden her in his arms where she stood on the station platform — and with difficulty kept himself from doing so.

And, when her hands crept into his, he forgot the huge, cold, impersonal corporation, let the train go on without him, went home with her in that everlasting partnership of two — and lost twenty-four hours. And what twenty-four lost hours meant in the affairs of the men of the north country he discovered after he had left the girl.

Harry George had some sort of excuse for not realizing what penalties this delay on his part incurred, for he had been waiting three weeks for the Great Trust Co. to decide on his application. But a young forester cannot be insistent.

The brain and heart of the Great Trust Co. are in Montreal. Granite and mystery surround. The mystery has many names. Its agents in the far St. John country know it as the Great Trust Co. It is said that, under other names to shield its clutching fingers, it reaches to grasp the water powers and to hold for its own the great forests of the nation.

When George answered its summons, he went up into the towering building on St. James street and found no mystery. He was directed to the one whose name he had given as a passport at the gate that closed the avenue of rubber matting. Beyond the door marked "Superintendent of Field Work," he expected to find — well, the Great Trust Co. personified in some degree, in flesh and blood. The listless little man who waved him to a chair with a hand that held a cigarette did not seem qualified to dictate for the baronies of forest and mountain and lake and river.

"Mr. George," he began, and then picked languidly among the papers on his desk. The packet that he secured and flicked idly, as he talked, contained the forester's letters and credentials.

"Mr George!" He snapped away the cigarette butt. "This Great Trust country! Have you been there?"

"No, sir."

"That will not make much difference in your efficiency as far as we are concerned." He tapped some pencil jottings on the back of George's indorsements. "I have ordered two of our explorers to meet you at Norray Junction; that's on the main line through to St. John. I have written their names here — Smart and Niles. They'll take you on to Corran-che. That's your jumping-off place. Branch line and logging railroad. You'll outfit there at our company store."

The young man took his papers from the hand that extended them.

"You will please understand, Mr George that as a practical forester you are cooperating with our explorers. Merely cooperating, I will say. They know more about present commercial values of standing timber than you do." It was plainly not to soften this blunt appraisal that he added: "They're old-fashioned woodsmen, the kind that can go through a stand of timber on the jog-trot and estimate better with the eye in one day than a professional forester can with his callipers in a month."

George felt sundden anger, the dictum was so listlessly decisive. He kept his tongue between his teeth, however.

"We've got men enough to tell us what timber is worth, standing. You are something of an experiment with us. We want you to go through with those men on the fly, and report your opinion as to the future; it isn't sawmill business with us, you understand. We could throw away a twenty-five-thousand-dollar sawmill a few years from now and not feel it. But a million-dollar pulp mill is a different proposition. That anchors us. We want your opinion of prospects, of needs in the conservation line, of plans for replenishing — what to take at present, and what to leave. It's scout work, you understand. Legs and eyes. You seem to have good legs!"

It was the first time the little man had shown that he noticed the personality of this new servant of the Great Trust Co.

George flushed and got upon his feet. The reference to the personal seemed to indicate that the superintendent had finished his business talk.

"Then I am not to stop for actual plotting and measurements, sir?"

"Mr. George, we have a million or so acres bought, and more than a million under consideration. The word 'stop' doesn't belong with your job. We are hiring only a few pairs of eyes instead of an army of calliper chaps. The calliper fellow follows you when you have reported. Will you kindly pay very strict attention to these last words of mine? They're the important part of your instructions."

George, towering with his six feet of sturdy manhood over the little man who squinted at him, bowed.

"You are going into a queer place — the Great Trust country — where there happen to be strange conditions just at present. You are not to interest yourself in those conditions, or to waste time up there inquiring into them. You are to get into the woods as quietly as possible. You are to stay there. The fewer people who know just why you are there, the better. Keep your eyes on trees instead of human beings. Otherwise, you won't be of any value to us." He had pushed a button, and the boy had appeared. "Call at the treasurer's office on your way out. The boy will show you. Your expenses will be advanced. You can reach Norray Junction to-morrow night, if you start to-day. Our men have orders to meet you there."

George started that day. His celerity in getting out of Montreal would have interested even the listless little man of the Great Trust Co. From the telegraph office nearest to the big building, he sent two messages; the little man would have been pleased to know that he put business first — he ordered his trunk from his boarding house in Westmount, directing that it be put on the train that was to take him through that city. Then, he wrote a second message, lingering over it as though trying to soften its brutal abruptness.

"Good news, bad news. Am passing through Toronto on International today. The big folks have taken me. Can you come to station for a word?"

It was addressed to the girl.

Then, he raced to the Grand Trunk station, wholesome example for young men — a faithful servant, who had heard, and who obeyed. Outwardly an example; inwardly, he realized and confessed to himself that the wings of haste were plumed principally for Toronto. And yet it was his firm determination to rush on. He told her so — confessed it to her in the first jumble of speech after he had greeted her on the station platform.

"But where — where does this new work take you, dearest?" she asked, her upraised eyes brimming.

"North, under the big trees."

"A week — a fortnight?"

"Months," he owned, trying to smile.

"Months — months? And you dancing along on your way like this with only a pat and a good-by for poor little me? Harry George, you get your coat and your bag, and come with me and ask my pardon."

"Mary, they have told me to go. I must——"

"And I tell you you must stay. There is a to-morrow for your hateful old business. Months — and you ready to run away and deny to me a few poor little minutes — till to-morrow! Why, Harry George, can you stand there and look at me and repeat that you meant it?"

"Oh, Lucy dear, there really can't be such a difference between one tea and another."

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

NEVER SOLD IN BULK

"I thought that too, Marie, till I used Red Rose. Just you try it, dear."

"But, men are waiting. And, Mary ——"

"I am waiting. I am here."

"It was then that she put her hands into his and pleaded. She did not listen to him. He had never found her willing to listen to the serious things of life. Life had not worn its solemn visage when it fronted her winsome daintiness. She had always laughed life and seriousness, and the matter-of-fact that takes care for the morrow out of their doldrums. He had wished sometimes — chiding himself for his New England prosiness — that she would listen a bit more patiently to his grave plans for their future, instead of insisting on playing butterfly among the flowers of their love. But Mary Laroche, transplanted from the South, had always sighed, kept his counsel, surrendered his hands to hers, and allowed her to lead him.

"Come," she cried. "Obey, you big boy who would play truant! One cigar you shall smoke after dinner with père. And then all for me, to tell me of the big woods and how you shall make the great fortune with which we shall live happy ever after. I will listen, this time. I will sit very close, maybe on your knee, and listen; and, if your story is pleasing, you shall have, perhaps, the reward."

There were no tears in her eyes, now. She had been a bit shocked and frightened at his astonishing attempt to break through her soft fetters. But now she was sure of him. She lifted his big hand to her lips as earnest of the promised reward.

More listless, more impersonal, now, seemed the little man back in the big office; the man who had been making him wait three weeks, and now sent him away like a rocket. Nearer, dearer, more delicious than ever before seemed this little girl, pressing close to him, regardless of envious passers-by, careless of the grins of porters. To the nearest of these she turned, still clinging to her captive.

"Bring his coat and bag from the car," she commanded. "At once. Hurry!" And she reached up both hands, standing on tiptoes, and put her pink fingers over his lips. "You shall not go," she panted, "until you have left me love enough to last till you come back again!" And so he forgot the listless man, forgot the appointment at Norray Junction, and went with her.

RHEUMATISM AND GOUT

Outcome of Sick Kidneys—Uric Acid Cause of Grinding Pains That Disturb Day and Night—Booth's Kidney Pills Remove the Cause

Backache, rheumatic joints and uric acid troubles follow in the train of sick kidneys.

There is no rest and but little peace for any person whose kidneys are out of order. Not only does backache keep up its dull throb day and night, but there are sharp twinges, cricks and stitches of darting pain, achy joints and sore, stiff muscles.

When the kidneys get congested and inflamed following a chill, a cold, grippe, fever, or from overwork, a fall or some injury to the back, they need a kidney tonic.

Booth's Kidney Pills will quickly remove uric acid troubles—rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, sciatica, gout, weak eyes, headache, etc., resulting from the weakened kidneys failing to filter the blood free from uric poisons.

When sediment, thick and cloudy, or gritty as sand, appears in the urine, and passages are too frequent, too scanty or painful, there is danger of dropsy, Bright's disease, gravel, stone in the kidneys and diabetes.

Booth's Kidney Pills have brought new life and health, comfort to thousands of sufferers from backache, kidney and bladder troubles. They are guaranteed by the proprietor to do all they claim or they will refund your money.

BOOTH COMFORT.

T. E. Foster, of St. John street, Fredericton, N.B., says:—"I have found more actual relief from Booth's Kidney Pills than in all else I have ever tried for rheumatism. The pains in my limbs have lessened greatly and I am better and strong than in years previous. My appetite has built up and I eat and sleep better than I have in over three years. My general health is greatly improved, and I can credit this only to Booth's Kidney Pills."

DIZZY SPELLS

Mrs. Edward Calwood, of 123 S Harold Street, Fort William, Ont., says:—"I suffered with dull, miserable pains, soreness across my back and in my sides, for months. I would have dizzy spells and altogether felt generally run down. After using a number of remedies without finding relief, I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills and am pleased to say found them an excellent remedy."

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA AND BRONCHITIS

Brought Mrs. Baker to Death's Door. Father Morriscy's No. 10 Saved Her.

Of the many hundreds of cures wrought by Father Morriscy's No. 10 (Lung Tonic) few are more remarkable than the saving of the life of Mrs. John S. Baker, of 164 Rockland Road (North End), St. John, N.B. She wrote on Oct. 16, 1909:

"I wish to express my gratitude that I am living to-day, saved from the grave by Father Morriscy's No. 10 (Lung Tonic). This time last year I had pleuro-pneumonia and bronchitis, and had been given up to die, and had my lungs tapped in the City Hospital, and never expected to walk again; I was continually getting worse every day. I came home from the hospital, and everyone was watching for me to die. I tried everything but there seemed to be no cure for me.

"I began taking Father Morriscy's No. 10, and the second day I could eat without pain. I used 22 bottles of No 10, as I was run down right into consumption, and for six months was just a shadow until I began to use it, and now I am in good health, and surprised most of my neighbors by gaining so quickly. I feel it my duty to publish it everywhere I can, as with all I can say I cannot recommend it too highly—it was a life saver to me, and I am very thankful to recommend it, as it is worth all it is said."

Father Morriscy's No. 10 is very different from the many preparations that simply relieve a cough. No. 10 relieves the cause of the cough, restores the membranes of throat and lungs to a healthy condition, and tones up the whole system, giving strength to resist future attacks.

Trial bottle 25c.—regular size 50c. At your dealer's or from Father Morriscy Medicine Co., Ltd., [illegible] Montreal, Que.

"FEEBLE STOMACH"

Causes Digestive Weakness and Poisons the Entire System.

"No one can have suffered more than I did with stomach trouble," writes Phil. E. Pascalar, well known at St. Andrews Corners. "My doctor told me my indigestion and sleeplessness were due to poisons in the blood. Certainly my condition was desperate, and it seemed from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Such body-cleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the humors out of the blood. My stomach gained strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills, enjoying robust good health."

No remedy for billousness, indigestion, headache, sick stomach, or constipation that compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse substitutes. Sold in 25c boxes. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

IF YOU ARE SICK YOU CONSULT A SPECIALIST

WHY?

Because he has made a special study of the disease you are suffering from, and from the knowledge gained by years of experience knows just what treatment you require.

If you are going into a law-suit, you do the same—consult the best lawyer you can get, and find it cheap in the end.

Now, when you are considering taking Life, Fire or Accident Insurance, do you not think it would pay you to consult one who has had many years experience in that profession, and whose knowledge would be of use to you in enabling you to get the best value for your premiums, with the most liberal policies and absolute guarantees?

If you want what is best in Life, Fire or Accident Insurance, you can get it by calling at, or phoning to

"WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT IT ?"

That's what a customer asked us recently about a patent medicine we had sold for years, and we were forced to admit that in reality we knew nothing more than what appeared on the label, wrapper and advertising.

Some of the claims made were so extravagant that, of course, we could not take them seriously. This is the reason why we strongly recommend our own preparations.

TO-DAY'S MARKET

Farmers Asked From $1.75 to $2 per Bag for Potatoes

The market this morning was one of the best of the season. The crowd was also one of the largest yet, and at ten o'clock you were compelled at times to elbow your way around. There was an abundance of produce of all varieties. Animal meat was about the only commodity that was not very prominent. A noticeable feature of the market was the high price of potatoes.

"Pretty high are they not?" asked the Review. "Yes," was the reply, but they are scarce."

The inner market was well stocked and well patronized.

The following were the prices:

Lamb, 14 and 16 cents.
Potatoes, $1.75, $1.90 and $2.00 a bag.
Apples, $1 a bag.
Pears, 25 cents a peck.
Eggs, 19 cents and 20.
Butter, 27 and 28 cents.
Chickens, 60 cents, 75 cents, and $1 a pair.

WAGERS MADE ON THE ELECTIONS

"Money King" With 5 to 1 is Finding Lots of Takers

There are many wagers being made on the result of the East and West Peterborough elections on September 21st. A Stratton follower, who claims to have the right tip, is offering 5 to 1 that his man will be returned. Needless to say he is not finding any trouble getting his money covered. This same person has been betting recklessly that Kerr will have a majority of 200 over Sexsmith. Yesterday he dropped $200 on the race between Orillia Belle and Paterson and from indications his picking of election winners doesn't appear to be any better.

The Girl and the Gambler

The theatre-goers of Peterborough and vicinity will no doubt be happy to learn that the attraction selected by Manager Turner, to hold the boards at the Grand Opera House for three nights, commencing Thursday, Sept. 14th, will be the famous Ernie Marks Company, headed by the Canadian Favorites Kitty and Ernie Marks, and their support numbers this season many favorites who have appeared here with higher priced attractions, the opening play selected for Thursday night is the beautiful four act comedy drama entitled "The Girl and the Gambler," considered by press and public to be the greatest woman's play ever written. High class vaudeville is introduced between the acts which is changed at each and every performance and said to be well worth the price of admission asked to see the entire performance.

A special bargain matinee will be given Saturday for the ladies and children. Parents need have no fear of sending their children without escorts as they will have the attention of the management. The sale of seats for Thursday night will open Monday morning at nine o'clock at the box office.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

IN RECOGNITION OF MR. BELL.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Our venerable and esteemed fellow citizen, the excellent Mr. John Bell, who is a poet of no mean accomplishment, has penned a lengthy list of verse on the subject of Reciprocity, which, to my mind, and in the general opinion of many others, rings true at this critical moment. If we are not to look to such men as Mr. Bell to inspire us in a great cause and to uphold our national feeling, then, pray, where? The sentiments he puts in verse should be those of every patriotic and sterling Canadian.

The folder is sold at five cents per copy, little enough for such a work. The proceeds, which I trust will be large, will be handed to the funds of some charitable institution, and I may venture to suggest that the Children's Aid Society be the object of much beneficence.

Thanking you for the space in your paper, and the opportunity to bring Mr. Bell's poem to the attention of the public, I am,

Yours hopefully,
ANTI-RECIPROCITY.

SIR JOHN'S QUOTATION

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir—Give me a small space in your paper—As sir John Macdonald's name was quoted so often by Mr. Hall at the meeting at Centreville, South Monaghan, as being in favour of reciprocity, I send you what Sir John said in 1891 "Representative Gaines resolution in the House of Representatives suggests absolute reciprocity with the United States, and an all American tariff against the world. This was absolutely the situation discussed in 1891 which led Sir John Macdonald to make his famous declaration that the adoption of this policy would involve among other grave evils, discrimination against the mother country. It would in my opinion inevitably result in the annexation of this Dominion to the United States. The question which you will shortly be called upon to determine for yourselves, resolves itself into this: shall we surrender our possessions of the great heritage bequeathed to us by our forefathers and submit ourselves to direct taxation for the privilege of having our tariff fixed at Washington with a prospect ultimately of becoming a portion of the United States?

"As for myself, my course is clear; a British subject I was born, a British subject I will die. With my utmost effort with my latest breath will I oppose the veiled treason which attempts by sordid means and mercenary proffers to lure our people from their allegiance."

It is as much veiled treason to-day as it was in 1891.

Taft's two agents, Stratton and Hall did not sell any reciprocity stock at the meeting in South Monaghan on the 4th inst. Their stock in trade does not take with the farmers of South Monaghan.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH CLARK,

STONY LAKE POINTS QUIET

Mr. Stock stated that this season has been one of the best in the history of Stony Lake.

THREE DAYS TRIP BY CHEMONG A.C.

Best Outing of the Three Years—Good Time for All

The Chemong Athletic Club held a most successful three days' excursion to Jackson's Point on Wednesday, and the steamer Stoney Lake returned with the excursion to Chemong Indian Village yesterday. It was the third year for the excursion and proved to be the best of the three years. That the trip has grown in popularity was evidenced by the large attendance of 150, while for the first year the number was only 25, and for the second year 75. The Chemong village ball team was successful in winning two games of ball, defeating the Georgina team by 22 to 1, and being ahead by 2—0 when a contest was played with Sutton. Only two innings were played. The visiting girls played hog ball and won a great victory over their opponents, who failed to get a point.

YOUNG PEOPLE HAD CORN ROAST

Nicholls Tennis Club Active in the Eating Line Too

A jolly bunch of young people, about twenty in all, composing the Nicholls Oval Tennis Club, indulged in a corn roast on the banks of the Otonabee last evening, and they all say that they certainly had some time.

The mild evening air was most favorable to such an affair, and before they returned the moon flooded its beams upon a scene of pleasure and gaiety. The party left the Wolfe street wharf in Mr. H. B. Rye's handsome launch the "Strathmore," about 6.30, and landed the party at the old T.A.S. park grounds. An advance party had prepared an immense bon fire, which soon shed its ruddy glare on a most cheerful scene. Some of the ladies of the party became dreadfully frightened at a fierce looking bull that hovered in the vicinity, evidently attracted by the air of jollity which prevailed. The party reached home about ten o'clock.

PATERSON WAS EASY WINNER; ORILLIA BELLE TOOK FIRST TWO

Matched Race at the Driving Park Witnessed by Large Crowd — An Interesting Program.

The sticking abilities of Eddie Jones' Paterson was too much for Frank Montgomery's Orillia Bell, in the matched race at the Driving Park yesterday afternoon and while the Belle took the first two heats, the following three went to Paterson. Jim Timlin took Orillia Belle around to the wire a winner in the first heat and repeated when Paterson broke in the second. In the next and succeeding three heats Paterson with Merton Storey on the ribbons, had no trouble in breasting the wire and grabbing the money.

Harry Winch made a capital starter and the getaways were satisfactory to the drivers.

RUDOLPH BEAT McCONNELL; HUSTLERS FAILED TO TALLY

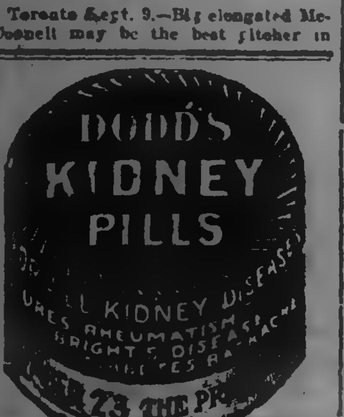
Tiger Pitchers Were Hit Hard At Chicago—Great Fielding By Bush.

Toronto, Sept. 9.—Big elongated McConnell may be the best pitcher in the Eastern League according to the averages, but yesterday the Leafs made him look like a secondrater, and, incidentally, gave him the worst drubbing the long fellow has received this season. Eleven good solid wallops, including five extra base hits, were gathered off the beanpole, which is sure some clouting.

Dick Rudolph was the Toronto heaver who put the visitors to rout by 8 to 0, the little Leaf only allowing five scattered bingles, and in only one inning, the fifth, was he in any trouble, Dick giving two or three bases on balls in this spasm and, along with a hit, filled the sacks, with only one man down, but McConnell fouled to Phelps for the second out, while Vaughn by a brilliant play grabbed in Moran's bounder back to second and threw the runner out. Outside of the fifth only one Hustler saw second base, that being Foster, with a double in the third.

Toronto and the champions play the final games of the series to-day at the Island. It will be the last appearance of the Rochester team in Toronto this season.

Detroit, Sept. 8.—Chicago pounded three Detroit pitchers to-day for a total of 10 hits and beat Detroit 9 to 3. Walsh pitched good ball after the first inning. Remarkable fielding by Bush kept the score down.



WITNESSED THE GOTCH-HACK WRESTLING GO AT CHICAGO

Mr. "Billy" Scott is Here on Visit at His Home—Now Located in Winnipeg

Mr. "Billy" Scott, of Winnipeg, a former Peterborough boy, is visiting his father, Mr. Andrew Scott, at [illegible] Sherbrooke street. "Billy" has been on a visit to the States, and witnessed the Gotch-Hackenschmidt wrestling match at Chicago on Labor Day. He places much of the blame for the defeat of the Russian Lion to his poor condition, and does not feel inclined to charge Hack with quitting. He secured a number of interesting photographs of the wrestlers and their training quarters, and showed these to the Review to-day. Yesterday he saw the Chicago White Sox bat three Detroit pitchers all over the ball field and win 9—3 at Detroit. About fifteen years ago he was one of Mr. G. N. Graham's "bell hops" at the Oriental, and he has now big hotel interests in Winnipeg.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Nearly a Bomb Victim.

New York, Sept. 9.—J. B. Body, general manager of Pearson & Sons' enterprises in Mexico and an intimate of Gen. Diaz, just missed falling a victim to a dynamite bomb in San Luis Potosi, while en route to New York.

The train made a ten-minute stop between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning. Just as the train pulled out of the station a terrific explosion shook the private car and Body and his traveling companion were thrown from their berths. The rear platform was wrecked.

A force of Government troops has surprised and routed the Turkoman forces of former Shah Ali Mohammed Mirza a few miles to the eastward of Teheran.

Cheery News From China.

Toronto, Sept. 9.—"All well here, and at all our stations, for which we are all grateful. There are no disquieting rumors to amount to anything in West China. We trust to get through the summer safely," was the cable received by Rev. E. T. Shore, secretary of the Methodist Foreign Mission Board, yesterday from Dr. Kilborn, who has charge of the Methodist missionaries in China.

For the first time in seven years the Rev. A. W. Lockhead of the Canadian Presbyterian Mission, Honan, China, has returned to Toronto on a year's furlough. Mr. Lockhead says uprisings are caused in China by the ignorant masses, who use every opportunity to oppose the Monchu dynasty, which governs the country.

Not Easy to Get Married.

New York, Sept. 9.—Friends of the divorced multi-millionaire, Col. John Jacob Astor, were quoted yesterday as authority for the statement that his marriage to young Miss Madeleine T. Force will not be delayed more than a few days longer.

It is reported that a clergyman has been found willing to perform the ceremony, and that it will probably take place in Connecticut.

Three religious denominations, the Protestant Episcopal, the Methodist Episcopal and Baptist, are on record against the marriage of Col. Astor and his 18-year-old fiancee. Even the glamor of a $1,000 fee has hitherto failed to secure a clergyman who will take the responsibility of uniting the pair.

Fined For Piloting Vessel.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—An important judgment regarding the piloting of vessels up the St. Lawrence from Quebec to Montreal was given yesterday morning by Judge Leet. He sentenced Philippe Garneau, the third mate of the steamship Cascapedia to pay a fine of $5 and costs for having piloted that vessel from Quebec to Montreal.

The action was brought by J. C. Gauthier of the Branch Pilots' Association, claiming that nobody had the right to pilot a vessel of a certain size but the captain or owner or a regularly commissioned pilot. Judge Leet upheld these contentions and gave judgment accordingly. The case will be appealed.

Swindler Out of Bankruptcy.

New York, Sept. 9.—In discharging Patrick J. Keiran, from bankruptcy Judge Hough in the Circuit Court, wiped out $921,150 liabilities which Keiran has sworn he was unable to liquidate. The court had no alternative.

Keiran took advantage of a loophole in the bankruptcy law which enables a man to get clear of his financial encumbrances, provided he makes frank and, to all appearances, truthful vowal of his liabilities, his assets, and his inability to liquidate.

He is still under indictment on charges of grand larceny at Norwich, Conn., in connection with note transaction for $10,000, while he was president of the Fidelity Funding Co., and also in Pittsburg. Keiran had many Canadian victims.

Died Rather Than Surrender.

Cornwall, Sept. 9.—Fred. Ashley of Massena Springs shot himself in the head with a 32-calibre revolver in his brother's cornfield. Ashley went to the home of his brother Levi, whom he tried to shoot, as well as Levi's wife and his own son, who was calling on his uncle. He was prevented from doing any damage, but made his escape. Officer Demo had a warrant to arrest Ashley on a charge of abusing his wife and family some time ago, and learning that he was hiding in the cornfield, the officer proceeded in search of him. When Ashley saw the officer coming he put the revolver to his head and fired, and died in a few minutes.

Germany Massing Troops.

Paris, Sept. 9.—La Liberte yesterday afternoon affirms that, notwithstanding all denials and explanations, Germany is gradually concentrating her troops close to the French frontier.

Careful enquiries, the paper says, show that 30,000 infantry, 10,000 cavalry and 150 guns have been gathered in a triangle which has for its points Moncels, Vic and Dieuze, and in Dechelon to the southeast; that numerous forces have been drawn up opposite to Nancy, and that immense accumulations of material have been disposed of along the German boundary.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Kermit Roosevelt has started for the Canadian Northwest on a hunting expedition of several months. He will collect specimens of mammal for the National Museum which is defraying all the expense.

PARLOW JUDGE OF OLD VIOLINS

Kathleen Parlow, the great violinist who is soon to return from Europe to begin her second tour, is regarded in Europe as an expert judge of old violins. This is an unusual distinction for so young a woman. Violinists of great and small repute, frequently make an effort to bring their violins to Miss Parlow, and get her make an estimate of the instruments. Her own violins are rare, one of them a Guarnerius of priceless value. This coming season, Miss Parlow will not have much spare time to hold seances for the violin fraternity that loves to discuss the inner secrets of the art. Her bookings will keep her on the road for several months, as she has been engaged for all the leading orchestras of the United States and Canada, including a tour of fourteen concerts with the Boston Symphony, pairs of concerts with the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, the Theodore Thomas Orchestra, of Chicago, the The Russian Symphony Orchestra of New York, the New York Symphony Orchestra and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra. Miss Parlow will also play with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in Cleveland, Ohio, and give a recital at Oberlin, the last being a re-engagement. Other clubs that have engaged Miss Parlow are the Apollo, of St. Louis, and the Chromatic, of Troy, New York.

Miss Parlow has been engaged by a number of the reigning social leaders for musicales and among her New York appearances are three chamber concerts at the Hotel Astor with Ernesto Consolo, the eminent Italian pianist, who is also to tour the country under Mrs. Sawyer's direction.

THE CHOICE OF DEATH.

Condemned Murderers Prefer Shooting to Hanging.

Why do condemned murderers prefer shooting in preference to hanging? Since the State of Utah passed a law giving convicts this choice, Arthur Pratt, warden of the Utah State prison, has not had one who would go to the gallows. On one occasion a murderer refused to make a choice, and the judge sentenced him to be hanged.

"Utah has a law which allows a condemned murderer to choose either hanging or shooting as a mode of dying," said Warden Pratt. "This work is done by the sheriffs of each county, but in the penitentiary yard. So far we have not had a man who has chosen hanging. Once a murderer refused to make a choice, and the judge sentenced him to be hanged. Shooting is the more humane. It is painless and instantaneous. The condemned man is led to the prison yard, seated on a chair, and, if he desires, is blindfolded. Five men armed with rifles are then marched to within ten paces of the man. Four of the rifles contain ball cartridges. The fifth has a blank shell. A target is pinned over the heart of the condemned man, all five guards take careful aim, and at a signal the volley is fired. The ordeal is over in a few moments, whereas in hanging the suspense and suffering last for many minutes."

In the foreign quarter of the Bronx three persons are dead and several are dying after eating toadstools in mistake for mushrooms.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes, and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty; and the lashes are short and lifeless. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorater, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes, on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. EASTERN CANADA, EASTERN STATES

Uncle Sam's Shrewd Hand Never Plainer Than His Grab for Canadian Produce

It has been proved over and over on both sides of the line that farm lands are worth less in the Eastern half of the United States than in the Eastern half of Canada, and that farm stuff brings less in New York State than in Ontario. Under such conditions how is access to the American market going to help the Canadian farmer? Is Buffalo and surrounding territory afraid of the injury to its farmers? In the Buffalo "Times" we read: "Buffalo expects to receive a great benefit and impetus if reciprocity goes into effect." Of course it does, and at the expence of Welland St. Catherines, Hamilton and Toronto and every foot of arable land that lies between. The same situation faces every Canadian city, town or village supporting a consuming population, and every farm good enough to grow a crop. The delight of nearly every class of workers in the United States, with the exception of a few political cliques and class factions is not to be mistaken as an anthem of joy over Canada's future, but rather as the cry of a victor contemplating a new conquest. Uncle Sam's genius for "putting over" a shrewd business deal is never shown better than when he pleads for free trade in farm produce. Not that he wants the produce, but he does want access to the prize he has so long coveted, the vast natural riches, the high markets, and the stable demand for which the Dominion of Canada is noted far and wide.

THE BEST CONSUMER

Dangerous to Injure or Destroy the Home Meat Market

In the matter of butter, cheese, poultry and other direct and indirect products of the farm, no official figures are available as to the total production of the country later than the census of 1910. Yet, with the exception of cheese, Canada is becoming an importer instead of an exporter. "The market of ninety millions" looks good on paper, but it does not exist in fact. Our farmers are producers and the home market constitutes the best consumer. Statistics of certain industries of Canada were taken officially in 1906. The figures are instructive. In slaughtering and meat packing, and slaughtering without packing, the production was something over $29,000,000. Our total export of meats of all kinds that year was only a shade over $2,000,000, and this included poultry and game. In 1909, we sold to the whole world outside of Canada only $1,900,000 worth of meats. Thus, it will be seen, something of how important our home meat market is, and how dangerous it would be to allow it to be destroyed.

FEW RICH, MANY POOR

That is How the Beef Trust Operates and Wants Free Entrance to Canada

Dressed meats and meat products of different kinds came into Canada from the United States last year, ending March, 1911, to the extent of over $3,000,000. The great proportion of these imports come from the Beef Trust, and in face of the duties. Reduce the tariff on packing house products, as Reciprocity proposes to do, and give the Beef Trust free access to our natural products, and you simply perpetuate and aid a gross evil as well as imperil the best interests of Canada. It was Oliver Cromwell, the Great Protector of England, who said: "If there be anyone that makes many poor to make a few rich, that suits not a commonwealth." The "Beef Trust" of the United States is such an one, and its mark on the Republic South of us is sufficient to show that any cession whatever to such a power would not suit the Commonwealth of Canada.

WHAT BOSTON SAYS

A most reliable Boston publication, whose columns are exclusively devoted to financial and commercial news, and the discussion of economic questions, says:—

"The farms abandoned in New England in the past decade aggregate 875,000 acres out of 20,549,000 held as farm land ten years ago, a loss of 4.3 per cent. In Massachusetts the abandoned farms represent 277,000 acres out of 3,147,000, or a nine per cent. loss.

"Considering only the improved acreage, the decline is still greater. The owners or tenants evidently gave up hope the past ten years on 11 per cent. of cultivated ground in all New England and in Massachusetts on 16 per cent. The burden of the loss fell chiefly on the traditional home of the abandoned farm—New Hampshire and Vermont; the former losing 14 per cent. of its tillage, and the latter 23 per cent."

Reciprocity vs. Preference

The farmers have to choose between reciprocity with the United States and competition with thirty million American farmers, or a preference in British markets and prices from five to ten per cent. greater than can be obtained by American farmers for the bulk of their exports.

TREES FOR THE RAILWAY

The C. P. R. Has a Nursery East of Winnipeg

The Canadian Pacific is making use of about 400 acres of its farm of 480 acres lying about 12 miles east of Winnipeg for nursery purposes. The object of this large nursery is to grow trees, shrubs and hardy perennials suitable to Western conditions, for use along its line, the trees to be planted for shelter belts along the main line, and the shrubs and perennials for the decoration of station gardens of the West. These are to be shipped to section foremen and station agents, who will be instructed by an expert horticulturist how to plant the material and how to lay it out to the best advantage. As a side line to the nursery, and for the purpose of crop rotation, vegetables and a small amount of grain are grown each year. There is a greenhouse for propagating bedding material for the larger parks along the lines. About 100 pure-bred Plymouth Rocks are kept as a side line to consume by-products at the nurseries, and, incidentally, to supply eggs and chickens for the dining cars, and thus reduce the running expenses.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—It was generally expected that the condition of spring wheat would be put by the government at about 59 per cent. indicating a crop of 212,000,000 bu. Instead the official announcement was 56.7 per cent. from which it was estimated that the yield would be only 203,000,000 bu. While waiting for the news from Washington dealers found business light and prices narrow. During the day December ranged from 96 5-8c to 97 1-8c, with last sales 1-8c to 1-4c net lower at 96 3-4c to 96 7-8c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day unchanged to ⅛d lower than yesterday on wheat, and unchanged to ¼d lower on corn. Berlin closed ½c lower on wheat; Antwerp unchanged. Holiday in Buda Pest.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 8.—Business in old and new Manitoba spring wheat over the cable to-day was quiet, owing to the fact that bids came 1½d lower. The local market was very strong and prices were marked up ½c per bushel. There continues to be a good enquiry from European sources for flour, but the bids on spring wheat grades were lower to-day than what American export houses were offering for the same grades. BOARD OF WORKS IN SESSION; SIDEWALK GANG FOR EAST CITY

Chamber St. Paving Comes Up Again—No More Refuse From Gas Works.

The City Board of Works met in business session last night after a two months' holiday.

There were present Ald. Metheral Graham, Duncan and Buller.

CHAMBER ST. PAVING

In accordance with a petition signed by the property owners, Chambers street will be paved provided the council agrees. The chairman, Ald. Metheral, is to interview as many of the property owners as he can reach, regarding the material they want used and he is to report to the first meeting of the whole Council.

SIDEWALKS FOR EAST CITY

Ald. Morgan, representing the East city residents, asked that the sidewalk gang be sent to East city in order to put in some walks before the frost arrives.

Mr. Evans will be instructed to go over there as soon as the job which he is now engaged on is finished, and also Chambers street, if it is to be done.

There were several petitions for sidewalks read, but these were referred to the city engineer to report.

Messrs. R. H. Leary and Roland Denne asked that as in years previous the city watering cart be allowed to sprinkle the road from George street to the Fair grounds and also in front of the grand stand, during exhibition days. Granted.

SUIT THREATENED

The B. F. Ackerman Co. threaten suit against the city for the flooding of their premises during a storm of July 12.

Engineer Hay stated that Ackerman's sewage service is but 7 inches above the level of the main sewer on George street and consequently when there is unusually heavy rainfall, the drainage will back up through the company's pipes.

The T. Kinnear Co., also complained of their premises being flooded.

The engineer and chairman are to verbally point out to these companies that the trouble is in a faulty construction of their sewage system. An overflow system has been provided and there has not been a heavy rain since its completion. It is hoped that the trouble will be remedied.

Messrs Larmonth and Denham petitioned the city to take over the extension of Wescott street through certain property and it was referred to the city solicitor for a report as the right of way of a lane is in question.

Mr. Mark Pengelly wanted the position of caretaker of the south city pumping station. Mr. Pardue, mechanical engineer over the construction of the sewage system is leaving the city and he told the Board that it was necessary to have a man there for a couple of months steady, and after that a couple of hours per day.

It was suggested that the engineer at the Fire Hall be appointed, but as the acquiescence of the Fire, Water and Light committee, must necessarily be first obtained, the chairman was instructed to interview said committee and report to the council on Monday night.

Engineer Chipman will be communicated with as to whom he wished to recommend to succeed Mr. Pardue. Mr. Chipman is being held responsible for the proper completion of the south city sewage system.

In reply to a notice not to allow any more refuse to go into the river, Mr. Munro of the Peterboro Light and Power Company sent a letter to the Board stating that the escapage of oil from the gas works into the river had been very slight but the separating tanks, in course of construction will be completed this week and there will be no oil find its way into the river.

If the street commissioner has sufficient material on hand there will be 75 yards of plank sidewalk constructed on Victoria street.

City engineer, Hayes, in his report regarding the estimated cost of paving the road leading to the Smith street bridge said it would cost $18,75 as against $400 for crushed stone work.

APSLEY STRONG FOR SEXSMITH

Packed House Heard Practical Addresses by Two Speakers

Apsley, Sept. 8—One of the most successful meetings in the election campaign was held in the town hall here on Tuesday evening, Aug. 29 by Messrs. Sexsmith and Thompson. The hall was filled to the door with an enthusiastic audience, the largest number of ladies being present than has ever been at any meeting of this nature in this part of the country showing that they are taking a lively interest in a question of vital interest to our beloved Canada. Mr. J. W. Hales of Peterboro occupied the chair. Both speakers dealt largely with the reciprocity question explaining minutely how it was only going to be an injury by opening our markets to American trade, and that the Canada of to-day is not the Canada of the time of Sir John A. Macdonald's ministry. Extracts were read from speeches of President Taft which were not favorable to Canada. Mr. Sexsmith, as the farmers' representative made a strong speech, full of practical points for the consideration of the farmers. At the close of the meeting, the speakers were showered with flowers from the hands of the fair sex.

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleville, Ont.—"I was so weak and worn out from a female weakness that I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took several bottles of it, and I gained strength so rapidly that it seemed to make a new woman of me. I can do as good a day's work as I ever did. I sincerely bless the day that I made up my mind to take your medicine for female weakness, and I am exceedingly grateful to you for your kind letters, as I certainly profited by them. I give you permission to publish this any time you wish."—Mrs. ALBERT WICKETT, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will cure female weakness and so successfully carry women through the Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

FAMILIARITY WAS MISPLACED

Lady Was Mistaken With "Fluffy Old Boy"

A funny incident occurred last night about eight o'clock on George street. A well dressed woman came out of a restaurant where she had evidently had her supper. On reaching the street, she looked anxiously up and down as if in search of somebody. A jolly looking individual, evidently a visitor to the city, was strolling up and down the sidewalk, chewing at a cigar. As soon as the young lady spotted him she walked up and said, "Hello Fluffy old boy" quite familiarly. Her friendly salutation was rewarded by a blank, amazed stare from the man. The two gazed at each other for the space of perhaps half a minute, when flushing a brilliant scarlet, the woman turned on her heel and disappeared up the street at a regular Hoagland clip. What do you think she had done? She had mistaken the jolly individual for a man, with whom she had been dining in the restaurant, who had come out before she was through, and had gone off in the opposite direction.

Cholera, which is now raging in Turkey has crossed the Turkish frontier. Twelve cases of the disease were reported at the Servian town of Rashka.

If we take down that wall we will benefit by it, for we shall sell more agricultural products to Canada than she will sell to us. We do now, and we shall sell her even more after reciprocity becomes a fact. I am not arguing---I am merely stating my conclusions. If I did not believe this I should not have taken the responsibility of doing what I have done to put this reciprocity treaty through.---Taft

Ontario shipped $10,000,000 worth of horses west last year. Reciprocity means that this business will go to the United States. How quickly will the Ontario farmer get rich at this rate?

ANTI-HEARST MEETING HELD

Protest Lodged in Montreal Against Interference.

Yellow Journalist's Insults to Canada Resented.

Montreal, Sept. 11.—An "anti-Hearst" demonstration, organised by a number of Conservatives, now leading the anti-reciprocity campaign in Montreal, drew thousands to Champs des Mers Saturday night. Here they heard the past of Hearst discussed at some length, and in a manner which certainly could not have lead them to think very highly of that gentleman.

The direct cause of the assembly was the allegation that throughout Canada copies of pro-reciprocity journals, controlled by William Randolph Hearst, were being freely circulated with the object of influencing Canadian voters. Further, it was alleged that these journals contained false and deceptive statements and articles calculated to mislead the reader.

Mr. Hearst himself had been invited by telegram to be present, and Mr. Henri Bourassa was slated as the chief speaker, but neither appeared. The telegram to Mr. Hearst informed him that it was hoped that he could see his way clear to take part in a joint debate here so that his false and malicious allegations could be publicly refused.

In replying to this telegram the following message came from The New York American, signed by S. S. Carvalho:

"Mr. Hearst is in Europe and has been there for the past three months. No one here has the slightest authority to speak in his name. He might see fit to answer a courteous telegram sent to him in London; but I certainly would not undertake to forward him a telegram composed of ridiculous misstatements and couched in boorish language and conveying nothing but a convincing impression of the ill-breeding, inaccuracy, and unimportance of the two individuals signing it."

On the other hand several messages were read from Canadian newspapers endorsing the stand taken by the organizers of the meeting and condemning Mr. Hearst for the free circulation of his journals in this country.

Papineau Mathieu, Conservative organzier, was the first speaker, and stated that Taft and Hearst were banded together in a conspiracy to change the releations between Canada and the Mother Country.

Oliver Asselin attacked Mr. Hearst as the publisher of "Yellow Journals."

Rufus Pope, chief organizer of the meeting, following in a similar strain. Mr. Hearst, he said, controlled seven yellow journals, which were condemned as rotten in the United States. Roosevelt and Root had said that the Hearst papers might be considered responsible for the assassination of President McKinley.

All good Canadians should unite in protesting against the baleful influence of these journals being introduced into Canada.

Other speakers followed in a similar vein, but there was obviously little more to be said. A party of Liberals in the outskirts of the crowd raised the cry, "Vive Laurier," which roused the Nationalists present to cry "Vive Bourassa," and to sing "O Canada." Pandemonium reigned for a while, and it was only when the different opposing sections left the main crowd and betook themselves to different sections of the field to hold separate meetings that the anti-Hearst meeting was able to continue.

The meeting broke up at a late hour, with cheers in favor of a resolution condemning Mr. Hearst for unwarranted interference in Canadian politics.

JAMES J. HILL

The reciprocity agreement is the greatest measure before the country since the Civil War.

Our manufacturers complain that business is not as good as it might be. • • • They WOULD NOT HAVE TO COMPLAIN OF POOR BUSINESS IF THE CANADIAN MARKET WAS OPEN TO THEIR GOODS. Canadians have plenty of money with which to purchase our manufactures. As it would cost about 8 or 9 cents a bushel to ship the wheat here, our farmers need not fear competition on the part of the Canadian wheat growers, and the same is true of other products.

HERE IS A WARNING

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I regret very much that I am unable to return to Peterborough and register my vote against reciprocity.

The time is not yet ripe for such an agreement with the United States. As for annexation, there is no doubt in the minds of the majority of those I have met that this is the first move toward that end. Seventeen years in the United States and still a Canadian subject convinces me that Canada has more to lose than gain by reciprocity.

Sincerely yours,
ROYAL CLUXTON,
Peoria, Illinois.

MAGNIFICENCE OF JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER'S PALATIAL RESIDENCE AT POCANTICO HILLS REVEALED

VIEW of SUNKEN GARDENS AND FOUNTAINS

FIRST PHOTOGRAPHS EVER PRINTED OF FOUNTAINS AND SUNKEN GARDENS ON JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER'S ESTATE

ROCKEFELLER FAMILY ASSOCIATION AT POCANTICO HILLS.

The Rockefeller Family Association, 110 strong, and all bedecked with red ribbon badges bearing the letters "R. F. A." in gold, were the guests of Mr. John D. Rockefeller ("Uncle John," they called him) at Pocantico Hills a few days ago. Mr. Rockefeller had telegraphed instructions from Cleveland to have everything in apple pie order when his numerous relatives appeared on the scene.

Although Mr. Rockefeller has more relatives than any one in Tarrytown knew, and they are growing in numbers annually, few, if any, of them had ever visited their wealthy relative's estate at Pocantico Hills. From the time the carriages entered the grounds of the magnificent estate until they arrived at the residence on top of the hill there were exclamations of surprise at the grandeur of everything.

The sunken gardens, with figures of hens, squirrels, jugs and other objects cut out of shrubbery, won the admiration of all. The magnificent fountains in the middle of the walks and near the sun parlor were playing, and the visitors stood long looking at the rare spectacle. The sun parlor was visited, but none tarried long enough to take a bath. On the other side was another fountain prettily fenced in with shrubbery. The party then climbed to the summit of Kyk uit Hill, and from there admired the gardens and house again.

D. HUGHES CHARLES TELLS

D. Hughes Charles' testimony, on the witness stand, under oath, at the Toronto police court hearing of the charge of conspiracy to procure the certificate enabling the Farmers' Bank to do business, by deceit and fraud, preferred against J. R. Stratton et al. before Magistrate Denison. Crown Attorney Corley Prosecuting.

Q—You are an official of the Bank of Commerce are you, not, Mr. Charles?

A—No, I am not with the Bank of Commerce now,

Q—You, were, were you?

A—Yes

Q—At Peterborough?

A—Yes

Q—Manager there?

A—Manager there.

Q—At what time were you manager there?

A—From 1902 until last September

Q—Do you remember during the year 1906 having any conversation with Mr. Stratton with regard to the Farmers Bank, and how its incorporation was obtained?

A—Yes.

Q—Where was that conversation? At a private house?

A—At a private house

Q—You were both there, I suppose?

A—Yes

Q—And you are not telling me this willingly? I have made you come here at great inconvenience to yourself?

A—Yes, at great inconvenience.

Q—So that you are not violating any rule of propriety? What was that conversation?

A—It was to the effect——

Q—What Did Mr. Stratton say, as near as you can remember?

A—Well, I wrote a letter to the general manager.

Q—To your general manager?

A—Yes.

I show you that to refresh your memory.

This was the letter:

Peterborough, December 10, 1906.

"Dear Mr. Walker. I don't know whether the conversation I had with Mr. Stratton was to be considered by him as private or not, but it took place openly. He asked me, how I would like to take some stock in the Farmers' Bank, and I told him that I thought it was a poor institution, and did not think it would go on, anyway; and then he said that he had made them an advance of $80,000 to make up their cash deposit with the government. I asked him if he was not taking a great risk, and he said no, he got everything they had as security. I asked him what he meant by that, and he said the farmers' notes which had been given for stock, and that he had ample margin and was getting eight per cent. (it was ten per cent.) and a bonus. He did not say whether the advance had been made by the Traders' Bank of which he is vice-president, or by the Trust company, but I rather think it must have been by the latter.

"He was in the train on Friday evening when I was returning from Toronto and he volunteered the information that the loan had been repaid in full with interest and bonus."

D. HUGHES CHARLES.

LEADER BORDEN GETS GREAT WELCOME IN HOME PROVINCE

Enthusiastic Rallies in Pictou and New Glasgow—All This Week in the Blue-Nose Territory—His Addresses—Will be Fielding's Riding Thursday.

New Glasgow, N.S., Sept. 11.—R. L. Borden came over to Nova Scotia on Friday from Prince Edward Island. He landed at Pictou, where a big crowd met him and extended a warm reception. Mr. Borden came up to this town in the evening, where a meeting had been arranged in the Arena Rink, seating 6,000 people.

When Mr. Borden stepped from the train there were cheers from the crowd, the band formed up, and a corps of pipers struck up and he was driven to the hotel. Later in the evening, when Mr. Borden was starting for the rink, the crowd took the horses from his carrriage and hauled him and A. C. Bell to the place of speaking, through streets crowded with spectators.

Mr. Borden spoke for an hour and a quarter. He dwelt on the fact that the United States is an exporting country and that in sending her products there, Canada is only helping to make them the clearing house of the continent. He declared that Canada's home market is the best, taking 85 per cent. of our production and that the balance finds ready sale and that we should do nothing to imperil that home market. If there are trusts and combines in Canada, he said, the reciprocity agreement would only save Canada from them to place her in the hands of the ruthless American trusts.

This week will be spent in Nova Scotia. On Tuesday night he speaks in Halifax; on Thursday, nomination day, he will be in the constituency where Hon. W. S. Fielding and F. B. McCurdy are fighting it out. The next day will be spent in Lunenburg County, and on Saturday he will address a meeting at Kentville.

PRESIDENT TAFT

In one form or another the federation of Greater Britain is quite possible, and, though the issue will not be settled in a day, it bids fair to become within a generation one of the most momentous in politics.

From the point of view of the United States there would be no cause to welcome this federation. If it should be based on internal reciprocity with protection against other nations, American exports, both raw materials and manufactured goods, would suffer.

So vast are the markets included in the domain of Greater Britain, so imposing is its situation almost everywhere, that if this greatest of Empires was to follow a policy of exclusion towards others, it might provoke a league to break its power.

In such a league, too, the United States might conceivably have a place; for from the closeness of its relations with British America it might be forced either to become part of this Greater Britain, or as a matter of self-preservation to oppose it. It is a fact of the present that the drawing together of Greater Britain and Canada is in no sense to the benefit of the United States.

LOANS CALLED IN BY FRANCE

Bankers Applying Pressure on German Financiers.

Runs on Banks and Panics in Germany.

Paris, Sept. 11.—Germany's counter proposals to those submitted by France regarding the settlement of the Moroccan difficulty reached Paris Saturday night. M. de Selves, the Foreign Minister, after taking cognisance of them, immediately carried the document to Premier Caillaux. Two Ministers made a lengthy examination of its contents and decided to submit the counter proposals to specialists on Moroccan questions, notably M Regnault, the French Minister to Morocco. When they have formed an opinion the Premier will call a meeting of the Cabinet, probably on Thursday, and lay the whole matter before them for decision.

In accordance with an agreement made with the German Government no communication was made to the press concerning the text of the document, but it is understood that Germany in return for the recognition of France's free hand in Morocco, demands economic guarantees, which amount to privileges and which would be unacceptable not only to France but to all the other powers, as they would practically suppress commercial equality in Morocco.

It appears certain that the financial difficulties of Germany are partly the result of the operations of French finance. The German monetary world was caught at a time when it was unable to resist the sudden hostility of the Paris bankers, who three weeks ago began to cut off the credits, which in any way concerned Germany. A good deal of Berlin paper is held in Paris and considerable is held by Swiss banks, which are debtors of the Paris bankers. When the political situation was taking on a dark phase, as an ordinary measure of prudence, French financiers began calling in the debts owed by Germany. German embarrassment was immediately perceived, and this process was encouraged by the French Government as a diplomatice manoeuvre.

A French banker of distinction, who has close relations with the Government, returned here Friday from Berlin, where he has made a thorough examination of the situation. There is no disposition among the Paris bankers to push matters too far, but they explain that they desire the return of their money at a time when apprehension concerning the political future exists. Distrust among the Germans of their own Government with reference to finances is, in French opinion, going to exercise a strong influence in settling the Moroccan controversy. It is known that the financial flurry has been intensely annoying to the German statesmen.

No Fear of War.

Berlin, Sept. 11.—The financial panic, which has been aroused in Germany through the delayed Moroccan negotiations, has caused the Government to issue a number of provincial districts official notices, declaring that the fears of war are entirely unfounded and informing the public that the sensational reports emanating from various irresponsible sources are unworthy of credence. Local officials have been ordered to post notices to this effect in panic places.

Foreign Minister Von Kiderlen-Waechter also is reported as having given a reassuring statement to a leading financier regarding the situation.
